TIME TABLE FOR 1874.

THE P. and O. Company have not yet issued their Time Table for 1874, and we are therefore unable to publish our sheet as usual. Until the settlement of this question the service will be continued as heretofore. The service of the Messageries Maritimes also remains the same.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Advices from this port are to the 18th Nov. and via San Francisco to 20th, but the news is quite unimportant. Mr. De Long, the ex-Minister, has returned to Washington.

The Japan Herald has the following:—The Government has published the following rules to be observed by Japanese residing in China:—1. No persons except military and naval officers to carry offensive weapons of arms. 2. Must not cause any obstruction or annoyance by fast and furious riding or driving. 2. Must not cause any obstruction through intoxication. 4. Must not break or destroy any flowers, shrubs or trees in any garden or street. 5. Must not throw any earth, dirt, stones, or rubbish into any river, ditch, path or road. 6. Must not commit a nuisance on a public road. 7. Must not appear indecently exposed in the streets. 8. Must not tattoo the body. 9. No exhibitions of wrestling between men and women, or serpent charming will be permitted. 10. No women to cut their hair short. 11. No person to appear in the streets without a hat or cap. 12. Men or women to put on clean clothes when they go out, and not to cover the head or face with a handkerchief, &c. 13. No woman may prostitute herself.

It is impossible not to regret the retirement of Soyéjima from the Cabinet at this moment, whatever may be the abilities of his successor, and these are highly spoken of. The late Foreign Minister is a man of very liberal views, he thoroughly understands the foreign question, and he has the credit of being very true to any engagement he makes or promise he enters into. He has certainly gained the confidence of the foreign Ministers, and his experience and knowledge are so ample that he can ill be spared from the Cabinet during the discussions which the approaching revision of the Treaties must produce. It is conceivable that the late Foreign Minister may have urged upon his colleagues measures in regard to foreign affairs of the prudence of which their recent experience has made them somewhat doubtful, but it is on that very account that we are most disposed to regret his absence from the Cabinet at this moment, though his secession may have been unavoidable under the circumstances which brought about the late crisis.

The following dodge lately practised at Osaka may, says the Hiogo News, afford a useful hint to opposing steamer companies in China. "The people in charge of the Wunquamaru carried out an ingenious 'dodge' on Sunday last, which combined the doing of as much injury as was conveniently possible to the Budjimaru with as much swindling as could be practised upon their own passengers. When the two vessels were at Osaka together on that day, the former reduced the fare to a quarter of a bu, thereby compelling the Budjimaru to do the same. By dint of forcibly carrying some country people on board their boat they succeeded in filling her, and then casting off one rope as if starting down the river, they collected the remaining three quarters of a bu from their unfortunate and sheeplike victims."

NAGASAKI.

Mr. Oshima, who is at the head of the Mining Department, has been in Nagasaki within a few months past, on a tour of inspection. He has been with the late Embassy around the world, and has visited the principal mines in Europe and America. He has just come from Tazima, a well-known island west of Kiushu, between the latter and Korea. Extensive coal deposits are found in Tazima, which was noted as early as 675 A.D. for its silver mines. Mr. Oshima expresses great confidence in the mineral resources of Japan, and thinks that it compares favourably in this respect with the best mining regions of Europe. He believes that although hitherto the receipts have been often more than counterbalanced by the expenses with the poor methods in use, yet, by the gradual introduction of the foreign system, the mines will become a source of great revenue to the Government.

PEKING AND TIENTSIN.

On the 8th Nov. Ting-show-chang, the territorial Taoutai at Tientsin, went down in the small passenger steamer Fungseang, which runs between Tientsin and Taku, to the new fortress of Sin-ching, a short distance above Taku, accompanied by a military mandarin of the red button class, no doubt one of the leaders of the Southern Legion. Having inspected the fort he returned to Tientsin on the 10th Nov.

We hear of there being frequent communications between the Peruvian officials and the Chinese authorities, and it is probable that some progress is being made in arranging a treaty. Nothing has transpired respecting the mission to Cuba or Peru, and there is a report of some contretemps having unexpectedly arisen between the Tsung-le-Yamun and the Spanish Minister, as to the despatch of the mission.

On the 7th Nov. according to the Chinese reckoning, winter commenced. The weather has become colder, and ice has been taken out of a pond in the settlement, one-tenth of an inch thick. —The waters on the western plains have fallen so low that the Taku road has been free of water; after having been four months unused. The only foreign vessel which had been in port has left. There are three foreign vessels of war in port, which will remain all the winter, namely one British, one French and one Russian gun-vessel. The United States gunboat Palos was also expected. There are three Chinese gunboats in harbour, but it is not known if they will remain during the winter.

A statement had appeared in the Peking Gazette, that the Emperor had allotted 400,000 taels of silver for the purchase of grain to feed the distressed people of the inundated districts; but we have not heard of any grain for that purpose having yet come into port. The river will, however, be open for three weeks longer, and by the aid of the Chinese Merchant Company's steamers a large quantity of grain may still be brought.

A new kind of Gatling gun has been brought to Tientsin by an American, and it has been sent to the Viceroy's yamen. It is a sample gun, and the importer hopes to do some business with the Viceroy in such warlike machines.

The Viceroy has commenced digging a canal from the Peitang river to the Tientsin river, 100 ft. broad and 9 ft. deep, for the convenience of the inland junks conveying salt from the sea coast to this city.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 21st Nov.; the French mail from London Oct. 3 arrived out on the 18th Nov., two days early. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

We hear that Mr. Wade has signified his unqualified approval of the judgment recorded by Mr. Medhurst in the case of Tate and Hawes v. Chungkee, which was tried before the Mixed Court in April last. It will be remembered that the Taoutai and H.B.M.'s Consul gave different decisions on appeal, and the case was therefore referred to Peking.

H.M.S. Curlew, which returned from her visit to the Lewchow Islands on the 19th Nov., received information while there that four months previously a foreign vessel was wrecked on the Meiacosima group lying off the north coast of Formosa. When last heard of, the survivors, consisting of one lady, five foreigners and two Chinese, were still on the island, enjoying the hospitality of the natives. Nothing had been heard of them since the middle of August, and it seemed very uncertain whether they were still there, but Captain Church at once made up his mind to proceed, and on the 15th Nov. the Curlew reached Ty-pin-san, the easternmost island of the group. From the people on shore it was learnt that, on the 13th of July, a German vessel went to pieces on the coral reefs surrounding the island, and that ten persons reached the shore, two of whom subsequently died. Here they remained for a month, when they left in a junk provided by the authorities on the island. The vessel's name was unknown, and also the port from which she sailed, but her destination as stated by the islanders sounded like Adelaide. Her cargo, consisting of tea, had been washed ashore, and a chest label was shown as follows:—"R. T. Robertson, extra choice new season's family Congou, E. S. and Co., J. S. below in a triangle, No. 58—season 1873-74. Silverlock and Co., Foochow-foo." The vessel therefore proves to be the German schooner R. J. Robertson, of whose loss at the place and on the date mentioned a full account appeared in the North China Herald of Sept. 13. The survivors, after being very kindly treated by the natives, who refused all reward, found their way to Keelung in a junk with which they were presented, and which they were told they might dispose of for their own benefit when done with. Arriving at Keelung on Aug. 19 they got a passage to Hong Kong.

A meeting of the French Municipal Council was held on the 25th October. The subject of debate was an announcement by Messrs. Butterfield and Swire of their intention to erect landing sheds in front of the Bund Frontage lately acquired by them from the U.S.N. Company. It will be seen that their right to do this was admitted, and the project approved, by a majority of the Council, but was contested by the President, M. Voisin, and M. Maignan, who have, we are informed, since sent in their resignations.

The annual meeting of members of the Gymnasium has been held, Mr. A. Provand in the chair. The Chairman said the accounts which had been left in his hands by the Secretary, Mr. H. Munster Schultz, showed a cash balance of $800, with $400 due for subscriptions for the half-year, in all $1,200. The nominal strength of the Association was about 100, and subscriptions might be expected from eighty, making the amount of $400 calculated on as the half-year's income from that source. The accounts were passed, and Messrs. Stephenson Provand, Lessman (Secretary) and Falcker appointed the new committee. It was resolved to hold athletic sports on the 1st and 2nd December.

Our readers may be interested in knowing that the second frigate now being built at the Arsenal is nearly completed, and will be launched in about six weeks. This vessel is similar to the one launched in 1872, and, like her, will be armed with Krupp guns. The battery for both vessels is now daily expected from Europe. The machinery (400 h.p.) for this ship, as well as the former, has been made at the Arsenal, under the direction of Mr. Rolls, and promises to be a fine piece of work. The authorities, we believe, contemplate sending both vessels to Tientsin early in the spring, for inspection by the Viceroy.

Mr. G. G. Mayne, late manager of the Shanghai and Hongkew Wharf, has been tried for obtaining money under false pretences from the Deutsche Bank, found guilty, and sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

The preliminary examination into the charge of murder brought against Joseph Harris has been concluded, and he has been committed for trial. The trial has been fixed for the 28th November.

HONG KONG.

Dates by this mail extend to the 27th Nov. The outward French mail of 10th Oct. arrived on the 21st Nov.; and the following P. and O. mail of 17th Oct. on the 26th Nov. The following summary is from the China Mail:—

There is a rumour widely circulated amongst the Chinese that the Empress Dowager of China is dead, and that a telegram to that effect has been received by some one in Hong Kong. We have made all inquiries, and we are inclined to believe that the report is unfounded, probably invented by those who have lost severely in the Wai Sing Lottery. The death of the Empress

Digitized by Google

Dowager, if true, would have the effect of preventing any further indulgence in the lottery, as there would be no more literary or military examinations while the national mourning was kept up.

A report obtained currency a short time since amongst the Chinese that the students sent by the Chinese Government to America had been ill-treated by the roughs. The Chinese Mail stated from a reliable source that the rumour was entirely unfounded, and inserted a paragraph to that effect. An acknowledgment of gratitude by the Commissioner of the Educational Mission for the correction was received from Shanghai by that journal last mail.

We learn that the property, plant, godowns, pier and machinery belonging to the Hong Kong Pier and Godown Company, Limited, which was put up by public auction, was bought in by the mortgagees for the sum of eighty thousand dollars. Mr. C. P. Chater bid up to seventy-nine thousand.

The Chinese merchants sent in a memorial to the Government yesterday, praying for the abolition of the carriage of lanterns. It was signed by over 1,000 shops.

Saturday's Gazette notifies that the Queen's Exequatur, empowering Mr. Cordes to act as Consul of the German Empire at this port, received Her Majesty's signature on the 8th October, 1873.

A very erroneous version has been circulated regarding the Portuguese gun vessel Camœns. It appears that the Duque de Pamella being about to leave for Europe some of the friends of the officers from the Camœns went off in a gig to bid them goodbye. On their return they collided with a Chinese opium snake boat and were capsized. The Chinese picked them out of the water, but proposed to land them, not at Macao, but at some place on the coast. To this they objected. Words led to blows; one of the Portuguese seized the snake boat's tiller, when an attack was made on them with spears by the Chinese, who pitched them overboard. In the fight one of the gentlemen was so wounded that he died, and was to be buried to-day. Some of the others made good their escape, but some were drowned. The snake boat got away. No doubt measures will be taken for the capture of the crew.

As the German barque Faugh Balaugh was nearing Green Island this morning, the steam-tug Sea Gull, which was out plying for hire, ran into her, tearing away several chain plates, and damaging her side. The tug herself sustained so much damage to her bows as to render her being beached a necessity, to prevent her sinking.

THE CUBAN MISSION.

The departure of the Mission selected to inquire into the Coolie trade, regarding which we gave some particulars a few weeks ago, has, according to a North China contemporary, been retarded by a singular—not to say wholly untenable—demand on the part of the Spanish Chargé d'Affaires at Peking. The point raised is that some compensation shall be given to Spain if the results of the inquiry about to be instituted should lead to the suppression of the coolie traffic with the Havana. If such a demand has been made—which for the honour of Spain we hope is not the case—we can only characterise it as one of the least justifiable ever presented to an Asiatic Power. The question to be settled is, whether the coolie trade as at present conducted is so unjust and inhuman to the coolie that its suppression is a matter of necessity; and should that question be answered in the affirmative, Spain demands compensation for discontinuing it.

We much regret to record the death by drowning, of Lieut. F. H. Johnstone, senior lieutenant of H.M.S. Princess Charlotte. He was first missed from the ship about 3 A.M. of the 18th, being last seen in his night-clothes, and grave fears were at once entertained that he had been drowned. The boats of the ship were set to dragging round her during the day, but without success. The Government offered a reward of fifty dollars to the sampans to make search for the body, and it was finally found on the 21st about noon near the Peninsula and Oriental wharf. The funeral took place on Saturday afternoon (22nd), and was attended by a large number of naval and military mourners, including the captain of the French man-of-war now in port. The band of the 80th Regiment was in attendance.

The following letter to the Chairman of the Chamber of Commerce from the management of the Great Northern Extension Telegraph Company has been published:—

DET STORE NORDISKE TELEGRAF SELSKAB, KJOBENHAVN, den 7th Oktober, 1873.

The Chairman of the Hong Kong General Chamber of Commerce, Hong Kong.

Sir,—In reply to your esteemed letter of 9th August we at once telegraphed to our manager, Mr. Dreyer, to inform you that we are preparing steps to ensure a permanent and satisfactory working of all our telegraph lines in China and Japan.

We are happy to state that not a single interruption has been caused by fault or deficiency in the electrical condition of our cables, which are superior to most cables laid. The frequent interruptions have—with a single exception, on the Nagasaki-Wladiwostock line—nearly all taken place in the mouth of the Yangtsze river or close to Hong Kong. They have all been caused by ships or junks' anchors, in a few instances also by violence from Chinese thieves.

We believe that there is not another line of telegraph cables so much exposed to interruption as ours between Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Nagasaki. In many places cables are exposed to anchorage, and many companies have been obliged to alter the position of their cables several times, before they have been able to insure them against outward violence, but nowhere have they been exposed to have their cables wilfully cut by the craft, which accidentally got across them.

Our company will, of course, have to prepare against these accidents and difficulties, and our not having done so yet is not due to any neglect or want of provision. If we had at once commenced to alter the position of our cables or to lay down stronger cables, it would have been a mere waste of money and would not in the least have improved the communication. It was necessary first to gain sufficient experience as to the causes of the breakages and the exposed places, before steps were taken to insure permanent improvement. Under circumstances so extraordinary as those in the China waters such experience is not gained in less time than a couple of years.

Our present experience has however sufficed to indicate the exact course we have to pursue in our alterations, and we are happy to inform you that we are at this moment preparing steps which we trust will insure not only a permanent and satisfactory working between Hong Kong and the Northern ports, but also between China and Europe via Siberia.—I am, Sir, your most obedient servant.—C. F. TRETGEN, Chairman.

In the Supreme Court, before their lordships, Chief Justice Smale and Mr. Justice Pauncefote, the petition in the case of Landstein v. the King of Annam was heard. The plaintiff was represented by Mr. Hayllar, and the defendant by Mr. Kingsmill. The suit was brought by Messrs. Landstein and Co. against the King of Annam, to recover about $300,000, and the Annamese steamer Dang Wee had been attached.

Mr. Kingsmill asked for an adjournment for two months, as in the event of time being allowed for communication with the King of Annam it might turn out that no further proceedings was necessary. This long adjournment was opposed by Mr. Hayllar, on the ground that the King had no real defence to offer. After a long discussion, the Chief Justice stated that he had received a communication from the Government on the subject of the suit, and in this letter (which was read) it appeared that the Government of Annam repudiated having anything to do with the transaction, and denied that any debt was left unpaid for so long a period. After a further discussion, the Chief Justice remarked that the damages in a case of this character ought to be settled by arbitration, and counsel on both sides apparently wishing to entertain this view, the case was ultimately adjourned for a week, to enable Mr. Kingsmill to consider what course he would adopt.

We regret to record a boat accident, by which Captain Caetano and others, from the corvette Principe Carlos, lost their lives in the Macao Roads.

It is proposed to give a public banquet to Mr. Justice Pauncefote on his leaving the colony.

PHILIPPINES.

MANILA.

Within the space of eleven days no less than three hurricanes raged in various portions of the Philippines, on the 18th, 25th and 29th ult.; the lives lost in consequence are estimated at several hundreds, and the damage done to property on sea and land is said to be very great. The thick weather experienced at these dates proved fatal to the coasting craft. The Spanish steamer Mindoro was totally lost off Masbate. The Diario and Comercio thus enumerate those who perished on the occasion:—

3 European engineers (foreigners).
7 Chinese passengers.
5 native soldiers out of 17 on board.
10 natives, who had been sailors and firemen.

25 in all.

The Comercio states that the Mindoro was insured at Manila for $30,000; the Diario says that the losses suffered by Chinamen in consequence of her loss amount to $40,000.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this mail extend to the 4th Dec. The outward P. and O. mail of 31st Oct. arrived on the 3rd Dec. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

This colony was represented at the coronation of the King of Siam by two Commissioners—the Hon. J. W. W. Birch, Colonial Secretary, and Mr. Robert Barclay Read, nominated by the Chamber of Commerce at the request of H.E. the Governor—who presented their credentials and an address to his Majesty congratulating him upon his final accession to the throne. One great feature in the ceremony was the promulgation of a Royal Edict abolishing the servile custom of prostration by inferiors before their superiors throughout Siam, even in Royal audiences.

Digitized by Google

and instituting bowing and uncovering the head instead. This is a consequence of the visits of the King of Siam to the Straits, Java, and India, and will doubtless be followed by the abolition of other servile Siamese customs. The Pluto returns to this port with the Commissioners.

The cattle murrain, which has been raging disastrously in Penang and Province Wellesley, has also made its appearance in Singapore, and in consequence no bullock carts can be obtained for the conveyance of goods to and from the wharves, while beef and milk are scarce, and do not meet with much favour from the European community. We have no means of ascertaining the extent of the ravages of the disease among the cattle in Singapore, but some idea may be gathered from the fact that the Government and Commissariat beef contractor alone has lost sixty or seventy head of cattle, while scarcely a cart is to be seen in the streets, and cargo boats are in great demand.

The Avon and Midge are busy endeavouring to extirpate a nest of Chinese pirates that infest the rivers and creeks of Laroot and Perak, but their operations had not at last advices been attended with much success; and the Thalia is still at this port. Captain Speedy, formerly Superintendent of Police at Penang, who has entered the service of the Tunku Muntri of Laroot, is busily drilling a force of some 300 sepoys recruited in India as a semi-military police, to aid in keeping order among the Chinese tin-miners in Laroot; it is reported that he had a skirmish recently with some of the unruly Chinamen, in which his party was worsted, and his brother shot dead, but in the absence of definite information the report cannot be relied on.

The movement on foot among Straits merchants in London, urging the annexation of Perak and Laroot to this colony, is the cheapest way of restoring order in these territories, and protecting the trade of the colony; and as this can, we believe, be done by subsidising the native rulers, it is earnestly to be hoped the suggestion will be carried out if possible. If the same policy were also to be adopted with respect to the little native States lying between Perak and Malacca, the results would be of incalculable benefit to these Settlements, and a large tract of country, teeming with minerals and rich in agricultural resources, but now neglected and locked up by incessant petty wars and blockades, would be opened up to British trade and enterprise.

St. Andrew's day this year fell on Sunday, and the Scots of Singapore, following a custom instituted two or three years ago, observed Saturday, 29th, as a holiday in honour of their patron saint. They were supported on this occasion by the banks and the entire mercantile community, so that the day became a general holiday, and will, we presume, be so observed in future.

We understand that the fight between Government and the Municipal Commissioners over Mr. A. Velge's estreated bond for $10,000 is not over yet. Our late Governor, more suo, returned a flat refusal, which was backed with much law but not a particle of equity, to the application of the Commissioners that the money should be handed over to them, as according to all law and precedent they were its rightful owners. The Commissioners adduced in support of their application, as a case in point, that of Lizardi's bond, in London, for £12,000, which was forfeited and has been handed over to the London Corporation. To any one not versed in law or precedent, it must appear that neither parties are entitled to the money, for they did nothing to deserve it, but least of all is the Government, by whose default and negligence it was forfeited, and that if any one should get the money, it is the bank, by whose action the bond was obtained as a security for the loss it had sustained from the bailee. But of course this suggestion, although consonant with common sense, is so contrary to all law and precedent that it will be scouted at once by lawyers, commissioners, officials, and other right-minded loyal subjects. We believe the municipal commissioners intend to appeal home in defence of their rights against Sir Harry Ord's decision, but before doing so have concluded to make a second application to H.E. Sir Andrew Clarke.

Another instance of the liberality of H.H. the Maharajah of Johore, which has come to our knowledge, deserves to be generally known. Upon application from the Rev. J. Aberigh-Mackay, now Chaplain of Simla, but formerly of Singapore, his Highness has subscribed the sum of five hundred rupees to "The Strangers' Home in London," an institution for providing shelter and assistance for all Asiatics who may find themselves homeless and without means in the desert streets of London.

THE RE-CORONATION OF THE KING OF SIAM.

The Siamese Sovereign has resumed his sceptre, and planted the diadem once more upon his brows. This—as we remarked in a previous issue—is the second occasion on which his present Majesty has undergone the costly and curious ceremonial of an antique Asiatic coronation. We have already expressed our doubt as to whether any precedent can really be pointed out among the Siamese—or, indeed, anywhere in Oriental history—for what is to all appearance so vain a repetition. Authorities on the spot, however, assure us that every good Buddhist should pass at any rate some short time in the priesthood after he attains his twentieth year, and the present King of Siam having been called to the throne before that age, his abdication and re-coronation were but necessary consequences of these native notions. This sounds very plausible, but perhaps after all the real though tacit purpose of the whole transaction may have been to mark emphatically the epoch at which the administration of the country was to pass from the hands of the Regent, and to be taken up in earnest by the Sovereign, who at last had left his boyhood behind him. Be this as it may, the solemnities which accompanied the coronation festival were so singular and so old-fashioned, so symbolic, that we cannot fail to interest our readers if we briefly reproduce them here. "The re-coronation exercises" (so the Siam Advertiser phrases it) commenced in the palace grounds on the 16th of November last. There the Princes of the Blood, the Ministers of State, the noblemen, and the leading officials in Bangkok and from the Provinces, had gathered themselves together from early dawn; and at about six A.M. soft strains from conch shells and other instruments heralded the approach of the King. Borne in a palanquin on mens' shoulders his Majesty proceeded to the old audience hall, and, having first lit a taper, entered the apartment and took his seat upon the throne. Here he remained till all had been made ready for the rites of

CONSECRATION AND ABLUTION.

In an enclosed square to the south of the audience hall a dais had been set up, and from the centre of the canopy which overshadowed this dais there sprung a white tapering spire, divided into nine sections, and having ten smaller coloured spires grouped round it. A golden seat rested on the dais beneath the canopy, while a slender white cotton thread had been carried from the central spire to two similar spires placed, one in the west, and the other in the east, in the audience hall within.

Presently the King, clad in a thin white costume, took possession of the golden seat, and then several rills of clear water began to trickle down upon him through the perforated ceiling of the canopy above. Next the head priest of Siam, the Princes, the Brahmins, the Ministers of State and others in order of their rank presented water in gold utensils to their Sovereign, and the latter as he received it sprinkled it over his person in the presence of the silent spectators. These purificatory rites completed his Majesty exchanged his dripping apparel for a smart suit of pink and gold, and girded himself with belt and sword. Thus attired he re-entered the audience hall, and seated himself first on the south side of an octagonal platform. Hereupon a Brahmin rehearsed certain precepts, and then offered a chrism, with which the King anointed his face, and some holy water, which he poured down the back of his head. This done, the King spoke some few words in Pali, and then, all the while advancing carefully from right to left, he took up his position on each of the eight faces in succession of the octagonal seat, and on each change of place he repeated a rite similar to the one already described, that is eight times in all. When this was over and completing ceremony yet remained to be accomplished. This took place beneath the white spiral canopy of a throne at the west side of the hall. Here the Chief Marshal of the operations presented his Majesty, one by one, with the five insignia of Royalty—the Royal Shoes, the Sceptre, the Fan, the Sword, and lastly, the Crown—each offering being accompanied by a few formal instructions as to the duties of a monarch. As his Majesty placed the gift last handed to him on his head, the Royal Standard was unfurled outside the hall, music struck up in every quarter of the palace, and the pealing voices of 101 cannon announced to the populace that the coronation was now complete. This business concluded, his Majesty scattered among the assembled nobility gold and silver artificial flowers, presented to the priests their morning repast, and then retired to his private apartments.

A GRAND AUDIENCE

followed at about half-past ten, and besides the native princes and noblemen who assembled in the audience hall on that occasion, the foreign consuls and two accredited representatives from Singapore had been invited to take part in the proceedings. At the favourable moment trumpets, gongs, drums, and conch shells burst out into what was doubtless intended to be melody, the golden curtain which concealed the great throne was drawn aside, and disclosed the King once more to his courtiers in his robes of state. All heads were bowed, and the Siamese, prostrate on the richly carpeted floor, worshipped with palm-joined hands, raising themselves on their knees, bowing, leaning on their elbows, and then thrice lowering their faces till they touched the ground.

THE PROCLAMATIONS.

His Majesty then read out two Royal Edicts. The first was an important one, and abolishes "crouching, crawling, and prostrations, and substitutes standing, bowing, and lifting the hat," for to "show honour by such squatting and worship," his Majesty very wisely "perceives to be of no benefit whatever to the country."

By the Edict next recited several existing Siamese orders or decorations were reconstituted, and other new ones were created; and when his Majesty had finished reading, the Siamese simultaneously, and for the last time for ever, repeated the respectful and reverential demonstrations as at first, and then the prostrate mass arose upright "in the most natural position, and respectfully bowed." After this were read. The first was presented by the oldest member of the Royal family; then followed the Regent, as "the Chief Executive Minister." He was succeeded by the British Consul, on behalf of the Consular body; and when the representatives from Singapore, who came next, had made an end it was his Majesty's turn to reply. This closed the interview. Later in the day the King gave a reception to some members of his own family, and bestowed decorations upon several of their number, and in the afternoon the LIGHTED TAPER WAS PASSED ROUND.

This custom was accomplished as follows:—Seven sectioned, spiral, vases of glass, gold, silver, and plaintain leaf were set up in front of the throne, and then the Government officials within and without the hall simultaneously passed the lighted taper round, "dedicating the throne according to Royal custom."

AN IMPOSING RECEPTION, attended by foreign guests, as well as by native nobles, took place the same evening, while the general public were glutted with that which every Siamese so dearly loves—a gorgeous and unlimited display of puppet shows, theatricals, fireworks and illuminations.

THE ADORATION OF THE PRIESTS.

This came off on the next day. Inside the Royal Audience Hall 262 Palapoins appeared and paid their salutations, while 1,428 members of the Holy Order rehearsed their adorations around the Palace walls outside. On the 21st November his Majesty completed a

GRAND LAND PROCESSION

around the city, making his exit by the gate Wisetchaisee, turning always to the right, going round the Palace walls, and re-entering by the same gate. On the 24th the advanced from right to left along the canals which make the circuit of the city walls, and halted at several important temples which are to be found along the route. This brought the re-coronation ceremonies to a close.

Readers may perhaps be inclined to smile at much of what we have here been endeavouring to describe. Let us, however, assure them that the ceremony is modelled on old Brahminical usages, and though rare in modern days, we feel not a doubt that it is a more or less complete reproduction of what has taken place in India from the earliest times every time that a Rajah of the Brahmin faith has ascended the throne. Siam is Buddhist, but there is a temple in Bangkok where Brahmin priests are carefully kept as custodians of the traditionary usages to be observed in all grand ceremonials. Their antiquity, their mystic symbolism, and the risk lest the ritual be soon lost altogether, are the considerations which give interest to these solemnities, which certainly merit at the hands of Oriental scholars a much more careful investigation than we have been able to bestow upon it here.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—A fair business had transpired, chiefly in Grey Shirtings, which had improved considerably in value. Drills were slightly lower, but other kinds of goods showed little change as regards price. Grey Shirtings: 7 lbs. and 8¼ lbs. had been in moderate demandat advancing rates, and at the close were quoted four or five candareens higher. Heavy weights without change, and settlements small; but of 6 lbs. some 4,500 pieces have found buyers at an advance of two candareens. White Shirtings: 64 and 66 reeds, in fair request at fully previous rates. T-Cloths: A little more inquiry for 8 lbs. and 7 lbs., but prices without improvement. Woollens and Worsteds: In improved demand, in sympathy with the Shanghai market. Long Ells: Scarlet have advanced slightly. Camlets and Spanish Stripes showed little change. Figured Orleans: A slight concession on the part of holders had led to a large business, some 2,500 pieces having been taken during the fortnight. Metals: Lead; scarcely any sales reported, but market firm at Tls. 6.00 to 6.10 per picul. Quicksilver; no business. Quotations, Tls. 120 to 125 per picul.

SHANGHAI.—In Cotton Goods early in the interval some considerable transactions were recorded; but as the great Northern markets would shortly close for the winter season, and money in native circles was very tight, a quieter tone prevailed at the close. Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs. had been in steady demand, and a slight advance on the commoner makes had been established. Goods were being offered freely at current rates for delivery two months hence, without however leading to much business. 7 lbs. had not improved, except for favourite chops, and for Heavy Shirtings there had been hardly any inquiry. White Shirtings had been in good demand, and owing to smallness of stocks a considerable advance in values had been obtained. T-Cloths continued in the same unsatisfactory position as previously reported; the market was characterised as "very sick." Drills were also very dull, and saleable in small lots only at reduced rates. Jeans had been in better demand, and were quoted a little higher. In Sheetings, except a sale of mildewed goods at a low price, there were no transactions to note. Fancy Cottons: Gentian Shirtings and Chintz Twills had been in good demand by dealers for the North, but other goods had attracted little attention. Woollens: Scarlet Long Ells had been much sought after; but, though stocks were very small, dealers would not advance on former quotations. Camlets were in steady demand at unchanged prices; complaints of mildew in this fabric were frequent. Figured Orleans were very dull, but good assortments of Plain Orleans were readily saleable. Spanish Stripes and Medium Cloths attracted very little attention, and were quoted lower. Assorted Lastings of second quality were wanted, but prices offered were unremunerative.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been—Grey Shirtings, 8-4 lbs., 2,250 pieces, at $2.70 to 2.75 per piece. T-Cloths: 500 pieces, 7 lbs., at $1.95 per piece.

HONG KONG.—The ship Albert Victor, and the steamers Tartar, Achilles, besides the mail steamers, had arrived, and had brought fair supplies of manufactured goods for this market. There had been very little inquiry for Grey Goods, but better accounts from the north had helped to maintain prices of Grey Shirtings, but in the case of T-Cloths holders were still anxious to realise, and to effect sales they had in some instances accepted lower prices. Great complaints were being made of the slackness of trade in the interior, and the dealers showed no disposition to go into stock. Cotton Yarn: 16s to 24s of common qualities still out of demand, and stocks in consequence accumulating, better springs found buyers to small extent. 28s to 32s, few sales at previous prices. Grey Shirtings: 8 lbs. unsaleable; and 7 lbs. difficult to move; 8-4 lbs., recent advices from Shanghai had strengthened importers' hands, and though the demand was small, dealers had had to pay full prices for what they require; 9 to 10 lbs. quite out of request. T-Cloths: 6 lbs. common quite unsaleable; 7 lb., prices not maintained, and the tendency was towards a further decline. Mexicans, 6 lb. small stock; 7 lb. in little demand, and lower prices accepted; 8 lb. in small stock, but not asked for. Drills: Small sales at the late decline. Fancy Goods: Little doing; prices are unchanged. Woollens: Spanish Stripes lower. Blankets unchanged. Long Ells: Scarlet advanced 25c. to 30c., at which a fair quantity had been taken. Assorted advanced in sympathy, but not much doing. Camlets weaker all round. Metals: Iron Nail Rod 5c. per picul higher, but demand not so active. Bar unchanged in value. Hoop more sought after. Lead had been in fair demand, but business had been restricted by the firmness of holders; prices advanced 60c. per picul for L.B.; Ordinary Brands quoted $8.15 to 8.50, and W.B. $8.70 to 8.80.

CANTON.—Lead had greatly advanced in value, was held firmly, but at the current prices there was no great demand; quotations were $9.10 to 9.20 for L.B., and $9.30 to 9.50 for W.B. Sales 1,200 pigs of the former. Quicksilver had been in request, but since the arrival of 300 flasks from San Francisco the demand had slackened.

BATAVIA.—Business in Piece Goods was almost entirely at a stand-still, and pending the reduction of duties with the beginning of the new year, only very trifling transactions had taken place, principally of goods already imported, which holders were clearing off at reduced prices. The native new year holidays had also considerably interrupted business.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Bowstead and Co.'s Report says:—The arrivals with general cargoes are the steamers Ningpo and Glenroy from London, the Nestor and Yrurac Bat from Liverpool, and the Asia from Hamburg. During the early part of the fortnight a fair amount of business in Piece Goods was transacted, but latterly the market has become quieter and closes dull. There is no change of importance in prices to be noted. Grey Shirtings:—Sales of 8¼ lbs. goods to some extent at $2.37½ to $2.40. Small transactions in 7 lbs. at $2; 6 lbs. nominal at $1.80 to $1.82½. 45 inch: Both 8 and 9 lbs. dull, and hardly any business is reported. 32 inch T-Cloths: Light weights very unsaleable. 5 lbs. taken at $1.25 to 1.26½. 6 lbs. have received more attention and are in moderate stock; sales at $1.47½ to $1.50. 7 lbs. asked for at $1.65 to $1.67½. Grey Madapollams 2¼ lbs. scarce and wanted at $16¼ to $16¾. No enquiry for heavier weights. 40's Grey Yarn: Sales to some extent at $120 to $122, closing quiet with sellers at the lower quotation; stock small. 30's in occasional request at $105 to $106. 18's/24's mock water in slightly better enquiry. Woollens: Assorted Camlets saleable at $19 to $20. Scarlet Long Ells out of stock and are wanted. Lastings in occasional enquiry. Scarlet Bombasettes dull of sale. Metals: Iron is without alteration in price, little enquiry and no transactions reported. Lead having advanced in China, prices here are stronger, and for L.B. brand $7 would be paid for supplies on the spot.

PENANG.—During the fortnight there had been several sales of mildewed Grey Staples, at low rates, which had tended to weaken the market. Business transacted had on the whole, been very small, and quotations remained unaltered.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

HANKOW.—Transactions had been limited and confined almost entirely to Russian buyers. Settlements for the fortnight had been 2,154 chests; shipments on native account 3,897 chests.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer and Co.'s Report says: There has been more doing during the fortnight in Black Teas, the low rate of exchange and a slight reduction in the tael price having induced purchases. The bulk of the business has been in common Oonam kinds, Lowyongs, and Pingkongs, at Tls. 15.0.0 to 16.0.0. Good common Oopacks and Ningchows have been settled at Tls. 17.0.0 to 19.0.0. Export of Congou, deducting losses, is 55,656,093 lbs., against 58,896,838 lbs. last season. Green Teas: The continued disastrous advices from both England and America has had the effect of checking purchases, and the business reported is on a moderate scale. Prices show a marked reduction all round with the exception of the finest qualities of Moyune, which maintain their value. Stock is the largest on record, amounting to over 100,000 half-chests.

FOOCHOW.—A fair business had been in progress at rates which had continued firm, but the market closed with less animation. Congou: Settlements 30,500 chests at Tls. 13¼ to 19¼. The demand had been principally for ordinary to good common grades at a slight advance. The better kinds were slightly easier. Arrivals 8,200 chests. Souchong: Settlements 2,500 chests at Tls. 15 to 46, which in some instances showed a slight decline. Oolong: Settlements 3,700 half-chests at Tls. 16 to 23, about previous rates. Arrivals 1,200 half-chests. Scented Teas: Settlements 5,100 boxes Scented Orange Pekoe at Tls. 16 to 20, 500 boxes Scented Caper at Tls. 15¾ to 18, and 400 boxes dust at Tls. 6. Arrivals 3,700 boxes. Flowery Pekoe: Settlements 520 chests at Tls. 14 to 34. Arrivals nil.

AMOY AND TAMSUI.—The Amoy market for Oolongs had been active during the fortnight, and about 23,400 half-chests, consisting chiefly of cargo grades, had been settled. Prices for fair cargo showed a slight advance at close, while for Teas grading superior and upwards rates had been rather more in favour of buyers. Quotations: Inferior to common, $14.00 to 15.50; fair, $16.50 to 17.50; good, $19.00 to 21.00; superior, $22.50 to 24.00; fine, $26.00 to 30.00. At Tamsui the market was very firm, and prices were hardening every day. Supplies were small, and there was very little more leaf expected down.

CANTON.—The market had been extremely quiet during the fortnight, and the unfavourable advices received by wire from the London market had almost put a stop to business. Teamen would doubtless be willing to make some concession in price, but buyers evinced no desire to purchase, and there was no change in prices.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THE WAR IN SUMATRA.

THE HAGUE, DEC. 28.—The Government has to-day received the following official despatch from Lieutenant-General Van Swieten:—"We are bivouacking on the right bank of the Atchin river, not far from the Kraton. Communication with the left bank is maintained by a bridge. The concentration of our forces at this point has been retarded for three days by sickness, particularly among the working parties attached to the expedition. The troops are taking the rest necessary to recruit them after the late outbreak of cholera, which has now become less prevalent. Entrenchments are being thrown up to protect our positions from surprise. The enemy are short of provisions, and it is expected that this scarcity will have the effect of dispersing their forces." No communication has yet been received from the Sultan of Atchin.

PENANG, DEC. 30.—Advices received here announce a severe engagement between a large body of Atchinese and a portion of the Dutch forces while the latter were reconnoitring the Kraton. Their object was gained with moderate loss. The Atchinese lost heavily. The Dutch are erecting heavy batteries before the Kraton, where the Atchinese have been reinforced by the Rajah of Pedier. The health and spirits o the Dutch troops are excellent.

THE HAGUE, DEC. 30.—Official despatches from Sumatra without date report that on the occasion of the great reconnaissance of the Kraton a strongly-entrenched position was captured. The fighting was of a very stubborn character. The Dutch lost eight killed and seventy-eight wounded. The conduct of the troops was excellent, and considerable losses were inflicted upon the enemy. General Van Swieten has not yet received any reply to his letters to the Sultan of Atchin. Provisions and war material were still being accumulated for a vigorous attack. Several native chiefs had been beaten, while others had been neutralised or were discouraged. The Atchinese are short of rice. The weather is favourble, and cholera is decreasing. An official despatch from Penang, dated the 30th inst., announces that a serious engagement was fought on the 26th, and the object aimed at by the Dutch was crowned with success. The Dutch troops lost sixteen killed and sixty wounded. A strong battery is being constructed and is nearly completed. The Rajah of Pedies had reinforced the Kraton with a body of 1,500 men, and the Dutch squadron had sailed for his territory to chastise him. The bearer of General Van Swieten's letters to the Sultan had been imprisoned, and the letters were destroyed without being delivered to him. The populace had obtained supreme power.

PENANG, JAN. 3.—The Dutch troops have attacked Pedier, on accoun of the Rajah having sent troops to reinforce the Atchinese, and have captured the forts and burnt the villages. Four hundred marines ascended the river, and have been fairly successful in their operations. The boats returned on the 31st ultimo. The Dutch loss in these operations was two men killed and one officer and eight men wounded. The squadron sailed again for Atchin on the 1st instant.

TEA IN 1873.

(PRODUCE MARKETS REVIEW.)

The English merchants in China have during the past year resorted to a certain extent to the plan of feeding the British demand from month to month, and as the London market has not been glutted at special seasons, as was formerly the case, there have been none of the Tea panics which have often proved so disastrous to importers. This is doubtless a sign that the fact that it is the home trade which regulates prices is at length more generally recognised in China, and that relations between the producer and the consumer will in the course of time be placed on a more satisfactory footing. But until the English merchants in China and their agents here attend more closely to the changes in the public demand, there is no chance of Tea proving as remunerative an article of import as it should be. While the Chinese manufacturers, from want of information, probably remain perfectly stationary in their ideas on Tea, other markets are rapidly being opened up, and India alone now exports half as much Tea to this country as China did thirty years ago, and not only is this the case, but Indian Tea is as a rule far superior to that made in China, owing to the close attention which the planters pay to the wants of the public, and to the improvements on the traditional Chinese methods sure to be introduced by intelligent Europeans. It is hardly too much to say that 20,000,000 lbs. of Indian Tea are equal, in Tea-making power, to quite 25,000,000 lbs. of the average China Tea. Java also is a new rival to China, and though only 5,000,000 or 6,000,000 lbs. are produced in that island, still a new competitor, in an unexpected quarter, shows that the Chinese are no longer masters of the market, while Japan, on a pinch, could also send us large quantities of Tea. It is evident, therefore, that though China must for many years remain the largest exporter, prices will in future be appreciably influenced by the produce of other countries, and that the China merchants, abandoning their old princely policy, must pay close attention to home wants, and descend to studying the demand of the British public, as evinced through the canisters of the retail grocer.

The year has been a disastrous one to many importers, the losses being principally in Green Teas and in the Canton Scented descriptions. The importation of Black Tea, though generally understood to have been unremunerative, has not been attended with such exceptionally heavy losses as was the case in many former years. The superior quality of the imports from Shanghai and Foo-chow (especially from the latter port) has no doubt contributed to this, freedom from dust being a noticeable improvement on former imports. Incredible as it may appear, with telegraphic communication fully established between the two places, it is a fact that large quantites of Tea have been purchased in China for shipment to this country, at prices fully 2d. per lb. above those current here at the time. As a matter of theory the import of Tea ought to be one of the most remunerative of trades, if it be true that the raw leaf only costs 2d. to 3d. per lb. Apart from a more judicious selection of Teas which shall be suited to the market and shall possess greater keeping qualities, and also from a more even feeding of the demand with supplies, it would appear that very great economies might be effected if purchases were made direct of the growers by Europeans. Our consumption, large as it may seem, is, however, a mere trifle to that of China, while the production in the Tea districts which have hitherto sent Tea to England is probably capable of a great increase, and there are vast Tea producing provinces in China which have not as yet exported a pound of Tea. With the collapse of the Mahomedan rebellion in the Western part of China, a little energy on our part ought to enable us to tap Tea districts through Burmah as large as those from which we have hitherto received supplies.

The Indian Tea trade of 1873 has continued to show that satisfactory progress which has characterised it during the past few years. Indian Teas have more than shared in the augmented consumption, as the proportionate increase returns are issued, but the London stock is estimated at 14,300 tons, or an excess of 300 tons as compared with 31st December, 1872.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, JAN. 1.

The day before Christmas the First Chamber voted the Home Budget, and then the Members left the Hague, so that the discussions upon the other Budgets will not be commenced until the 12th inst., notwithstanding that the fundamental law prescribes that the estimates shall all be voted before the opening of the year. Several members of the First Chamber complained most energetically of the Lower House having wasted so much time in useless debates, when dealing with the Budgets, as to render it impossible to comply with this law. This protest, however, which is repeated year after year, is not likely to effect any reform in the very bad habits of the Lower House. The members of the First Chamber wisely resolved not to discuss the Atchin question until the war is finished, when they trust the Government will afford full information. Complaints were made that none among the many Ministers who have stood during the last few years at the head of the War Department, and have expended so much money for military purposes, have adopted any fixed system of military administration. Some of the members expressed themselves willing to grant the money asked for a reorganisation of our means of defence, but there were others who sought to demonstrate that it is useless to spend money on such a purpose. Our financial condition was regarded as being satisfactory, but several members ascribed this to the extraordinary high prices of coffee, and this being exceptional they thought it prudent that the Minister of the Financial Department, who has promised so much and who has done so very little, should introduce measures to reform our system of taxation, in order to provide for times of less prosperity, which perhaps would soon arrive. Several members were anything but content with the foreign policy of the Cabinet, and they especially condemned the treaties which had been concluded with England, which had involved both countries in very costly wars. Great astonishment was expressed that the revisal of the East Indian tariff had not yet had the results which were foretold when the subject was under discussion. Not one Power has given us compensation for the sacrifices which were made by Holland. Some remarks were also made about the new regulation of the sugar law, and the new coinage standard which is to be introduced.

The fact that the King has conferred the knighthood of the "William" Order on the Rajah Boerhan Oedin has created much astonishment, or rather indignation. It is considered shameful that decorations should be granted to spies, and this Rajah was nothing better. He was paid by our Government to go to Atchin and to try to enter into friendly relations with the Sultan, in order to betray him. He succeeded, and the Minister rewards his treachery with a decoration which is only granted to military men for "courage, prudence, and fidelity."

It seems that the contests at the forthcoming elections at Gonda and Breda will turn chiefly not upon politics but upon religion. Several candidates have been put forward, but there is no question of their Conservative or Liberal principles but only of their religious convictions. It does not, however, seem probable that the Liberal party will be reinforced by these elections.

In several towns large sums have already been contributed—(in Rotterdam f.28,688)—towards the expenses of the national festival which will be held in May next, when we shall commemorate the twenty-fifth anniversary of our King's accession to the Throne. It is not yet fixed what will be presented to him, but the general opinion is that a new palace at Amsterdam would be the most suitable gift.

I regret to record the death of Mr. J. Burlage, a man of great merits.

We are still without a Minister of the Naval Department, and not a single name is even mentioned. As I told you before, it will not be very easy to find a naval officer willing to accept the barren inheritance of Mr. Broex.

Some cases of cholera continue to occur in many places throughout the kingdom. Last week there were thirteen deaths from the epidemic.

Financial and commercial affairs are very quiet. Trade generally, a few articles excepted, is very dull.

PORTUGAL.

LISBON, DEC. 19.

The official paper of the 16th inst. publishes the despatches which have passed between the Portuguese and Chinese authorities upon the subject of the seizure by the latter of a lorcha loaded with opium, which was anchored in front of the Governor's palace at Macao. The Governor insisted upon the surrender of the vessel, and this was done. This energetic action on his part has induced the Government here to publish an address, in which his conduct is eulogised.

The Government adopted a wise measure with regard to the Chinese coolies in Macao. Mr. Corvo, Naval and Foreign Minister, determined that the emigration arrangements in Macao should be placed upon the same footing as those adopted by the English authorities in Hong Kong. The despatch is accompanied by a long report, elaborated by Mr. Corvo's own hand, and shows the brilliancy of his talent. The order now forwarded is worthy of the eulogium of all the civilised world. For many years a great quantity of documents with regard to this affair have accumulated in the Naval and Foreign offices, and Mr. Corvo was obliged to examine them all in order to consider the reports of several authorities in the provinces of Macao.

The statutes of a new association, entitled the Association of Workmen of the Portuguese Region, were submitted for the approval of the Government. This association resembles the International established abroad, and which has already ramifications in Lisbon and Oporto. It seems that the Government approve of the statutes, for their principal object is to create an immense resistance to capital and to facilitate the means of assembling the workmen by means of delegates in all the provinces of Portugal. They divide the association in regions, provinces, and districts, and even in small places, while their central seat is Lisbon. This cannot be legalised by the Government, though the strikes promoted by workmen themselves are not forbidden by the authorities.

There is no other news. I may mention that the Cortes is to be opened on the 2nd January. The Opposition party have ascertained that the Government have no proposals of interest to bring forward, at the same time the Government say that they have the Education Bill to treat of, and that it is necessary to enlarge the instruction of the people, after the financial state of the country shall have been discussed.

As I said in my last, the Royal family were shooting and hunting in Villa Vicosa the day before their departure for Lisbon. On the 1st December there was a dinner party in Villa Vicosa Palace, at which the King proposed "The Independence of Portugal," saying,—"To-day is the first time, since 1640, that the ancient mansion-house of the Duke of Braganza has commemmorated the 1st of December. From this house the Duke of Braganza set out to take the reins of Government. From here D. Joao IV. gave us our independence."

The Rebate, a newspaper which advocates the principles of the Republican party, uses very strong language sometimes, and for this the proprietor has been called to the tribunal of justice. It was proved that he had insulted the Royal family and the institutions of the country, and he was fined. As this has been repeated more than once his friends promoted a subscription, and a performance took place at a theatre for his benefit. In the middle of the performance a child appeared dressed in white, with a Republican cap on its head, a red flag in the right hand, and the Rebate in the other. All the spectators stood up, and the band played the "Marseillaise." The enthusiasm of the people who filled the theatre was immense, but the performance finished without any disturbance.

The English squadron, under the command of Admiral Hornby which left our port a fortnight ago, has returned from Gibraltar. The vessels are the Agincourt, Northumberland, Hercules, Briton, Sultan, and Triumph.

Naval and Military.

The Lords of the Admiralty have forwarded to Captain Woollcombe, of H.M.S. Thalia, and the officers and men of that ship, and of H.M.S. Midge, engaged in the late operations against pirates in the Laroot River, a declaration of their high appreciation of the gallant conduct displayed by them on that service.

The Sylvia, 5, surveying steamer, 877 (695) tons, 689 (150) horse power, Captain H. C. St. John, which is fitting at Sheerness for service in Japan and the China Seas, &c., is fast progressing in her equipment.

It is expected that Brevet Lieutenant-Colonel Festing, R.M.A., who has well sustained the reputation of his corps for gallantry and daring in the late operations on the Gold Coast, is about to receive an acknowledgment of his services by promotion to the rank of brevet colonel. Though only a captain in his corps, his career has been not a little distinguished. He served with the Baltic expedition in 1854; commanded a mortar in the flotilla employed against Sebastopol from June, 1855, until its fall; and served with the China expedition of 1857-59 as adjutant of the artillery, including the blockade of the Canton river, bombardment and storm of the city, for which he received the medal with clasp, and the rank of brevet major.

The Army and Navy Gazette says:—A correspondent has called our attention to the fact that the graves of our gallant countrymen who were either killed or died during the campaign in the north of China in 1860 are in a sadly dilapidated state. He alludes particularly to the cemeteries near Tientsin and Taku; and he states that they present a lamentable contrast to those of the French, and is anxious that Mr. Wade should receive instructions from home to rescue from destruction the last resting-places of those who so bravely died doing their duty.

The corvette Charybdis, Captain Smith, which sailed on the 12th ult. for the China Station, reached Gibraltar on the 27th ult.

Messrs. Miller Brothers, of Prince's Square, Glasgow, announce having opened a branch establishment at 109, Portland-street, Manchester, where their Mr. Peter Miller will be the resident partner.

THE SUEZ CANAL COMMISSION.

The Times correspondent forwards to that journal the subjoined account of the proceedings of the Suez Canal Commission :—

An international Commission has been for three months dedicating much time, labour, and scientific knowledge to the decision of a question which this Suez Canal has, as it were by accident, provoked, the question as to what is a "ton," and that question is now settled so far as shipping is concerned. But this has not been accomplished without great labour; some of the most eminent men that Europe could produce have given to this Commission a character which will command universal respect. England, France, Germany, Austria, Italy, Holland, Russia, and Spain, as well as Norway and Sweden, Belgium, and Greece, have specially sent their most capable men to take a part in the important discussion. Beginning with England, Colonel Stokes, C.B., should be mentioned. This well-known officer combines with his military character a scientific reputation and practical knowledge of shipping, which it would be difficult to find elsewhere. He was for many years the British Commissioner on the Danube, and no one who knows what has been accomplished for the navigation of that river will deny that it is to Colonel Stokes that the chief merit is due of having made the navigation of the Danube and opening of its mouths in the Black Sea a great success. He has borne the principal part throughout the discussions in the Commission, and has amply justified the choice of the British Government in nominating him the technical delegate to represent English interests. With him was associated Sir Philip Francis, the Resident Consul-General at Constantinople, who has added on this occasion another to the many valuable services already rendered to the Government. The French delegates are Baron d'Avril (also a delegate on the Danube Commission) and M. Rameau, the nominee of the various Commissions which M. de Leseps has convoked at Paris for the purposes of the Canal. Both of these gentlemen have superior technical knowledge, and are distinguished in their respective services. The special delegate for Germany is a Mr. Hargreaves, a man versed in all the technicalities of the measurement of ships by a long practical experience in Hamburg. Mr. Hargreaves's father settled in Hamburg, and thus it is that the delegate from Germany, though having an English name, has come to represent the German Empire on the Constantinople Commission. Austria sent from Trieste M. Zamara, an experienced man in all that concerns the construction of ships, while Italy named Commendatore Mattei, the most accomplished officer of their Admiralty. Holland and Spain, two countries which in days gone by were great maritime Powers, and still retain a traditional character on the seas, were fortunate enough to secure the services of Captain Janssen and Don Joachim Togores respectively. The history of naval construction from the Middle Ages to the present day, in all its detail, was presented by them to the Commission, and the scientific character of their researches left nothing to desire. The other countries were also efficiently represented.

In the written instructions given to its delegates on the International Commission, the Porte recommended that the Commission should first examine the question of tonnage generally; secondly, determine the "utilisable capacity" of a ship, and, as a consequence of that double investigation, finally should consider whether the Suez Canal dues are now being levied in conformity with the company's charter, as already interpreted by the Vizierial letters addressed to the Khedive of Egypt on the subject. Every maritime nation has a special law for the measurement of ships. At first weight was everywhere taken as the standard of tonnage, but the difficulty of properly calculating the tonnage of vessels by weight led almost every country to give up that standard. The absence and impossibility of a positive mathematical formula to establish the utilisable capacity of a ship will explain why every country has differed in calculating the tonnage of ships; but there is no doubt that since commerce has become universal, and the privileges of protected navigation have given way to international competition, the several methods of measuring ships of different countries have approached more and more towards a common rule. This has been elaborately and satisfactorily proved before the Commission by Colonel Stokes, C.B., Captain Janssen, Commendatore Mattei, and Senor Togores (the English, Netherlands, Italian, and Spanish technical delegates). England, as the first maritime Power, has been foremost in the reform of tonnage, and the system inaugurated in 1854, embodying Moorsom's principles, has been adopted by America, Austria, Denmark, France, Germany, Italy, and Turkey, and will soon—as it has been officially announced to the Commission by the respective delegates—become the law of Belgium, Netherlands, Spain, Sweden, and Norway. That system has been pointed out by the Porte to the Commission as being the best for calculating as approximately as possible the utilisable capacity of ships, and the Commission agrees with the Porte. Captain Janssen, the Netherlands delegate, proposed that the Commission should declare "that the total capacity of a ship—that is to say, the gross tonnage of a ship—is best determined by Moorsom's system as expressed in Articles 20 and 21 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854," and the Commission adopted the proposal unanimously.

The results of the inquiries of the Commission, so far as they concern the arrangements made with regard to the Suez Canal, are as follows:—The Commission inquired whether the Canal Company was levying tolls according to its original concession. It was clear—first, that it was not so levying its tolls; and, secondly, that unless some additional toll were allowed, it could not pay any dividend whatsoever to its shareholders. Under these circumstances the Commission came to the conclusion that they might recommend to the Governments of their respective delegates the following propositions :—1. That henceforth the toll in the Canal should be levied on the net tonnage and not on the gross tonnage, as at present. 2. That vessels whose net tonnage is fixed under Article 23 of the Merchant Shipping Act, 1854, Section A, shall pay a surtax of four francs per ton; but that this surtax shall be reduced to three francs so soon as they receive a certificate of tonnage under the rules in force on the Danube. 3. That ships whose net tonnage is determined under paragraph B of the above-named article shall pay a surtax of only three francs per ton. 4. That vessels not measured by Moorsom's system shall receive an equivalent under the Danube scale and pay a surtax of four francs per ton on their net tonnage (this clause does not refer to British shipping). 5. That the surtax shall be diminished by half a franc so soon as the tonnage of vessels passing the Canal shall reach 2,100,000 tons in a year, and that every additional increase of 100,000 tons per annum shall be followed by a deduction of half a franc, until such tonnage shall reach 2,600,000 tons, when the surtax shall cease altogether and the original tax of f.10 per ton will remain permanently as the toll. 6. That transports, vessels of war, and all vessels in ballast shall not be liable to any surtax.

ADMINISTRATIVE AND JUDICIAL CHANGES IN 1873.

Amongst the great political events of the year 1873 the resignation and, at a subsequent date, the reconstruction of the Government will take an important place. On the night of the 11th of March the House of Commons refused, by a majority of 287 against 284, to read a second time the Irish University Bill, and when the House met on the 13th, Mr. Gladstone announced the resignation of the Ministry. Upon the House re-assembling on the 17th Mr. Disraeli stated that he had declined to form an Administration during the existence of the present Parliament, and an adjournment was moved until the 20th, Mr. Gladstone then announcing that he and his colleagues had consented to resume office. The Government continued without change until the first week in August, when, three days after the prorogation, a series of alterations in its personnel took place. Mr. Gladstone, following the course pursued by Sir Robert Peel, combined the offices of First Lord of the Treasury and Chancellor of the Exchequer, Mr. Lowe taking the seals of the Home Department, in the room of Mr. Bruce, who, with a peerage under the title of Lord Aberdare, was to be Lord President of the Council. The Marquis of Ripon, who had held that office since the formation of the Cabinet in December, 1868, retired from the Ministry, as also did Mr. Childers, who was succeeded as Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster by Mr. Bright. At the same time many changes were made outside the Cabinet. The accession of Mr. Glyn to the peerage, as Lord Wolverton, caused a vacancy in the post of Parliamentary Secretary to the Treasury, and this was filled by the appointment of Mr. Arthur Peel, whose successor as Parliamentary Secretary to the Board of Trade has not yet been named. The Financial Secretaryship of the Treasury, which had been resigned by Mr. Baxter, was given to Mr. Dodson. Lord F. C. Cavendish was, at the same time, taken into the Treasury in a capacity superior to that of a Junior Lord. Mr. Ayrton, having left the Office of Works, was made Judge-Advocate General, the duties of which had been discharged by the Judge of the Admiralty Court during the two years which had elapsed since the death of Mr. Davison. Mr. W. P. Adam, hitherto a Lord of the Treasury, and Second Whip, took Mr. Ayrton's place at the Board of Works. He was succeeded by Captain Greville, whom Lord Kensington replaced as Groom-in-Waiting to the Queen. Later in the recess, Sir George Jessel, the Solicitor-General, was appointed Master of the Rolls, in the room of Lord Romilly, who had resigned, and Mr. Henry James became second law officer of the Crown. On the 1st of November the death of Chief Justice Bovill caused a vacancy in the head-ship of the Common Pleas, which was filled by Sir John Coleridge, Mr. Henry James becoming Attorney-General, and Mr. Vernon Harcourt Solicitor-General. About the same time Dr. Lyon Playfair was made Postmaster-General, replacing Mr. Monsell, who goes to the House of Lords as Baron Emly of Tervoe. The death of Mr. Winterbotham places at the disposal of the Premier the Under-Secretaryship of State for the Home Department, which, like Mr. Arthur Peel's former post at the Board of Trade, yet remains to be filled up.

Turning to the Legislature, we find that during the year the House of Commons has lost fourteen of its members by death, in the proportion of eight Liberals to six Conservatives. The Liberals were Mr. James Clay, aged 69; Sir Joseph Cowen, 73; Dr. Donald Dalrymple, 59; Colonel French, 72; Mr. J. R. McClean, 60; Alderman Sir David Salomons, Bart., 76; Sir William Tite, 72; and Mr. Winterbotham, 36. The Conservatives were Mr. Thomas Baring, aged 73; the Right Hon. H. T. L. Corry, 70; Mr. S. R. Graves, 55; Mr. Kekewich, 76; Mr. Gore Langton, 49; and Sir W. Verner, 50. There have been thirty-one elections in the year—eighteen in cities and boroughs, twelve in counties, and one in the Universities of Edinburgh and St. Andrews. The county elections have been those of Armagh, Berwick, Mid-Cheshire, South Devon, the North-West Riding of Yorkshire, Orkney, and Shetland, Renfrew, Roscommon, East Stafford, Tyrone, Waterford, and Wigtown. The city and borough elections have been those of Bath (three), Birmingham, Dover, Dundee, Exeter, Gloucester, Greenwich, Haverfordwest, Hull, Huntingdon, Lisburn, Liverpool, Oxford, Richmond, Shaftesbury, and Taunton. Of the thirty-one elections, twenty were contested, and in the total result eighteen Conservatives and thirteen Liberals were returned. The seats now vacant are Cambridgeshire, Limerick county, Newcastle-on-Tyne, West Somerset and Stroud. The mortality in the ranks of the peerage has but slightly exceeded that in the House of Commons. Eighteen peers have died, viz., Lord Annaly, aged 84; the Earl of Zetland, 78; Lord Kilmaine, 78; Lord Rayleigh, 77; Lord Marjoribanks, 76; Lord Wolverton, 76; the Earl of Hardwicke, 74; Lord Howden, 74; Lord Lyveden, 73; Lord Westbury, 73; the Earl of Galloway, 72; Viscount Ossington, 72; Lord Lytton, 67; Bishop of Winchester, 67; Lord Zouche, 63; Earl Cadogan, 61; Earl Delawarr, 57; and the Earl of Hopetoun, 41. The viscounty of Ossington and the baronies of Howden and Marjoribanks have become extinct, and the successor to the earldom of Hopetoun is a minor. On the other hand the Earl of Normanton has been granted an English peerage under the title of Baron Somerton, the barony of Portman has been raised to a viscounty, the baronies of Aberdare and Waveney have been created, and those of Coleridge, Emly, Lanerton, and Moncreiff, although not yet gazetted, have been decided upon.

Besides the judicial changes involved in the appointment of a new Chief Justice of the Common Pleas and a new Master of the Rolls, there have been others both in the courts of law and equity. The retirement of Baron Channell from the Court of Exchequer, which was soon followed by his death, rendered necessary the selection of a puisne judge, and the choice fell upon Mr. Charles Pollock, a son of the late Lord Chief Baron of that name. Early in the year Mr. Justice Byles, having completed his fifteen years of judicial service, resigned his seat in the Court of Common Pleas, and was succeeded by Sir George Honyman. By the death of Sir John Wickens a Vice-Chancellorship fell in, which was given to Mr. Charles Hall. The post of Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer in Ireland is now vacant through the death of the late Mr. David Pigot.

THE CHINESE IN CALIFORNIA.

The San Francisco correspondent of The Times writes that the deliberations of the Anti-Chinese Convention have been brought to a close and their conclusions may be accepted as the expression of the people of California on the subject. The objections of the public to further Chinese immigration have been set forth in a petition to the President and Senate of the United States, praying for the amendment or abrogation of the existing treaty with China. The complaint asserts, among other well-attested facts, that the Chinese who come to this coast are imported under contract, and are not free agents; that they exist on fifteen cents per day, the balance of their earnings being sent to their own country, and that it is, therefore, impossible for citizen workmen to compete with them; that they degrade labour in the eyes of the rising generation, and that their personal habits and modes of living are repulsive to our people, so that an antagonistic feeling is engendered between the two races, which is increasing with fearful rapidity, and which must eventually terminate in riots and bloodshed; that the Chinese never lose their identity as subjects of China, and can in no way assimilate with the Caucasian race, and that they exercise a demoralising influence on our youth, "making them familiar with crimes of a nature easier understood than described." Further, that the large number of Chinese has tended to shut out the white man from railway works, and thereby prevented the lands along the line of railroads from being settled and improved by citizens, who, if employed on such works, would purchase and cultivate the soil, increase taxable property, and promote the general welfare. The petition refers to the fact that, whereas the treaty between the two nations provides that Americans shall be restricted to certain districts in China, the Chinese are accorded all the rights and privileges of the most favoured nations, and, after rehearsing the manifold objections to a continuance of this treaty under its present aspect, one of its clauses contains the following significant statement:—"That we are opposed to riots or cruelty to the subjects of China, or to in any way injuring them while they are here under treaty with our Government, and we respectfully represent that the prohibition of immigration, as prayed for, is the only safeguard against such deplorable results." All political parties on the Pacific coast coincide in this representation.

THE REVENUE RETURNS.

The National Balance Sheet for 1873 exhibits a more satisfactory result than the last weekly returns enabled us to anticipate. Up to the 20th ult. the revenue for the past nine months was only £60,000 in excess of that for the same period of 1872; but the week has seen heavy payments on the chief items of receipt, and the total increase for the first three quarters of the financial year proves to be more than £300,000. The net increase, indeed, amounts to as much as £1,103,907, but £800,000 of this sum is due to a repayment out of the Telegraph Loan. This will be a welcome addition to the funds available for the service of the year, but it is not revenue. It is to be remembered that Mr. Lowe calculated that, in consequence of his reductions in taxation, the revenue for 1873-4 would be diminished by no less than £2,846,770, as compared with that of 1872-3. Since, instead of this, we have on the nine months an actual increase of £300,000, it is evident the revenue has not lost its elasticity. On the whole year, indeed, the increase shown in the return is but £23,757, and striking off the sums due to the Telegraph Loan there is a real decrease to nearly the whole amount thus exceptionally credited to revenue. But this is due entirely to the heavy Income-tax which preceded the last two Budgets having swelled the receipt of the March quarter of 1872. The introduction of this quarter confuses the annual calculations, and a fair comparison can only be obtained by omitting it. Judging by the financial year alone, the expectations of the Chancellor of the Exchequer will be fairly justified by the event. The Ashantee War will, of course, derange all his calculations for expenditure, but if it were not for that he would at least have been well able to meet the claims he anticipated.

THE FINANCIAL YEAR.

The Money Market Review, in its review of the money market for the year 1873, notices five great movements. "(1.) A continuous decline in the value of money from the 1st to the 23rd of January, followed by a period of steadiness up to about March quarter-day. (2.) A continuous rise in the value of money from the 26th of March until the 4th of June, when the 7 per cent. rate was established. (3.) A continuous decline in the value of money from the 12th of June until the 21st of August, followed by a period of steadiness up to about September quarter-day. (4.) A continuous rise in the value of money from the 25th of September to the 7th of November, when the 9 per cent. rate was adopted. (5.) A continuous decline in the value of money from the 20th of November to the close of the year. Both of the periods of stringency this year, somewhat curiously, where the result of a decline in the reserve of about 5½ millions, followed by a diminution in the coin and bullion of some 4½ millions, and falling off in the proportion of reserve to liabilities of close upon 16 per cent. Now the outflow of coin to the provinces was, during last spring, £2,400,000, and during the autumn £5,000,900, and although the times when these home requirements were depleting the bank's resources are not exactly coincident with the periods during which the reserve of the Bank was being reduced by 5½ millions, yet it is apparent, by a little inspection, that the provincial drains played an important part in enhancing the value of money, both in the second and third quarters of the year, previous to the advance in the rate to 7 and 9 per cent. respectively in June and November. The fluctuations of our money market are greatly influenced by these internal drains, and if high rates of discount have prevailed this year, and the trade of this country has been much disturbed, there is certainly not a little ground for supposing that the causes which brought about such a state of affairs have not been wholly beyond our control."

COURT OF BANKRUPTCY.

IN RE T. W. S. OAKES.

An application was made to the Court on the 3rd inst. on behalf of Messrs. Cook, Son, and Co., Messrs. Leaf, Sons, and Co., and other creditors, for the appointment of Mr. R. P. Harding, public accountant, 8, Old Jewry, as receiver under a petition for liquidation presented by Thomas William Smith Oakes, described as of 10, Austinfriars, and of Calcutta, merchant, trading in London under the style of T. Oakes and Co. and at Calcutta as Oakes and Son. The liabilities were estimated at £45,000, and assets £8,000, consisting principally of consignments and furniture. Remittances had arrived from abroad, and it was desirable that the property should be protected.

Mr. Registrar Pepys, with the concurrence of the debtor, appointed Mr. Harding receiver, as requested, and granted an interim injunction restraining further proceedings at the suit of creditors.

THE P. AND O. STEAMER "SURAT."—The directors of the P. and O. Company a few months ago decided to lengthen the steamship Surat 40 feet amidships. The builders of the vessel, Messrs. Day, Summers, and Co., were directed to carry out the proposed alteration, and placed the ship for that purpose in dock at Southampton. The rivets of several plates on either side were punched out, and the keel and angle irons, &c., disconnected, leaving the ship in two parts. Thirteen and a half feet of the dock-head had to be cut away, to allow the ship to berth. The process of parting ship was performed, on the 2nd inst., in the presence of several gentlemen connected with the various companies and the town. Slipways were prepared and placed under the bottom of the ship, and were well greased, as in the case of launching. Four large runner tackles were rove and hooked to parts of chain secured in-board and passing out through hawsepipe. The standing parts of tackle being secured, three large chains were made fast to two anchors, the falls of tackle rove through snatch-blocks, and brought to capstans, and assisted by a cable chain secured to cutwater, with chain purchase passed round to a crab-winch. Several screw-jacks were placed between the two parts of the ship. All the gear being ready, the order was given to heave round. Capstans, crab-winch and screws worked together, and in a few seconds the forward part of the vessel began to move very steadily, going at the rate of 3½ inches per minute. Notwithstanding the weight, over 1,800 tons, every part bore equal strain, and, with the exception of the breaking of a snatch-block, no accident occurred.

MONS. JOHN ANTHONY GALIGNANI died in Paris a few days since, aged seventy-seven. He was the elder of the two brothers who, many years back, by their talent, energy, and perseverance, raised the newspaper which bears their name to so high a point of prosperity, and he founded near Paris that most useful establishment known as the Galignani Hospital, intended specially for indigent English subjects. Galignani's Messenger (an English daily newspaper issued at Paris) was established in 1814, its principal object being the advocacy of cordial relations between Great Britain and France. The deceased gentleman, like his brother, had received the French decoration of the Legion of Honour; and the English Government presented to them, in 1866, through Lord Cowley, the English Ambassador at Paris, a magnificent silver épergne, bearing an inscription to the effect that it was given to the Messrs. Galignani in recognition of their constant efforts to promote benevolent objects in favour of British subjects.

MR. DAVID MORIER EVANS, well known in connection with the newspaper press, died yesterday. After being for several years assistant city correspondent of The Times, he assumed in 1857 the management of the same department of the Morning Herald and Standard, which post and also that of general manager he retained until the end of 1872, when he left the Standard, and in March, 1873, started the Hour. In this last venture he spent his fortune and became a bankrupt. This event preyed on his mind and broke down his health. He was the author of numerous works, and was also intimately connected with the Bankers' Magazine, the Bullionist, the Stock Exchange Gazette, and other commercial papers.

LIEUT.-GENERAL ARTHUR JOSEPH TAYLOR, late Inspector General of the Royal Artillery, died last week in his sixty-second year. He served at the siege and fall of Sebastopol in command of the artillery of the Highland division, and for his services was rewarded with the medal and clasp, the fifth-class order of the Medjidie, and the Turkish medal. He became colonel in 1858, and major-general in 1866. In the year last-named he was granted the reward of £100 "for distinguished services," &c., and became lieut.-general on retired full pay in 1870.

MR. CALEB CUSHING, who represented the United States before the Geneva Arbitrators, has been appointed to the Embassy at Madrid, vacant by the resignation of General Sickles. More than thirty years ago Mr. Cushing was appointed Commissioner to China, and concluded the first treaty ever made between the Celestial Empire and the United States.

THERE has been an important sale of Chinese books in Paris, at which several purchases were made for the British Museum. One work, "Yu-ting-li-tai-ki-si-nian-piao," was sold for £22; "Heang-thsing-tchih-koung-thou" for £44; and "Tu-ting-pei-wen, tehaichou-hoa-pou" for £56.

AN extra P. and O. steamer from China, the Zambesi, Captain Cates, arrived at Southampton on the 4th inst., with a large cargo for that port and for London. The Zambesi left Hong Kong on the 13th Nov.

COLONEL (China) GORDON has arrived in London, and will proceed shortly to Cairo and confer with the Khedive as to his proposed continuation of Sir Samuel Baker's work.

THE MACAO COOLIE TRAFFIC.

THE announcement, just received by telegram, of the abolition of the Macao Coolie Trade, will be received by all interested in our relations with China, with a sensation of relief and pleasure, and by none more so than ourselves and the writer of "A Reply to 'Macao and its Slave Trade,'" in the October number of the China Review. As a few weeks since we commented on the article which has elicited this "reply," we now intend briefly to consider the position occupied by the author, who has taken up the cudgels in support of the Portuguese colony, and we do this the more readily since, like Mrs. MALAPROP, every third word he says is on our side of the question. He admits at starting that the Coolie trade is a disgrace to Macao and to the Portuguese flag, and the only palliation of the crime as regards the mother country which he can find, is that the traffic has sprung into existence since the Government of the colony has by default passed out of the hands of the hardy race of Portuguese navigators and their descendants—who, from the time of Prince HENRY downwards, have won for themselves and their flag a lasting record on the pages of history—into the clutches of "convicts from Malacca and "other places under Portuguese rule, belonging to the "Malayan race" who "took the place of the extinct pure Portuguese generation." The consequence of which was that "the weakness and imbecility of the following senates "gradually brought the colony to the verge of a suicidal "destruction." As on this main point the writer of the "Reply" is in strict accord with ourselves we will not enter into the lists with him as to the character of the Portuguese adventurers who first established themselves in the China seas, nor attempt to refute, as might be easily done, the arguments by which he seeks to show, for instance, that the mutinies which have unfortunately so frequently broken out on board coolie ships at sea have been the work of pirates under the guise of voluntary emigrants, and not the last acts of despair on the part of the kidnapped coolies, when awakened to a full sense of the slavery and degradation to which they have been destined by their captors. But we will willingly echo the hope which he expresses, "that the voice of the glorious "past will not be hushed in the hearts of his fellow-coun-"trymen, and that they will again ennoble Macao as a "true Portuguese colony, that they will strive to bring it "up from its gradual sinking towards inevitable and hope-"less degradation and shame, and will chase and expel the "horrible amount of ruffianism that is here at work to "make of this place a new and more infamous Algiers." One most important step towards this most desirable consummation has already been taken by the Portuguese Government, and it now only remains for the local officials loyally to carry out the instructions they have received from Lisbon, and the disgrace which has so long attached to the Portuguese name in China will disappear and be forgotten. We the more readily believe that this will be done since it is well known that the Chinese are now more than ever desirous of gaining complete possession of the colony. Whether this transfer would be of advantage to Macao and to foreigners generally it is difficult to say.

SILKWORM CARDS.

IN our issue of the 27th October last we published a second article having reference to the solution of the mystery attending the failure of the eggs to produce silkworms on being subjected to incubation. We have now before us the numbers of a Milan special paper, the Rivista Settimanale di Bachicoltura, of the 8th and 14th of December, containing elaborate articles on the same subject, and which, after confirming all that we had already advanced on the subject, furnishes additional details and the latest information, derived, as it states, from official sources. It appears that the Government Commission, Italo-Japanese, which we stated had assembled at Padua for the purpose of studying this important question, has not been able to complete its labours in that perfect form which was desirable, owing to the deplorable apathy, strange to say, of the parties interested, since out of 150,000 cards which it is calculated have remained unproductive, not more than 20,000 were officially denounced, and only 4,126 actually sent in for examination. Now the mean price of each card is £1 sterling, so that we have at once a real value of £150,000 entirely lost; estimating the average gain at a low rate to be £2 per card, we have a total loss to the agricultural and poorer classes of nearly half-a-million sterling; the subsequent damage sustained by the manufacturing and commercial classes being also in proportion to the scarcity of material. The vital importance of the question is therefore manifest. Necessarily confining our observations to the 4,126 cards actually presented, we find they were classified as follows :—

Province.	No. of Cards.
Shimshioo...	1,662
Oshioo	773
Goshioo	689
Bushioo	296
Gioshioo	422

Koshioo	59
Seemo-Ossa	15
Ezoo	3
Etiyo	2

Total	4,126

This table we append simply as a curiosity for our Japanese readers; it can be of no practical utility, for if the entire export statistics of each province were at our disposition it is evident that with these partial figures we could not strike a percentage nor establish a comparison as to the relative superiority of the cards belonging to the various provinces. It is equally impossible to get at the producers or "confectioners" of cards, as these bear a stamp indicating places, not parties. A table is given showing each importer's quota of the 4,126 worthless cards; that is not sufficient; to render it practically useful we require another table showing the total number of cards passed by each importer at the customs barriers. With regard to the probable cause of the evil, suppositions are many and varied, and it can serve no practical purpose to enumerate them; the Japanese manufacturers blame the European importers, who in return blame the Japanese, and the losers by them blame both. Science has not yet pronounced her verdict, but evidently tends to exculpate the Japanese and to confirm the opinion that "failure is "to be principally, if not entirely, attributed to the treat-"ment which the eggs undergo, either during the voyage, "or after their arrival in Europe up to the time of incuba-"tion."

The first hypothesis is simple, and would seem to give a rational explanation of the fact; it is strange, however, that cards contained in the same case give such different results. We deduce a more conclusive argument from a fact to which we have before alluded, and which we find in the British Consular reports on trade with China, 1872, where Acting Consul EVERARD writes from Chefoo :—"The importation of Japanese eggs is a perfect success as far "as the production and rearing of the worms, although the "silk, being of a greenish hue, finds no favour with the "Chinese." The eggs, therefore, do not suffer on their journey in the interior of Japan; and they can, and do, uniformly resist the effects of an ordinary voyage.

The second hypothesis, that the cards suffer after the voyage, meets with more acceptance; the extreme sensitiveness of the eggs, it is argued, cannot but be influenced by sudden changes of temperature; and in support of this opinion is cited the fact that the unusual mildness of last winter, succeeded by an abrupt and changeable temperature in March and April, was followed by the general failure, under incubation, not only of Japanese importations, but also of acclimatised and native races. It is further observed that the cases after being landed are often temporarily deposited in a well-heated railway or other office, and that the cards on being distributed are generally transferred immediately to an icy-cold cellar, to hinder the little silkworms from making their appearance before the mulberry leaves make theirs; if, in such instances, they make their appearance after, it must indeed be a matter for wonder. And, it is finally observed, that those eggs which give an incomplete result are almost imperceptibly discoloured before hand, and that on examination with the microscope they show the embryo already formed, even before incubation. The practical deduction is that those cards, which when placed under the microscope in the months of February and March show the embryo already formed, ought at once to be rejected as destined to certain failure.

In presence of these facts the Commission has proposed, and has already submitted to the Minister of Agriculture for approval, the subjoined model of "Diary," or rather of Thermometrical Register, to be kept by all importers or their agents, from the moment the cards come into their possession in Japan up to the act of consignment to purchasers in Europe, to whom a copy will be delivered to serve for guide in establishing the temperature of their own places of storage. We are of opinion that it would be preferable to give purchasers the result of such observations: in the first place it would be more intelligible to the majority of them; in the next it might be more reliable. It can hardly be expected that an importer would register correctly those abrupt and violent changes of temperature which do occur, and which, if known to have been experienced, would certainly not enhance the market value of his cards.

In conclusion, we cannot deny, nor can we conceal, the fact that all those conditions of temperature, &c., whose influence is now complained of, and for which remedies are proposed, existed and exerted their influence also at the time of the earlier and most successful importations without any disastrous results being complained of; and it is far from improbable that we have as yet no idea of the real nature of the evil. We should like to be informed on two most important points, perhaps the only important ones which the elaborate article above referred to has omitted to notice, and we do not doubt that the distinguished naturalist at the head of the Bachological Establishment in Padua, or one of his able coadjutors, will enlighten us.

I. Is the material of which the cards are composed always free from liability, under given circumstances, to suffer a slight fermentation, or to otherwise chemically act on the eggs?

II. Have the effects of "breeding in and in" been studied in the case of these insects? May not "breeding in and in" have the same pernicious effect on the membranous sac of the eggs of insects as it has on those of birds?

THE steamer Madura, for Samarang and Sourabaya, takes out a large quantity of sugar machinery, consisting of a heavy sugar cane mill, with rollers 60 in. long and 30 in. diameter, with powerful double gearing for driving; also upwards of twenty centrifugal machines, with driving gear and engines. This machinery has been constructed at the works of Messrs. MANLOVE, ALLIOTT, and Co., engineers, of Nottingham. This firm has also constructed a large portion of the machinery per steamer Lotus, for Java, which vessel takes out an entire cargo of sugar and agricultural machinery.

THE s.s. Mikado, recently chartered by the P.M.S.S. Company for the purpose of running between Hong Kong, Yokohama and San Francisco, has been re-chartered by the company to Messrs. Russell and Co., and will follow the Macgregor to Australia. Captain Doane (her present commander and late of the P.M.S.S. America) proceeds to San Francisco per P.M.S.S. China.

WE understand that Mr. C. BISMARCK, late Secretary and Interpreter to the German Legation at Peking, will shortly return to Tientsin as Consul for that port. No successor to Baron REHFUES, the late German Minister at Peking, has yet been gazetted, but it is considered probable that Baron VON BRANDT will be transferred from Yedo to Peking.

WE understand that Baron DE CALICE, hitherto Minister Resident for Austria-Hungary in China and Japan, and now at Vienna on leave, has been transferred to Bucharest.

THE MACAO COOLIE TRADE.

In Colonel Fisher's book we find the following depositions, taken in 1860:—

Shun-a-Yeung, a Tartar taken from an American ship, states:—About twenty days ago I was selling milk in the western suburb. Two men accosted me and said they could sell me better goods than mine, and at a very cheap rate; this milk was on board a junk in the river. I went on board with them, and was ironed and taken to a foreign vessel at Chang-Chow, on board which ship I was asked if I was willing to emigrate. I refused, and was taken back to the Chinese boat, was cruelly beaten with a thick board, receiving a hundred blows on all parts of my body, and told if I did not say I was willing the next time the foreigner asked that I should be killed and my body thrown into the water. I consented then, being afraid, and was taken to the foreign vessel again. Some time after this a foreign gentleman came on board and asked me some questions. I explained who I was, and that I would not be a coolie. After this I was sent down below, and a foreigner, of what country I was not aware, struck me with his fist for having refused. I saw it was no use resisting any longer; my clothes were changed, and I was kept below. My father, accompanied by a foreign gentleman, came for me. I am thirty-four years of age, and have a wife and two children.

ANOTHER DEPOSITION.

Koon-a-Choy (taken from an Oldenburgh ship):—I am thirty-seven years of age, have a wife and two children; I live at We-loo-shi. I left home eighteen days ago; I was carrying charcoal, and met six men in the western suburbs, who told me they had better work for me, and I was to accompany them to the water side. I went to the allied landing-place, and when near the water a gag was placed in my mouth and I was dragged into a boat and taken to Chang-Chow, where I was placed on a La-kou-ting. I was asked if I would go to Spain as a coolie. I said I was the only support to my wife and children, and that it was impossible I could leave them; I was told I must do so, and I said I would rather be killed. The kidnappers and a lot of Chinese tied my body down to my legs, placed me sitting on my hands, tied my hands underneath, passed in under and behind my legs, then forced in a bamboo, and two men stamped upon me until the pain was killing me. I yielded, and was taken to the foreign vessel, where I was well treated and paid a dollar. I was not visited by any mandarins until the two magistrates came for me. About sixty coolies were left on board the vessel, who seemed willing to go.

DEPOSITION OF A KIDNAPPER.

One of the kidnappers was then examined. Chin-ah-Sen, alias Chin-ah-seu, states:—I am forty-four years of age, and belong to the Sin-ning district. On the 1st of the 8th moon of the present year I connived with Seu-ah-hing to kidnap a man named A-che (I do not know what his family name was), and with Seu-ah-hing took him to Macao and sold him there for twenty dollars, of which Seu-ah-hing gave me six dollars for my share. Again, on the 7th of the same moon there came to my boat a Sin-ning man named Hwang-ah-neu, who had kidnapped a man named Tseen-ah-tee. Him Seu-ah-hing and myself took to Macao, and sold him there for thirty dollars, which we three, Seu-ah-hing, Hwang-ah-neu, and myself shared equally. On the 17th of the 8th moon I returned to Sin-ning, and with a man belonging to the village of Pwan came to Canton, and on the 20th went on board a hakow-boat. On the 21st, with Seu-ah-hing, I took this man to Macao and sold him for thirty dollars, of which I gave Seu-ah-hing ten dollars. On the 17th of the 9th moon, having spent this, a man named Seu-ah-lung with a man named Seu-ah-hseen, whom he had kidnapped, Seu-ah-hing and myself took to Macao. We sold the man for twenty dollars, of which I got six dollars, Seu-ah-hing six dollars, and Seu-ah-lung ten dollars. On my former examination I confessed two cases of kidnapping and selling men; now I have confessed to four fresh ones. There are six in which I have been engaged.

THE ASHANTEE WAR UNNECESSARY AND UNJUST.

(T. G. BOWLES IN "FRASER'S MAGAZINE.")

A very plain-spoken and instructive article appears in Fraser's Magazine on the Ashantee War, which will be read with interest in connection with the Atchin War and the Dutch Government:—

Whether it is of any use to preach to this generation of Englishmen on Foreign Affairs of any kind whatever may be doubtful; that it is the duty of those who take any interest in the future of their country to preach upon them is only the more certain. For, indeed, there never was a time when the ordinary Englishman was so thoroughly convinced that there are no Foreign Affairs, or when Parliament was so thoroughly indisposed and incompetent to understand them; so that any single man who will be at the pains of wading through Blue-books with a mere honest purpose of arriving at the truth on any one given subject in this department is likely to rise with well-nigh a monopoly of that subject. Were it otherwise, the events now about to be related could never have occurred; for had there existed any number of Englishmen properly informed of those events, the proceedings of the men responsible for them would have been checked by a storm of ridicule, if not of indignation, before they had led their country into an unjust and unnecessary war. It is a humiliating history, yet it will not have been recorded in vain if it should lead but one or two of those who read it to reflect on the causes which have brought it about, causes which are still working dire effects, and which, if not suppressed, will bring this country to a shameful end.

The Ashantee war originated in the Straits of Malacca. Strange as this may sound, it is true. The Straits of Malacca, as a glance at the map will show, are the gate of commerce between Europe and the China Seas; and in the days when England still had statesmen it was regarded and treated as an object of great importance to make sure that that gate should never be shut upon our trade, whether in peace or in war. This was secured by taking possession of Penang, of Singapore (the ancient capital of Malay), and of other commanding spots on the north-eastern side of the Straits, and by making a defensive alliance with the Mohammedan Sultan of Acheen, who ruled on the opposite side of Sumatra; so that while one side of the Straits was in our own hands, the other was in the hands of our dependant and ally All this was effected in 1819; and it was held to be a great triumph over the Dutch, with whom we had been disputing supremacy in those seas for two hundred years, inasmuch as it gave us full, complete, and exclusive control of the Straits. This control endowed us with no increased power of aggression; it merely enabled us to resist aggression. The real England is not this little island, but the thousands of ships that fly her flag on the seas of the world; and the Power that can stand and stop them at a gateway through which they must pass if they are to pass at all has its finger on England's windpipe. We live by commerce alone; if our commerce is stopped, we cease to live; and for this reason the power of securing a free passage to our vessels at all times, and under all circumstances, through the Straits of Malacca, is one, to us, of the first importance. That we should ever have consented to give up this power seems most extraordinary. That we should consent to give it to Holland at a time when, as is now the case, that little State has fallen under the thumb of Prussia, is incredible. Yet it is the fact. And the consideration we have received in return for this dangerous concession—how dangerous we shall one day discover—is the Ashantee War.

In order to make good this assertion, we must turn to the Gold Coast, which the English and the Dutch have divided between themselves, the English taking all to the east of Cape Coast Castle, the Dutch all to the west of it. It is important to remark here that neither nation claimed the full and absolute domain and empire of the territories in which they had established themselves; they merely assumed to exercise a "Protectorate" over the various tribes and nations inhabiting those territories, leaving to them their laws (even the laws maintaining domestic slavery), their customs, and their kings, and treating with these latter, not as with subjects, but as with allies. That this situation was a confused and a dangerous one is true, but it existed; and neither England nor Holland had any power to act outside of its limits. Both nations were there as the accepted protectors of the tribes; if not accepted by them, they had no place there at all. To use the language of the publicists, they had neither the "high domain" nor the "eminent domain" of the country, but only the "useful domain" in certain spots where they had erected forts and factories; and a very material point is that at one part of the Gold Coast, namely, at the town of Elmina, the King of Ashantee held precisely and absolutely the same position as the Dutch. He had there the useful domain; for from time immemorial the Elminas had been his allies, or under his suzerainty; from time immemorial the fact had been recognised by the payment of a yearly tribute of £80, and the Dutch themselves had recognised it, by continuing the payment of that tribute when Elmina became part of their protectorate. So that the situation was this,—a limited authority exercised by the Dutch and the English over the tribes of their respective parts of the coast, deriving all its force from its acceptance by those tribes; and at the same time the concurrent existence in the particular case of the Elminas of a similar kind of authority exercised by the King of Ashantee.

From this it must be manifest that the Dutch had no sort of right, or pretence to a right, to sell the territory and tribes of their protectorate to any other Power; for they did not possess them, and least of all did they possess Elmina. If there were a right to sell that anywhere, the right of the King of Ashantee, recognised by them as it was, was anterior and superior to theirs; and even if that were disposed of, there remained the right of the Elminas themselves to choose their own protector. Well, all the rights that did exist have been disregarded, by England no less than by Holland, and that with a perfect knowledge of them; while all the rights that did not exist have been treated as though they were unquestionable and indisputable. In 1869 this proposal was made, that England should withdraw her opposition to the establishment of the Dutch on the northern and eastern sides of the Island of Sumatra, and should abandon her ally the Sultan of Acheen to their aggression, and that in exchange she should receive a cession of the Dutch territories on the Gold Coast. In other words, England was asked to give up the control of the Straits of Malacca to Holland, which in course of time must mean Prussia, in exchange for a cession of territory which there existed no right to cede! That such a proposal should ever have been so much as seriously entertained by an English Minister is a lamentable proof of our want of statesmen; that it should not have been discovered and stopped in time is an equally lamentable proof of the ignorance in which Parliament allows itself to be kept, and of its utter incapacity for controlling the conduct of Foreign Affairs. The proposal was not only entertained, however, it was accepted; yet not as it would seem without some shame; for although the convention with respect to the Gold Coast has been published, the Foreign-office has, up to this day, never given us an opportunity of seeing that treaty with respect to Sumatra, which was the consideration given for it. Is it honest, or is it not rather like the act of those who have a set purpose of deception, to publish as their account of a bargain the instrument which sets forth what England is to receive, and to withhold that which sets forth what she is to give? If it be pretended that the Straits of Malacca are unimportant, and that the control of them is of no consequence, we reply, that such a pretence is an insult to the understanding of those to whom it is addressed. Yet, although Lord Granville and the Foreign-office have not dared to give us the instrument by which this unholy bargain was made, they have had the effrontery to publish correspondence which is a shameful confession of the abandonment of Acheen, and of the contempt they feel for the faith of treaties. When first attacked by the Dutch, the Sultan appealed to his old friends the English, and claimed the protection against aggression to which the treaty of 1819 entitled him. The reply made to that appeal by Lord Granville through Lord Enfield on July 15, 1873, is about the most shameless document ever printed. The treaty is not disputed, but the Sultan is told that he cannot claim the protection which it bound England to afford to him because England had subsequently "entered into a treaty with the Netherlands entirely inconsistent with it," and because she had not "uninterruptedly observed it." To pretend that the insufficient observance of a treaty by one of the parties to it dissolves that treaty, and releases the defaulter from the engagements made by it, must be shocking to all who retain any sense of law. Lord Enfield, indeed, does not venture to say that the treaty is dissolved, but he declares that England will not fulfil her engagements under it. And he cynically intimates that the Sultan of Acheen has brought upon himself the "displeasure," or to speak plainly, the aggression of Holland, by "misgovernment." Surely no commentary can be necessary on such conduct as this.

A great deal is said in the course of the correspondence of the "advantages" which the English protectorate would bring to the ceded territories; but it is not easy to discover what these advantages were. The Elminas, who number some 15,000, are the most important of the tribes in those territories, and Mr. Bartels (who had been sent to reconcile them to the change of flag) told the chiefs that the English Governor they were asked to receive would afford them protection from "further molestation on the part of the marauding Fantees." Upon this the King asked the meaning of the word "protection," to which Mr. Bartel replied "that robbery, pillaging and kidnapping that your people have suffered at the hands of the Fantees would be put down, if necessary with a high hand and by force." Lord Kimberley, however, no sooner learnt this than he wrote on February 28, 1871: "I regret that Mr. Bartels should have stated at the meeting that violence on the part of the Fantees would be put down if necessary with a high hand and by force. Such a promise would be entirely inconsistent with the position which Her Majesty's Government occupied towards the protected tribes. I have to request that you will take steps to make it clear that Her Majesty's Government can enter into no such engagement." So that the protection offered to the Elminas against their only enemies, the Fantees, was no protection at all, and the advantages of cession to the Elminas must be found purely and solely in the establishment of custom-houses and the cessation of their ancient relations with their allies of Ashantee. What wonder if under these circumstances they disclosed so strong a repugnance to being protected?

On February 3, 1871, the convention of transfer not having then been signed, and Lord Kimberley being in possession of the grave information we have cited, he caused a letter to be written to the Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, as follows:—"Lord Kimberley considers it necessary, before proceeding further with the Convention, that the Dutch Government should procure by such means as they think fit the renunciation of the claim of the King of Ashantee to Elmina, else this Government may find itself involved in a war with the Ashantees," and further, "The documents transmitted by Sir A. Kennedy, prove the absolute necessity that the Dutch Government should, before the completion of the transfer, remove the Ashantee Chief Atjiempon and his followers from the Elmina country." Both these requirements were dictated by the commonest prudence, which equally indicated that as Lord Kimberley suggested, they should be complied with before concluding the Convention. Accordingly Lord Granville on February 11, 1871, enclosing a copy of Lord Kimberley's letter, directed Admiral Harris "to speak in this sense to Baron Gericke." It may be supposed that Admiral Harris thereupon procured, or endeavoured to procure, from the Dutch Government the compliance with these "necessary" requirements. He did nothing of the kind. Instead of "speaking in that sense," he wrote to Baron Gericke merely a request to "furnish the details respecting this payment to which the King of Ashantee attaches such an extravagant significance," and did not, so far as his published letter shows, mention Atjiempon at all! This is incredible, but it is true. And what is equally incredible and equally true is that Lord Granville, on being informed by Admiral Harris that he had so violated his duty as to do something quite different from that he had been instructed to do, neither censured the act nor made any remark upon it, but wrote airily to the Colonial Office, through Lord Enfield

"there can be no doubt but that the title of the Netherlands Government to the forts proposed to be ceded to this country is unquestionable." Possibly Lord Kimberley may have felt himself unable to dispute a point with Lord Granville; but this dilemma still remains for both of them, that after having declared the compliance with certain requirements to be an indispensable preliminary to the conclusion of the Convention, they gave up those requirements, without having obtained any kind or degree of satisfaction with regard to them. For Lord Kimberley indeed, it was reserved to put a finishing touch to his own self-stultification; for on February 28, 1871, he wrote to Governor Kennedy, "You will perceive that Her Majesty's Government require that the claims of the King of Ashantee to Elmina, as his own by right, should be settled by the Netherlands Government before the Convention for the transfer is concluded;" and further, "the presence of the chief Atjiempon at the meeting held at Elmina by Mr. Bartels, and his demeanour there, show the imperative necessity of the return of himself and of his followers to Ashantee before the transfer of the forts." The despatch in which these words are found was written three days after the Convention for the transfer had actually been signed, and when consequently it was impossible that the claim of the King of Ashantee could be settled before its conclusion!

What followed was the inevitable result. The Convention was signed on February 25, 1871, and the transfer of the territory was effected on April 6, 1872, without either the King of Ashantee having renounced his claim or Atjiempon having been removed.

Even after all this the position might perhaps still have been retrieved and the war prevented, had an honest disposition been shown of friendliness to the Ashantees, and a desire to protect them and their Elmina allies from the violence and exactions of the Fantees. Here again it was precisely the reverse spirit that was displayed. Mr. Pope Hennessy, indeed, on his arrival, in April, 1872, set about carrying into effect the desirable policy we have indicated, and notwithstanding the very indecent attack made upon him by Mr. Knatchbull-Hugessen, proved himself a good and able Governor. In five months he had not only re-established something like peace among the warring tribes of the Protectorate, but he had procured the reopening of the roads for trade, and that, with such immediate results, that a vessel calling in September at Seccondee, "expecting to do only a slight trade, had to leave oil on the beach," while produce was reported "ready for shipment at places on the Windward Coast, where it has never been seen for a long time past." At Elmina and Cape Coast there was soon "a great influx of Ashantee traders bringing gold dust and native produce." But Mr. Pope Hennessy was at Sierra Leone, and the administrators at Cape Coast seem to have been incapable of conceiving and carrying out any other policy than than of "vigour," in other words of violence, commonly popular with such officials. Mr. Salmon, who in all other respects appears to have acted well, sent an armed force to Half Assinee, on October 26, to seize Atjiempon, which was accordingly done after much resistance; and he reported the capture to Mr. Pope Hennessy in such words as made it appear that the chief had voluntarily accompanied Colonel Foster to Cape Coast.

We say that it is the English Government that is guilty, and we recapitulate the charges against them,—charges, be it observed, supported by nothing less than the evidence supplied by themselves to Parliament:—

1. They disregarded and betrayed the interests of their country in giving up the control of the Straits of Malacca.

2. They made a ridiculously bad bargain in giving it up for a cession of territory on the Gold Coast.

3. They accepted this cession from the Dutch, who had no right to make it, unless with the consent of the tribes and of the King of Ashantee, which consent was not obtained.

4. They were well aware that the question of tribute and the removal of Atjiempon were likely to lead to war if not settled previous to the cession, and yet they accepted the cession without having settled either point.

5. They allowed Admiral Harris to disregard his instructions on both these points, and, far from censuring, adopted his conduct.

6. Professing to desire the promotion of commerce, they have acquiesced in the establishment of heavy customs duties upon it, and are at this moment, in alliance with the Fantees, fighting for nothing else than the power of hampering commerce by exactions.

7. While professing to give full information, they have suppressed an important treaty, and facts, presumably important, of many despatches.

8. And in the face of all this, they endeavour, by the mouth of Mr. Gladstone, to shift the responsibility from themselves, and to throw it upon the "people of these three kingdoms," whom they kept in utter ignorance of their proceedings until their acts were irrevocable.

No doubt there is a kind of answer which may and which will be made to all this. It will be said that it may be true, but that there was no conscious purpose of betrayal or of misconduct on the part of the Ministers; that Lord Granville was not aware of the importance, or possibly of the existence, of the Straits of Malacca; that neither he nor the Cabinet knew that the control of those Straits was worth far more than the acquisition of a dangerous protectorate, or rather as it turned out, of a war on the Gold Coast; that they hoped the two difficulties they had left unsettled would somehow settle themselves; and that, as regards Admiral Harris, his instructions were sent, not in published despatches, but in private telegrams and letters not published. It will be said, in short, that our Government did not understand their business, and did not attend to it; that they are men who have never given any particular thought to Foreign Affairs, who have done the best they knew; to which it would be sufficient to reply that a Minister may no more betray his country ignorantly through incapacity or negligence than he may knowingly and of set purpose. But what we hold it important to show, and what we have shown is, that English Ministers, as at present chosen, do betray their country, and that they do it with careless confidence in their impunity, which is quite terrible.

If this were a solitary instance of the results of secret diplomacy, we should not be so anxious to draw attention to it. But the whole of our recent history is full of instances of the same nature, and of even greater gravity. Secret diplomacy, so far as England is concerned, offers one unbroken record of defeat and failure. Failure in Persia, failure in Khiva, failure in the Black Sea, failure in America, is recorded in plain letters. For this there is one remedy, that negotiations should be made public before their irrevocable completion; that the blunderers of the offices should no longer be permitted rashly to sign away the honour and interests of England, in the certainty that their work being irrevocable, must, when disclosed, be adopted; that, in short, the English people should sternly and peremptorily claim a voice in the management of their own affairs. That remedy, however, will not be accepted till it is too late.

Literature.

The Empire and Cities of Asia, by A. Gruar Forbes (Virtue and Co.), is designed by the author to supply a concise record of the history of Asia, and he has succeeded in presenting a volume which is complete in geographical and historical information, and at the same time thoroughly entertaining. Accompanying this handsome little volume is a well executed map of Asia.

In the January number of Ocean Highways, amongst the many admirable papers given, a contribution by Baron F. Von Richthofen, entitled "Recent Attempts to Find a Direct Trade Road to South-Western China," will be found to be of special interest. Mr. W. Campbell, missionary of the English Presbyterian Church, under the title of "Aboriginal Savages of Formosa," gives a very graphic sketch of the inhabitants of that island.

We hear that the Comte de Palikao intends to publish an account of his Chinese expedition.

Macmillan's Magazine commences the new year with a story by Frances Martin, called "Little Jack," and the first instalment is very satisfactory. In addition to the contribution by Mr. Burnand and a paper on Mendelssohn, we have a reproduction of the address given by Sir Samuel Baker at the Royal United Service Institution upon the subject of Savage Warfare.

"La Mode Illustree" for January (Asher and Co.) contains more than two hundred illustrations and some magnificently coloured plates and patterns. We should imagine that this artistic work will be held in especial admiration by the ladies.

The Gentleman's Magazine for January commences an entirely new series, which we believe ceases to be under the editorship of Mr. Joseph Hatton. A new story, entitled "Olympia," is given. The general contents of the magazine are of the usual interest.

We have received from Messrs. Macnaught, Robertson and Co., of Bankend, Southwark, a lithographed section sheet of rolled iron girders, joists, and fitch plates, together with price list and table for ascertaining the estimated safe permanent distributed loads in tons for the various stock of the firm.

Mr. T. H. Meredith, of 340, Strand, has issued a third edition of a book entitled "My New-year's Gift to my Son," which will be found peculiarly suitable to the requirements of the youthful reader.

The Pall Mall Gazette publishes an elaborate review of the pamphlet entitled "Aperçu de la Situation en Chine," which we noticed in our issue of the 8th ult. We extract the following observations:—

So far as a general survey is concerned, Baron Hübner's "Promenade autour du Monde," which appeared last season in two volumes, gives a more impartial and satisfactory summary, both of the present situation in China and of the operative causes determining our relations and those of other treaty Powers from the beginning. As a veteran diplomatist and Minister of State, it was to be expected that even in a three months' study of the situation in Japan and China he would know how to avoid errors common to less practised observers. The anonymous author of the pamphlet might have taken a lesson from his less pretentious and more wary predecessor in this field, instead of merely reproducing the hackneyed pleas of the mercantile communities for a more aggressive or "vigorous policy" on the part of all Governments towards China as a means of opening up the country and advancing trade. Into these well-aired grievances we do not propose to follow the writer. Before leaving this part of the question, however, we may just observe that the first twenty-five pages of the pamphlet are occupied in a purely fanciful grievance against the British, who are charged with having committed a fatal error during the negotiations which took place in 1868-9 for the revision of existing treaties. This is really a querelle d'Allemagne, and has no sense in it. It is said that in our utilitarian preference of expediency to principle we began our negotiations for a revision by assuming that our rights were only derived from treaties; whereas, the right of free intercourse and intercommunication is common to all nations and antecedent to all treaty engagements. To adopt any other point of departure, it is contended, was to take the humiliating place assigned by the Greeks and Romans to all barbarians outside the limits of their territories with whom they had entered into no engagements, and therefore, according to the Roman jurists, having no rights. It was to lend a sanction to the absurd pretensions of the Chinese to admit or exclude foreigners at their pleasure by the unfettered exercise of a sovereign power above any so-called law of nations. The simple answer is that, whether a right of free intercourse, trade, and domicile was, according to the Law of Nations, one of those perfect rights which carry with them compulsory powers, or only an imperfect right, to be made good by compact and mutual arrangement—it would have been idle and utterly inopportune to discuss. So far as China was concerned, that contention was over. The Emperor had been compelled to sign three successive treaties, after as many disastrous wars, recognising such rights de facto. These treaties had defined the conditions under which all rights claimed or deemed necessary should be enjoyed. And on each occasion the terms of the treaty or convention entered into were dictated by ourselves. For any foreign Power, after this, to enter into a worldly contention with the Chinese rulers as to the origin of our rights would surely have been the idlest waste of breath that even a doctrinaire could suggest.

We have not space enough to follow the author through a series of mistaken data and false conclusions. We infer that he has resided in China, and knows much without being really well informed, or capable apparently of exercising an impartial judgment when foreign interests are in the one scale and Chinese in the other. He claims merit on behalf of the Treaty Powers for having aided the Chinese to put down the Taeping insurrection. And so no doubt they did. But where he claims the gratitude of the Chinese for this service, he utterly ignores that we were ourselves in no small degree responsible both for the commencement and the long continuation of the Taeping rebellion by the weakness and humiliation our war had brought on the Government, and by the direct encouragement given by the missionaries, merchants, and filibusters of all nationalities to the rebels. When we did intervene the Chinese may rightly ask our motive—whether it was not for our own safety at the ports and our commercial interests, and not for any interest of theirs. Nothing can well be more wide of fact and truth than the assertion that the Chinese have anything to thank us for; or less rational than to found on that plea any ground of reclamation. The introduction of railways, telegraphs, and all the other appliances which would promote the civilisation of the Empire by the development of its material resources, with increased facilities of communication and interchange of ideas as well as of products, has been urged upon the Chinese Government heretofore with very little effect. Successive Ministers—from Lord Elgin to Mr. Wade—have told us, through Blue-books and despatches innumerable, the same facts, and the conclusions to which they lead. The literati, from among whom all civil offices are filled, are still, from their ignorance of everything outside China, incapable of appreciating the utility of scientific inventions. They are not less opposed, from pride, to the adoption of any means that can only be turned to account with the help of foreigners. In this state of things, and with this feeling generally prevailing throughout all classes, but more especially, perhaps, the ruling class—that is, the educated and the holders of office—it is easy to discern what are the practical barriers to any rapid progress, or the introduction of material improvements if these involve European innovations—machinery or foreign agents. The more persistently or vehemently they are urged to advance, the more resolutely they plant their feet on the antiquas vias of tradition and custom, with a retrograde tendency. Whenever they move forward, as we have no doubt they must, we repeat our conviction that it will be by their own methods, for their own ends, and at their own time. But encouragement may be found in the fact that what Gallileo said of the earth is equally true of China. "E pur si muove!" Not only have they been led by the force of circumstances to create arsenals and docks on European models with engineers and artificers of different nationalities, and with all our best machinery and newest appliances,—armed their forts with Krupp's and Armstrong's guns, disciplined troops with European drill and furnished them with the newest breech-loaders for weapons, but they have built for themselves ironclads and a large fleet of smaller steamers and gunboats. They have created a mercantile steam company, and more recently Li-Hung-chung, the able Viceroy of the northern provinces, has boldly announced the necessity of abandoning all junk transports of rice for the capital and the Grand Canal route. But all this is perfectly compatible with an increasing disposition not to adopt foreign ways, if their adoption is suggested by the foreigners. Of this the refusal even to receive a present or wedding gift in the novel form of a railway—which, although contested, is undoubtedly true—is the last evidence. Yet those on the spot know that there is an increasing experience and appreciation of the utility of foreign inventions; and although the art of war takes precedence, and for sufficient reasons, the appliances of the foreigner are working their way into China, wedgewise it is true, but not the less irresistibly and certainly.

The first step to be looked for now will be in the mining direction. They have, as we have seen, besides arsenals, a large fleet of steamers, both for warlike and commercial purposes; and for these they want coal. Peking will be the last to initiate such a movement. It will be done first by some bold and enterprising Viceroy, like Li-Hung-chung, and sanctioned afterwards. One hundred youths have been sent to the United States of America for education, because it is more easily obtained there than in England probably, and perhaps also because the Americans give them less trouble than we do. The Colossus is actually in motion, therefore, and must inevitably move on, however slowly or reluctantly.

Monetary and Commercial.

A deputation of steamship owners of London, Liverpool, Glasgow, the Tyne, and Hull, have had an interview at the Treasury Office with Mr. Dodson and Dr. Lyon Playfair, the Postmaster-General, with reference to the acceleration of mails to the East, and certain grievances against the P. and O. Company. The deputation consisted of Messrs. Alfred and Philip Holt, Ocean Steamship Company, Liverpool; Mr. Charles Wilson, Hull; Mr. Skinner, Castle Line, Glasgow; Mr. Montgomery (Smith and Sons, Glasgow); Mr. Macgregor (Macgregor, Gow, and Company, London); Mr. James Harrison, Liverpool; Mr. M'Diarmid, Ducal Line; Mr. Laining, Red Cross Line; Mr. Davies (Rathbone Brothers, Liverpool, Star Line); Mr. Gellatly; Mr. Grant (the Queen Line); and Capt. Carr. The deputation was introduced by Mr. Alfred Holt, who said they represented 280,000 of the 400,000 of steamship tonnage passing through the Suez Canal. They understood that the P. and O. Company had asked the Government to allow them to carry the mails through the Suez Canal instead of sending them by rail from Alexandria to Suez, and in order to compensate for the loss of time in going through the Canal, the speed was to be accelerated between Southampton and Alexandria. The speaker said, that if the P. and O. Company had permission to carry the mails by the Canal they would have precedence over all other vessels. The Government were paying a large sum of money for a notoriously slow service, and they enabled the P. and O. Company to have all the benefits of a subsidy with none of its drawbacks. The mails between Shanghai and Southampton could be accelerated five days easily, for when he said that a day's delay of the mail was a loss of £10,000 to those engaged in trade, the Government would see the importance of accelerating the speed. Mr. Dodson and Dr. Playfair said they would consider the matter.

On the spot Plantation Ceylon has been sold at 123s. for low middling to 127s. for middling, and for arrival important sales have been made in 73-74 crops at 119s. to 120s. per cwt. The first public sale of Tea since the holidays was made yesterday, when 2,932 packages new season's China, per Cawdor Castle and Diomed, were sold without reserve on importers' account as follows :—1,912 chests and half-chests black-leaf Congou sold at 10d. to 1s. 1¾d. ; 1,020 ditto red ditto at 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1d. Compared with the auctions on the 18th ult. common black-leaf sold ½d. per lb. lower, good middling ¼d. to ½d. lower, and red of brisk quality but rather uneven appearance nearly 1d. lower. The market for Rice is less depressed, and some business has been effected at previous rates. Cocoa-nut Oil is quiet at £35 10s. to £36 for Ceylon. In other articles there is no alteration to be reported.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Our advices from this port by the present mail extend to the 25th Nov. The French mail from London, Sept. 26, arrived out on the 14th Nov., and the following P. and O. mail of Oct. 3 on the 22nd Nov. The Japan Mail contains the following summary of news:—

A complimentary farewell banquet was offered to the Hon. Charles E. De Long on the 15th Nov., by the American and Dutch residents of Yokohama and Yedo, the entertainment being necessarily restricted to these nationalities by the impossibility of finding a room sufficiently large to accommodate a greater number. Ninety gentlemen sat down to table. Mr. De Long's speech embraced a sketch of his political career in Japan and avowed his cordial sympathy with the rulers and people of this land in their struggles to attain to the level of Western civilisation. He urged forbearance and patience, and expressed a sanguine hope for a bright future for the country. His speech was received with much applause. In the course of the evening Mr. Bauduin, Dutch Consul at Yokohama, mentioned that, as evidence of the recognition by the Government of Holland of Mr. De Long's services while acting as representative of H.N. Majesty's subjects in Japan, his Majesty has been pleased to confer upon Mr. De Long the Cross of the Order of "Knight-Commanders of the Netherlands Lion." This compliment was suitably acknowledged by Mr. De Long, who, however, expressed a doubt as to the propriety of accepting such a decoration as an American citizen. The Hon. Judge Bingham, Mr. Bauduin, and Captain McDougall subsequently addressed the company. Captain George Lane, superintendent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, occupied the chair.

An accident occurred to the Empress of Japan on Nov. 7. The pole-strap of her carriage gave way and the horses becoming frightened ran away. The coachman, a Japanese, lost his self-command, and the horses and carriage were thrown over an embankment into a deep pool of water. The carriage being closed its occupants were extricated with only very slight injuries. A native groom was killed and one of the horses was drowned.

Captain Lane, Superintendent of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, has addressed a letter of acknowledgment to the Governor of Kanagawa on account of the kindness and hospitality shown to the shipwrecked passengers and crew of the s.s. Ariel. An official enquiry into the loss of the steamer was held at the United States Consulate, Yokohama, on Nov. 10, at the instance of the agent of the company in Yokohama. The Court, having taken into consideration the circumstances of the case, pronounces Captain Newell to be exonerated from blame, and praises his conduct and the excellent discipline maintained on board his vessel on the occasion of the disaster.

Reports have been current as to disaffection among the Japanese troops, but are said, on excellent authority, to possess no foundation.

The Columbine, a British-built steamer owned by Japanese, has been lost near Oosima. The European captain declined to enter an unsurveyed harbour, and the command of the vessel being taken out of his hands, she was run ashore by the Japanese pilot.

Kido, who is at present acting as Prime Minister during the illness of Sanjo, has published a pamphlet explanatory of the causes of the recent social and political changes in Japan.

The twenty-third anniversary of the Mikado's birthday was observed on the 3rd Nov. The foreign Ministers were entertained at Yedo, and the foreign Consuls at the Saibansho, Yokohama, by the Governor of Kanagawa.

Sir Harry Parkes was thrown from his horse on the 8th Nov., fortunately without sustaining any injury. The horse stumbled over a heap of earth and gravel, thrown up by reason of some excavation that was going on, and threw his rider. The attention of the Japanese authorities has been called to the subject.

The decease of Mr. Kenneth Ross Mackenzie at the ripe age of seventy is reported. Mr. Mackenzie was one of the pioneers of foreign commerce in Japan.

Viscount San Januario, Governor of Macao, accredited to the Court of Japan as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary from the King of Portugal, has arrived in Japan. He is at present residing at Hamogoten, Yedo.

It is reported that the Government has informed the representatives of the Treaty Powers that the Kiito Aratame Kaisha, or Silk Guild, is an illegal corporation in respect to treaty obligations, and that it is intended to abolish it.

The weather has undergone a change to a lower temperature. The rice harvest is either gathered in or in course of reaping, and report speaks well of it. Rice shipments to England and to Australia are being made, though not on an extensive scale.

The following items of news are from the Japan Herald:—

Little more information has been made public respecting the views of the new Ministry, but their advent to power is said to have caused much dissatisfaction amongst the military class, who were anxious to achieve distinction in a Korean campaign, the idea of which is, for the present, abandoned. Kido, one of the Councillors of State, and who has but recently returned with the Embassy, has published a political memorandum, which has been largely circulated, but which, from an European point of view, is a very unsatisfactory document, being only a weak tissue of platitudes.

Several shocks of earthquake have been experienced during the last fortnight.

Mr. De Long, the late United States Minister at this Court, has taken his departure with his family. Mr. De Long carries with him the best wishes of the residents here of every nationality, and he leaves with the proud consciousness that he has done more to advance American interests in Japan than the whole of the other American Ministers, from the days of Harris downwards.

The equivalent of dollars, nearly three millions of treasure, principally in gold yen, have been exported within the last fortnight to India and Europe.

Another of the Mikado's concubines has died in childbirth. This is the second case within two months. Unskilful treatment on the part of the native doctors is supposed to have caused these fatalities. In both cases the offspring have perished too. The Empress is reported to be enciente, but at present there is as yet no heir to the throne.

A temperance movement has lately been started here, which appears to be making progress amongst the sailors, &c., congregated at this port.

NAGASAKI.

A correspondent from this port writes that the principal creditors, or their representatives here, of the estate of Glover and Co., in liquidation, have resolved to dispose of the remainder of the lease of the Takasima mine to the Japanese Government. By this sale the whole of the coal mining will be in the hands of the Japanese, who will have no opposition except that of foreign countries, which cannot hope to enter into competition with it, when sold to steamers or men-of-war in this port. It is estimated, from the few particulars which have become public, that the dividend expected to be paid to the unsecured creditors will be thirty-three cents per dollar, and I suppose, as the vote in favour of selling was carried by a very large majority, the interested parties could see no chance of improving the dividend by working the mine until the expiration of the lease. So far as I can ascertain, the terms upon which the lease was originally granted gave great power to the Japanese, and they could, by working upon the labourers, induce a strike at any time they felt so inclined, or limit the quantity of coal raised, as no other manual labour than that of the Japanese was permitted to be used.

The tea market for the new season's crop has scarcely opened yet at Nagasaki, although it is now November. In previous years nearly one half the total export for the season has been sent away before this month. Only a few small parcels have gone forward this year, as the foreign merchants resident here appear to have very wisely made up their minds not to make shipments which clearly show a loss, with very little prospect of the markets to which they send their adventures improving to compensate them for the risk of purchasing at losing rates. With so much excitement in England about adulterated tea, or coloured tea, it is surprising that the tea-drinkers there do not resort to the use of "Uncoloured Japans" as a remedy for the evil of adulteration. I am afraid that much of the adulteration practised in England must be attributed to the desire of the people there to have sightly articles and prefer them to a purer but more unsightly things. I hear that most of the Japan teas sent to London are purchased for Canada, and this at once shows that English tea-drinkers do not approve of pure and unadulterated articles when unadorned.

Vessels of war in port are the Iron Duke, Cadmus, Thetis, Salamis, Rinaldo, and Frolic, British; and the Lackawanna, American. Most of these will leave shortly; the Iron Duke and Salamis for Shanghai, Cadmus for Yokohama, and the Rinaldo for Hong Kong.

The British barque Paracca left for New York via Hiogo, to which port she proceeds to complete her loading, the cargo being chiefly rags and camphor.

Gold yen 103¾ per Mexican $100. Exchange on Shanghai, Tls. 73 per $100.

PEKING AND TIENTSIN.

On the 11th November a new Chinese gunboat, called the Mei-yun, said to have been built in England, arrived at Tientsin, and anchored close to the other Chinese gunboats at the lower end of the foreign anchorage. On the following day the Viceroy, accompanied by a number of his subordinate mandarins, went on board and inspected her. On the 15th she left for Shanghai. The other two Chinese gunboats have since lowered their topmasts, &c., and made all the necessary preparations for remaining here during the winter, by housing in with matting. They have besides left the lower anchorage and gone to the place nearer the city where the two gunboats were moored last winter. The British, French, and Russian gunboats have also lowered their topmasts, and otherwise made preparations for being snug at their moorings during the cold weather.

On the 16th Nov. H.B.M.'s Minister and suite arrived at Tientsin in the steamer Taku, from Shanghai. Mr. Wade called on the Viceroy at his Yamun in town, and next day he and his suite started in boats for the capital.

Junks have been arriving at Tientsin from Leaou-tung (the Newchwang region) with cargoes of millet, maize, &c., &c., for the sustenance of the distressed population of this and the surrounding districts during the next few months, the grain having been purchased by the Viceroy with the sums allotted some weeks back by the Emperor for that purpose.

Messrs. Macpherson and Huber, the commissioners appointed by the Chinese Government to go to Cuba for the purpose of inspecting and reporting on the condition of the Chinese labourers working in that country under contract, have arrived from Peking, and have since left for Shanghai, en route for Cuba. Senor Atin, the Spanish Minister, has also left for Shanghai, where he purposes remaining during the coming winter. The Peruvian Envoy, Senor Garcia, is still at Tientsin, and it is presumed that he is making some progress towards the objects of his mission, as frequent interviews take place between him and the Viceroy Li Hung-chang.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 28th Nov.; the French mail from London Oct. 10 arrived out on the 26th Nov. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

The adjourned annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce has been held. The inconvenience of the Woosung Bar and the general deterioration of the river channel came up prominently for discussion, and much important information on both subjects was given. The facts stated will show that the constant representations we have made on the subject are more than justified.

The monthly reports which the Municipal Council now publish, in the stead of minutes of their weekly meetings, give a convenient summary of their doings. We are always glad to hear of road extension, whether within the settlement or without. The junction of the "Seward" with the "Hongkew" road at the back of the Astor-house is a good measure, and gives a continuous road from the City moat to the Yangtsze-poo. It renders useless the upper part of Hongkew-road, from Tiendong-road to the Bund, which might now almost as well be closed. The proposed extension of Markham-road would allow a pleasant change from the monotony of the Bubbling Well drive; but we hardly understand the line suggested. The old military road, if we remember right, ran from Alpha farm into the Jessfield-road, joining the latter at its point of contact with the Soochow Creek, and this seems a preferable line. The next step would then be to reopen the old road from Jessfield to Fahwah, and a capital all round drive would thus be obtained. The new boundary line of the Hongkew Settlement has, we observe, been brought back to that fixed on by Mr. Seward in 1872. The present boundary line runs from a point opposite the Defence Creek to a point one mile inland, on the bank of the Yangtze-poo. Mr. Seward proposes to make the line run first to the Rifle Butts, and then on to the Yangtze-poo, which would add a considerable area, but much less than that sketched in the last Public Works report. The proposed line seems to cover all the ground necessary, and will no doubt be accepted.

The Yacht Club have held another regatta. The race was for the Ladies' Purse. The following yachts entered:—Julia, Lillie, Fearless, and Madcap; the Lillie won the purse, the Madcap being second.

We have an unusual number of men-of-war in port at present: the Iron Duke, Thetis, Curlew, Salamis, and Ringdove English; Hartford and Iroquois American; Vitiaz, Bogatyr, Ascold and Gornostai Russian. We hope that opportunity will be taken of the presence in port of so many men-of-war to have some sham fights after the old fashion. We are sure Admiral Shadwell will allow men to be landed from the several vessels under his command, and have no doubt Admiral Jenkins will be equally ready to let his men have an afternoon's healthy exercise.

H.M.S. Thetis leaves for Aden, where enquiry is pending into her attack on certain slave dhows, while on her way out to China. The enquiry over, she will probably complete her term of service on the India station. H.M.S. Cadmus has been ordered over from Japan, to take the place of the Thetis on this station.

A parade is called for the 1st Dec., for the presentation of prizes won at the Volunteer Rifle meeting. The athletic sports are also fixed for that day, and the distribution will take place on the Cricket Ground, in an interval between the events. Admiral Shadwell has promised to give away the prizes—except of course the Ladies' Purse, which a young lady lately arrived has kindly undertaken to make, and to present. The Volunteers will no doubt assemble in force to do honour to their successful comrades and to those who have kindly undertaken to conduct the ceremony.

Among the passengers lately arrived from the North are Messrs. Macpherson and Huber, en route for Cuba, on the mission of enquiry regarding the condition of Chinese emigrants to that island to which we have before alluded; definite arrangements having been at length made for the mission.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 4th Dec.; no later mail from London had arrived out. The Hong Kong Daily Press supplies the following items of intelligence:—

The suggestion which is made by Messrs. Gilman and Co., in a letter which has been published with the proceeding of the Shanghai Chamber with reference to mildew in shirtings, is of an eminently practical character, and it is to be hoped will have the effect of putting an end to the fraudulent practices which now threaten to ruin the trade in English Cotton Goods. The proposition is simply to sell the shirtings by washed muster, and it will amount to carrying out a suggestion which we made on reading the statement of one of the Manchester manufacturers that weighted shirtings were wanted, that they should follow Paterfamilias's suggestion as to the milk, that is, to take the milk and water in separate jugs—and send out the shirtings and the sizing separate. The plan ought to be, in every sense of the word, a solution of the difficulty, and now that it has been suggested, there can be little doubt it will be carried out, as if the sellers of the goods do not adopt so simple an expedient, it will doubtless occur to such astute traders as the Chinese buyers.

A meeting of the Legislative Council was held on the 2nd Dec. The Governor laid upon the table three Bills to be read for the first time. The first of these was a Bill for providing for the registration of trade marks. Mr. Justice Pauncefote having been called upon to explain the objects of this Bill, mentioned that in consequence of the holders or owners of trade marks not being in the colony a large quantity of spurious articles were manufactured, and by the provisions of the present ordinance these offenders would be prosecuted. The draft of a Bill with reference to beacons and lighthouses was then laid upon the table. It was considered desirable that there should be lights at Cape D'Aquilar and Green Island, and it was proposed at once to begin the foundation for the Cape D'Aquilar light. The Attorney-General then explained the nature of the Ordinance regarding the oral examination of prisoners, which would enable the magistrate to examine accused persons, but the accused need not answer to criminate himself. Before the Council broke up a vote of thanks to the Hon. Mr. Pauncefote was proposed and duly carried.

A public dinner was given on the 1st Dec., at the City Hall, to the Hon. Mr. Justice Pauncefote, in view of his approaching departure from the colony. H.E. the Governor, Sir A. Kennedy, took the chair, and the following gentlemen were present: Hon. Chief Justice Smale, Hon. T. C. Hayllar, Hon. James Whittall, Hon. C. May, Hon. R. Rowett, Hon. P. Ryrie, Hon. W. H. Alexander, Lieut. Burn, Messrs. H. Lowcock, Drummond, A. P. Handley, J. L. Brown, Geo. F. Heard, John Robinson, H. B. Lemann, L. Cameron, A. Coxon, S. D. Sassoon, Colonel Philipps, Messrs. J. E. Noble, W. H. Forbes, J. F. Seaman, J. Kaye, Edmund Sharp, J. E. Shellim, S. J. David, S. D. Sassoon, P. Karberg, A. Helland, A. André, L. Beyer, R. A. O'Brien, M.D., Dr. Clouth, Messrs. J. Ezekiel, A. L. Agabeg, W. H. Brereton, H. Kingsmill, E. R. Belilios, W. M. Deane, Lieut. H. W. Hubback, Messrs. A. McNeil, M. C. do Rozario, J. J. dos Remedios, D. Ruttonjee, A. B. Johnson, S. J. V. Amos, W. Wotton, M. J. D. Stevens, M. Stout, Rustonjee Converjee, A. G. Romano, De Hiersant, R. G. Alford, Ph. B. C. Ayres, Norton, R.N., and J. S. Lapraik. H.E. Rear-Admiral Brummer, other officers of the Russian navy and of the French navy, and Sir Brooke Robertson, K.C.B., were among the guests invited.

After the usual loyal toasts had been honoured the Governor rose to propose the health of Mr. Pauncefote. He said he could not conceive any distinction more gratifying to those who gave it, and those who received it, than a meeting such as this, representing all the wealth, talent, and respectability of the community. Hong Kong, though a young colony, had produced many distinguished men, and it was an honour to it now that it had produced a Chief Justice. He (the Governor) knew that H. M. Government valued Mr. Pauncefote's professional abilities, and this demonstration bore testimony also to his social worth. Chief Justices were not appointed hastily or inconsiderately by H.M. Government, and it reflected great honour on the colony that one had been selected from it.

Mr. Pauncefote, in reply, said, that he was indeed at a loss for language adequate to express his deep gratitude for the distinguished honour conferred upon him. It had always been his desire to give his best services to the public, whether in the Supreme Court, the Legislative Council, or in whatever other department they might be required; and this demonstration was not only the highest reward he could have for his past services, but the highest encouragement he could receive for the future. It was indeed gratifying to receive this honour—this "last Stirrup Cup"—at the hands of those who represent the various nationalities in the colony. He begged to be permitted to say farewell, and wish every happiness and prosperity to the colony. He left Hong Kong, where he had spent his best years, with sorrow, feeling that he had contracted friendships which would never be severed, and which he could never hope to replace. "The English Bench" and various other toasts having been duly proposed and responded to, the company shortly afterwards broke up.

On the occasion of Mr. Pauncefote taking his seat in the Supeme Court for the last time, previous to his departure from the colony, the Attorney-General rose on behalf of the gentlemen of the profession present, and said the profession could not allow him to go away without wishing him a formal farewell. They were about to lose a judge who, from his long experience and from his great legal acquirements, it would be very difficult, if not impossible, to replace. The Attorney-General and the whole profession wished him a hearty farewell, and every success and prosperity in his new career. Justice Pauncefote, in reply, stated that he felt proud to be able to thank the whole of the legal gentlemen present who had come forward to bid him farewell, and he was sincerely grateful to them for their remarks. He felt he was leaving with their good wishes heaped on him, and the well wishes of many in the colony. He trusted those who had shown their good wishes towards him would be better rewarded than by his thanks, which were all he could return them.

A large number of Scotch gentlemen met at a banquet in celebration of St. Andrew's Day. It took place at the Hong Kong Hotel, where the large guest room was suitably arranged and decorated, the well-known portrait of the old Saint forming a conspicuous object. Some of the speeches delivered, especially those on Scotch literature and the Scotch Universities, were admirable oratorical displays, and the proceedings went off throughout with great good feeling and enthusiasm.

The body of the late Captain Toppin has been brought down by the steamship Kwanytung and interred. A goodly number of the deceased's friends and acquaintances followed the corpse to its last resting place at Happy Valley, whilst due respect was shown by flags in numerous places, and on board ships, being at half-mast.

Four long-sentenced prisoners have been publicly flogged, each receiving twenty-five lashes. The whipping took place at the post near the Harbour-master's office. The lashes appeared to make but little impression on the hardened prisoners.

The steamer Acantha has broken down outside the Ly-ee-moon Pass. It appears that the propeller had either dropped off or slipped aft on the shaft. She will, as soon as possible, proceed to the dock, and meantime is having her cargo discharged.

A buoy, measuring ten feet by six feet, is being completed at the naval yard, to be laid at the spot where the P. and O. steamer Bokhara struck a short time ago. At the place where the buoy is to be put there are eighteen feet of water at low tide.

Sir Arthur Kennedy has visited Rear-Admiral Brummer on board H.I.R.M.S. Vitiaz, and on his leaving the usual salute of seventeen guns was fired.

BORNEO.

SARAWAK.

The Gazette of 1st Dec. has the following :—

A curious rumour got a foot amongst the Chinese living at and about the mining district in Upper Sarawak. The origin of this curious report, which at last became almost a panic, cannot be at all discovered. Mr. O. C. St. John's report says :—

The district is much disturbed by some silly and conflicting reports, which have caused much annoyance. One version is that the Chinese of Montrado are about to attack Upper Sarawak, a second that the leaders of Huey of 1869 are attempting to raise a raid into Sarawak, and a third that the Katibas Dyaks are contemplating an attack on the district. These would not be worth mentioning were it not for the panic they have caused.

The Katibas Expedition against the Bunuts and Tamans on the Kapuas, in Dutch territory, has, we are glad to say, returned without reaching their destination—bad weather, a difficult country, and most likely unlucky omens, have thwarted them and cooled their courage ; we hope the matter is at an end ; but we fear that a Dyak feud is somewhat like the celebrated one between Ta' Pherson and Mic Mac Mathusalah, and will bear keeping.

The same weather which has made this an unhealthy season for the people has conduced to give us the promise of one of the best, if not the best, rice crop on record. From all quarters reports come of full and heavy crops.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this mail extend to the 12th Dec. ; the French mail from London Nov. 7 arrived out on the 9th Dec. The following items are from the Straits Times :—

A horrible murder and suicide has been committed at Campong Kapore, the victims being a Boyanese sailor named Saman, and Debiah his wife. It appeared from the evidence adduced at the coroner's inquest that Saman, the husband, had recently returned from a sea voyage and found his wife living with her parents at Campong Kapore. He wanted her to go and live with him, but she refused, upon which they came to angry words, and finding her determined to persist in her refusal, the husband drew his sheath-knife and rushed upon her, inflicting no less than sixteen stabs in various parts of her body, one of them severing the jugular vein and penetrating deep down into the chest. The husband then stabbed himself in several places, one of the wounds severing the windpipe.

We understand that it is contemplated to amend and consolidate all the local Passenger Ships Ordinances into a single Ordinance, which will at the same time put a stop to the carrying of deck passengers on sea voyages without proper provision for their accommodation below. Thus, it will be seen that the Glenlyon scandal has borne good fruit.

The Eastern and Australian Mail Steamship Company have chartered the steamer Flintshire, expected here about the 24th December, to run upon their line to Batavia, Brisbane, and Sydney. The Flintshire goes also to Melbourne.

The Government Gazette contains only two or three new notifications. Mr. Henry Hewetson is appointed Acting Sheriff of Singapore during the absence of Mr. Evans. The Governor has appointed Mr. Snowden, Capt. Walshe, and Lieut. Ellis, or any two of them, to exercise at Singapore the duties conferred on Courts of Quarter Sessions by the Summary Jurisdiction Ordinance, 1872, till a Court of Quarter Sessions is constituted here.

The average note circulation of the local banks during November was—Oriental Bank, $248,600 ; Mercantile Bank, $418,205 ; Chartered Bank, $656,000.

Mr. Marins Cravery, Secretary of the 1st class at Alexandria, has been appointed Chancellor of the French Consulate, and till his arrival the duties of the office will be performed by Mr. G. de Champeaux.

The latest received Batavia papers, which come down to the 6th Dec., publish the following official telegrams regarding the Atchin war :—

All the transport vessels have arrived off Atchin, successively. Seventy-seven men, all privates and convicts, have been lost from cholera and dysentery. The loss has, moreover, to be lamented, of Mr. H. J. Cantervisscher, who had been detailed as Secretary to the Government Commissioner. Pulo Nassy has been taken possession of, and the cholera patients conveyed thither. Much rain falls daily, which has hitherto made it impossible to begin operations. Reconnaissances along the coast have yielded good results. On board the men-of-war the state of health is excellent. On the 24th November the enemy was seen working at a benting near the mouth of the Atchin river. Some 30 grenades from the Citadel Van Antwerpen caused them to stop their labour. On the 29th November the Banda and Bronbeck made a reconnoitring cruise along the coast line as far as the neighbourhood of Pedro point. Several shots from the shore were effectively answered by the Banda. The Amboyna, despatched at the same time to Rarang Raba on a reconnaissance, exchanged shots with the shore. The fire of the enemy had no effect, and was speedily silenced, after the flagstaff on the benting had been shot to pieces. A spy, who has lately returned from Atchin, and who has been inside the Kraton, states that there are thirteen white men in the Kraton, amongst whom are three Frenchmen, three Englishmen, two Netherlanders, and five Americans. The information supplied by this spy, whose name we suppress, appears to be trustworthy.

By last accounts cholera was on the decrease in Batavia and Samarang, but was making many victims in the coast towns in Java and in the interior. The disease had reached Pasaruan.

Regarding the cutting of the telegraph cable between Singapore and Penang, the Indier of the 6th December states that "some persons see in that the work of Atchinese at Penang to break off communication with Batavia."

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been but little change in the market. Buyers had been fairly busy taking delivery of old contracts, and had entered into but few fresh transactions. The demand which existed for Nos. 38 to 42 Yarns had been fully supplied, and with the exception of a rather better enquiry for 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, there was no change in Cotton Goods, and the market for Woollens still remained in the same unsatisfactory state as last reported.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—The Chamber of Commerce Circular says :—The good feeling which existed when the last report was issued continued up till about the end of the month, when holidays caused a general absence of buyers. The market, worried also by extremely low rates of exchange, has not been able to assume its former tone, and while there are requirements of some articles, both stocks and new imports from China would appear to weigh so heavily on the market that holders in many cases at once yield to lower offers, and a remunerative business may not be looked forward to during the present winter accordingly. Cottons : Deliveries of Grey Shirtings show no advance. Prices went as high as $2.80 for best 8¼ lbs., but are now lower, with less business doing. For Black Velvets as much as $10.80 was obtainable for good quality, but they also close weak. In Yarn very little is being done, at about former quotations. Taffachellass are wanted, at higher rates. Woollens : With the exception of Black Orleans, Black Camlets, and Scarlet Long Ells, all articles have experienced a fall in price. Nailrod Iron is in demand, but stocks of suitable sizes are limited.

SHANGHAI.—Manufactured Goods : The trade in Plain Cottons had been rather unsteady. Grey Shirtings had generally been obtainable at slightly easier rates, especially 8.4 lbs. descriptions ; but for White Shirtings previous rates had been fully maintained. T-Cloths had continued almost entirely neglected. Drills had been settled in some instances at easier rates, a parcel of fair quality of 15 lb. weight having been sold at Tls. 2.4.0 per piece. For American Drills some demand existed at Tls. 3.5.0 per piece. A resale of American Sheetings, by Chinese, was reported at Tls. 3.3.0. The trade in Fancy Cottons and Woollens had shown no change of importance. Metals : Lead ; L.B. they forced up to Tls. 6.20 per picul. Arrivals light, and stocks being in one or two hands were firmly held. Nail-rod Iron : the market is at a standstill.

FOOCHOW.—Sales had been effected of 1,300 pieces 8¼ lbs Grey Shirtings at $2.70 to 2.72½, 500 pieces 7 lbs at $2.27½, and 500 pieces T-Cloths at $1.92½. Lead was quoted $8.75 per picul.

HONG KONG.—Raw Cotton had been moderately bought at a slight reduction on former values. 8-4 lbs. Grey Shirtings had been fairly taken at maintained prices. Woollens had received but little attention. The Rice market was somewhat firmer, sales having been made at better figures. Coals continued quiet. Quicksilver was rather lower.

SAIGON.—The market for all Imports was again lower. Quotations were, Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.48 per piece ; ditto, 7 lbs., $2.10 ; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.55 ; ditto, 5 lbs., $1.35 ; ditto, 4 lbs., $1.10 ; White Irishes, $1.55.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Arrivals had been on a large scale, and a steady business had been done at previous quotations. Settlements were estimated at 5,000 piculs, chiefly of the medium to fine descriptions. Stocks had been increased to about 6,000 piculs. The Clausina had sailed with 311,749 lbs. for New York. Quotations:—Common, nominal, $21 to 23; Good Common, $24 to 27; Medium, $29 to 32; Good Medium, $33 to 36; Fine, $38 to 41; Finest, $43 to 47; Choice, $50 per picul and upwards. Export from June 1 to date, 6,732,955 lbs., against 7,728,594 lbs. in corresponding period last season.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—Purchases during the month had been on a more extensive scale, and aggregated 5,500 piculs; at the close quotations were higher, owing to late transactions, the rise in the value of Yen, and a further decline in sterling exchange. Stocks were estimated at about 4,000 piculs.

SHANGHAI.—Black: The market had been quiet during the week, as Teamen were holding very firmly. Settlements, 1,898 chests at Tls. 15 to 19½. Stock, 15,000 chests. Green: A large business continued for America, fully former rates being paid for fine to finest chops of Fychow, Moyune and Teenkai. Medium grades had fallen in value about one tael per picul, and common qualities met with no enquiry. Settlements, Fychows, Moyunes, &c., 33,555 half-chests, at Tls. 30 to 53; Pingsueys, 822 half-chests, at Tls. 21½ to 34. Total settlements 34,377 half-chests, stock 88,800 half-chests. Export to Great Britain (lost cargoes included):—

FOOCHOW.—Transactions during the week had been on a moderate scale. Congou: Settlements 8,900 chests at Tls. 3¼ to 18. Teamen showing more anxiety to sell purchases had been made on somewhat more favourable terms. Arrivals, 2,700 chests. Souchong: Settlements 1,000 chests at Tls. 14½ to 25½, being fully equal to previous quotations; arrivals, nil. Oolong: Settlements 580 half-chests at Tls. 21; arrivals, nil. Scented Teas: Settlements 1,000 boxes Scented Orange Pekoe at Tls. 15½ to 18¼, and 900 boxes Scented Caper at Tls. 14½ to 17; arrivals, 200 boxes. Flowery Pekoes: Settlements 80 chests at Tls. 14 to 25; arrivals, nil. Total export to Great Britain, the Continent of Europe, and the Cape of Good Hope, 48,223,214 lbs., against 45,182,989 lbs.; to America, 2,266,479 lbs., against 3,007,567 lbs.; to the Colonies, 12,009,331 lbs. (exclusive of the R. J. Robertson's cargo), against 11,752,958 lbs.

AMOY.—The market had been quiet, only some 2,000 half-chests Oolong having been settled at last quotations. It was reported that there were only a few hundred half-chests more to come forward, and so far as supplies are concerned the season was considered as near its close. Stocks on offer 6,000 half-chests.

CANTON.—There had been rather more inquiry during the week, and settlements of about 3,000 boxes Scented Teas, 600 boxes Congou, and 1,500 boxes Gunpowder were reported. Prices paid for the Scented Teas (of which 2,500 boxes were Scented Orange Pekoes) showed no change. The Gunpowders had been purchased for export to the Continent.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—A steady business had been transacted, and settlements were estimated at about 1,200 bales. The recent rise in prices had been generally maintained, and the demand appeared to run chiefly on finer classes of Hanks. Arrivals had been fairly good, and there were about 1,200 bales on offer. Silk-worms' Eggs: Total settlements to date 1,275,000 cards, against 1,280,000 cards at the same time last year. Arrivals daily decreasing and the season was drawing to its close. Prices had been gradually falling, and the refuse of the season was being offered at prices varying from 75 cents to $1.50.

SHANGHAI.—A large business had been done, the week's settlements aggregating about 2,000 bales, consisting chiefly of fair to good Tsatlees at Tls. 370 to 470 per picul. Gold Lion Tsatlee was quoted at Tls. 420 to 440, No. 3 Chop at Tls. 470 (nominal), Phœnix at Tls. 367½, and Red Peacock at Tls. 385. Re-reels of all kinds were in heavy stock, and for these no demand existed. Total setttlements to date 43,700 bales, unsold stock 6,000 bales.

CANTON.—Quotations were unchanged, and during the week about 100 bales in all had been purchased, including grades Nos. 1, 2, 3, and 4. Dealers continued firm, stating that as there was a good demand for native use they could dispose of their stocks very easily.

A JAPANESE FUNERAL IN VIENNA.

A Japanese funeral, the first in Vienna, took place on the 27th ult. It was that of a young student, who died on Christmas-eve in the hospital, from lingering consumption. Since, according to usage, Fukuda Kataro—this was the name of the deceased—could not be buried in consecrated ground, the body was taken to a place detached from the common burial-ground. Mr. Watanah, the Secretary of the Japanese Legation, spoke simple, but deeply-moving words at the grave. "Oh, what sadness!" he said, "poor Fukuda Kataro! Born in the province of Inehaüa, in the land of Hizen, you were brave and good. Already in early age you were eager to learn. When a youth you chose the study of national economy, and being not satisfied with the knowledge of its general rules, you left your home and went two years ago to the lands of the distant West. First you lived at Berlin, and came to Vienna a few months ago. You followed your studies under the guidance of eminent men of science and of clear judgment, and you became an industrious scholar in the Vienna Polytechnic. From the early dawn of the day to late hours you strove eagerly to obtain the purpose of your life. But, oh sorrow! you were seized with dire illness, and never rose again from the bed of sufferings. All medical care and nursing was in vain. They availed nothing against the fierce illness ; they were unable to snatch from death its victim. After a short dream of life, not lasting longer than twenty-six years, merciless death tore you away from us, and we stand now weeping at your grave, bitterly deploring that your term of life did not last, for the benefit of our common far-away country. Now you are bedded by us in foreign ground, and in the fulness of sadness and mourning we greet you for the last time. Oh, poor Fukuda Kataro! Farewell!"

COTTON MANUFACTURE IN INDIA.

The Pall Mall Gazette says Manchester will be interested to hear that the number of mills for the spinning and weaving of cotton and jute is steadily increasing in the vicinity of Calcutta and Bombay. To the demand for cotton cloth, says the Friend of India, there is practically no limit, now that Manchester so unblushingly adulterates her goods. That for gunny-bags is sure to be overdone, if all the mills now on the banks of the Hooghly double their looms and so many are started as are now projected ; but such mills will doubtless begin to work up jute into finer textures as clothing for the people. The popularity of the cloth made by native mills at Bombay is such that the Chamber of Commerce have held a public meeting to denounce the import duty of 7½ per cent. on English piece goods as protective. The members wisely resolved to postpone their projected memorial to Government for three months to allow of fuller discussion. The Bombay mills, involving a capital of one and a half million sterling, employ 10,000 natives daily in working 4,500 looms. They prepare 1,500 bales of cotton a week, or 6½ per cent. of the local crop. If Manchester men show the same desire to invest their capital in Indian mills as those of Glasgow and Dundee are doing in jute-spinning factories, there is no reason why in time nearly all the local cotton should not be worked up in India itself, to the great benefit of the natives in every respect. The import duties must be kept up for financial reasons, and they would not operate disadvantageously to an honest trade. The truth is that Manchester cares more about her political than her commercial reputation. Foremost in the ranks of advanced Liberalism, she cares little for her cotton manufactures, feeling, no doubt, that the only clothes in which man should array himself are the robes of righteousness.

NEWSPAPERS IN JAPAN

The Standard says :—We are enabled to give a translation of a Japanese "leader," in which the editor embodies his ideal of what a newspaper should be, but adds a lamentation which might well provoke a responsive cry of pain from editors all over the world. Says our Japanese contemporary :—"As newspapers are most useful and necessary to mankind, assisting the Government and enlightening the people, condemning what opposes and upholding what advances the public good, instructing goodness, correcting ignorance, praising right and rebuking wrong, they are published and widely read in all civilised countries where not only the noble and gentle read them, but all classes, even in the most remote regions, value them as a means of increasing their knowledge and aiding their business. So have we heard that since newspapers first began to be widely read in Europe and America the liberty of the people has increased tenfold. And so it must be, for this reason : There is nothing that becomes a matter of public interest that is not published in the papers. It is of no consequence whether it agrees or disagrees with the editor's views, or whether the Government or people like it or not. It is communicated to the people, and they are able to form their own opinions upon it, and thus public opinion is formed. So now, as our Empire is in process of time becoming prosperous, and is fast improving, we are very pleased to see how many different newspapers are published, for they must gradually prove most useful to the people. Still, there is a great difference between them —some being clever, and others very dull. Some people take a newspaper only to find new theories for conversation, or the curious matter it may contain, while some read it as they would a story book. Hence there is in much that we are desired to insert little else than feeble, childish absurdities, or Buddhist doubt, the publication of which can do no good, and much evil. We will, therefore, be obliged to our friends who write to us that they will only send sensible and instructive articles. This will give great pleasure not only to us, but to the world."

THE PORTE AND THE ATCHIN WAR.—It is stated in the Levant Herald of the 14th ult. that "Seid Abdul Rahman-el-Zaher, the special Envoy from the Sultan of Atchin, now at war with the Dutch East Indian authorities, left Constantinople on Thursday, the 18th of Dec., in the Said, on his return to Atchin, by way of Suez and the Red Sea. The main object of his mission was to induce the Porte to recognise the Mussulman State of Atchin as a vassal State of Turkey. In this the Envoy failed, as did his predecessors on similar missions during the Grand Vizierates of Reschid Pasha and A'ali Pasha. The Atchinese have the crescent and star on their flag, and some cannon also marked with the crescent and star, which came to them, it is said, from the time of Sultan Selim. The Porte, however, has again declined the responsibility involved in assenting to the overtures of the Atchinese, and the envoy was not received by the Sultan ; but as Seid Abdul Rahman belongs to a family of Sherifs, he was decorated with the Order of the Osmanlie of the second class, and received a vizierial letter for his master, the Sultan of Atchin."

MICHIKAZU YOSUBA NAWA of Japan, for some months a law student in Boston, has died of typhoid fever, at the age of thirty-one years. In 1864, with a lieutenant's commission, he took part in an unsuccessful enterprise under the Prince of Chiosiu. During the civil war he served as colonel and aide-de-camp to General Takasugi. At the close of the war he was attached to the foreign department, and when Mori was appointed Minister to the United States he served as second secretary. On the arrival of the Japanese Embassy he resigned his position at Washington and went to Boston to study law, to which he assiduously applied himself, and continued a member of the Boston law school until his death.

DR. HASSALL, the analyst, states that of the samples of Orange Pekoe examined a coating or facing of black lead was found on all of them, and in one of them the adulteration consisted of lie tea, sand, and magnetic oxide of iron ; while the eighteen samples of green tea were found to be adulterated with variable and often large quantities of lie tea, sand, stony particles and magnetic oxyde of iron. Dr. Hassall says that it is evident that the practice of adulterating green tea, and this in a very scandalous manner, widely prevails.

THE Nieuws Van Den Dag gives a statement of the grievances of the first-class passengers on board the steamer Holland, belonging to the "Java" Company. The principal complaint is that the company does not fulfil its engagements with its passengers. Complaint is also made about the state of the cabins, the saloon, the food, the want of care of the luggage, and last, but not least, that the steamers are anything but safe from fire.

THE will, dated Nov. 5, 1862, of Binny Scott, formerly of Colombo, Ceylon, and late of Cheltenham, who died on Nov. 15, was proved on the 27th Dec., by Colonel John David Scott, the brother, the personal estate in the United Kingdom being sworn under £70,000. Testator bequeaths one-third of his property to his wife, and the remainder between his children.

A JAPANESE student writes to The Times remonstrating against the recent orders of the Japanese Government regarding Japanese students in Europe and America. He thinks that the orders for their recall will tend to bring discredit and contempt on the Japanese Administration.

BANKERS' INCOMPETENCY AND COMMERCIAL MORALITY IN SHANGHAI.

IT is disappointing to find such a miserable lack of prudence, vigilance, and pains-taking precaution among the Shanghai bankers and others as is disclosed in some cases quoted in the North China Herald of the 20th November last. Those who have an uphill battle to fight can never deserve to succeed while they leave weak points in their armour exposed, and—if we may be allowed the simile—carelessly let their guns go off among their own ranks in the field where all their prowess is required. If there be any two elements more than all others essential for the development of the trade at a port so distant as Shanghai, they are safe and remunerative returns for the capital of timid sharehelders, and a confidence that those to whom investors entrust their money possess a wisdom financially infallible, and a wariness that never sleeps. What paralysis is to the human body such is a loss of prestige to a commercial undertaking; and to this it must be added that every time a cunning Chinaman, either single-handed or in league with some wretched white-faced swindler succeeds in beguiling a confiding Bank manager, and vanishes amid the many headed Chinese multitude to spread the story of his easily-gotten gains, an extraordinary stimulus is given to attempts of a kindred character; and the moral influences which are the foundations of commercial integrity and the credit consequent upon it receive a most disastrous blow. Let us illustrate these reflections by a brief review of three cases which the North China Herald has described to us:—

The first in importance is "the Agra Bank v. Olyphant and Co." In this case the Bank had advanced a large sum, nominally to HUNG-KEE, a real or imaginary Chinaman; the advance had been made at the request of Mr. STODDARD, at that time wharf manager for the defendants' firm. STODDARD received the money, STODDARD paid the interest as it fell due, and it was he, too, who repaid at a subsequent date a small portion of the principal. Now this loan was granted upon the security of a promissory note bearing what purported to be HUNG-KEE'S chop, or signature, and of a godown warrant which Mr. STODDARD had signed in the name of OLYPHANT and Co. for 790 pigs of lead, which were described in the warrant as stored at the godowns in charge of Messrs. OLYPHANT and Co. Subsequently Mr. STODDARD was got rid of by the defendants, and when he had disappeared it turned out that no such pigs of lead ever existed, and as to HUNG-KEE—stat nominis umbra! The question raised was could Messrs. OLYPHANT and Co. be held liable to make good to the Bank the value of the non-existent lead described in the godown warrant which their agent had fraudulently signed? It was decided that they could not, and rightly so, for it is obvious that though a principal is usually responsible for the laches, often for the frauds, of his agent, when the latter is really acting in the interests of his employer, in the present case it was admitted on both sides that the advance was to one HUNG-KEE and not to Messrs. OLYPHANT and Co.—i.e., Mr. STODDARD, though he used defendants' name, was avowedly not acting for their benefit; and, secondly, the lead was never represented as belonging to OLYPHANT and Co. (a most material point), but as the property of one HUNG-KEE, to whom also the money was supposed to be paid. What can the Bank managers in China mean by conducting their operations on the lax, the piteously incompetent, system disclosed by the evidence of several of their own employés? Thus, one witness tells the Court that advances are frequently made to Chinese through foreigners without the Bank seeing the Chinaman at all! What, then are the "dark ways" and the "peculiar" tricks of AH SIN and AH LONG beyond the powers of education and culture to combat? Or is money so plentiful and trade so good that the trouble even of just seeing the Chinese borrower in the flesh is a superfluity, and the loss of a few thousand taels more or less wholly unimportant to the shareholders at home? The Bank manager, it is evident, never even took the trouble to assure himself of the existence of the security.

Here is another case, subsequent to the one just described, and almost on all fours with it, to which the unhappy offender was most probably tempted by the example of the previous successful swindle, for it followed a very few months afterwards. In this instance Mr. GEORGE GREY MAYNE was convicted of having obtained money by false pretences from the Deutsche Bank at Shanghai, and received a two years' sentence. The offender had been the manager of the Hongkew Wharf Company's premises. In that capacity he took a Chinaman, FOO-KEE, to see the manager of the Deutsche Bank, and obtained an advance for FOO-KEE (though the cash was paid over to himself) on the security of a wharf warrant which he signed, in the name of his firm, for 480 tons of coals, goods, as it turned out afterwards, which did not exist. In this instance, as we see, the principal offender has been deservedly brought to justice; but is the manager of the Bank altogether blameless? No enquiries were made by him into the character and responsibilities of this Chinese accomplice, and no employé was sent to identify the particular lot of mortgaged coals, which, even had they been there, might, from the unavoidable absence of marks and numbers, always be easily lost sight of. The book-keeper at the wharf stated that had the Bank notified that the warrant had passed into their possession, the notice would in the ordinary course of business have come to him, but there was no entry to be found in the company's books to correspond with this warrant, and, as the Bank manager admitted, he only sent in the document for examination at last because the company published a request to all warrant holders to do so. Surely this fact betrays an inexcusable remissness on the part of the Bank.

What can the Inspectors of these Banks be about that they do not discover such proceedings? How is it that the heads of the Shanghai firms are so to be put off their guard that they allow the MAYNES, and STODDARDS, and others whom we might name, to creep into their service, bringing disgrace upon the commercial repute of the port, and pointing to the conclusion that morals have gone down there, and that men of bad character find work in Shanghai presumably because honest people are scarce? Heads of firms, managers and directors of banking companies, official chiefs in every department, whatever their nationality, all alike should remember that they are charged with grave responsibilities incidental to the position which they fill. To relax the rigorous exactitude of business requirements, to be careless as to the personal character of those whom they may employ, and to be indulgent when a mistake has been discovered, wrongs the community at large, wrongs the shareholders whom they protect, and wrongs, too, the general staff over whom they preside; for wherever precaution is neglected and an avoidable irregularity is allowed, an occasion is offered which may some day entail pecuniary disaster and commercial discredit, tempting a clever rogue to commit a crime.

Equally distressing—or nearly so—is the account we read of Mr. HALKET'S bankruptcy. He held an appointment in the Customs, but he has failed for Tls. 35,000, a sum which he swears that he lost entirely in share speculations. Surely the Commissioner of Customs, for the credit of the service which he superintends, ought to prohibit the officers under him from dabbling in risky transactions of this sort. Nothing is more essential among a body of men whose duties are to collect and take charge of public money, than that they should even be above suspicion, and unless they are strictly forbidden to speculate or trade they are sure to be always mistrusted as a class, while individuals among them who may be losers will, some of them, with equal certainty, be tempted to embezzlement and crime.

THE DUTCH WAR IN ATCHIN.

SOME time back we called the attention of our readers to the results which might reasonably be expected to follow on the termination of hostilities in Atchin. We deplored the shortsightedness of our Foreign Minister, who has allowed a valuable Treaty to be torn up in exchange for an unhealthy and unprofitable strip of African coast, a strip which it will after all cost us some millions to reduce really into possession; and we foreshadowed that the pepper trade in Penang was likely, in consequence, to receive a grievous blow. Events have ripened somewhat since we put those reflections into print, but the end is still to come, and the dangers, therefore, which we apprehend have not yet overtaken our commerce. Nevertheless, those who watch the messages from day to day which the telegraph wires convey to us, must be convinced that except for some unforseen turn in the wheel of fortune, such as a violent outbreak of cholera among the Dutch expeditionary forces, the fates of the Sultan of ATCHIN and of his really gallant little army are trembling in the balance, and soon they must either surrender or be entirely overthrown. We cannot help feeling a strange sympathy with the defenders of Kraton; the dash and pluck with which they succeeded at first in repulsing the invaders deserved our admiration; then again they are the weaker party, and manifestly fight against great odds; moreover, whatever may be their shortcomings, they are involved in a war through what was no fault of theirs, but rather a breach of faith on the part of the English, who had by treaty secured them protection.

We cannot make out what offence the unhappy Sultan has ever committed, and he and his people are making at any rate a patriotic effort to defend their country from her enemies. No right-thinking person can resist the influences of such reflections as these, and when we call the lately received telegrams to mind, when in a few brief sentences we read of cholera, bloodshed, and famine, in fact, of the ordinary horrors of war, we begin to realise the disastrous results which may follow indiscreet and ill-advised action on the part of an unwise and incompetent Government.

As to the Dutch army in Sumatra, they seem at any rate to have determined to be cautious; caution implies tardiness in their operations, but perhaps, under the peculiar position in which they stand towards their foes, they are wise to proceed with deliberation. General VAN SWIETEN would seem to have entrenched his forces on the right bank of the Atchin river, not far from the Kraton, and to be gradually pushing forward his advances, and bringing up his artillery in readiness for an attack upon the capital of the Sultan. Telegrams, however, cannot be found fault with on the ground of prolixity, and newspaper correspondents to send us full details from the scene of action in this instance do not exist; hence our information must necessarily be one-sided, and scanty, very likely inaccurate as well. The probability is that VAN SWIETEN is continually in hopes of getting the Sultan to surrender, and for this reason he makes some delay in opening his final attack. It seems that he has sent overtures to the Atchinese, but has not received any response; indeed, further accounts state that the emissary who carried his letters had been imprisoned, and the despatches not delivered but destroyed. This is credible, it savours of the stubborn unreasoning desperation of Mohammedan fanatics, but there is less likelihood in the further statement that the populace at Atchin had obtained supreme power. A rise among the masses during a crisis may occur in China, but it is not characteristic of the Malays, who in times of danger and trouble are peculiarly faithful and obedient to their chiefs; moreover the Atchinese forces are evidently disciplined, and the resistance is well organised. There is, therefore, no reason to suppose that the populace either have got the supremacy, or that they could get it even if they so desired. Then, again, the Dutch commander reports that his enemies are short of rice, and that the scarcity will perhaps have the effect of dispersing their forces. Yet a day after the date at which that despatch was forwarded we find that the Rajah of Pedier "has reinforced the Kraton with 1,500 men." The Rajah clearly made "a little mistake," for the Dutch immediately sent a force of 400 Marines, who burnt his villages and captured his forts, but if there is a dearth of rice in Kraton it is singular that the Rajah of Pedier should have thought to strengthen the power of the Atchinese forces to hold out by increasing the number of mouths to be fed there.

Perhaps the Rajah of Pedier is not such a fool as we have taken him to be. The real strength of the Atchinese is of course kept carefully concealed; but when the ship is going to sink the rats desert her, and it may be that if the Sultan was as near an overthrow as VAN SWIETEN'S telegrams lead us to suppose, his ally, the Rajah of Pedier, would have "pursued a policy of non-intervention" and stayed quietly at home. On the whole, we do not think there can be much doubt that the Dutch will ultimately succeed, but the accounts we have received at present are too meagre and too contradictory to be of any very real importance. British interests have of course everything to gain from a peaceful and a speedy termination of this contest, for while the men of Atchin are fighting the pepper culture must needs be neglected. If the Sultan successfully extricates himself from his present difficulties and preserves his territories intact, and his independence as uncontrolled as before, tant mieux pour vous, we shall still see Atchin pepper in the Penang markets; but if the Dutch prevail one of two things must follow: either they will monopolise the pepper themselves, introducing forced labour according to the system pursued in Java, or else without the compulsory labour the pepper fields will be thrown out of cultivation. The Atchinese will not work voluntarily to enrich the detested Dutch, and in the absence of a supply of labour the pepper can no longer be grown.

SOME time ago the Japanese Government gave an order for a collection of specimens of the animal, floral, and mineral world of Europe, with a view to establish a Museum for the use of schools in Yedo. Dr. LEOPOLD EGER, of Vienna, was entrusted with this task, and succeeded to the satisfaction of H.E. SANO, the Japanese resident Minister. The collection, now completed, comprises also valuable specimens of European antiquities, and no less than 360 technological objects, for the purpose of showing in a comprehensive way the peculiarities of European manufactures. A small collection of European coins has been added. The whole will be sent to Trieste for shipment to Japan.

BY a Vizieral letter the Khedive of EGYPT is required to call upon the Suez Canal Company to carry out within three months the arrangement recommended by the International Commission with reference to the tolls of the Canal. In default thereof the Company will have to revert to the original tax of ten francs per ton on ships, leviable on the net tonnage.

THE fortnightly service of the Pacific Mail Company's steamers between China, Japan, and San Francisco has been discontinued, and for the future only one steamer per month will be despatched outward and homeward.

THE consecration of the Rev. J. S. BURDON as Bishop of Victoria, Hong Kong, will take place at Oxford on the 1st prox.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders for £700,000 in bills on India were received on the 7th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were —to Calcutta, £450,000; to Bombay, £250,000. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 9½d. on all Presidencies. Tenders on Calcutta at 1s. 10⅛d. will receive about 4 per cent., above in full; on Bombay at 1s. 10⅛d., about 24 per cent. These results show an increase in the demand for means of remittance to the East.

The Japanese Loans have met with a steady inquiry at good prices. The Nine per Cent. Loan has been negotiated at 109½, and closes 108 to 110. The Seven per Cent. Loan has secured 100, 100½, and 101, finally standing 99 to 101.

The Times says in regard to the passage of the P. and O. steamers through the Canal :—Attention continues to be directed to the disadvantages which arise from the English mail packets continuing to work in conjunction with the Egyptian Railway instead of availing themselves of the Suez Canal. The present system involves transhipments and consequent delays of a seriously prejudicial character, and some months back a memorial on the subject, signed by the most eminent firms of London, was addressed to the Postmaster-General. It is assumed that the Peninsular and Oriental Steam Navigation Company can insure an equally good or a better mail service by using the Canal instead of the railway, and, if so, the adoption of the former route would, in the opinion of these firms, conduce in every respect to public convenience.

The Eastern Extension, Australasia, and China Telegraph Company's traffic receipts for the month of December amounted to £20,400, against £14,797 for the corresponding period of 1872 of the four separate lines—viz., British Indian Extension, China Submarine, British Australian, and Tasmanian Submarine Telegraph.

The total traffic receipts on the China and Japan lines of the Great Northern Telegraph Company for December were f.144,198, against f.98,458 in December, 1872.

The directors of the Indo-European Telegraph Company (Limited) announce that, subject to the sanction of the shareholders, they have agreed upon a co-operative working arrangement with the Eastern Telegraph Company, which, if approved, and found in no way to contravene the company's concessions, will take effect from the 1st inst. It is believed that the result of this arrangement will be to give the proprietors of the Indo-European a minimum dividend of 5 per cent. per annum upon the present amount of traffic.

Rear-Admiral Sherard Osborn, C.B., F.R.S., has resigned the managing directorship of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company in order to take active service, and is succeeded by Admiral Richards, C.B., F.R.S., late Hydrographer to the Navy. At a meeting of the creditors of Mr. W. Spencer Sawyer, Manchester, merchant and general agent, the statement of affairs showed the liabilities to be £2,146 16s. 9d., and the assets £869 6s. 5d. Liquidation by arrangement was resolved on.

The Zenobia, belonging to Messrs. John Willis and Son, has cleared from Hiogo, Japan, with a full cargo of rice and wheat, for Falmouth for orders.

A telegram announces the departure of the P. and O. steamers Ellora and Nubia from Melbourne, for Galle, with £529,000.

Messrs. Gellermann and Menke have established in Bremen a shipping and commission-house.

Bar Silver has continued firm during the week, and in consequence of an increased inquiry has risen to 58½d. The market is now bare of Mexican dollars, and the price quoted, 56½d. per oz., is therefore nominal.

BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade Returns for December have been issued, and again show a serious falling off in the exports of British and Irish produce and manufactures. The total value of these exports is £19,147,506, as compared with £20,516,253 in December, 1872, showing a decrease of £1,368,747, and nearly 7 per cent. There is also a decrease in quantity as well as in value. In cotton yarn the decrease in quantity is 2½ per cent. ; cotton piece goods, 7 per cent. ; linen yarn, 12 per cent. ; linen piece goods, 45 per cent. ; woollen yarn, 7 per cent. ; woollen cloth, 14 per cent. ; worsted stuffs, 50 per cent. ; and iron and steel, 27 per cent. On the other hand, the export of coal has increased from 830,370 to 1,072,883 tons, or 25 per cent. ; and of jute manufactures the increase is 11 per cent. The quantity of coal shipped for steamers' use in the month was 270,492 tons, against 255,371 tons in November—an increase of 6 per cent. The total declared value of the exports for the year is £255,073,336, compared with £256,257,347 in 1872, showing a decline of £1,184,011, or about 0.4 per cent. The imports exhibit a considerable increase both in value and quantity. The aggregate value is £33,121,559 as compared with £29,341,917 in December, 1872, showing an increase of £3,779,642, or 13 per cent., and the total for the twelve months was £370,380,742, against £354,120,444 in 1872.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

Although the Holidays have interrupted operations in the Produce Markets, and business is not yet fully resumed, the total transactions have been larger than usual at this period. Those articles especially attractive to speculators on account of scarcity have been in brisk demand, and considerable business has been effected in Coffee, at almost daily advancing prices. Tea has been in steady demand, and prices have been firmly maintained. Silk has been very quiet. The excessive supplies of most other leading articles have kept the markets in a quiet state, and Pepper and Gambier are again easier. Tin is firm.

TEA.

There has been a steady demand, leading to a fair amount of business, which would have been larger but for the great firmness of importers, who hold for full prices. There has been no material alteration in the price of Congous, but the inquiry for good to fine Kaisows has been better than for some time past. Public sales have been very small, comprising about 10,500 packages, which sold steadily. Oolongs have been in demand at higher prices. Souchongs show no alteration. Scented Teas: Canton kinds remain dull of sale, except fine unglazed Capers. Foochow kinds show no change. Green Teas have been in demand for export, and prices show a recovery of 3d. to 4d. per lb. from the lowest point in fine Pingsuey, Young Hyson, and Gunpowder. Moyune kinds also selling better. In public sale Thursday 5,519 packages China were offered without reserve on importers' account, and all sold as follows:—855 packages black leaf Congou at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 2½d. per lb.; 1,243 ditto red ditto at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 1½d. per lb.; 525 ditto Pingsuey Green at 9¼d. to 1s. 9½d. per lb.; 446 ditto Moyune ditto at 8d. to 2s. 7½d. per lb.; 2,250 ditto Scented Caper at 10¾d. to 11½d. per lb.; 200 ditto Scented Orange Pekoe at 1s. 2½d. to 1s. 3d. per lb. Black and red leaf Congou sold nearly up to prices obtained for similar qualities at the auction of the 1st inst. Pingsuey showed no change, but Moyune Green sold under valuations. Scented Caper and Scented Orange Pekoe were not in much demand, and compared with cost sold at much loss to the importers. 868 packages Java uncoloured Green Teas were all withdrawn.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's annual Circular says: There is no matter for special congratulation in reviewing the trade of the past year; indeed, we apprehend it has proved an unusually trying season to importers, as staple exports to China have also yielded loss, which has been increased by a low rate of exchange on this country. Silk, too, is understood to show even worse results than Tea. Another adverse element in operation the last few months is the agitation caused by the working of the Adulteration Act, retail dealers being fined throughout the country for selling so-called adulterated Teas, though doubtless pure as imported, and in the case of country Greens, with just the "face" or colouring in use since the trade was first opened with China, and which is adopted to suit the eye and fancy of buyers, and not with the view to fraud or deception. Both wholesale and retail dealers have taken action in the matter, and will press on Government for a more clear definition of the meaning of the Act, and for the appointment of inspectors, to certify to the purity of Teas. We confess to misgivings as to the appointment of professional analysts, and already differing opinions have been given on the same Tea, and on the vexed point of "iron filings," some authorities defining it as "magnetic oxide of iron, without a scintilla of iron filings." The most effectual check to the import of low Tea (some Canton-made Capers, Gunpowders, and Tayshan Congous being certainly mixed with Tea dust, and glutinous matter, to make the particles adhere, with perhaps a small admixture of earthy matter) will be found in the present nominal value or almost unsaleability of such rubbish, and in this sense a great good will have been effected by the agitation. So far, however, the effect has been to cause a decline of 50 per cent. in value of low Canton Caper and Gunpowders, and also to greatly prejudice the value of glazed black-leaf Capers, and highly-faced country Greens; though the latter has also been influenced by the absence of export demand for New York and Canada. Demand has continued on good to fine Congous, which have supported a fair to good and unusually steady range of prices, Teas per steamer doing much better than by sailing vessel, the monetary crisis taking place about the time of the latter's arrival. So far the supply of common Black leaf has been light, and as Red leafs under 1s. are generally preferred for Home use, the imports of the latter have sold well. The preference for medium to finest Black leaf over Kaisow Congou is unshaken (the former amalgamating better wfth Indian Tea); there is but a small supply of fine Black leaf in first hands, but a considerable proportion of fine Kaisow is held by merchants. The unusual exhaustion of fine Congous prior to arrival of the new in July, coupled with a smaller export, 25,000,000 lbs. to end June, against 43,000,000 lbs. in 1872, gave extra scope for profit, and though these favouring circumstances were aided by the reported loss of the Drummond Castle and Singapore, with 4,500,000 lbs. of finest quality, but small profits were made even on early imports; it was the old story over again—too high cost in China, where buyers for the Russian market can give many pence in advance of what the trade in this country are disposed to pay. The Canal route is rapidly absorbing the trade, two-thirds of the supply being now received by this channel; and, as Teas arrive in much better condition and at no greater cost than formerly by sailing vessel, the latter is likely to be wholly supplanted erelong. The quality of Black-leaf, season 1873-74, shows improvement on the imports of the two previous years. Fine and finest grades in limited supply, the loss of two steamers, with some of the finest Teas of the season, causing an appreciable deficiency, and also telling on exports, as many of these Teas were intended for the Russian market, failing sale in London. Red-leafs, if anything, preferable to 1872 imports. Deliveries show the usual satisfactory increase for Home Consumption, but Exports an important falling off, due to an increased trade between China and Russia; as irrespective of direct shipments to Odessa, Teas are now transhipped thence from Port Said (Russia is understood to take about 40,000,000 lbs. each year, of which two-thirds are received by sea, and the remaining third by overland route). The overstocked and depressed state of the New York market for all but finest Greens has also assisted in curtailing Exports, and it is only within the last two months that business has been practicable. Our stock of suitable Teas is, however, so light that further buying is likely to be limited. There has been some talk the last month of the United States Government reimposing the duty on Tea and Coffee, to meet a failing Revenue.

Messrs. Arthur Capel and Co.'s Circular says:—We have to notice some considerable variations in the statistics of the past as compared with the previous year. Imports show a large decrease, but last year they were unduly swelled by the earlier arrivals of new tea per Suez Canal, and they are now brought more in accordance with the annual Exports from China and India. The deliveries for home consumption show an increase of nearly 4,000,000 lbs., but those for export a decrease of about 5,500,000 lbs., the latter chiefly owing to larger direct exports to the Continent, and a falling off in the demand for the United States, whilst British North America, owing to the low range of prices in the United States, has drawn considerable supplies from that quarter. The stock shows a moderate reduction, and the quantity afloat a considerable one; thus the position of the market as to relative supply and demand is more favourable than for many years, as before New Season's Teas arrive our stock is likely to reach a very moderate total. The result of the season's operations to importers has been again unsatisfactory, though to a less extent than the previous year; for although the earlier arrivals of Congou on the whole left a fair profit, the later ones again showed heavy losses, especially those which were realised during the fall in November. Canton Scented Teas and Green Teas have, owing to the Adulteration Act, also added materially to their losses, whilst Oolongs, Souchongs, and Flowery Pekoes have been on the unfavourable side. The quality of the Black-leaf Congous of first crop has, on the whole, been fully equal to the previous season, the Oonfa kinds being much better; the second and third crops were, however, inferior. The Foochow Teas were generally superior, being more free from dust, and with better quality. The demand has, however, run more on the black-leaf kinds than the Kaisow, as they mix better with Indian Teas, and are of more certain value. The supply of Canton made Congou has been less, but equal to the demand; the quality much as that of the previous season. Souchongs have been rather poor in quality and deficient in strength, with few exceptions. Oolongs have proved about an average.

Messrs. Percival and Co.'s Circular says:—The year which has just closed has not been remarkable for any great activity in the Tea trade, either as regards the extent of business, or the course of prices, for, with the exception of one or two brief periods of improvement, the tone of the market has been dull, dragging, and unsatisfactory throughout. The chief feature of interest has been the application of the Adulteration Act, which, although no doubt greatly needed for the purpose of checking the importation of unsound and spurious leaf, of which large stocks are already accumulated in the bonded warehouses, estimated by some at 10,000,000 lbs., yet appears in its working evidently to have done an amount of injustice to both importers and the trade that was never contemplated by its framers; and more especially as regards Green Tea, grocers having been fined for selling some of the finest descriptions, simply because they were faced or coloured, whilst it is and has been perfectly understood by all versed in the trade ever since Tea was first imported into this country that Green Tea was artificially coloured, or, in other words, converted from the natural dark or olive colour into the so-called Green Tea. It is therefore greatly to be desired that some steps should at once be taken to set this matter right, and thus avert the serious losses which now threaten all holders of Green Teas. As regards the importation of fancy Teas from Canton, no doubt some supervision is greatly needed, for it is these kinds that afford the greatest scope for adulteration and the substitution of spurious leaves. On the whole the season 1873 and 1874 may be said to have proved more favourable to importers than its predecessor, for notwithstanding the unexpected high prices which were paid in China at the opening of the markets, the excellency of the first crops, and the comparative scarcity of fine Tea in this market, combined to secure better rates than might have been looked for. The comparatively small shipments for the first month of the new season, as compared with the first month of the previous season, also tended to support prices for some time, the figures being 22,500,000 lbs., against 43,200,000 lbs.; and it is much to be desired that shipments for the first six months of the season could be arranged more in accordance with the requirements of the trade, for so long as we continue to have two-thirds of the season's supply forced upon us between the middle of July and the end of December, so long will the home trade continue to have the advantage of importers. Importations for the year show a material falling off, as compared with those of last year, viz., 163,411,000 lbs., against 180,840,000 lbs., or a difference of nearly 10 per cent. The stock of Congou in London on Dec. 31 last was 60,400,000 lbs., against 62,170,000 lbs. at the end of the previous year, but as the quantity afloat is now considerably less than what it was at same period in 1872 we may expect to see a great diminution in supplies before the end of April. Deliveries for the year, although showing a satisfactory increase so far as the Home Consumption is concerned, exhibit a falling off of 3,315,000 lbs. on the total, the figures being 164,300,000 lbs., against 167,615,000 lbs. in the previous, the decrease arising entirely from the falling off of in the export trade —home consumption showing an increase of 1½ per cent., and export a decrease of upwards of 12 per cent.

SILK.

The market continues in a very sluggish state, and prices of most descriptions are in favour of buyers. In China Silk purchases have been restricted to the narrowest limits, and a further slight fall in prices has taken place. Canton Silk is without alteration. In Japan Silk the demand has been on a fair scale, and prices show little or no alteration. Deliveries, 1st to 7th inst. inclusive:—China, 995 bales; Canton, 177; Japan, 175; total, 1,347 bales.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co.'s Circular says:—The past year in the Silk trade has been most unsatisfactory, having witnessed, perhaps, a more continuous period of depression, and a more extensive decline in value, then any previous year; failures in the trade have also helped to increase the difficulties of the position, and the fact that Silk fabrics have generally given place, for some time past, to mixed goods, owing to the high prices of the last few years, has had a full share in bringing the market to its present changed position. These combined causes have, however, brought the value of Asiatic Silk down to such a reasonable point that it is difficult not to feel the weight of previous experience, which shows that increased consumption has regularly followed in due time upon a decline from high prices, and this is already beginning to show itself in the improved deliveries of China Silk for the last six months of 1873 over those of the previous year. China Silk, as usual, shows the most important figures, and has, more than any other Asiatic Silk, felt the effect of a falling market; the decline during the past year has been from 25 to 30 per cent., and the New Year begins with a lower quotation for Tsatlees than on any other occasion since 1858, and with stocks of 28,223 bales, against 26,679 on 1st January, 1873, while deliveries during the past year were 34,371, against 30,287 in 1872. The position of China Silk at the present time is certainly sounder and better than twelve months ago; and if fashion, which already begins to show some signs of change, should only again resort to Silk fabrics, instead of Silk mixtures, improved business may very fairly be looked for. Canton Silk has fully shared with Shanghai Silk in the general decline, and at times has been even more depressed; the abundance of cheap Tsatlees has of late considerably interfered with Canton Tsatlees, and they have in consequence been very dull and difficult to move; but prices are now so reasonable for all classes of Canton Silk that its present position would seem safe. The falling off in the export of Silk from Canton during the present season is very striking, and our figures generally show great changes; the imports in 1873 having been 6,523, against 12,494 in 1872; the deliveries 8,300, against 11,341, and present stock 8,074, against 9,931 on 1st January, 1873. Good and fine Canton Silk has been comparatively scarce all the year, and there is very little now in stock. Japan Silk of fine and good qualities of Mybash have commanded fair attention during the year, but have, of course, felt the depression of the general market, and like other Asiatic Silks, have declined in value considerably, but stocks are lighter than at this time last year, being 6,787 bales, against 7,626 on 1st January, 1873; and the prospect for good and fine Mybash is favourable.

COFFEE.

Increased animation has prevailed in the market, and, with a very light stock and other favourable statistics, extensive speculative purchases have been made, accelerating the previous upward movement, an almost daily advance having taken place. Ceylon has maintained the leading position, large sales being effected in plantation during the holidays in second hands, commencing at 125s. for middling and rising to 128s.; at the public sales a brisk competition has prevailed, and a further rapid advance has been established, closing 8s. higher than on the 24th ultimo. A few parcels of the new crop, per steamer Fenella, of good colour, sold readily at the extreme relative value, middling selling at 131s. to 132s., whilst bold brought only 1s. more. Native has advanced to 112s. Large speculative operations have been effected for arrival in 73-74 crops, commencing at 118s., and closing at 123s. The closing prices are, plantation triage 110s. to 123s., small 126s. to 128s. 6d., low middling grey 128s. to 128s. 6d., low middling coloury 129s. to 130s., middling coloury old and new crop 130s. 6d. to 132s., good middling to good bold coloury 132s. 6d. to 133s., pea-berry 128s. to 131s., black garblings 57s. 6d. to 58s., chips 72s. 6d. to 73s., Native good ordinary 111s. to 112s. The only sale of other East India has been 500 bags Singapore, good greenish Pari Pari at 112s. to 112s. 6d.

SUGAR.

Since the opening of the market after the holidays a good inquiry for desirable refining qualities has prevailed, and comparatively large sales have been effected, sellers gaining a slight advantage in price, whilst common brown kinds have been slow of sale and prices are barely sustained. As regards East Indian kinds Penang is in very limited inquiry. Business in Manila is suspended, and the only sale reported is of two floating cargoes of fine Java at steady rates, viz., the Evelyn Wood, 535 tons, good No. 15, at 28s. 6d.; the Ida, 1,920 baskets, No. 14½ at 28s. 4½d.

CAMPHOR has been in strong speculative demand. Privately about 800 cases China have been sold at rising prices, commencing at 77s. and closing at 90s. per cwt.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The demand has been less active, and the tone of the market is rather easier; fine Cochin is worth £39 to £40, and Ceylon £35 10s. to £36 on the spot, whilst a fair quantity has changed hands at £36 10s. for April-May, and 50 tons April-May-June delivery at £37 per ton.

CHINA PRESERVES.—In public sale 198 cases China Ginger Chyloong brand were withdrawn, 50 casks do. Kwangchental sold at 6¼d. to 6½d. per lb. in bond; 420 tins dry were withdrawn.

On the spot about 900 bales of block have been sold at 24s. to 24s. 1½d. ex ship and warehouse. For arrival 150 tons October sailing have been sold at 24s. 3d. ex ship. HEMP.—There has been more disposition to sell, and prices of Manila have declined fully 20s. per ton, about 1,500 bales having been sold privately, chiefly barely fair current at £40 10s. Of 690 bales in public sale, 190 bales sold, fine brown at £37, mixed quality barely fair at £38 10s. to £39, the remainder fair being bought in at £40 per ton.

HIDES.—At the public sales held Thursday Singapore, Penang, &c., Ox and Cow also sold well, but without any improvement on heavy weights. Buffalo Hides were in less demand, and former rates were not obtainable. Of 6,451 Singapore and Penang Ox and Cow 4,808 sold, fair to good, 1st heavy, average 39½ lb. 6¾d.; middling, 1st heavy, average 24 to 35 lb. 5d. to 5½d.; light and small, average 4¾ to 16¾ lb. 5½d. to 7d.; seconds 4⅝d. to 5d., thirds 4d.

INDIA-RUBBER.—The market is steady, and Borneo has advanced to 1s. 6d. to 1s. 7d. per lb.

JAPAN WAX.—No business has been done.

MUSK.—At the sales Thursday of 24 packages Tonquin offered 22 packages sold, good shaped pods rather damp 39s. to 40s. 6d., 2nd pile 20s. to 23s. 6d., wet pickings 20s.; of 42 caddies Yunan 1 caddy good sold at 37s., and 15 caddies 2nd pile rough and bally at 19s.; of 21 tins grain 1 tin dark and damp sold at 52s., the remainder bought in at 42s. 6d. to 50s., and two bottles at 32s. to 34s. per oz.

PEPPER.—Black: The market has been dull, with only small sales at declining prices, closing ¼d. lower, at which more inquiry has appeared; Singapore after declining to 7¼d. has recovered to 7⅜d., Penang remaining at 7d. White: Supplies continue in excess of the demand; Singapore has sold, ordinary brown, 10⅝d. to 10¾d.; barely fair, 10¾d.; fair to good, 10⅞d. to 11⅛d.; a few lots fine bold, 11½d. All offers of Penang have been withdrawn.

RICE.—The market remained in a very dull state in the earlier part of the fortnight, and for soft grain a further decline was accepted afloat for both old and new crop, business being effected in both at 11s., or 2s. and 1s. 6d. respectively below the previous highest point. At this reduction there has since been more inquiry, chiefly on speculative account, and a recovery of 3d. has been established for new crop at the close, several cargoes being sold at 11s. 3d. Hard grain kinds have been neglected. On the spot Dacca has been sold at 10s. 7½d., Ballam at 12s. 6d., low and ordinary white Bengal at 10s. 6d. to 11s. 3d., fine Bassein at 11s. 6d., and the landed cargo of 17,000 bags Rangoon per Penguin at 11s. SPICES.—Cloves: A brisk speculative demand has prevailed, and large sales and resales have been effected at advancing prices, closing at 1d. advance for Penang, small sales being effected at 1s. 10d. Nutmegs have gone off slowly at barely previous rates. Of 47 cases 29 boxes Penang 15 cases 29 boxes sold, bold 57 nuts to the lb. at 4s. 7d., 63's at 4s. 2d., 66's at 3s. 11d. to 4s., 78's mouldy at 3s. 2d., 114 to 104's at 2s. 8d. to 2s. 10d., limed 120 to 90's at 2s. 7d. to 2s. 8d. Mace: The supply at auction has been unusually heavy, and with little disposition to buy except on lower terms nearly the whole was bought in, only 7 cases Penang being sold, fair to bold at 3s. 7d., low middling mouldy at 3s. 1d. to 3s. 2d., low and ordinary dark 2s. 4d. to 2s. 11d.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Beebe's Circular dated Dec. 19 says :—During the interval a decided change for the better has taken place in financial affairs, and a more cheerful feeling prevails in commercial circles generally. The demand for Tea showed little or no improvement until the first week of the present month, when jobbers manifested a disposition to replenish their stocks to some extent, and considerable business was done at prices within the range of last month's quotations. Congress having in the meantime assembled, and the revenues of the Government proving insufficient to meet current demands upon the Treasury, a restoration of the duty upon Tea and Coffee was last week asked for by the Secretary. This at once awakened more or less speculative feeling in reference to all descriptions of our staple, and the market has since been active and advancing. The low rates ruling for cargo grades of Oolong attracted special attention of operators to this class of goods, and they have been freely dealt in at a marked improvement in prices.

Sales reported from first hands since the 18th ult. are estimated at 114,600 half-chests, consisting of 37,500	half-chests	Green.

58,000	„	Oolong.
1,100	„	Congou and Souchong.

Greens.—Have been in more active demand, and a liberal business has been done, mainly in fine and finest grades of New Season's Teas, to hand via Suez Canal and Southampton, and to arrive ex Galley of Lorne and Glenfalloch, at prices showing 2 to 3 cents advance on last month's quotations. A few chops New Pingsueys have found buyers at rates showing a slight improvement. Old Crop Greens and common grades of New are in rather better demand, at some improvement in values. The market closes firm, with an upward tendency. Japans have been more freely taken at prices showing an advance of 2c. to 5c. on late quotations. Sales reported include about half of the cargo ex Mercury, and the supply on offer being somewhat limited, the market closes strong. Oolongs remained entirely quiet until the early part of the present month, when the question of duty came up for discussion. Since then they have been in active request at advancing rates, the market closing 4c. to 6c. above our last quotations, for invoices consisting chiefly of cargo grades of last season's import. Included in the sales reported are 8,500 half-chests New Foochow, and 11,000 half-chests New Amoy goods just at hand ex steamers Galley of Lorne, and Glenfalloch. Formosas, being in limited supply, have found ready buyers on arrival, at full previous rates. Congou and Souchong have been in fair demand ; supplies are quite small at the moment, and prices realised show an improvement of 3c. to 5c. on previous quotations.

SILK.

Mr. O'Donoghue's Circular offers the following remarks :—Since the 1st inst. manufacturers have purchased freely, and large lines, principally of Shanghai descriptions, were taken at prices slightly lower than last quotations. At present a fair business continues on the basis of prices quoted, though the market generally shows a somewhat firmer tone, and owners of finest grades are holding for an advance. In Canton Re-reeled, very little business has been done except for finest descriptions, which are in fair request at quotations. Coarse grades are without demand.

COFFEE.—With the exception of a fair jobbing demand the Coffee market has been quiet, owing doubtless to the recurrence of Christmas. We quote as follows :—Java (mats), 30c. to 34½c. ; Singapore, 27c. to 28c. ; Ceylon Native, 25c. to 27c.

CORDAGE.—Prices are as follows :—Manila Cordage, sizes above 12-thread, 17c. ; do., 6-thread and 9-thread, ½ in. and 5-16 in. diam., 18c. ; do., 12-thread, ½ in. diam., 17½c. ; do., Hay Rope, 17½c. ; do., Cordage, Bolt Rope Yarns, 19c. ; do., 6-thread and 9-thread, 20c. ; Tarred Manila, 16½c. ; Fine Tarred Manila Lath Yarn, 18c.

HEMP.—This market is very dull. Manila is almost unnoticed. The last sale was made at 9½c. gold.

INDIGO.—There has been a great deal of business transacted, and the tone of the market is firm. We notice sale of Manila at from 65c. to 75c. currency.

RICE.—Business is fairly brisk, and prices are firm at following prices :—Carolina, $7.25 to 8 for fair to prime ; Rangoon, $7.25 to 7.50 currency.

SUGAR.—The demand both for Raw and Refined Sugar is good, and holders are very firm.

SPICES.—The tone of the market is firm, some descriptions being especially in demand. Prices are as follows :—Mace, $1.28 to 1.30 ; Nutmegs, $1 to $1.05'; China Cassia, 24½c. to 25c. ; and Batavia, 20c. to 30c.

CASUALTIES.

GRIMSBY, JAN. 5, 6.5 P.M.—The Index (barq.) of Greenock, Johnson, from Sunderland to Singapore, had topgallant forecastle stove by collision on the night of 3rd Jan. with the Dudgeon lightship; damage to the latter not known.

ROTTERDAM, JAN. 3.—The Bali (ship), van Rossem, from Batavia, fouled, yesterday, the Eliza Maria (Ital. barq.), from Sulina, which was lying in Brouwershaven Roads, both vessels driving ashore. Two steamers which proceeded to their assistance were unable to tow them off on the tide, but it was hoped that they would be floated during the night. An anchor was placed on board the Bali, and lighters were alongside both vessels, which were tight, and in a safe position. The Eliza Maria carried away her capstan by the collision; the Bali sustained no damage. A later telegram states that the Bali has been towed off.

JAN. 4.—The Eliza Maria was towed off last night after discharging some cargo into a lighter. The Bali discharged a little cargo before getting off. The former was moored to the Duc d'Alven; the latter was towed to the Roads.

A telegram from Galle, Jan. 3, 9.48 P.M., announces that the Arcturus (str.) heeled over and sank in 8 fms., Dec. 30, and is supposed to have parted amidships; the cargo saved consists principally of tea; the broken chests will be sold, the remainder will be re-shipped.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

THE LIVER, THE STOMACH, AND THEIR AILMENTS.—Alternations of temperature, muggy weather, a troubled mind, sedentary habits, excesses at the table, and a gay, reckless mode of life exert the most deleterious influence over the liver and stomach. When once these organs are fairly out of order, great inroads are quickly made on the general state of the health; the constitution, which loses the aid of two of its noblest organs, soon gives way, and diseases quickly follow, from which, if neglected, the worst consequences will inevitably result. If a course of Holloway's celebrated Pills be persevered in, all will be well again, as they are the finest and noblest correctives of the blood ever known, and effect certain cures of all disorders of the liver and stomach.

It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Our advices from this port by the present mail extend to the Dec. 2nd. The French mail from London Oct. 10 arrived out on the 29th Nov., one day early. The Japan Herald contains the following items of news:—

It is said that Fuoca Kutchi, Acting Minister of War, has resigned, and that three companies of Satsuma troops have, without leave, taken themselves off. Much agitation and dissatisfaction prevail in consequence it is said, of the abandonment of the project of the Korean campaign. Many Satsuma officials have also resigned their employments under the Government. From these indications it would appear that this powerful clan is disaffected towards the Government.

On Nov. 20, Viscount San Januario, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of Portugal to Japan, was presented to the Mikado by the Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs, his Excellency being the first Portuguese Representative that has ever been presented here. An address was delivered by the Viscount, who subsequently presented his letter of credence in a neat silver box, surmounted by the Royal arms of Portugal. When the Minister delivered the letter to his Majesty, the Secretary of Legation, Mr. Mesnier, handed the box to one of the Japanese Ministers. His Majesty replied to the address in a short speech expressive of his desire that the friendship between Portugal and Japan may be long continued. The Minister afterwards presented separately to his Majesty the gentlemen of his staff:—Mr. P. G. Mesnier, Secretary of Legation, Mr. A. C. Moraes da Carvalho, Attache, and Mr. E. Loureiro, Consul for Portugal. (Mr. Loureiro has since been promoted to the rank of Consul General in Japan). In the evening the Japanese Minister for Foreign Affairs entertained the members of the Portuguese Legation at dinner.

A meeting of the Asiatic Society of Japan was held on the 26th November at the Grand Hotel—the Rev. Dr. Brown, V.P., in the chair. The following gentlemen were announced as new members :—Messrs. M. von Brandt, T. Walsh, H. Wilkinson, G. Wauchope, J. Stransome, W. C. Ayrton, and the Rev. J. Summers. On a motion, it was resolved that a committee be appointed to revise the constitution and bye-laws, and report to the next meeting of the Society, the committee to consist of Sir Harry S. Parkes, Messrs. Howell, Syle, Satow, and R. B. Baker. A paper prepared by Mr. T. R. H. M'Clatchie, of H. B. M. Legation, on "The Sword of Japan : its History and Traditions," was then read, in the absence of the writer, by Sir Harry S. Parkes.

The directors of the railway have issued the subjoined statement of passenger and goods traffic for the week ending the 23rd November :—Passengers, 26,625, $7,951.59 ; goods, parcels, &c., $606.36 ; total, $8,557.95 ; average per mile per week, $475.44. Corresponding week, 1872 :—Number of passengers, 25,469 ; amount, $8,652.99. Eighteen miles open.

An amateur dramatic entertainment has been given at the German Club by several of the members. There was a large audience, the theatre being crowded, and the performance was highly successful. The English amateurs have given a performance at the Gaiety, to a very full house.

A foot race has been run between Sergeant Potts and Corporal Pinder, of the Marines. Captain Walsh was the starter, and Dr. Caldwell referee. The distance was 100 yards, for $25 aside. Two false starts were made, when finally the sergeant got away some three yards in advance of his man, winning easily by ten yards. Time, 12 secs.

On the 25th November the Mikado, accompanied by Arisugawa no Mia and Higashi Fushimi no Mia, and attended by the Minister for War and several others, proceeded to the Kai-gun-sho, for the purpose of inspecting the reserve force of seamen quartered on shore, and to witness their evolutions and manœuvres with boats manned and armed. His Majesty was received at the entrance gate by the officials of the Naval Department, and escorted to the place prepared for him, from which to witness the review. On his arrival a battery of Marine Artillery saluted him with twenty-one guns, and a guard of honour of Marine Infantry presented arms. A division of boats, consisting of two launches and four cutters, were drawn up in line, in the basin recently made at the Kai-gun-sho, and tossed oars to his Majesty as he approached. They then formed column of sub-divisions and prepared to attack the enemy. A brisk fire was kept up and a series of evolutions were performed, acting by signal from the senior officer's boat ; after which they formed into line, and the signal to land was made. The landing was effected with great rapidity and activity. A supposed enemy's fort was stormed and captured, and the men re-embarked. The review then wound up with an exciting boat race, the boats being manned and armed. His Majesty then proceeded to the Naval College, where he partook of luncheon, after which he proceeded to inspect the College. He was received by the cadets, who were drawn up in two lines, and was saluted by them with twenty-one guns from their field battery.

The English Naval Officers, at present lent as Instructors from the British Navy, were presented to his Majesty, who warmly complimented Commander Douglas and the other officers upon the diligence and efficiency which they had displayed in carrying out their duties at the College. His Majesty then minutely inspected all the classes, and the Cadets at their seamanship and gunnery instructions, expressing himself much pleased with the progress they seemed to be making, particularly at gun-drill. The day's proceedings concluded with a review in the large drill ground opposite the Naval College of the Imperial Marine Forces.

The College at present has under instruction 130 cadets, of whom 64 are being educated as lieutenants, 17 for navigating Lieutenants, 36 for engineers, and 13 in ship-building. There is attached to the College a training-ship and small steamer for the instruction of engineers, who also have the use of a factory in the dockyard.

The Japan Gazette has the following :—It appears that at a meeting of the creditors of the estate of Glover and Co., held on the 1st ult., the sum offered by the Gaimusho, or department of Foreign Affairs, was accepted. This would transfer the share of Glover and Co. in the mine, together with all the machinery thereon, to the Japanese for $400,000. A lease of half of the mine was given to Glover and Co. in June, 1868 ; the other half, owned by Hizen, is now held by the Kobusho, or department of Public Works. It is rumoured that the creditors will not realise more than from 30 to 35 per cent. by this sale.

NAGASAKI.

The Nagasaki Gazette mentions a visit by the P.M.S. Oregonian to Kagosima, to land a number of Satsuma soldiers. The passengers were not allowed to go ashore, none but the captain having the privilege, as it is not an open port. The harbour is said to be very spacious and beautiful. Smoke was observed to be issuing from a couple of volcanoes near by. It is rumoured that this important place, which is much larger than Nagasaki, will soon be opened to direct foreign intercourse and commerce between Kagosima and Nagasaki. The Express refers to the frequent discoveries of new rocks, and advocates a re-survey of the Japanese coast, reference being made for information to the fishermen, who have several times been found aware of dangers on which foreign ships have come to grief.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 5th Dec. ; the P. and O. mail from London Oct. 17 arrived out on the 2nd Dec. The following items of news are from the North China Herald :—

As we anticipated, the electors on the French Concession decline to allow their Bund to be spoiled. A memorial has been presented to the Consul-General, asking him to call a meeting at the earliest possible moment, to discuss the question. The document bears 105 signatures, constituting a majority. We are glad to see that the English Municipal Council are also moving in the matter, but hear that some hesitation is felt by the Treaty Consuls about taking collective action. The opinion seems to be entertained that the Council should address the Consul of the party offending. We cannot agree ; it seems to us that a representative body should naturally take action in a matter affecting common interests. However, if the contrary view is held, it remains of course for the Council to act in accordance with the suggestion made. And while attention is being given to these official niceties, the erection of the wharf goes on. It is a pity someone cannot see a way to interfere.

Some valuable reports have been collected by Mr. Barnes, and handed in to the Chamber of Commerce, regarding the condition of the river. While some of the contributors differ on points of detail, all agree that the channel is deteriorating—except Captain Russell, who only notes a less depth on the bar, which, he says, "may or not be permanent."

"A Proclamation by Li, Viceroy of Chihli, &c., for general information. Whereas, under the cognizance of the Throne, at my instance, a Board has been established to invite merchants to run steamers, as an experiment, for the transport of the Grain Tribute, and at the same time for freight and passenger traffic between the ports—the head office being at Shanghai, with branches for the furtherance of these objects at Tientsin, Canton, Hong Kong, Foochow, Hankow, Kiukiang, Chinkiang, Ningpo, Yen-tae, and Newchang. And whereas Chinese merchant craft should properly pay dues at the old established Maritime Custom-houses, but license has been obtained from the superintendents of those custom-houses to allow steamers and sailing vessels of foreign build, on changing to the Chinese flag, for greater convenience and economy to pass their goods through the New Maritime Customs, and pay according to the foreign scale, which system has been communicated to the Tsungli Yamen and carried into effect by the said Board. And whereas Chinese merchants, living as they do at various distances from the ports, may not all be acquainted with the facts.

This Proclamation is issued to let all merchants know that, as to merchandise shipped by the C.M.S.N. Co.—if the shipper carries on business within the Concession, the duties must be paid at the New Maritime Customs, if without the Concession, the duties demanded at every Imperial Barrier and Lekin Station must as heretofore be paid. Any wilful infringement of this, with the intention of evading duties, will subject the goods to confiscation and the trader to rigorous punishment according to law. Let all obey with trembling."

In the case of the Agra Bank v. Olyphant and Co. judgment has been delivered in the U.S. Consular Court in favour of the defendants. Notice of appeal was given on their behalf.

A Kiukiang correspondent writes that neither foreigners nor natives have yet heard or seen anything of the proclamation supposed to have been issued by the Taoutai, at the instance of Mr. Mayers. We may, therefore, reasonably conclude that it has not been issued, or if issued at all, in such a way that it will not become generally known. Proclamations relative to commerce or concerning merchants generally, if intended to have effect, are usually posted at the old Custom-house (Native) and at the Foreign Customs, but nothing of the kind has made its appearance yet. The correspondent continues—

"As regards inward transit traffic in foreign hands, I don't see what local merchants have to complain of, as none have hitherto done any transit business, nor have they attempted it since the visit. Chinese have not ventured to apply for passes covering goods paying by weight to Kiangsi, nor are they likely to until they see that such foreign-owned goods go by Wu-cheng safely. Until some British merchant tries to send inland Straits produce or metals, it is impossible to say whether the visit has done any good. I think had this been tried even prior to the visit the goods would not have been stopped ; but it was never once attempted, or if it was, and the goods were stopped, the merchants were too indifferent to supply Consuls with data to lodge a claim."

A letter has been sent from the Chairman of the Great Northern Telegraph Company at Copenhagen to the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce, which holds out a prospect of measures being taken to prevent the constant interruptions that now occur on the Coast. What these changes are to be is not indicated, but we presume increasing the weight of the cable in exposed parts will be a prominent feature.

A fact worthy of note is that a dredging machine is now at work in the Hwangpoo. It was built by Messrs. Boyd and Co., Pootung, and is destined for use on the Grand Canal, but preparatory to being sent there it is being successfully tried in the neighbourhood of the C. M. S. N. Co.'s Wharf, on the Pootung shore.

We have been chiefly intent on amusements since the last mail left. The first paper hunt of the season came off on the 30th December, and was won by Mr. Dunn; Mr. Oxlade coming in first of the heavies. The same evening the Scottish residents held their annual Saint Andrew's dinner, with all the usual circumstances of speech, song and toddy. The 1st and 2nd of December were devoted to athletic sports, which went off successfully. The weather was fine, sport good, and spectators numerous. The bands of the Iron Duke and Hartford each contributed a quota towards the proceedings. The committee are to be congratulated on having arranged a successful meeting. In the evening M. Remusat gave a concert in the Masonic-hall, with the aid of several amateur musicians.

The prizes won at the late Volunteer Rifle Meeting were presented by Admiral Shadwell on Dec. 1st. There was a fair muster of Volunteers at the parade ordered for the occasion; and a number of ladies shed the light of their countenance on the proceedings. The presentation took place on the cricket ground during an interval between the sports.

It will be remembered that in October last a murder was committed in the Settlement, the victim being a Mrs. Amelia Harris, a native of the Cape de Verde Islands, and the wife of John Harris, a West Indian, employed at the gasworks. The husband and wife lived apart, the former in a house in the Peking-road, and the wife renting a small Chinese house in Tiendong-road, Hongkew, where he occasionally visited her. On the night of Oct. 24th the Chinese residents of the next houses on either side heard a disturbance going on in Mrs. Harris's. It did not seem to attract special notice, but next morning the body of the murdered woman was found lying beneath the staircase. The room in which the murder was committed was quite unfurnished, containing nothing but a large empty bath. The upper apartment, which deceased usually occupied, was well furnished, and it did not appear to have been at all disarranged. On the table was found some crochet work and a needle, and the bed was undisturbed. The husband of the deceased was apprehended on suspicion, and on Nov. 28th he was tried in the Supreme Court before Sir E. Hornby for wilful murder. The evidence against him was, however, purely circumstantial, and the jury under the direction of the judge returned a verdict of "not guilty."

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 11th Dec.; the French mail from London Oct. 24 arrived out on Dec. 6, and the following P. and O. mail of Oct. 31 was expected to arrive on the day this mail left. The China Mail supplies the following items of intelligence:—

We regret to record the death of Captain Toppin, late of the s.s. Douglas, and one of the oldest of the new generation of commanders on this coast. He died at Amoy a day or two since, after suffering for some time from disease of the lungs.

The premises, plant, stock, &c., of the Hong Kong Distillery Company were put up to public auction, and were eventually bought in by Mr. G. B. Falconer, on behalf of the mortgagee, for the sum of $51,500.

We understand that the sale of Mr. Pirkis's porcelain went off remarkably well. There was a very large attendance of the leading residents, and some of the pieces went at high prices. A pair of "pilgrim bottles" went for $20, a centre vase fetched over $60, and a small bottle, blue and white, about 9 inches high, obtained $12. Some of the plates fetched $8, and other prices were in proportion.

Saturday's Gazette invites tenders for farming the stone quarries for 1874, contains a notification of a newly-discovered danger at the entrance of the Straits of Bab-el-mandeb, notes the conditions of applications for passage brokers' licenses, and states that the rates for the ensuing year will be as follows:—Police, 7¾ per cent.; Fire Brigade, ¾ per cent.; Lighting, 1½ per cent.; and Water, 2 per cent., making a total of 12 per cent. on the house property in the colony.

A godown, converted into a theatre, has been opened in Amoy, and a successful opening performance of the Area Belle and Turn Him Out has been presented.

We note the arrival by the P. M. S. S. Colorado of Rear-Admiral Parrott, the new U. S. Naval Commander-in-Chief, and of Viscount Januario, Governor of Macao, and suite.

In the case of the Agra Bank v. Olyphant and Co., which arose out of the frauds of Mr. Stoddard in connection with the Union Steam Wharf, judgment has been given in favour of the defendant. The judgment is based upon the principle set forth in "Storey on Agency" that a master of a ship, or other agent, has no power to bind by a receipt for goods as delivered, which, in fact, never were delivered, and the fact that it was not shown in the case that any question as to the conclusive nature of Stoddard's representation was ever raised to or before the defendants held out Stoddard to the world in any other way, so far as his power to sign for goods was concerned, that the shipowner holds out the shipmaster, or the ordinary wharfinger, his clerk.

We regret to note the death of Mr. E. J. Sage, which occurred on the 1st Dec. He was Acting Consul for the United States at this port for a portion of the year 1865, a position which he filled with dignity and ability. He was an old resident of China, having resided in the East for more than twenty years. He was universally respected for his courteous and dignified deportment, for his integrity and manly bearing in all the relations of life. By prudence and sagacity he had amassed a handsome fortune. The Flags of the American and Russian Consulates, of the American shipping in port, and of the Canton and Macao Steamboat Company, of which he was a director, were at half-mast during the day.

The s.s. United Service arrived from Hainan. It would therefore seem that the interest at one time felt in the possible opening of a port in that island has not altogether died out, as her Chinese consignees are not likely to have let her call there unless some business was to be done.

MANILA.

We have received the following items by the present mail:—The subscriptions collected at Manila for the relief of the sufferers from the hurricanes in October last amounted to $3,519, so far as was known at that date; the number of vessels lost amount to fourteen, and those damaged to seventeen, all of which, judging from their names, are Spanish. There are many other vessels, including a steamer, the Pasig. The Manila Jockey Club are making preparations for the races there, which are to come off at the end of February or the beginning of March next, and are to last three days. The Manila Comercio states that there is great animation amongst the members of the Jockey Club and racing amateurs there, and that the spring races of 1874 will be the most animated ones that have come off yet.

An extraordinary lottery drawing will take place at Manila, for which, says the local Diario, 15,000 tickets at $20 each, and divided into tenths, have been distributed. The largest prize will be for $50,000, and the next largest for $25,000. The same journal says that the second largest prize obtainable during the November drawing fell to an artillery lieutenant serving in the Philippines. Up to the 23rd November 1,200 tickets for the December drawing had been forwarded to China.

An Italian opera company is successfully performing at Manila.

Slight shocks of earthquake were felt on the 14th and 15th, accompanied by subterraneous rumblings.

The official reports from the provinces are of but little interest to the general reader. The ravages of small-pox, outbreaks of fevers, and damage caused by rain, flood, and storm, are duly chronicled. Remarkable offences and casualties are drily mentioned, with circumstance, name, date, and place, circumstantially given, but seldom with full particulars, as may be seen from the following extracts:—

Isabela, Oct. 31.—The Under Governor of Cabagan reports, under date the 30th inst., that an alligator has devoured a woman in the Cagayan river.

Isabela, Nov. 7.—The Under Governor of Hagan reports, under date the 29th ultimo, that at about one P.M. eleven buffaloes, male and female, have been killed by a thunderbolt, no accidents to persons having happened.

Zambales, Oct. 31.—The Under Governor of Alaminos reports to his superiors, under date the 26th instant, that one Nicholas de Castro, when playing at games of chance at Polit in that district, killed a lame man with whom he was gambling; the magistrate of the province is making inquiries into the matter.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this mail extend to the 18th Dec.; the P. and O. mail from London Nov. 14 arrived out on the 16th Dec. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

The topic of principal public interest in this part of the world just now is the war with Atchin. We are unable, however, to give any information regarding it, the only news that has reached here being that the Dutch forces landed on the 9th Dec., after but slight resistance, and had established themselves on shore. The point selected for landing was, we understand, where they were least expected, and consequently the Atchinese were, so far, taken by surprise. News of further operations of the opposing armies is anxiously expected; but as no British man-of-war accompanies the expedition, the public are dependent entirely upon Dutch official sources for information, and can, therefore, learn only what it suits the invaders to make public. The reports of the ravages of cholera among the expeditionary force were much overdrawn, as only seventy-seven cases occurred in the entire force, from the time of leaving Batavia until reaching Atchin.

The case of the Glenlyon, reported by last P. and O. mail, has raised the question of the propriety of allowing passengers to be carried on deck at all. The Court of Inquiry into the matter at Hong Kong drew attention to the deck-passenger question in a mild way, but it has been taken up here in earnest, and we understand the result will be the passing of a local Ordinance prohibiting the passenger traffic altogether in vessels not having available accommodation below in case of bad weather. This is not only desirable, but is rendered absolutely necessary for the safety of the passengers, if not of ship and cargo, on many of the vessels now carrying Chinese deck passengers; and now that, instead of the clumsy, slow-sailing junks that a few years ago did the greater part of the Chinese passenger trade, and the quicker sailing but scarcely less comfortable European sailing ships that superseded them, the coolies now go by steamers running almost daily, some of which are fitted especially for the traffic—there is little fear that such an Ordinance will seriously affect the labour supply, while it will be sure to benefit the coolies by providing them with a safer and more comfortable means of transit.

The cattle murrain, which appears to be a mild form of the foot and mouth disease, still prevails here, and in consequence all the carts used in the town are drawn by coolies—even to the heavy water-carts—and beef and milk are almost unobtainable, and even when procurable are looked upon with great suspicion. Owing to this there has been an unusual demand for mutton and poultry—dealers in which are reaping a harvest—and coolie labour is at a high premium. It is considered by no means extravagant just now for a Singapore street coolie—at no time over modest—to demand fifty or sixty cents for a couple of hours' work. Fortunately for the public, this state of things is not likely to last long; the cattle disease, though it has for the time disabled all the bullocks, has not proved very fatal in its effects, and the majority of them are said to be recovering from it.

The Chinese community have during the past year been remarkably quiet, probably having discovered that they would not enjoy immunity as formerly from the consequences of riots. The Teo Chew, Macao, and Hylam tribes have held their annual religious procession, which this year was a very long and showy one, and a great success. The Hokien tribe hold their triennial procession on the 22nd December, and this, from all accounts, will be a very grand affair, and well worth seeing.

There has been no meeting of the Legislative Council since the arrival in the colony of Sir Andrew Clarke, and, as a private telegram announces that Earl Kimberley has accepted the resignation of the unofficial members, some curiosity is felt as to what will be the result, there being little probability that their places will be readily filled. The estimates for the ensuing year have not yet been passed, but we presume no great harm will result in this instance should they be allowed to lie over a little longer, and we do not imagine the Council will be called together at this late day, at least for business.

Our Java advices report the destruction by fire of another coal ship, the Nekalennia, bound to Java. The frequent recurrence of such disasters in the Indian Ocean, which have caused, within the last few months, the total destruction of four or five ships, proves that all the researches of science have as yet failed to satisfactorily account for the causes of these horrors, or to afford the means of prevention. Shipmasters, and many others who have had long experience in the coal carrying trade, entertain serious doubts as to the utility of ventilators, at one time deemed so essential to coal ships, it being said that, by supplying air to the smouldering cargo, they assist in the very destruction they are designed to prevent. It is urgent, in the interests of humanity, that some means should be devised to prevent these disasters, and the exposure to the double perils of fire and flood of all on board of coal ships, especially on long voyages.

Numerous addresses have been presented to his Majesty the King of Siam on the occasion of his coronation. The most interesting are the two sent by Sir Andrew Clarke and the Singapore Chamber of Commerce, and his Majesty's replies thereto. The addresses are couched in most appropriate language, and the terms of the King's replies show that the important and growing trade between this colony and Siam is duly appreciated, and that every care will be taken to foster and encourage it.

There is at last a prospect that the Chindrass Gold Mine will shortly be in a position to prove its capabilities beyond the possibility of further doubt. The quartz crushing machine, so long and anxiously awaited by the shareholders, has at last arrived in Singapore from Australia, and will, without doubt, be shipped off to Malacca and set up at the mine as soon as practicable.

Singapore, after all its excitement about the proposed abolition of the municipality, did not manifest much interest in the late election of a municipal commissioner. Mr. Tan Seng Poh, the retiring member of the board, was elected for the ensuing three years, though the number of votes polled was very small. Malacca was not so fortunate, as out of one hundred and twenty-six qualified voters only thirteen votes were polled, two candidates getting three votes each, three others two votes each, and the sixth one vote; the election was, therefore, a failure.

Batavia papers of the 27th Nov. state that cholera at that date was abating at that city, but was spreading at Tangerang, and had broken out in Bantam and the Preanger. The disease was on the increase at Samarang, and was then still prevailing in the Lampongs. It had been officially announced that out of 1,288 persons attacked by cholera at Palembang 567 died. The reported cases of cholora in Batavia on the 26th Nov., of all classes, under treatment, amounted to twenty-nine, six of whom recovered and eight died, leaving fifteen cases uncertain. This does not include cases at Meester Cornelis, Buitenzorg or Tangerang, at which places it is more prevalent than at Batavia itself.

The Ichang, the third of the steamers built at home for the China Navigation Company and brought out via Suez Canal, arrived at Tanjong Pagar Wharf on Dec. 7th, having left London on Oct. 18th. She is commanded by Captain Pexton, pretty well known here as former master of the Cleator, who also brought out the Pekin, the first of the steamers. We understand the Ichang may possibly have to remain here some time, as it is considered hazardous for a vessel of her build to attempt the voyage of the China sea against a strong head monsoon.

The contractor for the erection of the North Sands light-house is about to make another essay to carry out the work. The barque Elizabeth has been engaged by Government for the use of the contractor's engineer and workmen, and after taking the iron on board at the naval coal depot on Pulo Brani, left for Malacca, being towed down by the Colonial steamer Pluto. It is earnestly to be hoped that the present attempt will prove successful, if the erection of a light-house there be at all practicable—which many nautical men seriously doubt.

H.M.S. Midge, Captain Grant, has arrived from Penang, where she has been busy for some time past in endeavouring to put a stop to the piracies which have of late made the waters in that neighbourhood so unsafe for native craft. She will very probably be replaced for a time at Penang by H.M.S. Thalia.

The British steamer Cheops, Captain Jarman, from London 16th October, via Suez Canal, has arrived with reinforcements for the regiments stationed here and in China.

The Portuguese corvette Duc de Palmella, Captain Da Silva, anchored in the roads, and saluted the British flag, the salute being returned from Fort Canning. The Duc de Palmella comes from Macao, and is on her way home via Suez Canal.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

CHEFOO.—Messrs. Wilson, Cornabé, and Co.'s Circular, dated Dec. 1st, says:—During the month under review we have had an active demand for 8¼ lb. Grey Shirtings, and a large business has been transacted at Tls. 1.94 per piece. As we close, however, the enquiry seems somewhat weaker. Almost nothing has been done in Drills, T-Cloths, or Fancy Cottons. It Woollens we have no change to record. Metals: For Nail Rod Iron we have had a good enquiry; other kinds of Iron have not been so much wanted. For Lead the demand has been trifling, and transactions show no improvement on last rates.

HANKOW.—Only a moderate business had been done. An improved demand for 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings, which existed during the earlier part of the fortnight, had of late subsided, and with the exception of Jeans there was no improvement in other kinds of goods. Grey Shirtings: 8¼ lbs. were fairly active for some days after departure of last mail, t but latterly there had been less doing. Prices at the close slightly higher, and a small sale of Eagles reported as high as Tls. 2.1. Of 10 lbs., some 2,000 pieces had found buyers at an advance of from two to three candareens. 7 lbs. in moderate request at former rates, but in 6 lbs. nothing done. White Shirtings · Firm, with an uward tendency. Jeans: A few taken at an advance of some five candareens, but demand limited. Fancy Cottons: Moderate business in Damasks, Dyed Brocades, Gentian Shirtings, and Gentian Drills. Woollens and Worsteds—Long Ells: Inquiry had not been so good, and rates were unchanged, except for Scarlet, which were five candereens higher. Camlets and Spanish Stripes: Larger business doing at fully previous rates. Figured Orleans: Settlements had fallen off considerably, and total sales for the fortnight only 600 pieces; rates unchanged. Metals: No business reported, and prices nominally as last advised.

SHANGHAI.—Cottons: The business of the fortnight had been of a trifling nature, buyers for the Northern markets having supplied their wants for the season, while demand for the river ports had been unusually light. At the annual meeting of the members of the Chamber of Commerce attention was specially drawn to the injurious influence in the importing trade which excessive sizing and mildew in Plain Cottons was causing. The evil was admitted to be very general, and hopes were expressed that remedies might be adopted, to save the trade from the discredit and loss now attending it. The stock of Grey Shirtings had been reduced to a small compass, but there seemed to be no disposition to speculate, and market rates were weak. White Shirtings were also in very small stock and in few hands; holders looked confidently for a rise in value by Chinese New Year. T-Cloths, Drills, Jeans and Sheetings, continued in the same unsatisfactory state as last reported. Fancy Cottons: For the last steamers bound north there had been a good demand for Gentian Shirtings, Cotton Lastings, and some descriptions of Chintzes, but the market at the close was very quiet. Turkey Red Cambrics had been taken to a fair extent for Japan. Woollens.—Scarlet Long Ells continued to attract the attention of the dealers, but they were slow to respond to the advanced demands of the few holders. Other descriptions of Woollen and Worsted Fabrics met with slender inquiry. Metals.—Nail Rod Iron: There was no actual business to report, and the position of importers and dealers, in the absence of transactions, remained unaltered. Lead: A further advance had occurred, the last sale being at Tls. 6.30 per L.B. Holders were firm for still higher rates, which will in all probability be obtained when the natives are compelled to make purchases for the next Tea season. It is well known that there are no stocks in the various Tea districts.

FOOCHOW.—The steamer with the advices from this port had not reached Hong Kong when the present mail left.

HONG KONG.—The greatest dulness had prevailed in this market during the interval, and importers found it almost impossible to dispose of their stocks. The dealers were only buying to satisfy their immediate wants, and these were remarkably small, owing to the depression of trade in the interior. Rice: Under the influence of purchases by foreigners for India and Europe, values had advanced and a general rise of 10 to 15 cents per picul was reported. Imported grain had been bought but sparingly by natives, as the yield from their own crops was said to be ample for their wants.

CANTON.—Lead was again slightly lower, on account of the absence of any demand. There had been no sales during the fortnight, and stocks were estimated at 2,000 piculs common, and 200 piculs W.B. Quotations for common, $9 to 9.10, and W.B. $9.20 to 9.40 Quicksilver was quoted at $170 to 172, but at this price was not wanted.

BANGKOK.—The market for Piece Goods had been fairly active, and prices were steady at about former quotations. Best makes of T-Cloths were in good inquiry, while Yarns, both grey and coloured, were out of favour.

BATAVIA.—The market had presented no new feature of interest. Complete stagnation in nearly every description of Cotton manufactures continued to prevail; dealers had given up offering to buy under the current tariff and in the existing dulness they were not desirous to purchase much for delivery under the reduced duties, though some few transactions had already taken place on this condition. The rainy season had fairly set in and this also tended to interrupt business.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead and Co.'s circular says:—The arrivals with general cargoes are the steamers Sarpedon and Deucalion from Liverpool, and Cheops, Atalanta, and Braemar Castle from London. A moderate business has been done in Piece Goods during the past fortnight. Stocks are light, and latterly importers have become firmer, and are now asking higher prices for some descriptions of Grey Goods. 39 in. Grey Shirtings: Considerable sales of 8¼ lbs. effected at $2.40 to 2.42½, and the market is now firmer, most importers holding for $2.42½ to 2.45; 7 lbs. saleable at $2 to 2.02½ to a small extent; 6 lbs. neglected and prices nominal at $1.80 to 1.82½. 45 inch have met with no inquiry. 32 inch T-Cloths: 7 lbs. dull at $1.65 to 1.70 for ordinary. Mexicans in better request at $1.87½ to 1.90; 6 lbs. in good inquiry at $1.50 and now scarce. Sales of 5 lbs. at $1.25 to 1.27½. Light weights in rather more inquiry; sales of 4 lbs. at $1.02½ to 1.07½. 40's Grey Yarn in small supply, and moderate clearances effected at $120 to 122. 30's scarce but little wanted; 18/24's in more inquiry for small lots. Coloured Yarn: Favourite chops of T. R. Yarn out of stock. Sales of full weight ordinary quality at $144; 10 lbs. bundles wanted. Dark and Medium Green Yarn saleable to a small extent at $82 to 85, and light Green at $81 to 83. Orange continues in moderate request; Imperial Red and Yellow are dull of sale. Woollens: Camlets in small demand at $19 to 20 for assortments. Lastings in occasional inquiry for both Black and Assorted. Long Ells: Scarlet out of stock and both 9 lbs. and 12 lbs. are wanted. Scarlet Bombazetts neglected. Metals: Iron steady and with a better inquiry for some descriptions, prices rather firmer. Lead continues quite nominal in value, there being none here, and no late sales have transpired; recent China advices have been favourable and prices have rather an upward tendency; L.B. is worth about $7 to 7¼.

PENANG.—The market had been very dull both for staples and other goods. Very few transactions had taken place, and quotations generally were unchanged.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

HANKOW.—Arrivals had been small, and the few settlements reported were again by Russian firms. Settlements for the fortnight, 1,946 chests. Shipments on native account 534 chests.

KIUKIANG.—All arrivals had gone to Shanghai on native account. Export from the commencement of the season to Nov. 29th, 1873, 19,765,937; 1872, 19,628,791 lbs.

SHANGHAI.—Black: Only an unimportant business had been transacted. Prices, however, remained much as then quoted. Common and low descriptions continued out of favour; the demand having run on the better qualities on offer. Supplies had been small, and the stock was decreasing:—Settlements for the fortnight, 4,800; re-shipments on owners' account, 100 chests; stock, 16,000 chests. Quotations:—Duty paid; Hohow, common to fair, 9½d. to 1s. ½d.; Oonam and Oanfa, common to fair, 9d. to 1s.: Ningchow, fair to good, 10d. to 1s. 1½d.; Oopack, fair to good, 10½d. to 1s. ¾d. Green: Settlements during the past fortnight had again been on a liberal scale. Finest grades were getting into small compass, and continued to command full rates; but the great bulk of medium Teas had tended downwards, and in such kinds better value had been obtainable. Arrivals had latterly been more moderate, and the stock was considerably reduced. The further receipts of Teenkais and Fychows were expected to be very unimportant, and whatever deficiency may exist in the total supply for the season would mainly consist of Teas from these districts. The following had been about the prices paid:—For Teenkai, Tls. 35 to 59; Moyunes, 32 to 64; Fychows, 23½ to 48; Taipings, 27½ to 28; Pingsueys, [illegible] to 36½ Tls. per picul; total settlements, 48,222 half-chests; stock, 84,2[illegible] half-chests.

AMOY AND [illegible].—Since the 24th November buying of Oolongs had been fairly active, [illegible] half-chests having been taken at rates a shade dearer for common to go[illegible] grades. The market has been entirely cleared for all kinds above [illegible] very desirable quality. A further [illegible] and there was nothing on offer of it is thought would complete the season's [illegible] a few hundred half-chests ceed 152,000 half-chests. Quotations:—[illegible] which would not exto 16 per picul; common, $17 to 17.50; fair, $[illegible] inferior cargo, $14 23: superior and fine, $25 to 30. Arrivals to date 19[illegible]od, $21 to and stock 2,148 half-chests. The British barque John C. [illegible]hests, on the 6th December for New York, and the German barque Obero[illegible] had been chartered for the same destination at £2 12s. 6d. per ton. At Tamsui the season was nearly closed, the few parcels which had come down from the country having been bought as soon as shown, at full rates for Teas possessing any quality. There was still a small quantity of packed teas to arrive, which would complete the season's supply. The British barque Yarra had nearly completed her loading, and was expected to sail in two or three days.

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Report says:—We have again had but a small business during the fortnight. Settlements show a reduction on previous prices, and Teamen are far more willing sellers than they were a month ago, buyers, however, are only supplying themselves for special wants, and evince no desire to operate largely. Canton District Congous: A few hundred boxes have been taken, which clears our stock of anything desirable. Scented Teas: Transactions in Scented Orange Pekoes have been of no importance, although we can quote a reduction of quite Tls. 2 per picul on the few sales made. Fine and finest descriptions are not to be had, and it is said that at present natives cannot remuneratively prepare them for this market. In the absence of desirable quality there is hardly anything doing in Scented Capers. Stock is composed chiefly of glazed description, which is so much out of favour in the London market. Canton Greens: Some business has been passing in Gunpowders for the American and Australian markets. We summarise sales, with prices, as follows:—Canton District Congous, 600 boxes, at Tls. 18 to 22¼; Scented Orange Pekoe, 3,000 boxes, at Tls. 14 to 22; Scented Caper, 600 boxes, at Tls. 18; Canton Greens, Gunpowder, 1,400 boxes at Tls. 15 to 25.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—Important settlements by several continental firms early in the fortnight gave a stimulus to business, causing an advance in values generally at Tls. 5 to 10, prior to the despatch of last mail. Since then, however, the demand had subsided, only small settlements of irregular descriptions, aggregating 800 bales, having been made. Holders continued to show much firmness, and for anything with a known chop were asking still higher rates. Settlements for the past fortnight, Chinas, 3,200 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 44,700 bales; against 1872, 44,800 bales; 1871, 40,000 bales. Comparative unsold stock on this market 4th December, 1873, 5,000 bales; 1872, 4,000 to 4,500 bales; 1871, 4,500 bales.

CANTON.—The fortnight had again been one of inactivity, and there was no change to report in the position of this article. With so small a business doing a decline in prices ought to result; but so far native dealers continued wonderfully firm, and the fact that really good Silk of the different classes was short in stock, both here and in the country, tended to strengthen them in their demands. Stock computed at 1,200 bales Tsatlee, 200 bales Loongkong, 150 bales Cumchuck and Lacklow, 200 bales Kowkong, and 300 bales of inferior sorts.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THE WAR IN SUMATRA.

PENANG, JAN. 10.—Advices received here from an independent reliable source announce that the Dutch troops have captured the Mosque. They have erected twelve large guns and four mortars wherewith they are shelling the Kraton. It is expected that the city will fall shortly. The health of the troops is improving.

PENANG, JAN. 12.—Intelligence received here from Atchin announces that the Dutch troops, before capturing the Mosque, were twice repulsed, with a loss of 240 killed and wounded, including twelve officers. The Atchinese made a most desperate and determined resistance.

THE HAGUE, JAN. 12.—The Government has received an official despatch to-day from General Van Swieten, dated Penang, Jan. 11th, announcing that the Dutch troops have bombarded the Kraton and Missigit, and have taken the latter position by assault. The defence made by the Atchinese was desperate, as they had been excited by absurd reports respecting the intentions of the Dutch. The Dutch losses were seventeen killed and 197 wounded, the greater part slightly. Notwithstanding their losses they gained a great success. The bombardment of the Kraton has only produced an insignificant effect up to the present, as the enemy has good iron-clad defensive works. The Dutch are now approaching this position by sap, and will throw up a breaching battery. Half a brigade of the reserve has been brought from Padang. The health of the troops has improved. In the expedition against Pedier the Dutch only lost nine wounded.

THE HAGUE, JAN. 14.—The Government has received a despatch from Lieutenant-General Van Swieten, dated the 9th inst., in which he says: "Our troops continue strengthening their position at Missigit and constructing batteries."

PENANG, JAN. 16.—According to the latest reports from Atchin the Dutch troops have captured the outer forts of the Kraton, and have cut off the communication between the Atchinese in the Kraton and the interior. The losses sustained by the Dutch in the operations are not yet known.

THE HAGUE, JAN. 17.—The Government has to-day received an official despatch from Penang, dated the 16th inst., announcing that General Van Swieten has taken the important strategical line from the Missigit to Kotapotioct, with a loss of seventeen wounded. All the communications of the Atchinese in the Kraton are now cut off, as the principal gate of the Kraton on the river side is barricaded, and the Dutch command the place from the position of Kotapotioct. The Atchinese display immense energy in their resistance. The Dutch cannot carry on their siege works without frequent engagements. Nevertheless, they are constantly successful, and the early capture of the Kraton is expected, although it will be an undertaking fraught with danger. An emissary, bearing letters to the Sultan, has been assassinated in the Kraton.

PENANG, JAN. 17.—Intelligence received here from Atchin to the 12th inst. announces that the Dutch had commenced bombarding the Kraton, and would storm the place when practicable breaches had been effected. Another native chief had espoused the Atchinese cause, refusing to remain neutral, although the Dutch offered to suspend their blockade of his territory. Two thousand Atchinese had attacked the Dutch head-quarters from the rear, the greater portion of the Dutch troops being absent at the time. The Atchinese were, however, repulsed.

HAMBURG, JAN. 6.

Last year a great deal was said about the impending revision of the Treaty of Commerce and Navigation between Prussia and China, but the negotiations were delayed by the expediency of giving the German Chambers of Commerce an opportunity of expressing their wishes on the subject, and making suggestions with regard to the instructions to be sent out to the Plenipotentiary at Peking. Then came the Audience question, and it was deemed desirable to postpone the negotiations for the new treaty till its settlement. That having now been happily accomplished to the satisfaction of the European Powers, there are no more difficulties in the way; and the Foreign-office at Berlin have been turning their serious attention to the subject with a view to lose no more time, but commence the negotiations as speedily as possible. The instructions for the Plenipotentiary at Peking have been drawn up by the Prince-Chancellor, and would have been sent out by the last mail had not the late illness of the Emperor prevented him from attending to business for some time; but now that his health is improving daily, it is understood that the instructions are to go out either by this or the next mail. All these new treaties with Asiatic countries are of course concluded in the name of the Empire of Germany, and supersede those made by Prussia in 1862 and 1863. Thus the commercial and political regeneration of Germany will be felt and acknowledged by the most distant countries in the world.

The standing committees of the Federal Council for trade, public communications and monetary matters have been deliberating on the next steps to be taken for the further introduction of the new currency, and have come to the conclusion: 1, that it is expedient to furnish the South German States immediately with as large a quantity as possible of the new silver coins of one mark, to enable them to call in the old coins now in circulation; 2, to supply preferentially the South German States and the two Grand Duchies of Mecklenburg with the twenty-pfennig pieces now ready for distribution, reserving, however, what is wanted for the requirements of the kingdom of Saxony and the city of Lubeck; 3, to admit the preferential claims of Lubeck and Mecklenburg in the distribution of the five and ten-pfennig pieces; and 4, to include among the coin to be first put out of circulation the half-florin and six-kreuzer pieces current in South Germany, and also the Mecklenburg schillings.

Amongst the new measures that came into operation on the 1st inst. is the law of the 28th June last year for the registration and nomination of vessels belonging to the German mercantile navy, and entitled to sail under the national flag. Fifty cubic metres of gross tonnage are to be taken in sailing ships to be equal to twenty-two tons of 1,000 kilogrammes each, and in steamers fifteen tons, according to their certificates of measurement and the register. The alteration of the name of a once registered vessel can only be permitted in special cases, and under the most exceptional circumstances. All applications must be made to the Chancellor of the Empire, who will decide if the circumstances justify him in making an exception. Hamburg shipowners may apply to the Department of Trade and Navigation in this city, who will forward the petition to the Chancellor. Every vessel entered in the register must have its name conspicuously painted on each of her bows, and also on her stern, with the port she hails from. They must be painted in Roman letters of a light colour on a dark ground; the height of the letters for vessels under 300 cubic metres is fixed at 5 centimers at the least, 7 centim. for vessels from 300 to 1,000 cub. met., and above 1,000 metres at least 10 centim. The width of the letters must be in proportion, and at least one-fifth of the height. The captains of vessels not complying with these regulations are liable to a fine of 150 reichs marks, and the harbour-master in every German port is bound to give notice of such cases of contravention. Vessels fitted out for whaling and other deep-sea and distant fisheries, as well as tugs, are all included in the above regulations. Steam tugs employed exclusively on the Elbe are, however, exempted from the necessity of being entered in the register, either as having a tonnage of less than 50 cub. met. or as not coming under the denomination of sea-going vessels; but for the sake of a proper control, they must be reported to the harbour-master, who will furnish them with a special number, which must be fastened in a conspicuous part of the deck according to his directions. Contraventions are punishable by a fine of 18 imperial marks.

The capture of two German vessels in the Soo Loo Islands by Spanish gunboats on the charge of breaking a blockade that nobody had ever heard of has not been satisfactorily explained. Whether the Maria Louise and Gazelle were really taken in the act of landing arms and gunpowder, as alleged to have been the case, is not even proved; but the vessels were seized and condemned. If the story has any tangible foundation we shall, no doubt, hear more about it, for Prince Bismark is not the man to pass over quietly such an insult to the national flag. One thing is, however, certain, and that is the proof it affords of the necessity of having a respectable squadron permanently stationed in the Eastern seas, where at the present moment there is not a single ship of war to protect the German interests and vindicate the honour of the flag.

Visitors from the Far East are scarce here at this season of the year, and I only find the following names amongst the arrivals:—Consul Bauermann, from Macassar; Consul Spanier, from Manila; J. Alabor, from Hong Kong; Siegfried, from Shanghai; Wasserklevitz, for Batavia; Deetjen, from Hong Kong; F. Rodewald, from Shanghai; Maak, from Batavia; G. Niederbeger, from Saigon; and F. A. Kotboon, from Java.

Herr Christian Hagen is appointed to be German Vice-Consul at Chefoo.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, JAN. 14.

The result of the election of a member of the Second Chamber at Gonda was a great surprise to the Liberal party. It seemed that there was not the least chance of beating the Conservative party in this ultra-Tory district, but nevertheless the Liberal—or, rather, Radical—candidate, Mr. Van der Loeff, received an equal share of votes with the Protestant orthodox, Dr. A. Kuyper, so that another poll must take place. The now very weak Radical party in the Second Chamber will be enormously strengthened if Mr. v. d. Loeff should be returned. This election is the one political item of news. The First Chamber have met, it is true, but their discussions have not been in the least interesting. The members have already told their grievances in the "section reports," and of course they have nothing to add to them, and, moreover, the favourable news which has been received about the operations of our army in Atchin will stifle opposition in the debate upon the Estimates. The papers publish some curious correspondence between Commander Van Swieten and the Sultan of Atchin, by which the General sought, but in vain, to win the confidence of the Sultan. Great conplaints are made in the papers about the very cruel manner in which our troops carry on their warfare. It is stated that General Van Swieten is himself in favour of humane principles, but nevertheless it seem that some of our officers find pleasure in burning Kampong and in shooting natives.

The newspapers are still freely discussing the "decoration" of the Radja Boerha Noedien. The Handelsblad defends the Government on the plea that the Radja had made the condition that he should receive the Cross of the Military Order if he succeeded in his mission. The leading Opposition paper, however, tells the story that he had to abscond from Batavia because it was proved that the information which he gave the Java Government turned out to be totally false. The public is very anxious to know whether this statement is true. The same paper assures us that the Ministry will recall the Governor-General, Mr. Loudon, and substitute Mr. Van Bosse, whilst Mr. Fransen Van de Putte will take the post of lieutenant-governor. I give these rumours for what they are worth, and it is quite possible that they may be pure inventions.

The First Chamber have finished the general discussion upon the estimates for 1874, and Chapters II. and III. of the Budget have been carried. To-day the debate upon the department of justice was opened. The discussion has been anything but interesting, and contained nothing new except the statement of the Minister of the Financial Department that the actual receipts showed a favourable balance of eight millions over the estimated revenue for 1873.

According to the statistical returns of the Department of Home Affairs the total population of the Netherlands amounted, on the 31st of December, 1872, to 3,674,402.

News of any kind is very scanty, and I have no items of any interest to report. Our financial condition remains unaltered; there is plenty of money ready for investment, but a great lack of confidence on the part of the public.

I regret to record the death of Professor Suringar, G.C.B. He died at Leiden at the age of seventy-one years.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

COFFEE has again advanced to the extent of 1½c., and good ord. has realised 68c., and at the closing of the market cannot be bought under 69c. Some important parcels have changed hands.

SUGAR is somewhat more animated, but prices remain unaltered. There is, however, some higher tendency.

TEA is dull, and there are no transactions to report.

RICE is very quiet, notwithstanding that our papers published the announcement that the English Government wished to buy 900,000 tons for Bengal.

SPICES.—There is a good demand for cloves, and, consequently, prices have gone up from 105c. to 110c. for Amboina No. 2. Small parcels of Nutmegs and Mace have changed hands at unaltered prices.

COTTON has met with little demand, and prices are lower. Great quantities are offered for public sale.

HIDES.—Some small lots found buyers, but the prices have not transpired.

DRUGS.—A considerable lot of Borneo Gum Copal ex Zeenimph from Macassar found buyers.

INDIGO.—The market is dull.

TIN.—The Trading Company advertise that the forthcoming auction will only comprise 20,800 slabs. This had a very good influence, and an enormous business has been done. The price has gone up from f.70 to f.74, and it is now impossible to buy under f.75.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The stock is quite exhausted, and Ceylon is nominally quoted f.21½.

CAMPHOR.—There is a want of stock, and high prices could be obtained.

TEA ADULTERATION.

(THE TIMES.)

An interesting correspondence which was communicated last week by the Home Office to the Vestry of Marylebone shows, that there is another aspect of the matter which cannot be left out of consideration. The Vestry, like many other bodies of the same class, had memorialised the Board of Trade, suggesting the propriety of taking measures for preventing the importation of adulterated food. In reply, the Home Office forwards two reports from the Commissioners of Customs to the Treasury on the subject—the one sent in something more than two years ago, and the other about three weeks since. The tone of these reports is strongly adverse to the assumption of any such responsibility by the Government as had been demanded by the aggrieved retailers. Sir Thomas Fremantle and his colleagues expressed a very strong opinion that the existing staff of the Customs was neither adequate in point of numbers nor competent in point of knowledge to make such an examination of imported Tea and similar articles as would with a certainty detect and exclude spurious products. This cannot be denied; but it is urged on the other hand that the staff may be increased and supplemented by a body of professional analysts; and, if the duty of the Government to guarantee the purity of imported articles be conceded, the expense will not be allowed to stand in the way. A more serious objection is that the necessary interference with the trade consequent on the establishment of any system of inspection in bond would deal a blow at British commerce by diverting from our ports the large quantity of Tea, amounting on the average to more than 30,000,000 lb. per annum, which is intended to be re-exported, and which, if delayed or exposed to the risk of confiscation, would be certainly warehoused by preference in foreign countries. We confess we do not think much of the difficulty of deciding what is and what is not adulterated Tea; a few simple rules could be easily drawn up for the guidance of inspectors or analysts, which would protect "gunpowder," green Teas, or "orange-scented Pekoe" against the penalties which would rightly attach to "Lie Tea." In fact, it appears to us that the commercial argument against inspection is the only one which deserves consideration. The Commissioners of Customs, in their second Report, evidently feel that the extensive powers for the suppression of adulteration now intrusted to the Local Government Board relieve them from a very onerous reponsibility; and, doubtless, if the inspection of imported Teas and similar articles of food should be made compulsory, it will be most effectively conducted by officers trained in the art of analysis, and subject to the rule of Mr. Stansfeld's department. We find little difficulty in agreeing with the Marylebone Vestry in the suggestion that "the Government might frame regulations which would protect the public to a very great extent and prevent in a great measure the delivery from the Customs of adulterated Tea and other produce." Only, when such regulations are being considered, their effect on the import trade must be taken into account. In the meantime we may hint that the retail dealers, however innocent of the offences for which they have been prosecuted and punished, may easily clear their characters by declining to deal with wholesale tea-merchants who will not guarantee the purity of the article they supply. The wholesale merchants have both in China and at home abundant opportunities of ascertaining whether the produce they sell is genuine or not. If they sell adulterated produce, they do so knowingly, or with that crass negligence which the law considers equally culpable with wilful wrong. The public, too, may protect themselves by insisting, wherever it is possible, on a guarantee, and by exacting without flinching the penalties that have been enacted for the repression of this wicked sort of dishonesty.

MR. BABER'S REPORT ON CAMPHOR.

In a report from Acting Vice-Consul Baber on foreign trade at Tamsuy, Formosa, in China, for the year 1872, speaking of camphor, he mentions that the trees which produce this valuable article are not found within the district marked on maps of Formosa as Chinese territory. They occur only within the country of the aborigines, or upon the immediate border. The manufacture of camphor necessitates the destruction of the trees, which are never replanted; as the country becomes denuded the aborigines recede, and the Chinese effect a corresponding encroachment. As a consequence the border country is in a continual state of disturbance, and fearful outrages are committed by both sides on every opportunity. A naval officer, who lately returned from an expedition into the interior, informed the Vice-Consul that on entering the hut of one of the aborigines he was shown six Chinese queues hanging behind the door (the possession of a queue indicating the previous capture of a head), and in another place he passed a party who were feasting in honour of a newly-taken head. On the few occasions when they have been visited by foreigners the aborigines have shown a disposition to be friendly, but with the Chinese it is a veritable "war to the knife." The system which produced this state of things may be judged of by the following incident:—A member of a local foreign hong lately paid a visit to the camphor district near San-koh-ying, and on entering a hut belonging to one of the large dealers found two aborigines confined in the interior. He was informed, in answer to his inquiries, that the captives had been induced to meet a body of camphor-dealers, with the object of coming to an agreement about the purchase of certain trees, and as they had refused to agree to the terms proposed by the Chinese, they had been plied with sam-shu and then seized and bound. If they did not yield they would certainly be killed; but it was expected they would yield. This is a good example of Chinese views on the subject of "opening up a country." It is not generally known that the authority of the native officials is scarcely recognised by the Chinese in these districts. The Emperor's "writ does not run on the border." One of that particularly obnoxious class of officers known as "lekin" collectors lately ventured as far as the town of To-ho-kam, about [illegible] miles from the border, but was immediately put to flight by the people of the place. No Chinese official would ever dream of venturing upon the debatable ground itself. A semblance of jurisdiction is, however, maintained in the border towns by means of the "headman" system. Under these circumstances the production of camphor succeeds itself at about the same annual rate, without much in main[illegible] retrogression.

THE ANTHROPOLOGICAL SOCIETY.

At the last meeting of the Anthropological Society, Prof. Busk, President, in the chair, a paper was read entitled, "Ethnological Data from the Annals of the Elder Han," Part I., translated by Mr. A. Wylie, of Shanghai, with an Introduction by Mr. H. H. Howorth. It was stated that the Imperial Chinese annals of the various dynasties, which are as yet almost untouched, are distinguished by the extreme accuracy of their details, and in them is to be found a minute account of the intercourse of China with its neighbours, reaching back in contemporary annals to at least the second century B.C. The series of Chinese annals begins properly with those of the Han dynasty, which reigned from about 202 B.C. to about 220 A.D. That was the golden prime of Chinese history, when the empire reached its furthest limits, when Buddhism was introduced, and when a great literature flourished. During the dynasty of Cheou, the old Imperial unity had been invaded by the creation of various feudatories, who became almost independent. It was the aim of the immediate predecessors of the Han dynasty to destroy those feudatories, and to restore the unity of the Empire; and to effect that purpose, all the ancient books and histories were ordered to be burnt. The annals in the present communication contain an account of the numerous conquests from the date of the Elder Han, and embrace the history and migrations of a large portion of the peoples of central and eastern Asia.

THE RECALL OF THE JAPANESE STUDENTS.

In a letter addressed to The Times a "Recent Resident in Yedo" replies to a "Japanese Student" upon the subject of the Japanese Government, and their recent orders with reference to the students. This correspondent says that the circumstances may perhaps be explained by the fact that the Japanese Government is desirous of centralising the education of the rising generation in Japan. He goes on to say, "In Yedo there are now several educational institutions under the management of the Japanese Government, and to these are attached a staff of highly paid professors, chiefly young Englishmen, who have been for the most part selected for their proficiency in different branches of the science and learning of the West. It is, therefore, one may imagine, thought hardly worth while to keep up this expensive staff of professors, and at the same time send those whom they are engaged to teach out of the country to receive an education abroad, when it could be as well done at home. This motive has, I suppose, led to the recall of a large number of Japanese students by their Government. It is a pity, as, though the substitution of one system of education for another is plausible, the result will not be the same. The Japanese in his own country is very quick and apt at acquiring a smattering of sciences, and, quite satisfied with this, a few months, in his opinion, sufficing for what requires years of hard labour and study. Abroad, he sees how deficient he is, and strives hard, often with success, to overcome his deficiency. At home he knows his acquirements are far ahead of most of his fellows, sufficient to entitle him to Government employment, and he is satisfied. The Japanese should from experience know the advantage of a European education, as some of the best men they have are those who, under extreme difficulty and discouragement, spent several years in acquiring a knowledge of European government, manners, and science. But Japan is a country in which the experience of ages has suddenly become next to useless, and it is found difficult, in education as in everything else, to acquire new. It is, therefore, constantly trying new things, systems, or persons, hoping to find the right. It may eventually do so; but as long as its institutious remain so unstable, it must not expect to excel."

MURDER OF M. GARNIER.

The XIX e. Siecle announces that one of the most distinguished officers of the French Navy, M. F. Garnier, has been assassinated by the Chinese of Tonquin. He was accompanied by Lieutenant Balmy, who appears to have met with the same fate. This melancholy intelligence was transmitted to the Geographical Society of France by Admiral de la Ronciere Le Noury, who received it by telegraph from Admiral Dupré. In the absence of circumstantial details, Admiral de la Ronciere read a letter dated previously to the sad event, which had been addressed to him by one of his correspondents in Indo-China. From this letter it would appear that M. Garnier was in the month of November last engaged in an expedition in Tonquin, his object being to enforce the Treaties by expelling from the country a Frenchman who had supplied arms to the people of Yunan. M. Garnier had captured a town and made prisoners, who are now on their way to France. It is possible that he fell in a subsequent engagement, but the telegram distinctly states that he was assassinated. On this point full details are expected to arrive on the 18th or 20th inst. M. Garnier was only thirty-five years of age, having been born at St. Etienne on the 25th of July, 1839. Appointed a midshipman in 1860, he was attached in the same year to the staff of Admiral Charner, and in that capacity he made the campaigns of China and Cochin-China. Three years later he was appointed Inspector of Native Affairs, and soon after he published a pamphlet in which he propounded an elaborate scheme for an exploring expedition into the interior of Indo-China, with a view to the opening up of commercial communications between Southern China and the French possessions. M. de Chasseloup, at that time Minister of Marine, nominated a scientific commission to carry out this expedition, the importance of which he fully appreciated. On the 5th of June, 1866, an expedition, under the command of Captain de Lagrée, and comprising among other officers Lieutenant Garnier, left Sai-Gon, went up the river Me-Kong, explored Indo-China, and proceeded as far as Yunan. After the death of his chief, Lieutenant Garnier assumed the command of the expedition, which he brought back to Saigon, along the Blue River. This voyage of exploration, one of the most important which has been accomplished in the present century, occupied two years and a few days. The death of this young and intrepid traveller is an irreparable loss for France and for the whole scientific world.

MARRIAGES OF CHINA RESIDENTS.—Two marriages of interest to our China readers have been celebrated during the last week, and, strange to say, both took place on the same day, at the same church, and with ladies bearing the same name, being, indeed sisters, and both daughters of Colonel Francis Burdett, of Richmond. The bridegrooms are both well-known in China society, the one being Mr. Duncan Davidson, late of Amoy, and formerly of Hong Kong, and the other gentleman being Mr. Houston, recently of the firm of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co., Hong Kong and Canton. The marriages were celebrated with great eclat, the wedding presents were very numerous and costly, and Richmond was hung with flags in honour of the event. Mr. and Mrs. Davidson left to spend the honeymoon in Italy, and Mr. and Mrs. Houston in the North of England. The brides are cousins, we believe, of the Baroness Burdett Coutts, from whom each received a handsome gift.

AT a meeting of the Vestry of St. Marylebone the importation of food, especially tea, was discussed in connexion with a correspondence between that body, the Treasury, the Board of Trade, and the Commissioner of Customs. Copies of reports addressed to the Lords of the Treasury by the Customs Commission upon the subject of the proposed appointment of analysts to examine all produce brought to the Customs were read, after which a vote of thanks to the Secretary of State, by whom the reports were furnished, was passed.

THE VIENNA EXHIBITION BUILDINGS.—The Exhibition buildings at Vienna will not be removed for the present, as it is believed that the expense of demolition would exceed the price likely to be obtained from the sale of the material. The buildings will probably be used for other exhibitions or public entertainments, while the machinery hall, it is said, will be taken over by a large industrial firm.

THE CHOLERA IN JAVA.—The Board of Trade have received, through the Secretary of State for the Colonies, the copy of a despatch from the Governor of the Straits Settlements, stating that, owing to the prevalence of cholera in a malignant form in Batavia, ships arriving from that port were detained subject to quarantine, by an Order of the Governor in Council, dated 7th of Nov. last.

CAPTAIN STEPHEN, of the steamship Cyphrenes, of Dundee, has been washed overboard and drowned during a gale in the Channel. Captain Stephen was the son of Mr. Alexander Stephen, shipbuilder, Dundee, and was only recently married.

THE Right Rev. Bishop P. C. Claughton, D.D., will read a paper on "Buddhism" this evening before the Victoria (Philosophical) Institute, which meets for the occasion at the house of the Society of Arts in John-street, Adelphi.

THE Eastern Telegraph Company (Limited) have announced the opening of their new lines from Otranto, Italy, to Zante, Greece, and from Zante to the Island of Candia.

A TELEGRAM from Constantinople says that the Order of the Osmanlié will be conferred upon the members of the International Tonnage Commission.

Literature.

New Japan, the Land of the Rising Sun; its Annals during the Past Twenty Years (Recording the Remarkable Progress of the Japanese in Western Civilisation). By Samuel Mossman. (With Map.) John Murray.

Under the above title, in thirty very valuable chapters, we have an account of what has passed in Japan from 1853, the year when Commodore Perry cast anchor before Yedo, up to the present time. When we call to mind what that kingdom was some twenty years ago, when we remember that her commerce with Western Powers was then limited to the handful of Hollanders who resided on an artificial islet in the Bay of Nagasaki; whereas, now she has an ironclad navy, a representative Chamber, and a public debt quoted at more than the issue-price on the Stock Exchange in London, we must admit that never, probably, since the world began, has a nation developed so rapidly or for two consecutive decades had so eventful a history to show. The story clearly is full of interest, crowded with episodes, and from the circumstance that we see in it how an ancient and complex feudalism crumbled at the touch of modern civilisation, the historical student and the devotees of progress, science, or trade, all will linger with equal curiosity over its pages. To treat such a subject well required ability, scholarship, and care. We are glad to be able to say of Mr. Mossman that he has proved himself equal to his task.

"The Land of the Rising Sun" is the poetic designation which the Japanese themselves apply to their group of islands (there are 3,850 of them, islets and rocks included). For this reason, as well as because a rising sun is the emblem of the national flag, the term has been selected by Mr. Mossman as the alternative title of his book. In the five opening chapters we have presented to us a very lucid and accurate history of the negotiations which terminated by bringing the Shiogoon into definite treaty relations with the United States, Russia, Great Britain, and France. Then we come upon a few pages where a parallel is drawn between mediæval England and Japan, while her great Daimios were still unsubdued, the origin and hereditary rank of the Shiogoons are discussed, and the real status of the Mikado, as well as the position and power of the feudal nobility before the recent changes, are briefly examined and defined. Resuming his historical narrative in Chapter VII., the author gives us a complete and singularly impartial account of the various outrages, reprisals, and negotiations, which ended, after a great deal of bloodshed and a protracted insurrection, in the overthrow of the power of the Shiogoons, and the centralisation of the supreme control in the person of the Mikado at Yedo. If, along with the present work, we read the account of the usages and customs of Japan, published some three or four years ago by Mr. Dickson, we shall really obtain a knowledge of that country which would leave very little to be desired. Extremely interesting, for example, it is to trace the real causes which excited disgust in the Daimios against the Shiogoon's power, provoking those struggles which only finally closed when the executive administration had passed for ever from the hands of the Shiogoon. The fact is that the latter, and his retainers, between them monopolised the whole of the trade with foreigners, and the other Daimios could get no share. On page 271 we have a résumé of the unfortunate desecration of aboriginal graves by three Englishmen at Hakodadi, and of the punishment which overtook their offence. We have always thought that these men were somewhat too severely dealt with, and we see nothing in Mr. Mossman's version which inclines us to alter our view. What they did they did for scientific objects, and not for any personal gain. It was a most ill-judged proceeding, and most serious in its consequences, but the wrong-doers ought not to have been treated quite so harshly as was actually the case.

The Japanese retainers of a Daimio, when any serious affront is put upon their lord or his family, will band themselves together, to the number perhaps of twenty, sometimes 100—as fratres pirati, solemnly pledged, even at the sacrifice of their own lives, to take vengeance on the offender. They are very determined and very courageous, and this sort of blood-feud once established, the association one by one, or together, as the case may be, will seek to slay their victim. It was under a system of this sort that various desperate onslaughts have been made upon Europeans in Japan, and among the accounts of such enterprises which Mr. Mossman has inserted in his book there are some as thrilling as anything to be met with in romance. Thus, in July, 1861, an attempt was made to massacre the inmates of the British Legation, and on the body of one of the assailants killed on the spot a paper was found declaring the object of the attack, and signed by fourteen names. The contents were as follows :—

"I, though I am a person of low degree, have not patience to stand by and see the Sacred Empire defiled by the foreigner. This time I have determined in my heart to follow out my master's will. Though, being altogether humble myself, I cannot make the might of the country to shine in foreign nations, yet, with a little faith and a bold warrior's power, I wish in my heart, though I am a person of low degree, to bestow upon my country one out of a great many benefits. If this thing from time to time may cause the foreigner to retire, and partly tranquillise both the minds of the Mikado and Shiogoon, I shall take to myself the highest praise. Regardless of my own life, I am determined to set out."

This man's master, who lived far away in Tsu-sima, an outlying island, having been insulted by a Russian naval captain, despatched his myrmidons to take vengeance thus on the British Legation.

We wish that we had greater space at our command to do justice to this entertaining book. It is of necessity more or less a compilation, based on documents which for the most part we all remember fairly well, and describing many events familiar to us already because they are within our own recollection. But to say this is not to disparage Mr. Mossman's useful labours ; useful we may truly call them, for they furnish us in a handy convenient form with all the particulars which merchants and others who are connected with Japan require to keep themselves informed about. It will, too, be most valuable in years to come as a trustworthy contemporary record of how the Japanese passed from despotism to government in a constitutional pattern.

We cannot close this notice without complimenting the author on the clearness of his well-printed text, and also for his good sense in dividing his work into numbered consecutive paragraphs summarised at the opening of every chapter. This plan is in some respects more convenient than an index, but unfortunately it is so rarely adopted that we doubt whether we have seen it since we laid our school-room manuals of history aside.

"What Chinese is it you want to learn, Sir?" was the question asked of Mr. Wade, now H.M. Minister at Peking, and an accomplished sinologue, when more than a quarter of a century ago he presented himself as an aspiring and ambitious student to one of the then revered masters of the language, who, in the pride of his exceptional eminence was by no means averse to mystification of the uninitiated. "There is the language of the ancient classics, and the language of more modern books, and the language of official documents, and the epistolary language, and the spoken language, of which there are numerous dialects ; now, which Chinese is it that you wish to begin with?"*

Overlooking the exaggerated character of the statement, there can be no doubt that this question, as Mr. Wade rightly says in the preface to his laborious, accurate and scholarly compilation, is the first that must be answered by anyone who aspires to learn Chinese. The experience of the past twenty years has demonstrated pretty clearly that for all ordinary practical purposes the most useful style or class of Chinese for the merchant, the Consular officer, or the Custom-house employé, is the dialect known as Kuan-hua, commonly called the mandarin dialect, the colloquial medium of the official and educated classes throughout the length and breadth of the Empire, and the everyday-talk of perhaps four-fifths of the entire Chinese people. It is, therefore, not surprising that while handbooks on local dialects are published at but rare intervals and appeal to limited circles, while philological discourses on the classics appear more frequently in Europe than in the Middle Kingdom, dictionaries, vocabularies, grammars, handbooks, exercises in mandarin dialect are constantly being issued from the local presses in China, until one may say with Byron, when in search of a hero

> Every month and year sends forth a new one
> Till after cloying the gazettes with cant,
> The age discovers this is not the true one.

The unpretending little Handbook recently published at Shanghai by Mr. Herbert A. Giles, of H.B.M.'s Consular Service, merely professes to be a collection (Dictionary is a somewhat ambitious phrase) of colloquial idioms in the mandarin dialect, and does not presume to offer itself as supplying a public want. To students of the official colloquial it is likely to be of some service, though we confess that we are somewhat puzzled to see a new candidate for public favour professing the same aim and occupying the same ground, sed longo intervallo, as Mr. Wade's admirable, idiomatic and amusing "Eighteen Sections." That Mr. Giles's collection contains any valuable or useful idioms not to be found in Mr. Wade's course we think is very doubtful, but as the book is modest, unambitious, neatly printed, and of handy size and shape, we are inclined to welcome it, though we cannot but regard its issue as somewhat supererogatory. Mr. Giles professes to confine his collection of idioms to Kuan-hua, the mandarin dialect, but we fancy that, possibly through inadvertence, possibly through reluctance to exclude phrases which seemed expressive and useful, many idioms have crept in which cannot be classed otherwise than as Peking patois, intelligible only in the northern capital and to northern men. It is ungracious to seek out these phrases and drag them to the light of day, and we will merely content ourselves with pointing as examples to two phrases which occur on the first page of the manual and under the second word employed, i.e., add. The phrase "add it all up together" is translated by "ni yi kung hao yi ko ma 'rh," the latter half of which is as pure a bit of Peking slang as ever came from the lips of a Tartar gutter gamin. So also, in the succeeding sentence, "add it up first," the word "sha" is used in a sense familiar only to those accustomed to the peculiarities of Pekingese. As a collection of colloquialisms, selected with fair judgment, and arranged with creditable care, this little book may be of service to omnivorous students, and to such we recommend it, in the hope that by perusing it they may add to their vocabulary and pick up something new.

The Mishmee Hills ; An Account of a Journey made in an Attempt to Penetrate Thibet from Assam, to Open New Routes for Commerce. By T. T. Cooper, F.R.G.S. (Acting Political Agent at Bhamo). Illustrated. (Henry S. King and Co.)—In the new volume of travels which Mr. Cooper has issued under the above title he furnishes a pleasantly written account of Assam and the Assam tea trade, as well as of the manners and customs of the hill tribes which dwell thereabouts between the British frontier and Thibet. But there is also a good deal of matter to be found in the volume which will be attractive to the European community in China, and, indeed, to everyone who takes an interest in the question of an overland trade-route between British possessions and the western provinces of the Celestial Empire. Thus, the author, in describing the objects of his present journey, reminds us that on a previous occasion, after getting through China, he managed to reach Bathang, some 200 miles from Sudiya, the frontier post of northern Assam. Here he was stopped and turned back, owing partly to the jealousy of the Chinese, and partly to the intolerance of the Lamas ; but not before he had come to the conclusion that the snow-clad mountains were so rugged that his projected trade-route would, under the most favourable circumstances, be impracticable. No long time after this failure Mr. Cooper formed the design of endeavouring to penetrate Thibet via Assam, hoping to evade the espionage of the Chinese, and to prepare the way for an extensive trade between our Indian tea-garden and Thibet. "China," he tells us, "for many centuries has supplied Thibet with six or eight millions pounds of brick tea annually. This article being a necessary of life to the Thibetans, the Chinese Government, who hold the wholesale monopoly of the export tea-trade, have granted the retail monopoly to the Lama priests, who by this means hold the lay population of Thibet at their mercy. Thus the Chinese protect their tea trade, and the Lama priests their religious and political influence over the Thibetans." Elsewhere in the book we find it pointed out that "there is little doubt but that our Assam tea-gardens could supply the whole of Thibet with brick tea. The whole aim in life of the Thibetans seems to be to secure a sufficiency of tea ; and it is no wonder they make them pay for it in yaks, cheap luxury, for the Lamas. . . . "The whole of the brick tea horses, labour, and sbwn in the western part of the province of sent from China has to be carried on men's backs nearly 200 Tze-Chu-miles to Tatsianloo, the first Thibetan frontier town, and thence sixty days' journey on yaks to Bathang, where it is sold at rupees one-and-a-half per pound." Whereas tea from Assam could be laid down anywhere in Thibet at a price which would entirely shut out the Chinese article. Mr. Cooper's project was, therefore, to get, if possible, into Thibet, and by introducing Assam tea there, to break down the monopolies of the Chinese and the Lamas. He struggled hard to succeed, but, as might be expected, he was not allowed to get further than one day's journey from the South frontier of Thibet. At that point he was met by an emissary from the Thibetan authorities, who brought him orders to turn back, "with a dog and a knife as an amicable present if he consented, but if he persevered in advancing it would be at the risk of encountering many such knives and watch-dogs." Sick, crippled, and unbefriended, he was therefore compelled to retrace his steps.

There is one chapter in the narrative, of which an outline has thus been given, which contains the experiences of the writer, by no means inconsiderable, on the opium traffic and the effects of smoking opium. His remarks are of such a length that we can do no more than just touch upon them here, but Mr. Cooper clearly expresses his opinion that "there is some wisdom in a Government taking upon itself the monopoly of an article which is an actual necessary of life to its subjects (the Assamese)." He cannot agree that the indulgence in the drug should be put down with a strong hand; and he says that if this were to be done in China, where one-half (?) the population are opium-smokers, "they would die of inanition, having no stimulants or medicines to supply its place." While he thus urges that it would be impossible suddenly to put a stop to the consumption, he contends that a confirmed opium smoker, if his supply is regular, is little affected by the indulgence unless it be carried to excess. He can bear a much greater amount of fatigue than a man who does not smoke; and while smoking he can talk as rationally as a man who smokes a cigar. This latter assertion he grounds on his own personal experience, for he assures us that he has frequently smoked opium himself. These are views which are somewhat opposed to our generally accepted notions on this subject, and they are not such as we can endorse without a more full discussion than we have space for here. But they are at any rate very interesting, and for that reason we have thought them worthy of reproduction.

There is also another page in Mr. Cooper's narrative to which we must needs refer, as it merits the attention of our laissez-faire Foreign Minister, and his representative at the Court of Peking. When pointing out the policy proper to be pursued towards the hill tribes on our Indian frontiers, Mr. Cooper explains what he found to be the system followed by the Chinese Government for securing peace along their own borders. China with a western boundary of more than 600 miles yet manages to secure in the mountain clans along it complete protection against aggression from the west. This she effects by taking each chieftain into her pay; that is, conditionally on the good behaviour of himself and his men, she confers on him a nominal rank, to which a trifling yearly stipend is attached. The chief is also furnished with an official dress, which he wears in the presence of all Chinese authorities, and he is allowed to visit the Court of Peking once in five years, at his own expense, if he chooses, as a mark of homage to the Emperor. Such visits are, however, properly discouraged by the Chinese officials, though the nominal privilege of being allowed to go to Peking is grateful to the pride of the barbarians, and makes them feel that, although subjects paying tribute, they are still persons of consequence, and allies of a powerful Empire. Mr. Cooper, when he penned the above remarks, perhaps hardly knew their real significance. But those who have watched the so-called "settlement" of the Audience Question may fittingly exclaim to Mr. Wade—

——— mutato nomine dete,
Fabula narratur.

Chapter III. opens with an account of a discussion at a meeting of the Calcutta Chamber of Commerce on the subject of overland trade with Western China, and the inference we draw from it is that there is a jealousy between Bengal and British Burmah, which, each of them, want to secure the prize, and while this antagonism prevails nothing is done to promote the real object in view. We congratulate Mr. Cooper on the efforts which he has made to advance British commerce, and we also gladly welcome the new information with which his well-described expedition has supplied us.

In the January number of Ocean Highways there appears, under the head of "Aboriginal Savages of Formosa," a sketch of the inhabitants of that island, which deserves more than a passing notice. The writer of the paper in question is Mr. W. Campbell, a missionary of the English Presbyterian Church. He describes Po-sia, or Po-li-sa, as a large, beautiful, and well-watered plain lying in the heart of the great mountain range, which, running through the island, divides it into an eastern and western portion. There are two ways by which this place can be reached, but the route used by the writer was the one which is generally chosen. Proceeding directly north from Ka-gi to Toa-sia it was found necessary to take an armed escort, as the territory of the Chay-hoan, or uncivilised aborogines, had to be passed. Upon arrival at the Posia villages the traveller endeavoured to arrive at some estimate of the population, and from the results of enquiries made at twenty-nine villages he thinks that their numbers may be set down at about 6,000. On entering a village a visit was always paid to the school, where the foreigner soon became an object of curiosity, and of (in nearly every case) kindly treatment. Mr. Campbell was enabled, through having a store of quinine, to establish a reputation as a doctor, and he describes a visit paid to a chief, Arek, who, although at a distance, had heard of the fame of the foreign doctor, and sent messengers who were commissioned to bring the stranger with them. On arrival Arek was found to be suffering from fever, and a good dose of quinine, together with some Liebeg's extract of meat, was administered, which had a beneficial effect. The impression conveyed by this visit to Arek's house does not appear to have been a very pleasing one, for on rising early the next morning Mr. Campbell says the first thing that arrested his attention was a string of skulls fastened up against the end of the chief's house, and a similar style of ornamentation seemed to be the prevailing fashion. These skulls were the trophies of victorious clan fights and of raids made on the inhabitants of the western side of the mountain. Speaking of the natives or Chey-hoan the writer says they are in many respects a fine race, but encroachments of the Chinese cause them to feel that their fall is ultimately certain, and although they are truthful, chaste, and honest, yet murder is the most common of their sins. It is the writer's belief that many of the Chey-hoan are also cannibals. In returning from Posia the traveller came by a new way, in order to visit the Chin-hoan, or water savages, who live by the shores of a large fresh-water lake. This lake was found to be four or five miles long and about three broad, and the tribes near there subsist by fishing in its waters. The scenery near Posia is represented as being wild and magnificent.

The last number of the Academy—which now appears, according to previous announcement, in a popularised form, a substantial three-columned journal of some thirty pages—contains a reference to and contradiction of a curious story which has found its way from a Chinese journal into the English newspapers. The story relates to a remarkable, and to say the truth incredible, scene which was said to have taken place at the reception of the European ambassadors by the Emperor of China. Foremost among the twelve envoys, the account states, was the representative of Great Britain :—

> When he had read a few sentences of his credentials, he began to tremble from head to foot, and was incapable of completing the perusal. The Emperor asked, "Is the Prince of your country well?" but he could utter no reply. The Emperor again asked, "You have besought permission to see me time and again. What is it you have to say to me?" But again he was unable to answer. The next proceeding was to hand in the credentials; but in doing this he fell down on the ground time after time, and not a syllable could he articulate. Upon this Prince Khun laughed loud at him before the entire Court, exclaiming, "Chicken-feather!" and gave orders to have him assisted down the steps. He was unable to move of his own accord, and sat down on the floor perspiring and panting for breath.

The correspondent of the Academy observes, with some justice, that "this statement is so absurd as to be hardly worthy of notice," and feels justified from personal intimate knowledge of our envoy, Mr. Wade, "in emphatically contradicting the whole story." Mr. Wade, who, he says, was made Companion of the Bath for his services during the last war, is the last person to be likely to "tremble from head to foot" before the youthful Emperor of China; and if he were not, Prince Kung, or more correctly Kung, is, we are assured, far too well-bred a man to have remarked, "Chicken-feather!" As to Mr. Wade being at a loss for words, "his linguistic attainments are of the highest order, and there can be no doubt that he is a far abler Chinese scholar than the Emperor of China himself."

The January number of Art contains three illustrations of excellence. The first of these, "The New Raphael," is a representation of the Graces, from a picture which was discovered a few years ago in a squalid shop in Drury-lane. The picture is undoubtedly of the RaphaelSchool, and connoisseurs are inclined to attribute the work to the great master himself. In the "Spanish Belles" we have a reproduction of a picture by M. Vuillefroy, while the work of the Belgian artist Verheyden is reproduced in a heliotype entitled "The Flitting."

In Portugal, as well as elsewhere, the study of the Science of Language and of Sanskrit begins to take root. The "Bibliographia Critica," published by F. Adolpho Coelho, which has reached its tenth fasciculus, contains some excellent articles on Comparative Philology; and in the first fasciculus of his "Litteratura da India," Candido de Figueiredo has just published a very successful translation of the "Death of Yajnadatta," an episode of the Ramayana.

Under the title of "Blackstone Economised," Mr. David Mitchell Aird, of the Middle Temple, has given a most valuable compendium of the Laws of England, which as an elementary work is of essential service to law students. Messrs. Longmann, Green and Co. are now publishing a second edition, and we shall refer to it again in our next issue.

TRADE REPORTS FROM JAPAN.

THE commercial reports of Her MAJESTY'S Consuls in Japan for the year 1872-73 give the reverse of a flourishing account of the prospects of trade in that country. From all quarters the same complaint of overstocked import markets and of excessive purchases of native produce is to be heard. The establishment of telegraphic communication with Europe and the opening of the Suez Canal, so far from affording relief to the markets, have materially added to the difficulties of the merchants. For no sooner does an article afford a margin of profit to the importer than the news is flashed along the wires to Manchester or elsewhere, and immediately shipments are made which flood the markets and turn the profit into a loss. The fact is that the population of Japan is comparatively small, and is far from being rich, and the consequence is that legitimate demand for foreign goods is very circumscribed. Small quantities of articles in request in any given district may for the moment fetch prices far in excess of the average market value, but the arrival of a few shiploads of the same will affect the prices to an equal extent the other way. The people do not as yet feel the general want for foreign goods which in time they will acquire, nor are they rich enough to become good customers. No doubt one other cause of this disordered state of the market is to be found in the existence of the native guilds, which exercise a most depressing effect on the foreign trade. These companies are so largely supported by Government, conduct their affairs with such secrecy, and are so well informed as to the condition of the markets in the interior that they are able to regulate to a nicety the supply at the ports of any given article, and they thus possess a complete control over the current prices. Virtually this system is an infringement of our treaty rights, since by thus creating a monopoly of foreign trade in its own hands the Government acts in opposition to the article which declares that Japanese merchants shall be allowed to enter into trading relations with foreigners without any official interference. It should therefore be made the subject of a diplomatic remonstrance. But something also might be done by the foreign merchants themselves. There is no sort of reason why they should not be as well informed as to the state of supply and demand in the interior of the country as are the members of the guilds themselves. The practice of leaving the management of the actual sales and purchases in the hands of the compradores may possibly, in the present state of affairs, be found to answer, but it cannot but be a great mistake to place themselves so unreservedly as they do in the hands of these go-betweens for all information on the subjects of the crops, and of the wants and capabilities of the inland districts. This remark applies to China as well as to Japan. If merchants would only insist on their clerks making themselves acquainted with the language in either country in which they may be trading, they might be sure of getting trustworthy information on matters of vast importance to themselves commercially, and for which they are at present dependent on the accounts furnished by their native employés.

DEATH OF M. GARNIER.

M. GARNIER, whose death is referred to in another column, was a lieutenant de vaisseau in the French navy, and was one of the six members of that expedition which started from Saigon in 1866 to ascend the Mekong, and which emerged, via the Yangtsze-kiang, at Shanghai. When Captain de LAGREE, the head of the party, died on the Chinese borders, GARNIER took the command. He revisited France in 1869, and was employed for the three following years in preparing the official report of the expedition, which appeared in Paris at the beginning of 1873. The department in that publication which it was M. GARNIER'S special province to superintend relates to the geographical researches of the expedition, and to the history, languages, and antiquities of Indo-China. He also kept a meteorological journal, which forms a valuable accessary to his narratives. M. GARNIER, on the conclusion of his literary undertaking, returned once more to Saigon, where, indeed, he seems to have held a Government appointment as "inspecteur des affaires Indigenes;" but before quitting France he promised to renew his investigations, and more particularly to attempt the solution of that most interesting and yet most puzzling of problems, the channels through which the great rivers of South-Eastern Asia flow in the Himalayan ranges, or even Thibet. M. GARNIER had been decorated with medals by the Geographical Societies both in this country and at Antwerp, and his untimely end is indeed much to be deplored. We shall soon obtain full particulars of the disaster; meanwhile we will say no more than this, that the recent treaty which the French imposed upon the Emperor of TONGQUIN, followed up as it was by the arrival soon after of a gunboat with explorers, or rather "exploiterers," on board is quite sufficient to account for a revengeful native hostility which finds its melancholy exponent in an assassin's cowardly cris. We must not, however, leave off without adding that an instance has before now occurred, where a popular and well-known botanist, curator of the Gardens at Saigon, having gone on a trip up-country, was cruelly murdered by the natives. The indignation of his fellow-countrymen was intense, and their grief profound. Fortunately, however, two days afterwards the victim turned up with an unbroken skin, and presented himself unexpectedly to an assembly of his friends who had met to deplore his fate, and concert means for avenging the outrage. We can only hope that the report of M. GARNIER'S death may be found also to rest on one of those on dits which form such wholesome mental stimulants for Frenchmen.

THE new edition of the "Almanach de Gotha (1874)" contains, we observe, among the Commanders Grand Cross of the Order of Francis Joseph, the name of Mr. HART, Director-General of Chinese Customs; and among the Knights of the Iron Crown are enumerated RUDOLF VON SCHLIEK, Austrian Consul at Shanghai, and Chevaliers VON BOWRA and VON HANNEN, Commissioners of Customs. Messrs. DREW, DETRING, and CARTWRIGHT are also included among the members of the Francis Joseph.

WE note the arrival, by last mail, of Mr. BRENAN, of H.M.'s Consular Service, who recently accompanied Mr. W. F. MAYERS (Chinese Secretary of Legation) on his mission to Kiangse to demand redress for the ill-treatment of Mr. BABER, and who more recently still visited the little known Loochow Islands to convey the thanks of the Foreign-office to the authorities for acts of kindness shown to shipwrecked sailors.

THE telegrams on the Atchin war continue to be very contradictory and unsatisfactory. The daily papers have been very reticent on the subject, and simply publish the telegrams, without comment.

MR. J. R. COULTHARD and Mr. L. C. HOPKINS have been appointed student interpreters, China Consular Service; Mr. E. H. FRENCH, student interpreter, Siam.

THE Consulate of Japan has been transferred from Venice to Milan. Mr. Consul NACAYAMA is in charge.

THE Chinese class at King's College, under Professor DOUGLAS, we observe commences on the 27th January.

CONSULAR REPORTS ON THE CHINA TRADE.

The Consular Reports on the trade of Chinkiang, Shanghai, Takow and Taiwan for 1872, which were not included in the Blue-book issued in September, have now been published, and we subjoin a summary :—

CHINKIANG.

The report gives the total value of the trade of the port in foreign vessels (excluding treasure) at £5,021,462, while the imports and exports of treasure amount to £596,081. The total value of the direct trade with Great Britain and British dependencies (excluding treasure) under any flag was £4,905, and the return of trade under British flag, with other Treaty ports, is put down at £1,205,646. The trade in imports has shown on the whole a continuance of that steady increase which the Trade Reports for the last three years have disclosed. The report says :—

The general aspect of the circumstances of the port calls for congratulation. As a consumer of foreign manufactures, Chinkiang still holds the fourth rank among the Treaty ports. It now treads close on the heels of Shanghai in this respect, only falling short by £180,000. The highest consuming port only exceeds it by about £450,000 in value of foreign goods, that is, by about 12 per cent. The marks of progress in material comfort in the surrounding district are very conspicuous. Farmhouses of substantial brick are replacing the mud-plastered reed-hovels at first erected by the cultivators on their return to their ancestral soil. The suburbs of Chinkiang are still spreading, especially in the direction of the British Concession. Land in favourable situations brings £600 an acre, and even £800 has been refused in one instance. The improvement has every prospect of being progressive. A slight lull has taken place in business, owing to the discovery of an abortive attempt to organise a rebellion, and to the consequent measures taken by the local authorities. The personal responsibility of Chinese officers for the peace of their districts is sufficient to account for their nervous precautions after a fright of this kind.

SHANGHAI.

There has been a slight falling off in the total aggregate of foreign goods imported into Shanghai during this year as compared with the previous year, but the imports with Great Britain show an increase, and of the whole import trade of Shanghai this country contributes 93 per cent. A large increase in the value of exports is observable, the total for 1872 being Tls. 66,934,353, against Tls. 58,756,874 in 1871. The export of tea from Shanghai shows an increase over that of the previous year of 37,202 piculs, of which Great Britain contributes 3,744 piculs. The increase in the number and tonnage of vessels is very marked, the figures showing an increase over 1872 of 463 vessels entered and cleared, representing a tonnage of 313,818 tons.

The direct trade between this port and the United Kingdom has, on the whole, considerably increased. Although in numbers, as compared with 1870, that year had the advantage by two ships inwards, the tonnage being nevertheless greater by 40,000 tons ; the number outwards has increased by three ships with a tonnage of 17,000 over that of 1870. Mr. Medhurst remarks :—

The statistical statements of the trade of Shanghai for the year 1872 taken by themselves are suggestive of progress and prosperity. A marked increase over the values of preceding years is observable in every branch of business. Of the two principal products which China sends abroad, tea has been exported to Great Britain in larger quantities than has ever been known, and the shipments of silk have exceeded those of any year since the rebellion ; while in the two years, 1871 and 1872, unprecedentedly large quantities of English manufactured goods have been brought into the country. The elements of a thriving trade seem to be present in full measure. There is, however, unfortunately, another side to the picture which is not shown in the Tables. The extent of business has been in excess of the requirements of consumption ; goods which figure in the statistical Returns remain unsold in undue proportion at the close of the year ; consequently markets are depressed both in the east and the west, and cumulative losses stare merchants in the face. Without any political or financial crisis to derange the course of markets, with money plentiful, with an increasing consumption of goods and produce, and a well ascertained power of production, we, nevertheless, witness heavier aggregate losses to the British merchant than usually falls to his lot, and this is traceable to the one source—over-trading. Although the amount of foreign goods imported into Shanghai is on the increase, the re-exportation of such goods to other ports grows at a more than corresponding rate, so that the amount actually left in Shanghai, or what may be called the local consumption, has this year diminished considerably.

In the case of silk, both the power of production and the capacity of consumption are more open to speculation, China being only one of several silk-growing countries, and the demand for the article depending somewhat on the caprice of Western fashions. Still, even within the limits of what was known in regard to silk, the same unsoundness seems to have characterised the operations in the article as has been remarked in connection with piece goods and tea. The silk season was commenced with the probability, amounting almost to certainty, that the year's supply from Shanghai would exceed 55,000 bales, against 49,000 bales the previous season ; and there was no manner of doubt about the production of Canton sorts for the European markets showing a large increase over that of any previous year. Nor was the European crop expected to be less than formerly. The materially increased quantity was, nevertheless, sent forward from China at a higher average cost than the smaller quantity of 1871.

FORMOSA—TAKOW AND TAIWAN.

The value of the imports is less by 11 or 12 per cent. than for 1871, and the exports show a slight increase, probably due to the presence of an exceptional item, namely, salt, which is the subject of a Government monopoly. The sugar export is expected to show a considerable decrease, resulting from last year's drought.

Mr. Acting Consul Gregory remarks that the year 1872 was not a very prosperous year for this part of Formosa. The country suffered from want of rain. The drought, which had perhaps commenced in 1871, prevailed through 1872, notwithstanding one or more short periods of even heavy rain. Rice was dear.

FORMOSA—TAMSUI.

There is a steady rise exhibited in the imports for the year, the trade in cotton goods having decreased, while that of opium has advanced. In the exports there is a marked increase in the tea and coal accounts, which, it is believed, will continue. The import of opium forms more than four-fifths of the entire import trade, though the Aborigines, who occupy the greater part of the island to the exclusion of the Chinese, have not so far acquired a taste for the drug.

The total value of the imports for the year is set down by Mr. Baber at £274,641, exclusive of treasure, which was imported to the value of £73,928. The foreign imports he values at £262,482, and the native imports at £12,159. The exports in foreign vessels amounted in value to £294,738, and the export of treasure to £8,160. The staple exports, viz., camphor, coal, tea, and timber, all showed a considerable increase upon previous years.

CUSTOMS REPORTS ON THE TRADE OF CHINA.

We have received the Customs Gazette for the quarter ending September, 1873, and from the statistics given by the Commissioners at the various ports we gather the following :—

TIENTSIN.

There is no change worth recording in the tonnage statistics, nor do the import or export figures present any marked alteration. The revenue shows an increase, however, the amount for this quarter being Tls. 112,785, against Tls. 91,821 for the same quarter in 1872.

NEWCHWANG.

There is a slight falling off in the tonnage of vessels entered and cleared as compared with the figures in 1872. In imports there is an increase in Grey Shirtings, English Drills, and Opium, while there is a decrease in Sugar. The exports of Pearl Barley are below that of last year. The revenue is less than that of the corresponding quarter in 1873, the figures being Tls. 66,656 this year, against Tls. 87,813 last year.

CHEFOO.

The tonnage is nearly the same as in 1872. The importation of most descriptions of Cotton Goods shows a decrease, while that of other goods remains much about the same. The export figures show no considerable fluctuation. The revenue is slightly in excess of that of the same period in 1872.

HANKOW.

The tonnage entered and cleared was slightly higher in 1872, as were most of the imports, with the exception of Sugar. In the exports Tea shows a slight falling off. The revenue is lower than that of 1872.

KIUKIANG.

The tonnage figures are about the same. The import of Cotton Goods is rather in excess of last year, and this is the case with Sugar also. In the exports there is no marked alteration. The revenue for 1873 is less than in the same quarter last year.

CHINKIANG.

There is a considerable falling off in the importation of Cotton Goods. This is also observable in nearly all the other descriptions of goods. The export of wheat was in excess of that of 1872. The revenue for this quarter shows a falling off.

SHANGHAI.

The tonnage figures show very little alteration. In Cotton Goods the importation is less this quarter, while there is an increase in Malwa Opium, Sugar, and Straw Hats. Rice has been exported in larger quantities this quarter. The revenue is very slightly lower than in 1872.

NINGPO.

There is a decline in the importation of Cotton Goods, and in the exportation of Tea. The revenue is lower than that of 1872.

FOOCHOW.

The tonnage figures are less than in 1872. The import of Cotton Goods is higher. In the exports there is an increase in Tea. The revenue is considerably in excess of 1872.

TAMSUI (FORMOSA).

In the tonnage of vessels entered and cleared there is a decided increase. This increase is also to be noticed in nearly all descriptions of imports, as well as in the export of Coal. The revenue is higher than that of the corresponding quarter in the three preceding years.

TAKOW (FORMOSA).

The imports generally are higher this quarter than in 1872, but below the standard of the two previous years. The export of Sugar is about the same. The revenue is slightly in excess of the same quarter in the previous year.

AMOY.

In the tonnage of vessels entered and cleared there is a decrease this quarter. There is a falling off in the import of Rice, otherwise the fluctuations are unimportant. The exports are about the same, but the revenue shows a decrease.

SWATOW.

There is a slight decrease in the tonnage figures, and an increase in the import of Cotton Goods. The export of Sugar to Chinese ports is a little in excess of the previous year. The revenue is higher for this quarter.

CANTON.

In the September quarter, 1872, there were 256 vessels, representing a tonnage of 93,957 tons, entered this port, while during the same period in 1873 the number was 226, representing a tonnage of 10,596,463 tons. The imports, as a rule, are higher than the corresponding quarter in 1872; Rice however showing an exception. The exports, except in a few instances, are lower; Straw Hats, Fans, and Canes being especially so. The revenue is not so high, the figures being Tls. 353,895 for 1872, against Tls. 329,932 in 1873.

THE MACAO COOLIE TRADE.

(FROM A SHANGHAI CORRESPONDENT.)

The atrocities connected with this trade as carried on between Macao and Peru with the consent, if not the connivance, of the Portuguese Government, have lately attracted much attention in England. The Macao coolie trade is a disgrace to the age we live in, and its horrors, as revealed by the cases of the Nouvelle Penelope, the Maria Luz, and a dozen others not so well known at home as these two, are something awful. The accounts, too, of the condition of the coolie in Cuba, the Central American Republics, and especially in Peru, are little less so, and I am glad to inform your readers authoritatively that the Chinese Government have been so moved by the reports they have received of the treatment of their subjects in these localities that they have voluntarily moved the Emperor to allow a special Commission to be sent thither to find out the exact truth. The Emperor has given his consent, and the members of the Commission have been already fixed on. The chief will be a member of the Tsungli Yamen, called Chên Lan-pin, and with him will be associated two members of the Imperial Maritime Customs Service, Messrs. MacPherson and Huber, and several Chinese attachés. They are to proceed to Cuba in the first place, and as they have no experience of either the country or its people, the Chinese Government hope that Western nations in treaty relations with China will instruct their representatives in these countries to do everything they can to further the objects of the mission. The good people in England must not, however, show them other honour than is due to their rank, for all the fuss that is made in European countries over a fifth rate mandarin only tends to confirm the really able and high class mandarins here in their ideas of the superiority of China.

(LATER ACCOUNTS OF THE COMMISSION.)

The official selected to be the head of the Chinese mission turns out to be one of the chief clerks on the Board of Punishments. Why the staff of this board should have been drawn upon for an envoy does not appear, except on the very Chinese supposition that a large experience in administering ingenious forms of torture in the vilest gaol in the world tends to develop the philanthropic side of human nature, and to increase one's power of detecting the evidences of cruelty and the marks of cruel treatment in others. It was not to be expected that the Chinese Government would have selected an officer of any rank for a post like this, the duties of which necessitate an abandonment of the society and civilisation of the flowery land, and a sojourn of some duration amongst the outer barbarians, not to speak of those perils by land and water which the Chinese mandarin, more than any other class of living men, abhors; but they need not have gone so far down the official ladder as they have done in choosing the chief of a special mission. On referring to the Civil Service List for this quarter I see that the officer in question, Chên Lan-pin, is put down as a chief clerk of the fifth grade, and as there are only eight grades of mandarins in all, it will be seen that he is a very small man indeed. To make him a little more palatable to our Spanish friends, and to make him of equal rank with the resident Consuls of other countries in Cuba, the Emperor has bestowed on him a brevet rank of the fourth grade, a transparent blue button and a peacock's feather to wear in his hat. With these simple, but tasteful decorations, the Cubans are sure to be delighted, and it is some comfort to think that this time at least a Chinese mission starts in an honest way for a good purpose. They will be neither wolves in sheep's clothing, nor petty Chinese officers masquerading as ambassadors, so every one here wishes the mission success.

Peru has been trying to anticipate this invasion by sending her Ambassador Extraordinary in Japan, Garcia y Garcia, on to China to arrange a Treaty similar to those existing between China and European countries. In the meantime Peruvians are not encouraged in China, for a gentleman from that county supposed to be connected with the embassy, who was on his way to Peking from Tientsin, with a passport issued to him by the French Consul, was stopped en route, told that his honourable countrymen had no right to travel in China, and rather unceremoniously taken back to Tientsin. The Shanghai newspapers had of course high toned paragraphs on the discourtesy shown by the Chinese to a Peruvian official, with a moral appended, which was not only lost on the Chinese Government, but actually on the official himself, for he wrote some days after in a very indignant strain to the leading paper here, complaining that he had been stigmatised as a Peruvian official, whereas he was really a Peruvian gentleman, and threatening the editor in very bad English with unpleasant consequences for minding other people's business instead of his own.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE.)

A few days ago a brief telegram announced that the Portuguese Government had at length yielded to the urgency of all civilised opinion, and to the repeated remonstrances of our Government in particular, by consenting to the suppression of the coolie traffic that has heretofore made Macao its great mart and entrepôt. Few people will understand immediately how great a gain to the cause of humanity this resolution of the authorities at Lisbon represents, or with how much pains and difficulty it has been won. It is necessary, however, to draw attention to the facts in order that the voice of English opinion, and, if necessary, the intervention of our Government, may sustain Portugal in the novel and humane policy on which she has somewhat tardily entered. Such support may be needed; for the abolition of a disguised slave trade like the coolie traffic between Macao and the South American coast involves loss of profit to many individuals who have lived and thrived on the infamous trade. We hear already from Hong Kong that "the measure causes great excitement, as it will have the effect of depriving a large number of Portuguese and Chinese of employment." It is probable that the interests affected by the suppression of the traffic will do their best to procure a repeal of the recently issued decree; and, as we know that the concession was made reluctantly and after prolonged negotiations by the Portuguese Government, it would not be safe to calculate on its maintenance if the matter be permitted to sink into obscurity. The credit of this country is directly as well as indirectly concerned in the abolition of the Macao coolie trade, for all the efforts of the English officials at Hong Kong had not up to a very recent date been successful in preventing vessels being fitted out at that port which were notoriously intended for employment in the "labour traffic" between Macao and the ports of South America. The Foreign-office has been sufficiently urgent with the Portuguese Government for the mitigation of the worst evils of the trade. But we must own we scarcely dared to hope for its entire abolition. It is an increasing lucrative business, and the 800 brokers of Macao will not be content to see it extinguished. Yet the Portuguese Government must be firm in resisting interested clamour. No regulations will make the Macao coolie traffic anything better than a very cruel and hypocritical form of slave trade. It will always be fed so long as it is allowed to exist by kidnapping; its vessels will be crammed with hundreds of wretched Chinese battened down under hatches, desperate in their impotent rage, which sometimes they find a chance of satiating by setting a ship on fire, and burning themselves and their masters together. Nor is such a fate much more miserable, or even less miserable, than that to which they are doomed if they reach their destination in Peru or Cuba. The life of a labourer in the guano fields of the Chincha Islands is a living death from which it is no wonder that hundreds of Chinese seek an escape every year by suicide. The supply of labour for this business will be checked by the stoppage of the coolie shipments from Macao, but the Peruvian Government have only themselves to blame. They might have continued to obtain labourers as abundantly as they pleased if they had not provoked protest against the abominable cruelties they allowed to be perpetrated on the immigrant workmen.

THE ANNAMESE TRIBUTE BEARERS.

(FROM A SHANGHAI CORRESPONDENT.)

Another embassy of a different nature is now appearing on the horizon in the shape of the Annamese tribute bearers, who are reported as having crossed the frontier and passed through the province of Kuang-si on their way to Peking. They appear to be more than usually ragamuffin, and the Governor of Kuang-si, evidently a witty man, tells the story of their reception by him to his august master the Emperor in a quaint amusing way. I cannot do better than translate his own language from the Peking Gazette:—

Your servant, Liu, Governor of Kuang-si, on his knees addresses the Throne. Looking upward he implores the sacred glance on a memorial reverently prepared, reporting the arrival in his province of the Annamese Envoys, and their departure from it for Peking after a few days' sojourn. The Prince of Annam having deputed certain envoys to carry this year's tribute to Peking, your servant, in obedience to your Majesty's instructions, sent civil and military officers to conduct them across the frontier and through the province of Kuang-si to my city Kuei-lin-foo. They reported the mission to consist of three envoys, eight secretaries, and nine attendants, twenty persons in all, and brought them on to Kuei-lin-foo in safety. Your servant ordered them to rest a few days, feasted them, as Chinese law directs, and supplied them with any quantity of provisions during their stay. The mission did not bring a very large stock of clothing with them; in fact, they had not a change for the whole of this long journey to Peking and back; so, according to the old custom on such occasions, your servant got up a subscription list on their behalf, and having made a collection of Court robes, silk and pongee garments, single, lined, wadded, and furred clothes, I gave them a taste of Imperial benevolence by making a present, on the day of the banquet, in their honour, of a bundle (of old clothes) to each member of the mission.

Your servant has now ordered them to be off for Peking with their tribute, and they have started by water, accompanied by the escort I sent to protect them. I have requested all the high authorities of the various provinces through which they will pass to see that they are conducted in safety, so that they may get to Peking by October, and the cherished desires of your Majesty be carried out. Your servant, as in duty bound, reverently presents this memorial, and on it he implores the Sacred Glance. Rescript appended in the vermilion pencil:—"We are informed."

The expression used for "envoys" in the above memorial is identical with that which was applied to the foreign ministers in the audience edict, so there is little doubt that there, as here, it was meant to convey the idea of "tribute bearers," and that the objections made to it at the time by our local sinologues were well founded. Be that as it may, nothing wilder in the way of extravagant fun has ever been placed on the boards of a London theatre than this scene of twenty ragged plenipotentiaries, a benevolent Governor, and a subscription list headed by all the leading old clothes men in the provincial capital of Kuei Linfoo. The Governor must at one time or other of his life have heard about Aunt Trotwood's reception of David Copperfield, and Uncle Dick's triumphant solution of the problem comprised in the words, "Wash him," for it is precisely what he did with the Annamese envoys.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

(THE STANDARD.)

The Dutch find that in their Sumatran war they have a serious affair upon their hands. Although their successes have already been considerable, and the enemy loses ground at each advance of the invader, they are compelled to employ, perhaps, the largest force in men and materials that ever was brought into the field in one of these insular expeditions. After passing up the river of Atchin, and accomplishing two or three desultory enterprises by the way, they found it necessary to disembark a park of artillery before occupying an offensive position opposite the Kraton, a citadel of the capital city. In actual fighting their losses do not appear to have been serious, but the deaths from cholera had been numerous, and although a telegram we publish this morning says that the city is expected to fall shortly, and that the health of the troops is improving, it may be assumed that they have still a heavy task before them. Their fleet of twenty vessels has not reconnoitred along the coast without being fired at from a number of small fortresses, and in Holland it is said that these ships, if engaged in a close bombardment with heavy batteries, could not stand the shock.

It will be remembered that a few weeks ago the Minister of Marine at the Hague resigned, and that there ensued a great scandal with reference to the condition of the national navy; the wooden ships it was declared were utterly rotten, and the iron ones eaten through with rust; and Dutch journals went so far as to affirm that they were only fit for the protection of rivers. Nevertheless the East India squadron has generally been regarded as superior to that which is kept at home. The fleet in the Indian waters, however, is said to have carried from Batavia an army of twelve thousand men, upwards of a fourth of whom are Europeans, possessing that kind of stolid courage for which the Dutch are famous. This force has been directed upon the Kraton, but not through the ordinary route, though the change in the plan of landing necessitates a difficult passage across a large and little known river, of which the banks are excessively steep, the fords only familiar to natives, who may prove treacherous, as they have often done before, and on the other side, possibly, a horde of from fifty to seventy thousand men belonging to the most military race in the Archipelago, and by no means contemptibly armed. Their resistance, however, might be expected to be more effective did they rely less upon the imported weapons of Europe, in the handling of which they are not adepts, because the annals of former struggles in Sumatra have shown that the fighting has been infinitely more fierce when it has been hand to hand, the Dutch cannon having frequently been assailed and carried off through a rush of men armed with those frightful implements which, in modern times, are only known in Asiatic warfare. It may be assumed, should the Dutch either ford or bridge the river, and compel the enemy to retire within his walls, there would be a desperate resistance still. For this citadel, admirably situated and girdled by a triple rampart, besides outworks with immensely deep fosses, such as are represented by the illustrations—better than all modern maps—in Churchill's "Voyages," may be expected, in the hands of so warlike a garrison, to impose upon its assailants a very difficult task. This, supposing that the war is not concluded upon some conciliatory terms, will not be the first time that the Dutch have bled by hundreds beneath the walls of the Kraton; and although their breech-loaders and bayonets will, of course, prevail in the long run, the Atchinese, if they are so disposed, have a vast interior to fall back upon, and in truth may, as Napoleon said, walk the invaders off their feet. The principal chance in favour of the Dutch is that the cupidity and jealousy of the surrounding tribes, acted upon by menaces, promises and bribes, may hem in the Sultan's army, in which case it will be forced to take up a stand somewhere, and there be overcome as certainly as Europe is superior to Asia in the art and the weapons of war. In this manner was the great empire of Mataram, with its superb capital of Mogapahit, in Java, once called the Cyrene of the East, enveloped and destroyed; and here we have the secret of Dutch triumphs among the islands. They have followed the old law of dividing and conquering.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

IN RE THE BANK OF HINDUSTAN, CHINA, AND JAPAN.

This was in effect an adjourned summons. It will be remembered that in the winding up of this company the full Court of Appeal, consisting of the Lord Chancellor and Lords Justices, decided that a Mr. Campbell and a Mr. Hippisley were contributories of the company——thereby reversing the decision of the late Vice-Chancellor Wickens; and that a Mr. Allison was not a contributory—thereby affirming decisions of the Lord Justice James, sitting as Vice-Chancellor during the illness of Vice-Chancellor Wickens, and the Court of Exchequer Chamber. The Chief Clerk, following the decision of the full Court in the cases of Campbell and Hippisley, had placed Mr. Bulmer on the list of contributories, and against that proceeding he desired to appeal to the House of Lords. As he could not appeal for that purpose from the certificate of the Chief Clerk, he now applied formally to this Court for an order upon the certificate, with the view of appealing therefrom to the House of Lords, or, as it was stated at the Bar, to such other tribunal as might, when the appeal should come on to be heard, be substituted for their Lordships' House.

Vice-Chancellor Hall made an order affirming the certificate of the Chief Clerk.

LATHAM V. THE CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, CHINA, AND AUSTRALIA.

The plaintiffs in this suit were the partners in the firm of Messrs. Finlay, Scott, and Co., of Banbury. They sued for payment of a sum of about £470, balance out of £1,700 of money paid on a policy, after deducting the amount due on certain bills of exchange held by the Chartered Bank of India, China, and Australia. In April, 1870, the bank bought certain bills of one Jaitha Vullabjee, of Bombay, drawn by him on Messrs. Coupland Brothers, of Liverpool, and at the same time a bill of lading of 100 bales of cotton, per ship Aurora, shipped by Jaitha Vullabjee, and a policy of insurance on the cotton was handed to the bank, accompanied by an agreement of hypothecation, which contained a clause to the effect that in case of default being made in acceptance or presentment, or in payment at maturity of any of the above bills the manager or agent of the bank was authorised to sell the goods and apply the proceeds in payment of such bills. Both Messrs. Coupland and Jaitha Vullabjee failed. The ship Aurora was burnt soon after leaving Bombay, and the British and Foreign Marine Insurance Company, with whom the policy in the hands of the bank had been effected, paid them £1,700, the amount insured on the cotton per Aurora. After satisfying these claims in respect of the bills above mentioned, there remained in the hands of the bank a balance of about £470. It was in respect of the balance that the present suit was brought. The bank bought other bills drawn by Jaitha Vullabjee on Messrs. Haigh, Wilson and Co., which were drawn against cotton sent by the ships Western Belle and Canute, and consigned to Messrs. Haigh, Wilson and Co. Messrs. Haigh, Wilson and Co. also became insolvent, and on selling the cotton consigned to this latter firm the bank did not realise sufficient to cover what was due to them on the bills accepted by Messrs Haigh, Wilson and Co. There are two principal points in the case—one, whether on the construction of the agreement between Jaitha Vullabjee and the bank they had any right to apply the policy moneys to any claim beyond that in respect of the bills drawn on Messrs. Coupland. The other whether they had given time to Messrs. Haigh, Wilson and Co. for value, and thus released the drawer, Jaitha Vullabjee, from all liability on the bill accepted by Messrs. Haigh, Wilson and Co.

Vice-Chancellor Bacon said the dispute arose out of one of the most ordinary mercantile transactions, and it surprised him that it had occupied so much time in argument. The case was clear in itself. Upon the construction of the so-called hypothecation of the defendants, they had no right to apply the proceeds of the policy to anything but the payment of what was due on the bills of exchange drawn on Messrs. Coupland, and on this point alone the plaintiffs were entitled to a decree. But the matter did not stop there. The bank had given time to the acceptors of the other bills. By so doing they had prejudiced the drawer, who had a right to know whether the bills were paid. If by some arrangement between the bank and Messrs. Haigh, Wilson, and Co. they chose not to protest the non-payment of the bills, it was a matter between them, and for their convenience only; and this would not be allowed to prejudice the drawer. It was a rule, and a very salutary rule, of the law merchant that such an act released the drawer. It had been argued that the remedy on the bills alone would be taken away and any collateral remedy would subsist; but Jaitha Vullabjee was liable to the bank merely on the bills as drawers. He therefore made a decree in favour of the plaintiff and gave them interest at £4 per cent.

A voluminous correspondence has passed between the Vestry Clerk of Marylebone, the Home Secretary, the Board of Trade, and the Commissioners of Customs, on the subject of testing tea in bond. The Marylebone vestry seem to be acting on behalf of the retail dealers, for whose hardship in being made a scapegoat for offenders who escape it feels special sympathy.

The suspension has been announced of Messrs. E. B. and A. T. Pitchford, lead merchants, a firm of about twenty-four years' standing, and until recently in the enjoyment of good credit. The liabilities are believed to be nearly £170,000, of which about £120,000 or £130,000 is unsecured, and the prospects of liquidation are reported to be unfavourable. It is also apprehended that this suspension will lead to other difficulties.

The following further announcements of dividends have been made by banking and other companies :—

The Imperial Bank, a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, placing £5,000 to reserve, and carrying forward £8,683.

The Central Bank of London, a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, adding the sum of £4,500 to reserve, raising that fund to £15,000.

TEA.

The market has been very firm during the week, with a good amount of business, the Trade showing some disposition to get into Stock, but Exporters are doing very little. Prices show no material alteration in the week, but the tendency is to harden in fair to good medium black-leaf Congous from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 6d. per lb. Red-leaf kinds were readily saleable early in the week, but the demand has since become more quiet. Public sales have been very small, amounting only to 2,000 packages, 1,775 packages of which were sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week amount to 3,589,905 lbs., against 3,297,026 lbs. last year.

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: There has been rather more done in siftings, of old import, from 5d. to 5¾d. per lb., new also selling steadily. Broken-leaf kinds have only been in moderate request. Fair to good common has been saleable from 1s. to 1s 0½d. per lb.; fair kinds from 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d. have sold steadily at fully previous rates; good from 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. have also been saleable. There has been rather more enquiry for fine kinds, but as yet without leading to much business. Pak Lin kinds remain very firm. Black-leaf kinds: The low to common kinds have been rather more in request. Good common has sold at previous prices. Fair to good medium from 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 6d. have sold readily, prices ruling rather higher; fine have sold to a small extent at previous prices, finest being exceptionally firm. New-make Canton kinds: Some large sales have been made of common at 10¾d. per lb., other kinds being only in limited demand. Oolongs maintain the improved prices last quoted. Souchongs have been dull of sale at about former rates, except a few finest, which have realised full prices. In flowery Pekoes and uncoloured Japans there has been nothing of interest to report. Scented Teas: Canton Capers have been rather more wanted, the low prices ruling calling attention to them; the olive-coloured kinds sell freely at extreme prices. Foochow kinds have sold at full rates. Canton Orange Pekoes show no improvement. Foochow kinds have been difficult of sale; common at 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 2d., fair 1s. 3d. to 1s. 4d., good 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7d., per lb. Green Teas: The improved feeling has continued, and prices for the finer grades have been well maintained, especially for Moyune kinds. Ping Sueys of common to medium kinds show no alteration. An invoice of Java green, about 860 packages, was mostly bought in, the few sold however realised full prices.

Messrs. J. C. Sillar and Co.'s annual review of the market says:—The year 1873 has again proved an unsatisfactory one to importers of Tea; at one time the prospects appeared brighter than we ever remember to have witnessed, and when the first cargo of New Season's Tea arrived during the first fortnight of July there was little more than the equivalent of three months' deliveries of Congou and Souchong Tea in the whole bonded warehouses in the kingdom. In former years such a state of matters would have led to great excitement, and the New Season's crop would have been eagerly sought for and rapidly sold upon arrival at extreme prices. The opening of the Suez Canal, and the completion of the electric wire to China, however, have brought about such a revolution, that three months' stock is now regarded as ample for our wants, and the first arrivals of the new season's crop were received with comparative indifference by the trade, who only bought from hand to mouth. The accounts from China showed great recklessness on the part of buyers, which led to disastrous losses throughout the remainder of the year. The terms of sale—three months' prompt, with interest to the buyer, are still adhered to by the largest brokers, and so long as this injustice is allowed, losses to importers must continue to be the rule. The total imports last year show a decrease of 24,000,000 lbs. from those of 1872; being, according to the Board of Trade Returns, 162,344,000 lbs., against 185,939,000 lbs. in 1872. The deliveries, according to the same returns, are nearly the same, being 165,259,000 lbs., against 166,289,000 lbs., and the quantity exported showing a decrease of 5,000,000 lbs., while the home consumption, on the other hand, has increased about 4,000,000 lbs. The quantity of New Season's Tea received by steamers through the Suez Canal up to the 31st December was 70,000,000 lbs., against 60,000,000 lbs. last year; 48,000,000 lbs. in 1871, and 22,000,000 lbs. in 1870. From Foochow the quantity last year was 26,000,000 lbs., against 20,000,000 lbs. in 1872; and from Shanghai and Canton 44,000,000 lbs., against 40,000,000 lbs. The following table shows the shipments from China and Japan to Great Britain for the last seven seasons, also the Imports of Indian Teas and total quantity delivered for home consumption and export, and the United Kingdom stock on the 31st December, for the last seven years.

SILK.

The market is without improvement, very little business is doing, and prices are about the same, but, if anything, rather weaker. Returns are good, being from 1st to 14th inst. :—1,596 bales China ; 328 Canton ; 358 Japan ; 149 Bengal ; total, 2,431 bales.

COFFEE.—A slight depression was observable in the market at the beginning of the week, but Thursday the supply of Plantation Ceylon at public sale presented a good assortment, and a renewal of the previous active competition ensued, the whole being disposed of at an irregular advance, viz., chips 85s., garblings 69s. to 87s., triage and ordinary 110s. 6d. to 126s., small 127s. to 131s., low middling 131s. 6d. to 132s. 6d., middling coloury 133s. to 135s., good middling to fine middling bold 135s. 6d. to 137s., fine bold 137s. 6d. to 138s. 6d., pea-berry 131s. 6d. to 134s. 6d. ; 505 bags of Java bought at 124s. There has been an active demand for arrival, and Plantation Ceylon has been sold at 124s. to 125s. No change has occurred in the market for Native Ceylon.

CAMPHOR.—In auction 50 cases China sold without reserve at 90s. to 90s. 6d. per cwt., being firmer.

CUTCH.—The market continues quiet, and the only sale has been 200 boxes good Pegu, at 20s. per cwt.

COCOANUT OIL is steady ; Cochin is quoted £39 to £40, Ceylon £36 ; 100 tons April-June shipment sold at £37.

GAMBIER.—There has been a fair demand at 24s. per cwt. ex quay and ex ship for whole bales, and sales to good extent have been effected.

GALLS.—No transactions reported in China or Japan kinds.

HEMP AND JAPAN WAX.—No business has been done in these imports during the week.

PEPPER.—No change of any importance has occurred in the market since our last report ; Black has been sold at 7d. for fair quality Penang, and White at 10⅞d. for Penang, and 10¾d. to 11⅜d. for common to fine Singapore.

PLUMBAGO.—At auction Thursday 534 barrels Ceylon of new import were offered, but with a slow demand only about 220 barrels were disposed of at easier prices, viz., middling to good bright lump at 20s. to 27s., fair to fine chips at 12s. 6d. to 13s. 6d., fair to good dust, 10s. to 11s. 3d. per cwt.

RICE.—The market has been steady, and the late improvement is sustained. Two cargoes of new crop have been sold on the basis of 12s. for Rangoon.

SPICES are without alteration.

SUGAR.—No alteration can be reported in the market either as regards prices or extent of demand, transactions consisting for the most part of common brown kinds. In auction 5,320 bags unclayed Ilo Ilo Manila (duty 2s.) were bought in at 20s. ; 2,600 bags good Java syrups were bought in at 18s., but 500 bags since sold at 17s. 6d. ; 6,056 bags common sun-dried Manila were placed at 20s. 3d., and 1,036 bags Bankok centrifugal at 18s. 6d. to 21s. STICKLAC.—In public sale yesterday 482 boxes fine bold Siam met a dood demand and were all disposed of at dearer rates, commencing at £7 5s., and rising to £7 10s., chiefly at £7 7s. 6d. per cwt.

TIN has continued in fair demand, and rates for foreign are about £2 higher than last week. The current quotations are Straits on the spot £121, afloat £118 to £120 ; Banca, £123 ; Billiton, £120 per ton.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

There has been a steady improvement in the tone of this market since the 9th inst. Business was somewhat checked at the close of last week by the full demands of Manufacturers. but increased firmness has since been apparent, both Spinners and Manufacturers asking higher prices. Buyers, however, though willing to operate at the full rates accepted during the week, will not agree to any advance. At closing there is a steady feeling. Producers of both Yarns and Goods will make no concession on the full quotations. The transactions have been limited in both yarns and goods.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

AND PILLS.—For the cure of burns, scalds, wounds, and ulcers this justly celebrated Ointment stands unrivalled. Its balsamic virtues immediately on application lull the pain and smarting, protect the exposed nerves from the air, give to the vessels the vigour necessary to heal the sore, and confer on the blood a purity which permits it only to lay down healthy flesh in the place of that destroyed. Holloway's Pills, simultaneously taken, much assist the Ointment's purifying and soothing power. Together these medicaments act like a charm. Travellers embarking for unwholesome climates, where pestilential airs are constantly producing fever, should provide themselves with these remedies, which will assuredly save them nights of weary watching and days of pain.

OLD AND NEW SIAM.

WITHIN the walls of the old palace at Bangkok there is an isolated upper chamber, where ambassadors in former days were feasted after emerging from the Royal presence. Access to this room is only to be gained by a steep external staircase, so narrow that no more than one person at a time can mount them. The story goes that the building was constructed on this plan in order that, as one by one the well-filled and unsuspecting foreign intruders descended, they might be cut down by guards set there for that purpose, and thus threatening diplomatic difficulties might be got rid of. The news received of the latest doings in Siam present a striking contrast to such old-world, oriental perfidy and obstructiveness. Tempora mutantur! So the new Sovereign of the Siamese, having brought the re-coronation ceremonies to a close, and assumed in his own person the full charge of the Royal prerogatives and duties, gives his people at the same time unmistakable and welcome proofs that he means to reform the usages of his country wherever necessary, developing at once the resources of his kingdom, and introducing among his subjects all the best elements of Western civilisation.

But let us here consider first what changes have actually been wrought in that little Asiatic monarchy during the past thirty years. A very few illustrations will make it clear to all that, if Siam has not made quite such broad and rapid strides as the Japanese, she has at any rate achieved remarkable results, and all these unmarked by bloodshed and violence, without any of the social agonies and political convulsions which worked such disasters in the MIKADO'S realms. Thirty years ago the uncle of the present King sat on the throne of Siam; a man of good natural endowments, but who yet confined himself to his own palace, like a lion to be dreaded and shunned. A true Conservative, he strenuously opposed all intercourse with foreigners, even forbidding his own people, under severe penalties, to associate with the hated white-faced tribe. Once a year only did his Majesty appear in public, and that was when he made the obligatory tour round the Royal temples, and bestowed the customary alms on their priests. On these occasions every vessel, no matter what its shape or size, was banished beforehand from the river; the people hid in their houses; not a noise was heard; hardly a man was seen, except the cortège of princes and the paddlemen who propelled their boats. This was the monarch who thought himself so mighty, and men-of-war from the West so weak, as to suppose that he could shut the latter from his realm by stretching an iron chain across his river! There were a few missionaries at Bangkok then, but these were continually haunted by spies, as a dangerous and suspected class.

Now we see the King travelling in his own steamer to Singapore and Calcutta, showing himself to the civilised world as a cultivated and polished gentleman; abolishing "prostration ceremonies and crouchings with bowed faces and palm-joined hands," and bidding his subjects stand erect before him, in accordance with the usages of the West. About the same period we find congratulatory memorials to the newly-enthroned King, presented by the foreign Consuls in Bangkok, by the Singapore Chamber of Commerce, and from several other quarters. These documents agree in regarding the monarch whom they address as one really resolved to make the prosperity of his country grow. Thus the British Consul "hails" his Majesty "as anxious to augment foreign intercourse with Siam," the friend of Western nations, and a ruler who takes a genuine interest in the welfare of the dominions committed to his charge. The Singapore Chamber also deals in language to the same purport, going so far even as to particularise some of the reforms which in their opinion would be "most judicious." In reply, the King tells those by whom he has thus been felicitated that he will earnestly endeavour to promote friendly relations between Siam and the West, by improving and developing trade, and removing all that prejudices commercial interests, though he qualifies these assurances by observing that "everything cannot be done at once, and we "must be satisfied to improve by degrees according to "the ability of our country." However, there is one change in the Siamese administration which has long been most urgently required, and with which his Majesty has decided to deal immediately. We refer to the re-adjustment of the finances, the reorganisation of the system by which the revenues are collected, and (as we hope and believe we may add) the reconstruction of the taxation. Everyone who has visited Siam is aware that the taxes there are old-fashioned, often unwise, and press most heavily upon the lower classes.

There is also great corruption among the collectors, and nothing like the sums really due ever find their way into the King's treasury at last. Well, then, it is pleasing to learn, in a Royal Edict which has but just appeared, that the whole of this perplexing question has been re-considered. We have not yet received full details of the reform, but thus much we do know, that his Majesty, announcing his Royal will concerning the farms and taxes, declares that the farmers "have allowed arrearages of the revenue to "accumulate; uninterrupted pressure has been resorted to, "but the money has not been forthcoming, and much has "been irrecoverable." The Chinese who assumed the farms have expended the money in other enterprises, and if great pressure be brought upon the delinquents they must fail and resign, which would be disadvantageous to the State. So henceforth an officer of very high standing is specially empowered "to establish usages, officers, and disinterested accountants," who are to keep their books in a proper form, "that there be no divergence and no basis for future disputes." The public financial office is to be open daily from 10 A.M. to 4 P.M., and the business of the revenues is to be carried on nowhere save in the walls of that establishment. All this is good, and we look with interest for further news.

The causes which really hinder development in Siam are twofold, and such as cannot be dealt with successfully by even the best intentioned Royal proclamations. These are, first, the dearness of labour; the lasting consequences of a but-lately-abolished slave system; and the circumstance that there is no product of special value in the kingdom. No fine silk (we mean, of course, in any quantity), no teas, only rice, and nothing but rice. And thus the direct trade between Siam and Europe must always be limited in amount. Probably something might be gained by Siamese commerce, could the existing treaties be carefully revised, for the duties were fixed long ago, when as yet the trade and resources of the country were imperfectly understood, and perhaps a re-adjustment of the hard and fast three per cent. rates might tend to make commerce thrive. The Singapore merchants press his Majesty to establish telegraphic communication between Bangkok and Singapore; and they do very right to be thus urgent, for the reform is one much needed in the interests of the Siamese people themselves, and it is surprising that those who have taken charge of this subject hitherto should have left the matter so long unsettled. But Siam has not yet even run a wire from the capital to Paknam (twelve miles), a fact more surprising still! Another suggestion made again by Singapore, is that the King should encourage mining. This is not so hopeful a project. Labour is dear, the mining districts are unhealthy, communication and carriage are difficult during certain seasons of the year; facts, which alone should deter Europeans from risking capital in Siamese mining, and without capital the enterprise could not be undertaken. We have good hopes, however, for the general prosperity and progress of Siam, and we wish its enlightened ruler God-speed!

THE DISTURBANCES IN LAROOT.

WE are not disposed to find fault with the action adopted by the Straits Government to restore order in the Laroot river, and to exterminate the pirates who for some time past have been established there. Perak—a title which properly includes the district known as Laroot—is a province immediately contiguous to our own possessions, and is governed by an independent Malay Rajah, in former times a tributary of the Sultan of ATCHIN. The Dutch found it necessary to garrison the country, but were driven out by our forces in 1795. Subsequently the Rajah fell under Siamese influence, and it was not till the conclusion of a Treaty with Siam by Captain BURNEY, in 1827, that the complete independence of Perak was secured. Since that period the province has remained free from disturbances, and a considerable trade in tin between Laroot and

Digitized by Google

Penang has been developed. There is also much good land in those districts, which it only needs British skill and British capital to turn to good account. We have not full details to guide our conclusions, but it would appear that the Chinese settlers, tinworkers probably, and men of that class, have been taking advantage of the necessarily-weak native administration; it is a habit among the Chinese organisations so to do wherever they believe the local authorities to be feeble and themselves to be strong, and have been for some months past in a state of revolt, setting all law and order at defiance, and carrying on piracy and brigandage unchecked. Life and property have consequently been extremely insecure; the coasting vessels have been frightened from those waters, and commerce has come almost entirely to a stand. H.M.S. Thalia and Midge have months ago inflicted punishment on the pirates of a kind which will neither be soon nor easily forgotten; but Chinese freebooters, when their junks have been burnt, are not thereby converted into respectable characters, and if—as in the case of this petty principality—the Ruler is not powerful enough to restrain them, they will betake themselves to gang-robbery and violence ashore. Now, should this state of things be suffered to continue, not only will the country be brought into anarchy, but the population will migrate, the tin mines will be closed, the agriculture stopped, and all along the frontiers of the neighbouring territories disturbances and confusion will occur. This is not all; there are British subjects who have become the legal owners of property in the Perak Provinces, and these men have a claim to our protection, both for their possessions and for their lives. Those who reflect seriously upon the points which we thus briefly bring to their notice will probably agree with us in regarding the steps taken by Sir ANDREW CLARKE—judged at any rate by the telegraphic summary which supplies all that we at present know concerning them—as both prudent and necessary. Some, we know, of no mean authority in Penang and Singapore, favour the actual annexation of Perak to the British dominions; but there are many grave objections against such a course as this. The policy of territorial acquisition we for many years past have abandoned; and the feeling now securely settled in the minds of the timid natives that we are not hankering after their lands is beginning to have a wide and important influence on the development of our trade. This advantage it would be unwise to sacrifice in order to put down a horde of pirates and brigands in Laroot. The more sensible course is to do as Sir ANDREW CLARKE has done, revise our Treaty relations with the Rajah of PERAK, establishing a Protectorate over his country which his people, as well as himself, will probably hail with satisfaction—for to the Malay a dominant mob of turbulent Chinese is as the abomination that maketh desolate—and appoint a British functionary to be Political Resident at the capital town, who will be able both to protect the interests of his fellow-countrymen, and to assist by his counsel and influence in the maintenance of order throughout the land. The alternative to these propositions—the annexation or the protectorate schemes—is to leave the country to settle its own troubles, regarding with equal indifference the murder of a few Malays from Singapore, or the destruction of the possessions of British subjects who may have been so foolish as to purchase property in Perak. Well, if such a policy as this were to be decided on, it is quite certain that the Rajah and his people have no forces sufficient to clear his realms from the disturbers of their peace; pirate-prows will again plant their head-quarters in Laroot river, and again shall we have to incur the cost of naval expeditions to destroy them,—as, for example, we were obliged to do last year at Salangore—so that our course would after all turn out to the most unwise one; for we should ruin our commerce in Perak, and yet year by year have to maintain a naval force ready to keep the irrepressible pirates in check. As protectors of the country, on the other hand, we should save our existing commercial interests, we should avoid future expense, securing Perak from anarchy and the border States from disturbances.

DECK PASSENGERS.

OUR large steam companies as a rule are so well managed that legislation as to what they shall or shall not carry is not called for. Recent cases of deck crowding, however, seem to call for some interference on the part of Government. The steamers of HOLT'S line to the Straits and China have earned a good reputation in the conveyance of cargo and passengers, but it is now jeopardised by the carriage of native deck passengers between Singapore and Hong Kong, and pilgrims from Singapore to Jeddah. The discomfort caused by these passengers to the cabin passengers is certainly a gross injustice, not to say an actual danger. We say danger, as danger there certainly is, with the use of fire for cooking, and smoking, to say nothing of the abominable filth which generally accompanies these emigrants. A letter, which will be found in another column, states that one of these steamers, the Ulysses, with a crowded deck, fell into bad weather in the China Seas, and the deck passengers, in their calamity, forced aft into the cabin amongst the first-class passengers. To have a couple of hundred of such men forced in amongst ladies, gentlemen, and children we may leave to the imagination of our readers, who mostly understand the nature of a passage up the China Sea. It is to be hoped that the managers of this line, and all others engaged in the trade, will see the propriety of abstaining from such acts, which so seriously operate against their good name.

IN another column we give an extract from the New York Shipping List, to the effect that the steamers of the Pacific Mail Company are to load and discharge at Panama, instead of San Francisco, in order to avoid the transit by rail of their cargoes between San Francisco and New York. We conclude there is a mistake in this statement, and that the intention of the company must be for the steamers to proceed on to Panama, after landing passengers and cargo at San Francisco. As already announced, the service is to be monthly, and the boats to be employed on the service are as follows:—

City of Peking	Iron Screw	...	6,000 tons
City of Yedo	„	...	6,000 „
Colima	„	...	4,000 „
China	Paddle	...	4,000 „

Colorado	„	...	4,000 „
Alaska	„	...	4,000 „
Great Republic	„	...	4,000 „

WE have received from Mr. HENRY C. BATCHELOR, Agent for the Chinese Imperial Maritime Customs' Service, the Trade Statistics of the Treaty Ports for the period 1863-1872, which were compiled for the Vienna Exhibition, and to which we have already alluded. The statistics refer to the following ports, viz., Tientsin, Chefoo, Neuchwang, Kiukiang, Chinkiang, Shanghai, Ningpo, Foochow, Takow, Amoy, and Canton.

ACCORDING to advices from Vienna, it appears that arrangements are in progress for the despatch of one of the Austrian Lloyd's steamers from Trieste to Japan, with a general cargo of Austro-Hungarian goods, once every three months.

MR. TAPP, of the Shanghai Consulate, is now engaged with the Registrar-General of Shipping in revising the draft "Order in Council" for the establishment of a port of registry for British shipping at Shanghai.

JAPAN.

A letter upon the subject of the Import Trade of Japan and of the Tea and Silk Season of 1872-73 has been addressed to Earl Granville by Sir H. Parkes. It runs as follows:—

Yedo, July 7, 1873.

MY LORD,—The commercial year in China and Japan, as your lordship may be aware, terminates at the end of June with the close of the tea and silk season. This arrangement admits of the operations of a whole season being passed under review and compared with those of previous seasons, whereas the Consular reports and returns, being made up for the ordinary year, deal, in respect to these staples of the export trade, with two half seasons, and present, therefore, to the merchant a different view of trade than that upon which he is accustomed to base his calculations.

Digitized by Google

The silk and tea season of Japan for the last twelve months has just closed, and as reviews of the transactions of the season have appeared in the Japan Mail, I think it well to forward copies to your lordship, with the recommendation that they may be printed with the Japan Consular returns for the year 1872, in case those papers shall not have already been published by the time this despatch is received.

The papers I now send consist of a review of the import trade for 1872-73, a review of the tea season and a review of the silk season for the same period. Presenting, as these accounts do, the opinions of merchants on the spot, it is possible that those at home may be disposed to rely upon the discriptions herein given of the condition and prospects of trade, and may deem warnings from such a source to be sound and reliable. All these reviews describe business as overdone. They speak of importations as greatly in excess of demand, and of over eagerness on the part of the foreign merchant in purchasing the tea and silk of the Japan producer, who is consequently enabled to hold for high and (to the buyers) unprofitable prices. This charge of overtrading is not solely attributable to men on the spot, but also to their constituents in England, the Continent, and America, who supply the former with orders. The plan pursued in the period under review, according to these papers, is to "ship and sell much and buy much; at a profit if we ca n, but in any case ship, sell, and buy;—and so trade is in a high fever." If this be true, it is to be hoped that such excessive speculation will not be repeated in the coming year.

I also beg to add to these papers an interesting account of the Japanese Guilds (or Sho-sha), who exercise a very potent influence on the Foreign Commerce of Japan. The connection of these Guilds, and especially the Corporation of Yokohama (which is prominently mentioned in this paper), with the Japanese Government, the power allowed to this Corporation of issuing notes without furnishing any account either of its liabilities or assets, the privileged sale of Government rice, &c., were referred to in my despatch of the 23rd May, forwarding the Consular Returns of Trade for 1872. These circumstances show how disposed the present Japanese Government is to run all trade into the mould of monopoly, to restrict according to the personal views of men who are in office for the moment, and to make commerce subservient to their own purposes. The eagerness which many Japanese officials exhibit to quit their posts—apparently as wealthy men—and to share in the profits of business thus conducted, is also a noteworthy feature in the present aspect of trade in Japan.

Accompanying the letter are inclosures containing a review of the import trade of Japan, and also an extract from the Japan Mail of May 31, 1873, on the tea season of 1872-3, as well as extracts from the same journal upon the subjects of the silk season and the Japanese guilds. Sir Harry Parkes also forwards a report by Mr. Watson respecting the resources of the island of Yezo, in which is embodied the observations made by that gentleman in the course of an excursion to Sapôro, by the recently-completed road. Mr. Watson says the road from Hakodate to Sapôro consists of two portions, of thirty and ninety miles' length, respectively. The first of these two connects Hakodate with the village of Mori, on an arm of the Pacific Ocean called Volcano Bay, which takes this name from three volcanic mountains overlooking it. From that place the road sweeps round the sea and enters the hills opposite, at a distance of some fifteen miles. It then passes over a high hill to the east of the village and plain and river of Ono, and descends on the other side, between two small lakes in the woods at the foot of the volcano of Homogataki. Thence it stretches in a straight line through a forest for ten miles further to Mori.

The road has been admirably constructed throughout by Major Warfield, of the American Agricultural Commission. A line of telegraph has been constructed between Hakodate and Mori, and it is being continued round the head of the bay to Shin-Moraran, whence it will be carried on along the road to Sapôro.

Sapôro, the chief, though not the most populous, town of Yezo, the seat of the general Government of the island, dates only from 1871. It covers about a mile square, and is situated on a fine plain, with wooded hills, about two miles from the town, and close to the Toehera, a tributary of the Ishikari, with which latter stream a small canal likewise connects Sapôro—the distance from Sapôro to the Ishikari being about fifteen miles.

The chief of the American Mission, as well as the chief geologist, are represented by Mr. Watson as speaking highly of the mineral productions of Yezo. Its forests are also stated to contain an enormous quantity of timber of the most serviceable varieties. Mr. Watson says in conclusion, "I would beg to point out that a necessary condition for the successful development of the Island of Yezo would seem to be to throw open to foreign shipping the three ports of Endermo (or Shin-Moraran), Iwanai, and Utarûnai, as it would thus be possible to avoid the expense and delay consequent on an extra shipment. At Endermo, with all its obvious advantages, there seemed to be but little trade, but this state of things, it may be fairly anticipated, will be altered when the waggons and public conveyances which have been ordered will have begun to ply along the road between Endermo and Sapôro. The reasons for its being desirable to throw open Iwanai and Utarûnai respectively, are the vicinity of the former place to the coal-fields, and that of the latter to the Ishikari river and to Sapôro. At Iwanai I saw a considerable amount of native shipping, and at Utarûnai I counted upwards of 100 junks. Both of these towns are situated on a well-peopled coast."

DEATH OF THE SIAMESE TWINS.

Among other items of intelligence received this week from the United States we have to record the decease of the celebrated Siamese Twins.

> By foreign hands their dying eyes were closed,
> By foreign hands their decent limbs composed,
> By foreign hands their humble graves adorned,
> By strangers honoured, and by strangers mourned!

They survived the appearance of a hated rival, or rivals, in the shape of the "two-headed Nightingale," made up of Miss Millie and Miss Christine (for whose conveyance the cabman tried, though unsuccessfully, to extract an extra sixpence from their reluctant companion, the Chinese Giant), and they breathed their last simultaneously, or nearly so, at a provincial town in America. Thus, though we cannot say of them that they were "lovely," or even "pleasant" in their lives, yet in death at any rate they have not been divided. These twins were born some sixty-five years ago, or thereabouts, at a fishing village on the banks of the river Mekong, about fifty miles from Bangkok. They are by no means of pure Siamese extraction; on the contrary, their father was a Chinaman, and their mother half a Chinese too. Anyone who is acquainted with the facial types of Siam and China would have discovered this at a glance. Moreover, they were dwarfs, or nearly so. Though they grew up to manhood before they quitted Siam, yet of late years they always professed to have lost all recollection of their native tongue. Possibly this was true. They would have little chance of keeping up their acquaintance with it when once they had quitted Siam. There is among all Buddhist races a great disinclination to deliberately inflict on another any wounds that may prove mortal. Life in every shape is devoutly venerated, and bloodshed is shunned. To this sentiment, coupled with the total ignorance of anatomy and surgery which prevails in Siam and China, the twins probably owe their preservation. No doctor here would be likely to hesitate in making use of his lancet were two English babes born connected by a ligament such as that which bound the Siamese pair, and an untimely sepulture in spirits-of-wine would have been the probable fate of those infants had they perished under the operation. The lucky twins were saved from perils such as these, and reserved for a more prosperous destiny.

They were abducted from Siam by a Yankee merchant captain, who went up to the Bangkok bar with a cargo of old cannon, purchased at a condemned stores sale in Calcutta. The Siamese would neither buy his goods nor sell him rice, for at that period no treaties were in force, and the white-faced foreigners were looked upon with mingled hatred and fear. However, in the end the skipper managed to get to windward of the Siamese, inasmuch as he fell in with the twins, inveigled them on board his craft, and then made sail for Singapore. In no long time both the Yankee and his protégés realised good fortunes by exhibiting in the States and Europe. This accomplished the twins retired into private life, taking unto themselves wives from among the daughters of men, and of these marriages divers children were in due time born. After the suppression of the Confederate rebellion the twins again appeared in public, because, as was alleged, their estates had been ruined by the emancipation of their slaves. There was at that period also some talk of their being subjected to a surgical operation, for, as was pointed out, they were getting on in years, and, if one brother were to die, the consequences to the other would be uncertain. However, that they ever seriously contemplated incurring any such risk we take leave to doubt; probably they wished to get talked about by the public, that so sight-seers might flock in numbers to inspect them. It will be interesting to learn precisely the cause of their death, whether, for instance, both sunk under the same malady, or whether the one deceased merely and wholly in consequence of his brother's previous death; or was the living body cut perforce from the corpse, and killed by the operation? The next mail from America may supply these details.

AN INQUEST IN SHANGHAI.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

Our Law Courts have, I regret to say, had a good deal to do lately, although, under ordinary circumstances, criminal cases of magnitude are rare amongst the resident population of Shanghai, either foreign or native. The last case they have been engaged in is one of homicide of a Chinese coolie by a British subject, and Chinamen generally have been greatly exercised over it, besieging their lord and master, the magistrate of the city, in his office, in crowds, and bawling for vengeance for days together. It appears that the accused was wrangling with six coolies about the amount of wages due to them, when he lost his temper, and went for his gun to frighten them off. This he succeeded in doing, but not till after he had fired both barrels and blown off the head of one of them, and for this he has been sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

The preliminary inquest was held by a Chinese coroner, conducted of course on Chinese legal principles, and a more ridiculous and unsatisfactory inquiry it is difficult to imagine. The witnesses who gave evidence were four of the coolies present when the man was shot, about twenty relatives of the deceased, who were none of them within miles of the spot when the crime occurred, but who unanimously testified that the case was one of wilful murder, and about five hundred friends from the deceased's native village, who had as much to do with it as the House of Commons, and who kept on "testifying" at the pitch of their voices to the virtues of the deceased, and to the foulness of the crime. The four coolies all spoke at once when they were asked by the coroner the usual string of questions, utterly foreign to the point at issue, which Chinese officials put on such occasions, and their answers were accompanied with a chorus of wailing by the twenty relatives, and of maledictions by the five hundred friends. The hubbub was fearful, and the coroner soon thought he had had enough of it, so ordering the dead body to be sealed up in its coffin and taken away for burial, he began to make for his chair without giving any verdict. Neither relatives nor friends would hear of this, so they kicked the coffin over, pulled down the mat-shed that was doing duty for a court-house, and began to hustle the coroner and his people. His sedan chair was banged against a wall and kept there, and while he was cowering with terror inside, a free fight ensued between his retainers and the deceased's relatives and friends, in which a few enterprising foreigners, who were only too happy to espouse the cause of law and order by punching somebody's head, joined. The aged mother and sisters, who were in the fore front of the battle, fared badly, as the scattered chignons and back hair plentifully scattered on the road betokened, and a few of the more prominent friends' noses bled, but no great harm was done in the scuffle. A sudden rush by the chair-bearers, an extra hard knock or two to the noisiest relative, and the coroner's chair was clear of the crowd. Next day, when he had sufficiently recovered from his terror, he gave a verdict of wilful murder against the man, who, I say, is now sentenced to two years' imprisonment.

This seems a grotesque description, but it is absolute fact, as I was present the whole of the time, and took an active part towards the close of the scuffle. It is to such tribunals as these that the lives of Englishmen in China who may be unfortunate enough to kill a Chinaman by accident are entrusted at present. That they are a mockery of justice it is unnecessary to say, but that they are a shame and a disgrace both to the country which institutes them and to the foreign countries which recognise their verdicts is, I dare say, now made known to the English public for the first time. To make foreign officials attend such proceedings is virtually to sanction the degradation of a serious enquiry to the level of a theatrical farce. If we are powerless to stop them, we can at least refuse to recognise them officially, and to take action on their verdicts. The attention of Her Majesty's Government should be directed to this, to see if it is not possible to get the Chinese to adopt some more civilised form of enquiry than the ridiculous travesty of an inquest at present held in cases where Englishmen are involved.

RAILWAYS IN CHINA.

(FROM A SHANGHAI CORRESPONDENT.)

I have already alluded to the difficulties that will have to be overcome in the construction of railways between the great cities of the provinces of Kiangsu and Chekiang. The country is for the most part a perfectly level plain, and there will be no cuttings, viaducts, or tunnels of any importance. The difficulties that exist are not engineering ones, but certain elements of expense in construction, which, however, will not be very serious. Owing to the soft nature of the ground, and the muddy substratum which it overlies, a great part of the permanent way would have to be piled, or built in some such way as the railways through the swampy parts of the United States. The face of the country, too, is covered with graves, which, although at present allowed to go to wreck and ruin, the owners would regard as of inestimable value directly they heard of an intending purchaser in the shape of a railway company. The mandarins would at first do their best to work on the superstitious fears of the people by putting them up to complaining of the desecration of the bones of their fathers and grandmothers by the ruthless pickaxe of a navvy, and there certainly would be a pitched battle between the native and foreign authorities over the sale of each grave. A few miles of railway, however, once opened, and their utility once demonstrated, all this opposition would die away, and the Chinese peasant would greedily sell the remains of his nearest and dearest relatives for a very moderate sum. Their superstitious veneration of the ancestral tomb is but skin deep, their love of a profit bringing transaction is the mainspring of their existence. The third element of expense will be the extraordinary number of bridges that will have to be built. The whole of the plain I have spoken of is cut up by a network of canals, creeks, and rivers, many of them deep enough to be navigable for barges and small junks, and so numerous that in some places there would have to be bridges every two or three hundred yards on the lines of railway.

As to the direction which the railway system will eventually take in China it is hard to speak with confidence, for the knowledge we have of the topography of the country is too limited to allow of prophecies of this description being other than the merest guess-work. It is a safe thing to say, however, that where a canal once existed a railway may exist, and as the grand canal between Tientsin and Nanking is now useless for through traffic, it is very probable that if ever the Chinese Government take to railways they will turn to this first, both on political and commercial grounds, political as tending to cement the metropolis with the chief provincial seats of Government, commercial from the development such a railway would give to the enormous mineral resources of the country through which it would pass.

Baron Richtofen, perhaps, is the best authority regarding the topography and configuration of the interior of China, and to illustrate the wild manner in which the introduction of railways was discussed when the question came up ten years ago I quote the following from his report :—

"No better instance can be cited to illustrate the practical importance of the knowledge of the orthography of a country than a certain well known railroad map of China, published a few years ago on a magnificent scale. A net of utterly impossible railroad lines connects on that fine sheet the large cities of China among each other and with those of India. After its completion, the author has put in a number of large mountain ranges to suit his convenience, good care being taken that none of them should find a railroad in its way."

There is not the slightest doubt as to the feasibility of the railway system I have endeavoured to sketch, as the country through which it would traverse is well known. It takes away one's breath almost to think of the great cities of North China, Peking, Tientsin, Taiyuen, Tsinan, Nanking, Soochow and Hangchow, connected together by railway, for the impulse it would give to commerce, and the advantage it would be to China in every way, would be enormous. At once a great engine of Government, and a powerful agent in the development of her material resources, it ought to commend itself to both officials and people.

COAL IN FORMOSA.

The Report of Mr. Acting Consul Baber gives the following interesting report on the coal mines at Kelung, Formosa :—

I learn from trustworthy native sources that about 75,000 tons of coal were raised during the year. This appears, however, to be rather a high estimate, and must be taken as a maximum. Unless new mines are opened or foreign appliances for scientific working introduced, it is expected that this rate of production, which is a very large increase on that of preceding years, can scarcely be maintained. The Customs returns prove that during the year 1872 more than half the whole produce, 40,230 tons, left the port in foreign bottoms. The remainder is accounted for by the export in junks, and by the local consumption. The Chinese in Formosa, however, have little use for coals except in the purposes of the blacksmith. They do not employ it as a means of warming their houses, the abundance and cheapness of wood making charcoal preferable.

The mines at present in working are forty-six in number, and are all situated within a distance of eight miles from Kelung to the south and west. The so-called Tamsuy coal comes from Naun Naun mines, of which there are eleven working and one about to be opened. A number of unopened mines, as the Chinese call exposed veins, are to be met with in the neighbourhood of Naun Naun.

WORKING THE MINES.

It is often asked by persons unacquainted with Chinese circumstances and systems, "Why do they not use machinery in working the mines?" The answer is, that the proprietors, supposing them ever to have heard of machinery, do not for a moment believe that its introduction would be attended with any other result than a great increase of outlay. Their want of capital would not admit of their purchasing it, even if they wished to do so, and supposing them both willing and able, it is quite certain that such an innovation, accompanied as it would necessarily be by the employment of foreigners, would be the immediate signal for the closing of the mine by the mandarins, and the not improbable loss of the proprietor's head. This latter misfortune did actually befall a border Chinaman who was imprudent enough to dispose of his interest in a petroleum spring near Oulan to a local British merchant.

There is, therefore, little or no hope of the inventions of engineering science being introduced at the Kelung mines by the private enterprise of the native proprietors. The initiative must come from the officials, and indications are not wanting to show that their necessities are already beginning to urge them in the direction of progress.

The authorities of the arsenal at Foochow have lately felt an inconvenient strain on their financial resources from the necessity of supplying their gunboats with fuel. Compelled apparently by the pressure of the English "coal famine," they are beginning to turn their attention to the resources of Formosa. They have lately sent an order to Kelung for 50,000 tons, to be furnished during the year 1873, or as soon as possible, at a price of $37 per 100 piculs (say 27s. a ton), including conveyance to Foochow, a distance of 100 miles, in junks. The contractor is to insure safe delivery of the coal at Foochow, and the junks are to remain there as godowns for storing as long as required. In connection with this transaction the Taoutai of Formosa lately visited Kelung and informed the leading coal proprietors that it was proposed to devote to Government use in future, without payment, five per cent. of all coal reaching the pit's mouth. It remains to be seen whether the proprietors will submit to this economical method of "coaling the navy." Should they do so, the result will, of course, be that buyers will have to pay for 95 tons what they now pay for 100.

But the Taoutai discovered, on making inquiries, that it would be difficult to obtain in one year more than a third of the amount required by the arsenal, even including the threatened "squeeze" of 5 per cent. of the whole production. The wants of the arsenal and gunboats must, however, be supplied. The provincial authorities, aghast at the enormous expense of foreign coal, find themselves driven onwards by the force of events, and, I am informed on the best authority, are at the present moment seriously entertaining the project of adopting the improvement of engineering science.

Considering the present high price of English coal it is somewhat surprising that our naval authorities have not turned their attention to Kelung as a source of supply for the vessels of the China squadron. Situated in the centre of the station, and producing coal little inferior to Australian at less than one-fourth of the price, Kelung, with its convenient harbour, seems to possess every qualification as a coaling port, except that its production is limited. But this latter difficulty would infallibly yield before an increased demand, backed possibly by official action, based on the spirit of Article 52 of the Treaty.

COAL IMPORTS AT SHANGHAI.

The report of Mr. Consul Medhurst gives the following account of foreign and native coal :—

159,000 tons of coal have been imported into Shanghai in 1872, as compared with 88,000 tons in 1871, and 80,000 tons in 1870. The consumption during the same period has been 131,000 tons, against 109,000 tons in 1871, and 106,000 tons in 1870. The total import in 1872 may be thus divided :—

	Tons.
From England	45,000
„ United States	8,000
„ Australia	40,000
„ Formosa	26,000
Total	159,000

The average prices are—for English, Tls. 11·00 ; Australian, Tls. 8·00 ; Japan, Tls. 5·50 ; Formosan, Tls. 2·25. Cheap coal in China is still unknown, although the prices of the worst qualities of Japan and Formosan will compare favourable with the home rates for the best household coals that have ruled during the past year. The cheap coals here, whether Japan or Formosan, are too rapid in combustion, and take up too much room in a steamer to be of much use in steam navigation. The best qualities in China are found for the most part at a great distance from the centres of trade, and the means of communication and transport to and from the mines are too limited to allow of their being laid down at any of the ports at a figure which would enable them to compete with English coals. At Hankow coals can be got at a reasonable price, suitable for steamers, and they are used by steamers which ply on the Yangtsze, but the rates of freight at present existing between Shanghai and Hankow shut out these coals from this market. If this is true for coals obtained near an open port, it applies a fortiori to the enormous coal-beds of Shanse, which, although amongst the largest in the world, are, owing to the difficulty and expense of transport, practically unworked.

At present, then, the coal problem in China stands thus :—We have large supplies of moderately cheap coals from Japan and Formosa, which is unsuitable for the purposes for which coal is mainly imported here, and we have within reach, were proper alliances employed, enormous coalfields, where coal can be procured of as good a quality as Cardiff, but to which access is so difficult, and from which the cost of transport is so great, that they are practically useless. Absolutely nothing has been done since the Treaty of Tientsin to facilitate the working and carriage of coals, and there is at present no apparent evidence that the problem is engaging the attention of the Chinese Government. Capital, and the means of its application, the Chinese do not possess ; foreign appliances they appear unwilling to use ; and so the matter rests at present.

THE SUEZ CANAL TONNAGE COMMISSION.

Subjoined is a translation of the Vizierial letter to the Khedive of Egypt referred to in our last issue relating to the tolls on the Suez Canal. By this letter it will be perceived that the Porte has adopted the conclusions of the International Tonnage Commission, and that within three months' time the tolls will be reduced and regulated in conformity with the regulations drawn up by the Commissioners. The Vizierial letter might have been conceived in more positive terms and expressed in clearer language, but at the same time we must recollect that it is a translation from the Turkish, which is a language abounding in roundabout phrases and conveying certain nuances difficult to be reproduced in an European tongue. It is generally understood that the Canal Company will not offer any resistance to the execution of the arrangement referred to in the Vizierial letter. If such opposition were made, the more disadvantageous alternative of returning to the original terms of the concession —viz., ten francs per ton, net register—would have to be reverted to, such being the undertaking of the Porte. The letter runs as follows :—

"In continuation of my past communications, I have the honour to transmit to your Highness in duplicate the proces-verbaux and final report of the International Tonnage Commission, which has now terminated its labours. As your Highness will perceive from the perusal of these documents, all questions relating to tonnage have been so determined as to make all uncertainty of interpretation and all objections henceforth disappear. In addition to the rules laid down on these points—rules which fix the basis of the tolls which the Canal Company have the right to levy—your Highness will find both in the proces verbaux and in the final report of the Commission the details of a recommendation made by that Commission with regard to a compromise, the object of which is to finally determine the Canal dues. This compromise, I should inform your Highness, was entered into and accepted by virtue of a special authority given to the Commission. The above-named recommendation having been expressed unanimously by the Commission and been approved by the Sublime Porte, your Highness is accordingly invited to communicate with the Canal Company thereon. In any case, it is essential that the dues should be levied upon the basis of the net tonnage established by the International Commission within a period of three months, a period which gives sufficient time to carry out the measures necessary for the due execution of the arrangement recommended by the International Commission. Sublime Porte, 23rd Zilkade, 1290 (Jan. 11th, 1874)."

CHRISTIAN MISSIONS IN FORMOSA.

(From the Report of Acting-Consul GREGORY at Taiwan.)

The only Protestant Mission at work in Formosa is the English Presbyterian. It commenced operations about eight years ago, and has had great success. Its central or residentiary stations are at Takow, Taiwanfoo and Tamsuy. The Tamsuy Branch was established only last year, and I will make no further remark about it, as I do not include Tamsuy business in this Report. As regards the Takow and Taiwanfoo branches, with their various out stations taken together, I give the following statistics from a paper kindly furnished me :—

Membership at beginning of 1872, 558 ; Adults baptised during 1872, 258 ; Children, 27 ; Membership at the beginning of 1873, 784. Average regular attendance at Lord's day Service, 1,980. Much attention has been given to the aborigines, that is the tame aborigines, who are under the Chinese Government. Considerably more than half of the converts are from their villages. There is also a considerable Roman Catholic Mission, conducted by Spanish Dominican Clergymen. When at Takow I often see the Chief of the Mission, but I have not asked the number of people under their care.

In the Southern or Takow part of the district, where the work has been more among the Chinese than it has been further north, there were some troubles between the converts and others, and cases of real or supposed persecution, but I must not here attempt to detail or discuss them. For some time past things have been quiet in this respect, so far as I know. In August last the then Fungshan Magistrate issued a vigorous notification, in which he professed equal benevolence and justice towards Christians and non-Christians, and enjoined both parties to live in harmony. Much medical work is done by and in connection with the Presbyterian Mission at the ports in the country.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

(THE TIMES.)

The singular parallelism that had from the outset made itself apparent between the fortunes of the Dutch in Sumatra and of our own country on the West Coast of Africa continues unbroken. It is most improbable, however, that the capture of Coomassie will present difficulties at all comparable with those which the Dutch have had to encounter in Atchin. Nor do we intend to institute an exact comparison between the two cases of barbarous aggression and European retaliation. It may be that the Dutch are assailing on specious pretences and with selfish designs the independence of a free, courageous, and unoffending nation ; but hostile critics have asserted as much of our own war with the Ashantees. We do not vindicate the Dutch, nor do we accept the allegations which have been advanced against them. The truth will be discovered when both the Atchinese and the Ashantee campaigns have passed into the region of history. What is clear at present is that the Government of Holland, like our own, originally miscalculated the difficulty of the enterprise on which it had entered, but with more disastrous results than ourselves, when good fortune rather than good guidance assisted on the Gold Coast. In some respects the enemy whom the Dutch have undertaken to subdue in Sumatra is more formidable than the barbarians whom Sir Garnet Wolseley is pursuing beyond the Prah. By race and by creed the Moslem of Atchin are warriors ; their history—for they have a history—has been one of wars, of conquests, and of triumphs. They have not only the brute valour of the savage, but desperate energy, ingenious resource, religious zeal, and the memory of a long career of victory. Isolated as they are in a corner of the Indian Archipelago, they seem, nevertheless, to have been in communication with both the material advance of the civilised world and the intellectual movement of their own proselytising faith. Their soldiers are drilled, their fortifications are defended by men who have learnt the art of war in Europe, if not by born Europeans. Modern weapons of precision are certainly employed in the defence of the stronghold which the Dutch are now besieging, and it has been asserted —though we confess we do not clearly understand the statement— that the bombardment now or lately in progress had produced little effect, because the Atchinese have "good ironclad defensive works." But of more real value than these remarkable defences is the spark which the Mussulmans of Atchin have caught of the modern Mahomedan revival. That extraodinary religious phenomenon has already shaken great Empires and is undermining others. It might well hold in check the onset of a third-rate European Power. We do not say that it will ; on the contrary, the material probabilities are in favour of the Dutch, who are driven on by pride and interest alike to make the conquest of their semi-barbarous antagonist complete and crushing. It may even happen that the resistance of the Atchinese, spirited and unshrinking as it appears to be, will suddenly break down. But the Dutch appear to understand that the business they have undertaken in Sumatra will task their resources The news from Batavia and Penang cannot be reassuring to the states men at the Hague. It is true that the Dutch troops have succeede in capturing a position, stated to be of great military importance, out side the "Kraton," or citadel, which is the centre of the defence and the stronghold of the Mussulman fanatics who guide and inspire the resistance. But this success has been purchased with heavy losses.

The besiegers were twice repulsed before they got possession of the disputed ground, and out of 240 killed and wounded twelve officers were placed hors de combat. With the capture of this fort the war may very likely be concluded; but looking only at this beginning of the campaign, and comparing it with the result of our operations against the Ashantees, we shall be forced to acknowledge that the work which the Dutch have taken in hand has shown itself still more arduous and costly than our own "little war."

The Dutch chafed for half a century against the limits which English jealousy had imposed on their annexations in Sumatra; they were urged by the impulse which drives every civilised Power to enforce order upon semi-barbarous neighbours; they were ambitious and conscious of their strength. At the first encounter they suffered heavy losses; their repute for invincibility was shattered; they were worsted and driven back, if not by the enemy singly, by the climate, the natural difficulties of the country, and the implacable and fanatical hatred of the population. They made desperate and deliberate efforts to redeem this disaster. A large European force has been raised and equipped at a cost which will fall heavily on the taxpayers of Holland. The conquest of Atchin has been decreed; and, in fact, the Dutch are now at the gates of the citadel. But the work is not yet done. The bombardment of the "Kraton" has commenced; all communications of the besieged with the outer world are cut off, yet the Atchinese show no sign of yielding. The Malays, led by the Mussulman devotees and maddened with religious frenzy, fight hand to hand till they are struck down on the ground they hold, and they sell their lives dearly. Holland may well feel anxious about the result of the struggle. We of course incline to believe that the material strength and scientific skill of a civilised European Power must in the long run prevail. Yet it is easy for Europeans to underrate the power, even in our modern day, of despairing courage, religious zeal, and rude patriotism driven to bay.

(PENANG GAZETTE.)

The London and China Express publishes an extract from The Times, wherein it is attempted to justify the breach of faith committed by the British Government when it made the treaty of 1872 with the Dutch, thus throwing over the treaty with Atchin of 1819. The Times says that "the Sultan (of Atchin) has forfeited all claims against us by himself concluding a treaty with the Dutch in 1857, in direct contradiction with his engagements under the treaty (with England) of 1819. Lord Granville is thus amply justified in declaring that the Sultan cannot appeal to Great Britain to protect his country against invasion." The world will be rather astonished to learn that it is denied that the Sultan of Atchin ever concluded any treaty with Holland, and that the treaty published in the Blue-book which was issued in reply to Lord Stanley's motion in Parliament was never ratified. The following would appear to be the history of this document:—Towards the end of 1856 an Atchinese Chief, named Sree Paduka, who held the office of Rajah Bandahara, or as we would term it Minister for the Colonies, chanced to be at a place called Troeman, on the west coast of Sumatra. General van Swieten, who happened to be the Dutch representative at Padang, wrote several letters to this Rajah Bandahara, asking for his assistance in making a treaty with the Sultan of Atchin. The Sultan refused to have anything to do with the Dutch, and no treaty, or document purporting to be one, was ever signed by the Sultan; it would, therefore, appear that this treaty, bearing, it must be remembered, no other signature than that of General van Swieten himself, as will be seen on reference to the London and China Express of the 7th November, is of the same nature, and as much to be relied on, as an authentic document, as the celebrated one in connection with which Pangulu Tebang figured, and which was made the pretext of the present war. We have these particulars from the Rajah Bindahara referred to above, who is a very old man, has been residing in Penang for years, and he further informs us that the Dutch agents here have endeavoured to obtain from him all documents connected with the negotiations with General van Swieten in 1857, and which are all (with the exception of one, which he was weak enough to lend and has not yet received back) now in his possession. We hasten to give publicity to these facts, in order to disabuse the public mind that the Atchinese have done anything to forfeit British protection, and we would earnestly direct the attention of Sir Andrew Clarke to the matter, in order that he may take steps to satisfy himself of the truth of what we have stated above.

OUR POSITION IN CHINA.

(HOUR.)

It has been felt for some time by all who are acquainted with the relations of the European Powers to the Imperial Government in China, that the advantages gained from the treaties of 1860 have not altogether rewarded the expectations of diplomatists. There are many symptoms of the decline of European influence in China, and if the Western nations have not actually lost ground, they are in serious danger for the future unless a more vigorous policy be adopted. The Chinese have recovered from the immediate consequences of the chastisement inflicted upon them some thirteen years ago, and show signs of a strong desire to isolate themselves again, and to withdraw from the family of nations into which they were forced by the British and French arms. They are even now endeavouring to close the smaller ports against European vessels, and to restrict foreign commerce to Shanghai. Efforts of this character have lately been made—to cite one instance among many—at Tientsin. Proposals to close this port have been seriously entertained on the ground of the alleged diminution of European trade; and the mandarins have hopes that foreign vessels will yet be excluded from the River Peiho. Much light has been thrown upon this subject by an interesting pamphlet lately published under the title of "Aperçu de la Situation en Chine." The pamphlet, which merits careful study, has appeared at Brussels, is written in French, although we believe that the author, Mr. Fergusson, is a British subject. His residence of thirteen years at Chefoo has given him abundant opportunities of watching the progress of events in China, and he has embodied the results of his observations in the "Aperçu" recently issued. The accession of the young Emperor affords some hope of a salutary change in the Imperial policy. It would, therefore, be a matter of great regret if our diplomatic agents were to neglect this occasion of urging the Peking officials to observe their treaties more faithfully, and to interpret them rather by the spirit than by the letter. As yet, the European nations have familiarised the Chinese with certain instruments of material civilisation without in any way modifying their ideas of social or international obligation. We have hitherto been practically excluded from trade in the interior of the Empire, and as regards imports have not developed any considerable trade except in cotton and in opium. It remains to be seen whether we shall be deprived even of our present advantages or improve them by an active and sagacious policy.

It is the duty of the English Government to assert its full treaty rights in China, and to encourage, instead of repressing, those Christian missionaries who strive to acquaint the Chinese with the principles of the Gospel. No doubt the treaties of 1860 were wrenched from the Chinese under mortifying circumstances, and are in one sense a continuing emblem of their defeat. But there is another light in which the Chinese authorities should be led to view them. They should be regarded as declaratory, and as based upon the natural comity of nations rather than upon formal agreement. The British Legation at Peking does not appear to have defended our treaty upon the right grounds. One of our diplomatists, who is generally considered a skilful negotiator, made a most unfortunate admission at the Court of Peking three years ago, when the treaties were under revision. He maintained that all the advantages enjoyed by foreigners in China flowed from the treaties, and thus conceded that outsiders had no rights as against China before their signature. This is, as Mr. Fergusson points out, a fatal and damaging statement, since it seems to justify the Chinese idea that no outsiders have natural rights, and that apart from a positive agreement, they ought to have no footing within the Empire. The treaties ought not to be looked upon as grudging concessions or as limits to the freedom of European trade imposed by the Chinese themselves, but as simple declarations of antecedent rights, and as embodying the universal principles of international morality. They should be held to lay down doctrines admitting of continual expansion, and to be the germs of a complete and unrestrained amity. In Mr. Fergusson's language, "the principal demand which we should make of the Chinese Government is the opening up of the entire country to foreign trade. We have a right to ask that aliens should be permitted to do upon Chinese territory whatever is allowed by the laws of their own countries; they should be permitted to move freely from place to place, to buy and let lands and houses, to invest their capital in commercial and mining enterprises at the great centres in the interior of the Empire, and to use steamers upon the rivers as freely as they now do in the coasting trade." With foreign assistance the Chinese Government was enabled to represent itself at the Paris Exhibition of 1867, and last year the Imperial authorities, by their own direct action, exhibited a magnificent collection of Chinese produce and works of art at Vienna. The rust of antiquated tradition once thrown off, the Chinese may yet enter boldly into the great markets of the world, and learn that trade, so far from impoverishing the Empire, will be its chief benefactor. It is true that the Chinese will chafe under a sense of subjection until the ex-territoriality of Europeans is abolished, but the remedy for this lies with the Imperial authorities themselves. When they soften the barbarous severity of their law, and do away with criminal penalties as instruments of civil process, they will be able to claim jurisdiction for their own courts of law. Till then the present system, like the "capitulations" in the Levant, must be tolerated as a necessary evil.

The character of Confucianism is of itself an obstacle to the spread of Christianity in China. The Chinese are so accustomed to regard religion as merely a social institution or an engine of government, that they ascribe the same character to the different Christian communions with which they come in contact. Religion with them being national and local, they imagine the same both of Protestantism and of Catholicism. Protestantism they take to be a political institution of the English and the Americans, while they oddly suppose that Catholicism does not exist beyond the limits of the French nation. These misconceptions may in time be overcome, and meanwhile the Chinese cannot be ignorant of the benefits they have obtained from the learned labours of the Protestant missionaries. These energetic men have at once made their language accessible to foreigners, and translated many valuable scientific works into Chinese. We may hope that the Chinese will yet learn to esteem equally the moral and spiritual lessons of the Christian faith, and more particularly its condemnation of caste and the doctrine of universal brotherhood.

ADULTERATED TEA.

The Produce Markets Review, writing upon the subject of the Adulteration Act and Tea, says:—

Not much progress has been made during the past week in the trade agitation for an amendment in the Adulteration Act, to prevent adulterated Tea from being delivered from the bonded warehouses. This is to be regretted, as if the wholesale dealers obtain an interview with Mr. Gladstone, or some other member of the Government, they will not be able to speak with as much weight as they would if the eight hundred towns which have not as yet moved in the matter had sent up memorials. The wholesale dealers cannot carry this question by themselves, and with the strong animus in the public mind they have to contend against, the grocers are very likely to lose their case if they do not act with more vigour. We can only imagine that so few analysts having yet been appointed, those who have not actually suffered, or seen others suffer, from the effect of the Act, still think that the matter does not concern them. No greater mistake could be made, as the Act arranges for Analysts to be appointed in every part of the kingdom, and if the local authorities do not do their duty in the matter, the Local Government Board is entowered to step in and appoint the analyst itself, and in the present ate of the public mind this power is sure to be exercised to its fullest extent. There are very few trained analytical chemists of the requisite standing for such appointments in the kingdom, and they have been pretty well appropriated by the large towns. What the country grocers have to dread, therefore, in the districts where analysts have not yet been appointed, is that they will not only be subjected to attack from really scientific men, but have to suffer from the fancies of half-instructed persons whose hobby may be adulteration, and whose living will depend to a certain extent on the number of convictions they can obtain. It is hardly necessary to say in a trade journal that the adulteration of Tea is not carried on in this country, and that in the whole of the cases which have been tried not a single instance of adulteration has been established against the grocers; indeed, in most instances the authorities conducting the prosecutions have opened their cases by admitting that the adulteration was performed in China. In the meantime perhaps the trade would be glad to be informed of the basis for the sweeping accusations made against the grocers in London and its suburbs, for none of those interested in the trade are sufficiently conversant with the detailed operations performed on the premises of the 4,000 grocers of London, to make a statement as to proceedings which, if they existed, the retailers would conduct with the utmost secrecy.

A letter signed "Mincing-lane Man" appears in The Times of Thursday upon Tea and the Adulteration Act. The writer thinks that the article in Monday's Times helps to elucidate and solve some of the questions involved in this matter, and that the whole body of the trade would accept the impartial decision of that journal.

DECK PASSENGERS.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph,)

SIR,—Allow me to call the attention of passengers and shippers to the growing custom of ocean steamers carrying a large number of pilgrims and other deck passengers, a source alike of danger and discomfort.

The latest case of which details have reached me is that of the Ulysses, on her last voyage to China. A letter from one of the passengers states they took on board at Singapore 316 Chinese passengers. Shortly after they encountered a typhoon, and the vessel failing to answer her helm, the captain sent an officer round to ascertain the cause, when he found that the Chinese, to save themselves from being washed overboard, were holding on to the rudder chains. They were immediately ordered below, and after filling the forecastle and every available space forward, there still remained 200 to be provided for.

Imagine the horror of the first-class passengers when the whole 200 were stowed away in the first-class saloon with "hatches already closely battened down!"

A lady writes, "The atmosphere of the cabin I shudder to remember; thank God we lived!" Another account describes the state of the atmosphere as such that it was impossible to get a match to burn. I have only to add that the captain, who had no power to prevent this addition to the miseries of the voyage, did everything he could to alleviate the discomforts of the passengers.—I am, Sir, yours, &c.,

PACIFIC MAIL STEAMSHIP COMPANY.

(NEW YORK SHIPPING LIST.)

The agreement between the Pacific Mail Steamship Company and the Pacific Roads, by which the latter corporations subsidised and controlled the California freighting of the steamers, having been abrogated, and the first steamer since the contract terminated having sailed, it is of interest to our readers that results should be considered, and the prospects for the future contemplated. The Rising Star, which sailed on Saturday last; took a full cargo, and the bulk of the shipments by her were, properly speaking, railroad freight. The rates were low, and were evidently fixed to secure, without fail, all the freight that offered. The Colon, the steamer of the 8th inst., is already well advanced in loading, and at better prices than the preceding steamer secured, with the prospect that she will carry a large amount of goods. Two more steamers for January are on the programme, and the same favourable rates for shippers are promised in advance. The railroad officials are sadly at a loss what to do. To compete with this opposition will require a tariff that will give the Pacific roads proper but a sorry amount of pay for 1,900 miles of railroad transportation. The tariff from Chicago to San Francisco has already been reduced to $1.50 per 100 lbs., for the lowest, and $3.50 per 100 lbs., for the highest class of goods, a reduction of nearly 50 per cent., and still they secure very little freight. The outlook for this part of their business is not at all promising. The Pacific Mail Company intend also to touch the railroads in another tender part of their business, as in future the steamers from China and Japan are to* come to Panama instead of to San Francisco. The teas for New York will be landed here, vid Aspinwall, and the European part of the cargoes transferred at same port to the numerous foreign lines centring there. This will allow of the steamers at Panama carrying to San Francisco any surplus of goods that may accumulate, by reason of the more frequent service from New York. It will also bring them in competition with the Suez Canal route from India, a service they should be equally well able to perform.

Literature.

Illustrations of China. A Series of Photographs, with Descriptive Letter-press. By J. Thomson. Vol. III. London: Sampson Low and Co.

Mr. Thomson seems to be bringing his labours to a conclusion with a rapidity for which his subscribers should be grateful, and it cannot now be many months before the whole of this valuable and interesting series of photographs will be completed. As to the third volume, which has but just appeared, it nowhere falls short of its two predecessors, and has at the same time a special attractiveness, because it gives us much new information respecting the upper waters of the Yangtsze, and the condition of the population in the gorges through which that river flows. There are fifty-one pictures in this book; all are of high merit, but if we were called upon to single out any for especial praise we should pitch upon that of Tseen-chang-Ven Waterfall, in Snowy Valley, the street scene taken in Kiukiang, and the mid-day view of Wushan Gorge in Tze-chuen, the last being to our mind one of the finest works of photographic art which we have met with. Wushan Gorge, indeed, appears to be just one of those places where "every prospect pleases, and only man is vile." As to the last assertion, if any reader doubts it, let him turn to plate 20, where he will see a mountain-hut taken in the same districts, a sort of wigwam or shanty of the most primeval type, worse than any cowshed in this country, and wholly unworthy of a nation which boasts of immemorial glories, and rates itself the highest among the kingdoms of the earth.

Lovers of the sensational, in these days not few, and those who make the expressions of the human countenance their study, will discover on plate 6 two illustrations well suited to their tastes. For ourselves, we cannot look upon them without a feeling of pain; but still we think Mr. Thomson did well to secure the views, and was indeed fortunate in being on the spot with his camera at the time when the incidents occurred. In the first of the two pictures referred to a thief is to be seen exposed to the public gaze, with a heavy wooden collar (the cangue) about his neck. On this collar the name and residence of the criminal, and the particulars of his crime are inscribed; and he is then stationed in front of the house where the offence was committed, unable to feed himself, and, therefore, dependent upon the charity of the passers-by. The staring eyes and the open mouth of this wretch will tell their own tale, without further comment from us.

The photograph next to this is more dreadful still. It shows us a murderer who was shut up in a wooden cage, and there left to perish of delirium and thirst. On his countenance we discern physical agony and the scared half-crazy look of one who knows that all hope is fled. The Ming Tombs at Nanking we remember to have seen depicted in the Illustrated London News, but the drawing there was nothing like as effective as the view given in this volume. Mr. Thomson, in a neat little photograph, brings before us the imposing avenue of silent weird giants, the stony sentries which keep guard over the approach to the imposing mausoleum in which the ashes of an Emperor repose. Mr. Thomson is probably correct in his surmise that these colossal warriors are exact representatives (stature only excluded) of the life-guards who in those days waited upon the Emperors. And it is this suggestion which lends the picture a peculiar charm, for the monarch sleeps in security amid his faithful soldiers, who still stand solemnly guarding his grave, as they stood around his palace in ages long gone by.

The group in the streets of Kiu-kiang, and the amusing letter-press which accompanies the illustration, will perhaps have greater attractions for those who have never visited the East than any other production in the volume. The book which shall exhaustively describe industrial life in China, and the manners and customs of its labouring population, has yet to be written; but Mr. Thomson here at any rate supplies a useful contribution. We wish we had more space at our command that we might say something about Mr. Thomson's experience amid the rapids and on the Upper Yangtsze. Men are indeed what circumstances make them, and this is a maxim of which the author gives at least one striking illustration. He shows us the coal cropping out on the mountain side, and on the bank of a navigable stream; and he shows us also the miners at work there, but so clumsy are their operations, that coal, which is enormously abundant, is used very sparingly for fuel. So the poor in China, who know nothing of the comforts of a fireside, pad their garments with cotton wool, looking like "animated bolsters," never undressing till the winter is over, never washing, and therefore never free from vermin. Can we wonder if such dirt and degradation produce a low moral standard in the race?

Should Mr. Thomson's concluding volume prove as good as the three first have been, we think that few will ever regret that they laid out their money in the purchase of his fascinating work.

Mitchell Aird, barrister of the Middle Temple. Without casting any reflections upon the numerous authors of works upon Blackstone, it seems to us that Mr. Aird's work meets the requirements of the law student by presenting all that is essential without the encumbrance of that technical detail which, as the author says, often causes the student to desert his studies. "Blackstone" is served up to the student with a certain piquancy of flavour which makes its natural dryness palatable, and, under the able supervision of Mr. Aird, the Compendium of the Laws of England is comparatively light reading. Adopting the interrogatory system, the author has embraced all the legal points and practical information contained in four volumes of "Blackstone" as originally written, supplemented by subsequent statutory enactments and important legal discussions. Regarded as an elementary work this book may be considered to have admirably answered the purpose for which it was intended by the author, viz., to render "Blackstone Economised" a "solid foundation on which the student may build a legal edifice."

We have received from the publishers, Messrs. A. H. Baily and Co., this year's edition of "Who's Who." All the necessary additions have been made to the personnel of the titled classes during the past year, and the Almanack which is bound up with the work is a special feature of interest.

The third and last volume of Mr. Forster's life of Dickens is now definitely announced to appear during the present month.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, JAN. 20.

We learn from Vienna that the Association formed there, after the close of the Exhibition, for promoting and extending the commercial relations with the Far East, and commenced by laying the foundation of an Oriental Museum, has already achieved another success, to which the Austrian Government and the Japanese Minister-Resident Sano have mainly contributed. Arrangements are in course of preparation for opening a market in Japan for one of the most important articles of Austrian manufactures,—that of woollens and cloth. These are for the most part not only lighter in texture and quality than those of Belgium and England, but also much cheaper, and therefore better able to compete successfully, especially in the countries of Eastern Asia, where the difference of price turns the scale. Hitherto all attempts to nduce the manufacturers to enter into competition with England in the markets of the Far East failed through their own indolence and disinclination to enter into commercial transactions which from their very nature can only be wound up after the lapse of a considerable period of time. By the combined efforts of the above-named factors some of the largest manufacturers in the woollen trade have now resolved to make new trials, the first of which is to be directed towards Japan, as one of the principal markets to be opened up to Austrian industry. They, however, make it a condition that one of the Lloyd steamers shall go from Trieste through the Suez Canal to Japan at least every three months. There will be no difficulty in the accomplishment of this condition, as the Austrian Lloyd Company, who now run a steamer every month from Trieste to Bombay, have expressed their readiness to extend the voyage to Japan every three months or oftener, provided there is a reasonable chance of obtaining sufficient cargo to cover their expenses, and leave over a moderate amount of freight as profit for the company.

A deputation of Japanese, headed by their diplomatic representative Sano, paid a visit last week to Dr. Felder, the Burgermeister of Vienna, and were introduced by Baron von Gagern. The object of the visitors was not only to pay their respects to the chief magistrate of the metropolis, but principally to obtain some information about the internal organisation and arrangements of the commune with a view to their future introduction in Japan. The Burgermeister willingly gave the needful explanations. They were then conducted by him through the building, inspected the public offices of the Corporation, and spent some time in the splendid saloons set apart for the sittings of the Common Council and of the chief magistrates or aldermen, in which latter they were much struck with the long and beautiful series of full-length portraits of the reigning dynasty of the Hapsburgs, appearing most especially to admire the picture of the Empress Maria Theresa.

COMMERCIAL.

The Produce Markets are calm, but prices are generally steady. Pepper is cheaper; Singapore may be had at 75 to 76 marks, and Penang at 71 to 72; White sells at 110. There is no alteration in the value of Teas, Rice, or other Eastern produce, and the transactions were few and small. At public sale 150 chests of Galangal Root were put up, and sold rapidly at 19 to 20 marks 30 pfennigs. There is a fair demand for Terra Japonica, which is now firmer, selling at 26½ to 27 marks.

ROTTERDAM, JAN. 21.

The members of the First Chamber have left the Hague, after having voted the estimates for 1874. The debate on the Budget was anything but interesting. It is anticipated that the Cabinet will make use of its leisure hours to prepare some important measures, or rather to fulfil some of its promises. Mr. Geertsema will have to lay before the members his Reform Bill, and the Minister of the Department of Justice will see the urgency of taking the first step towards the reorganisation of our judicial system. If the Minister of the War Department has any real intentions to provide us with the necessary means of defence, he must now declare them; and last, but not least, the new Minister of the Naval Department—rumours are in circulation that it has at last been possible to find a naval officer ready to accept the portfolio (?) —must set to work to do what his predecessor left undone. Mr. Fransen van de Putte will have the easiest task; he may pass the hours in dolce farniente idleness if the telegrams about our military operations in Atchin continue to be as favourable as they have been during the last few weeks. Since he introduced in vain his famous Culture-law the Premier seems to have been converted to Conservative principles, and he does nothing to alter the scandalous squeezing system, while he has become a warm defender of maintaining the Governmental coffee culture system. Indeed, it is not at all improbable, as, indeed, it is foretold in one of our best periodicals that before many years elapse the Conservative and Liberal parties will be united by homogeneous principles, and that their opponents will be the Clericals and Radicals. The Liberal party of 1848 belongs to history; our so-called Liberals when in opposition make much noise and ask for important measures of reorganisation, but if they themselves hold the reins of Government they either do nothing or propose half measures, which satisfy nobody. This is the case as regards Mr. Geertsema, who has at last brought forward his Bill for the reorganisation of academical education. The Minister proposes to subsidy the gymnasia, as communal institutions, and to fix the duration of the educational term at seven years. He wishes to maintain the three existing academies of Groningen, Utrecht, and Leiden. The general opinion, however, is that at least one academy—that of Groningen—must be sacrificed. The principal effect of the Bill will be that the existing theological faculty will be abolished, to be replaced by a chair for the science of the religion. This is of course a Liberal measure, but I should be much surprised if its effect is equally liberal. Up to this moment our academies prepare for the service only Protestant Ministers, and of course only Protestants can be appointed professors. But if this Bill is carried—the chances of which are but very small—the professorships can be occupied by Jews, Catholics, in a word, by any one who can give instruction in the science, which, of course, has now become a strictly literary one, exempt from all dogmatism. The salaries of the professors are to be a minimum of 4,000 guilders a-year, to be augmented after five or ten years' service. These are the outlines of this important Bill, which will supply a missing link in our instruction laws.

I regret to record the death of Mr. H. M. de Brauw, junior, a member of the Second Chamber for the district of Gouda. He was attacked by apoplexy at Haarlem and died suddenly. The deceased was one of the most meritorious and loyal members of the Opposition, and his death will be deeply felt by the Conservative party, which is already very weak. It is more than probable that the vacant seat will be obtained by a Liberal. There is already going on a vehement struggle in the district between the candidates of the several parties, and the public is anxiously looking for the result. The King has conferred the Knighthood (4th class) of the Military William Order on H. Huisman, Commander in the Royal Navy, now serving in Batavia. This, however, is granted to him for his participation in the military operations to the South and East Coast of Borneo in 1852.

The Amsterdam Committee of the "Red Cross" has forwarded £400 to the Chief Committee at Batavia on behalf of the sick and wounded soldiers in Atchin.

The King has appointed as Dutch Consul at Port Said Mr. D. J. Brouwer.

Some months ago the Straits newspapers told a story about certain endeavours made by an Atchinese ambassador to engage the American Consul at Singapore to negotiate for a treaty between the United States and the Atchinese Empire, and it was added that the Consul declined to send the draft of that treaty to Washington. The same story is now told again by the New York World, which paper recommends the American Government to obtain a pied a terre in the island of Sumatra. The leading Liberal papers regard this as a very serious matter, and one likely to involve the Minister of the Colonial Department in international difficulties. At the same time these papers blame the Minister of the Colonial Department for refusing to lay before Parliament all the documents regarding our war with Atchin. I need not add that there is not the least chance that the Minister will grant this demand. It was in the first place Mr. van Goltstein who induced the Minister to tell all about the motives which caused this costly war, which, according to his opinion, has greatly injured the Liberal policy in East India.

The topics of the day in the press remain the questions—what to present to his Majesty on the 25th anniversary of his accession to the throne; and where to place the statue of Mr. Thorbecke.

The King has started for his seat Het Loo, where he will remain till the middle of February.

The Ministry has announced that henceforth the soldiers belonging to the Atchinese expedition may forward letters and post cards from Atchin, via Batavia, by Dutch steamers for a postage of 5c. for each letter or card, whilst the officers may send post-cards for Holland to be prepaid with a penny stamp.

It is stated that the harbour of Nieuwe Diep will be provided with a large dry-dock, in order to compete with Flushing, and to give the necessary accommodation to the large Transatlantic steamers. The papers contained a communication that Mr. L. Hoefman, master of the steamer Holland, of the Company Java, has been dismissed, owing to complaints made by the passengers of the steamer.

But very little of interest can be reported about the Bourse; business in all stocks remains limited, in consequence of the want of confidence by the public. Some failures have taken place, and amongst them appears the firm of C. A. van Rinsum, Jr., at Amsterdam, an influential house of long standing. The Money Market continues well provided, and the minimum of the Bank rate of discount is now fixed at 4½ per cent.

ROTTERDAM, JAN. 22.

In the district of Gouda, where a re-election for a member of the Second Chamber took place to-day, the Liberal candidate, Mr. van der Loeff, was beaten by the Orthodox candidate, Dr. A. Kuyper, who obtained 1,504 votes, against only 1,252 given to Mr. van der Loeff. The struggle was very warm, and the result has been contrary to general expectation.

The medical officer, Dr. F. W. L. Tydeman, who is appointed to act as the first medical officer at Batavia, will start by the present mail for his destination.

The memory of the officers, Schoenmakers, Lafors and Voorman, who died in Atchin, has been honoured by the officers of their respective regiments, who have caused busts of the deceased officers to be placed in the regimental libraries.

BISHOP CLAUGHTON ON BUDDHISM.

At a meeting of the Victoria Institute, or Philosophical Society of Great Britain, held in the rooms of the Society of Arts, John-street, Adelphi, on the 19th inst., a paper on "Buddhism" was read by Bishop A. C. Claughton, D.D., Archdeacon of London. The Rev. Dr. Thornton presided, and there was a good attendance.

Bishop Claughton proceeded to describe the state of Buddhism as it exists in Ceylon at the present day, in preference to giving an account of the earlier traditions of its history, which, however full of interest, were of more or less doubtful accuracy. It must be kept in mind that Buddhism was rather a system of philosophy than a creed, and that, whilst it had a priesthood remarkable for their learning and the strictness of their rules of living, it did not profess to set before its followers an object of worship or encourage them to place reliance on such acts of religious observance as it permitted rather than required from them. This rendered it very difficult to institute a comparison between Buddhism and other forms of religion which prevailed among the various races of mankind, inasmuch as it enabled the Buddhist priesthood to deny their responsibility for many of the errors into which their people had fallen. But if worship was, as surely we must consider it to be, the expression of our religion as our attitude towards the Deity, we must conclude that a creed stood self-condemned which failed to provide its followers with sufficient guidance in this, the very utterance of the heart's impression in the most serious and solemn of all the ideas it could contain. The right rev. bishop, in going on to give a description of the Buddhist belief, said he described it not as it was to be gathered from books, but as he had observed it in actual life in the East. The system of Buddhism was atheistic, teaching that God is that universal existence of life which pervades everything—not a person, not creating and ruling, and not, therefore, capable of exercising moral judgment, but simply "pervading." There was a distinction to be drawn between this feature in Buddhism and another which, in fact, was a necessary consequence, viz., that it was atheistic, denying the existence of God in all the attributes of the Deity, with the exception, so far as it was worth anything, of that "universality," or vague general presence without conscious life and being. Such a theory, of course, at once rendered worship impossible. All that such a term implied, or that we signified by such an act, had no meaning if one might address no Being. The Buddhist, accordingly, did not worship; he "contemplated," and, so far as contemplation was an act or conscious operation, it was his sole occupation; it was in order to its performance that he discharged the rest of life's duties. The future of the Buddhist was Nirwâna—rest, but not conscious rest; and if we held that mere contemplation in life was an adequate result for all our efforts to have won, surely after death to have escaped consciousness was still more inadequate as a result. We required from a religion not only that it should teach morality, but that morality should be based on some sufficient principle or motive. Such a basis the Christian had for his performance of duty in the very declaration "God spake these words," and the entire character of his obedience was seen in the words of the Saviour, "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth Me," &c. The Buddhist had to enter on his life-long task without either motive or promise. To the Christian there was the object of obedience, gratitude, love, trust; to the Buddhist, nothing. The right rev. prelate observed that he never felt himself so entirely satisfied with the absolute verity and truth of the Gospel as when he could compare it with the best of all other religions, and said he was strongly of opinion that we could find nothing out of Christianity superior to Buddhism, notwithstanding it was atheistic. Bishop Claughton, in expressing an opinion that the figures of Buddha suggested something of a practical idolatry which the system itself denied, remarked that in Christianity itself we could not fail to observe an idolatrous tendency as the result of the use of external objects to excite reverence, or to assist worship. The negation of Deity was the very root of the falsity of the entire system of Buddhism. It had no belief in God for its foundation; it had no worship, strictly speaking, to offer to its adherents as the expression of such a belief; its morality was based on a false principle of merit as well as in itself abounding in fictitious and invented duties; and it had no future beyond a few vague fears of possible suffering in a subsequent life; to escape from which was its highest good. Such, said Bishop Claughton, after dwelling on these different features of Buddhism, is the system of which a few weeks ago one who knows the theory from books spoke as if it might vie with our own Christianity in excellence. If he had lived amongst its followers as I have done—if he had observed the way in which a national religion shows its effect upon a people, i.e., in making better those who follow it the most sincerely—he would have, I venture to say, come to a very different conclusion from that to which he seems to have come; and certainly, if he had known the priests of this religion as I have done, in friendly intercourse and quiet converse, and heard them calmly express their indifference as to the wider extension of their principles, or the success of Christianity itself as a possible event, he would not have ventured to say of Buddhism that it was a missionary religion seeking to propagate itself by extension like ours, which bids us "go into all the world and preach the Gospel to every creature."

Some discussion followed on the reading of the paper and of communications from Professor Chandler of Oxford, and Professor Max Muller, who differed in certain particulars from Bishop Claughton's views of the Buddhist system. Professor Max Muller, however, said, that judging Buddhism from its own sacred books, he was not led to differ "much" from the bishop in his estimate of it. A note was also read from Dr. Brewer, M.P., expressing satisfaction that Dr. Claughton had taken up the subject. Bishop Claughton was asked, among other questions, as to the actual state of morality in a Buddhist community as compared with the state of morality in a Christian community like that of England, and replied that, with all our faults, the latter was immeasurably superior to the former. In fact there was no comparison. In the course of the discussion reference was made to Buddhistic views which were alleged to have been expressed in some of the writings of Mr. Matthew Arnold and others. The proceedings concluded with votes of thanks to Bishop Claughton for his paper, and to Dr. Thornton for presiding.

GERMAN COMPETITION IN COMMERCE.

The Liverpool Journal of Commerce remarks that a great deal is being said at the present time about the rapid strides Germany is making in the direction of establishing a predominant commercial connection in different parts of the world, and more especially in the East. Were all the statements worthy of belief, and the inferences therefrom natural and conclusive, it would seem that the supremacy of the English merchant is over in lands opened up by himself, and that in future we must play a subordinate part to the mighty Teutonic power which, having asserted its military pre-eminence in Europe, is about to turn its attention energetically to the arts of peace, and to achieve unquestioned victories in bloodless fields. So far as present appearances go, this new and powerful competitor—new in the sense of having somewhat suddenly displayed an unwonted activity—is to be met with in greatest force in the East. We have long considered Hong Kong, for instance, to be a colony of our own, whose prosperity was linked inseparably with the English name, and where at the expenditure of much blood and money we had raised a fabric that would minister to our aggrandisement in all ages. But the Germans have gone there in such force, and are exhibiting so much enterprise by the side of their easy-going English neighbours, that last year the local directory showed there were in the colony twenty-five German firms, against twenty-two British. Again, at Shanghai, where the trade of Northern China centres, the Germans almost equal in numbers and importance their British competitors. They appear to have insinuated themselves into a monopoly of trade in certain classes of goods all over the Indian archipelago, and no surprise need be expressed if they may be occasionally found disposing of cheap articles of hardware manufactured in Germany, and yet stamped with the name of an English firm. They appear to be bent on acquiring the coasting trade along the Chinese shores, and it is said they are able to sail their vessels at a much less cost than British shipowners can, and, of course, to carry cargoes at a lower rate. The German Government has proved itself far-reaching as it is far-seeing, and hints have been thrown out that by-and-bye Holland may become part of the great German Confederation. The Dutch are at present engaged in a war of supremacy with the Atchinese, in which the latter must eventually succumb, and it is just possible, therefore, that before many years are over, Germany may number among its possessions the territory of Atchin, which is opposite Penang, and is the key, as it were, to the entrance of the Straits of Malacca, that great highway of commerce between our East Indian possessions and China. Should all this come to pass (and the recent history of Germany exhibits some things even more strange), our rival would have a foothold in the East which no freshly-aroused activity on our part would avail to loosen.

CONFERENCE ON THE PROPOSED WEEK OF SPECIAL SERVICES.

At the usual monthly meeting of the English Presbyterian Presbytery of London, held on Tuesday, in the College, Queen-square, Mr. Donald Matheson, convener, in speaking upon the subject of the proposed week of special services, said, that the work of God throughout the country had been deepening and extending in a wonderful way, and filling all hearts with thankfulness. They knew that the week of prayer just passed had been attended by larger numbers than on any previous year, and the interest manifested in these meetings had been in excess of anything which had taken place on other occasions. They could not but feel that such a volume of prayer ascending in the name of the blessed Saviour would bring down an answer. That week of prayer was much occupied in pleading that God would pour out his Spirit on London, which might be said to be the heart of the world. He expected all had come to the conclusion that they should go on in whatever work God was preparing for them to do, and were prepared to throw themselves upon God for guidance. The committee had addressed a paper to each member of Presbytery, inviting that special prayer should be offered at once on the part of each congregation for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit and for guidance in any work they might be called upon to undertake for the mission. As many felt there was an element of Ritualism on the part of the Bishops, they were doubtful how far they should co-operate in that work; but he felt that as there had been much believing prayer for months, the prayer-hearing God would, notwithstanding, extend a blessing at that time. During the ten days from the 8th to the 18th of February the whole of London would be agitated. Great numbers would be going to church, and should they shut their churches against them? They were not to depreciate the work to be undertaken by the Church of England, for he believed much faithful preaching would be the result. If there should be any scruple they might choose the second week. The committee had also invited suggestions, but had only received three, one declining to co-operate, while the other two expressed willingness to take part in any measures proposed. The plan most adopted by those acquainted with such services was the inviting of preachers from other parts of the country to address the meeting, while the ordinary minister presided. Earnest, simple Gospel addresses were delivered every evening, and a prayer-meeting held in the morning. After the evening service what is called the after-meeting was held, when souls were specially dealt with; and in the course of the week the workers of the congregation should meet together for conference and prayer. As the Evangelisation Committee had recently met, Mr. Matheson supposed they were prepared to offer suggestions.—Mr. H. M. Matheson greatly rejoiced at the spirit with which the subject had been taken up by the brethren. He expressed the hope that they would remember the young in the movement they were about to undertake. He thought there was great hope in such a movement if the brethren would devote a portion of the time to the families of their congregations.

Mr. Donald Matheson said there was an influential committee, of which Mr. R. Baxter was the chairman, who were watching this movement, and were hiring all the buildings they could for the holding of services. The 400 City missionaries were prepared to co-operate where evangelistic work was to be done, and the same could be said of Mrs. Ranyard's Bible-women.

THE Rev. Joseph Edkins delivered a lecture on Thursday evening at Leyton, on the Three Religions of China, Confucianism, Buddhism, and Tauism, contrasted with Christianity. The subject was treated with considerable ability, and to those unacquainted with the country and its customs was very interesting.

AMONG the additions to the Zoological Society's menagerie during the month of December were a pair of the new Japanese storks (Ciconia Boyciana), brought home by Mr. R. Swinhoe, and presented to the society by Mr. R. H. Boyce, Chief of Her Majesty's Office of Works at Shanghai.

COURT OF CHANCERY.

IN RE HEITZ AND DEVEZE.

On the 16th inst. an appeal was heard before the Lord Chancellor and the Lords Justices from a decision of Mr. Registrar Pepys, acting as Chief Judge in Bankruptcy, and it raised a question of some importance as to the construction of the "mutual credit" clause of the Bankruptcy Act. Mr. J. L. Devéze, a general merchant, trading in London and in Lyons, under the firm of Heitz and Devéze, filed a liquidation petition in January, 1873. In August, 1872, Messrs. George Barnet and Co., merchants of London and Shanghai, had purchased for Devéze a number of bales of silk, and, in respect of the price thereof, they drew upon him two bills of exchange at six months' sight for £7,097 14s. 8d. and £5,496 17s. 7d. These bills were sold to a bank at Shanghai. They were afterwards accepted by Devéze, but as they did not fall due till April 12th, 1873, after the commencement of the liquidation, they were dishonoured at maturity. Messrs. Barnet and Co. on January 20th took up the bills and obtained possession of the shipping documents of the silk, which they afterwards sold. There then remained due to them a balance of £3,010 2s. 10d. At the commencement of the liquidation there was due from them to Devéze, in respect of some silk which they had consigned to him on their own account, a sum of £88, for which he had a lien on some silk of theirs which was in his possession. They claimed under section 39 the right to set off this £88 against the £3,010 2s. 10d., and to prove against the estate of Devéze for the balance of £2,922 2s. 10d., and to have their silk delivered up to them. The Registrar decided that they must prove for the whole debt of £3,010 2s. 10d., and that they must pay the £88 to Devéze's trustee before they could have their silk given up to them. Messrs. Barnet and Co. appealed. The Section of the Bankruptcy Act, 1869, provides—"Where there have been mutual credits, mutual debts, or other mutual dealings between the bankrupt and any other person proving or claiming to prove a debt under his bankruptcy, an account shall be taken of what is due from the one party to the other in respect of such mutual dealings, and the sum due from the one party shall be set off against any sum due from the other party, and the balance of such account, and no more, shall be claimed or paid on either side respectively.

The Lord Chancellor said that he thought the decision of the Registrar was not right. The section of the Act no doubt produced a result different from what would have been the law in the absence of it. It laid down an absolute statutory rule of set off—not a set off at the option of either party. The present being a case of mutual credit, the section said that the amount due was to be ascertained by setting off the one sum against the other, but it said nothing about the lien or security. The plain language of the section governed the case, and therefore the Registrar's order must be discharged. Lord Justice Mellish was of the same opinion. The simple question was whether upon the construction of the section the one debt was not to be set off against the other. If this was done it was equivalent to payment of the smaller debt, and the debt being put an end to the lien would be also gone. It would be in accordance with the general spirit of the bankrupt law so to hold.

Naval and Military.

Three changes in the commands of vessels on the China Station have been gazetted. Commander Armand T. Powlett (1870) is appointed to the Avon, vice Commander Patterson, retired; Commander Uvedale C. Singleton (1869) to the Ringdove, vice Commander Pitman, retired; and Commander Francis Stirling (1869) to the Thistle, vice Commander Leet retired.

A number of workmen of various trades being required for the dockyard at Hong Kong, volunteers have been asked for and obtained at Chatham Dockyard. The men wanted were blacksmiths, coppersmiths, and other artificers.

Lieut.-Colonel F. W. Festing, of the Royal Marine Artillery, who has been promoted to the rank of colonel for his services in the Ashantee War, served with the China expedition in 1857-58, including the blockade of the river and storming of the city of Canton, for which he received the China medal.

Captain Berger and Lieutenant Helme, of the 1st battalion of the 10th Regiment, have left the depôt at Chatham for Singapore, where the regiment is stationed.

Captain Fellowes, C.B., the newly-appointed captain superintendent of Chatham dockyard, has commenced his duties.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders were received on the 21st inst. at the Bank of England for £700,000 in bills on India. The amounts allotted were —to Calcutta, £700,000 ; and Bombay and Madras, nil. The minimum price was fixed at 1s. 10d. Tenders on Calcutta at 1s. 11⅛d. will receive about 93 per cent. ; above in full. A strong demand for the means of remittance to the East is apparent from this statement, the rise in the minimum fixed being 2¼ per cent., and in the price for tenders on Calcutta nearly 4½ per cent.

A quieter tone has prevailed in the Manchester Market, and the business done has been only to a moderate extent. Prices, however, of both Goods and Yarns have remained steady, and the demand, though small, coupled with the existing contracts, has been sufficient to make producers firm.

The following further announcements of dividends have been made by banking and other companies :—

The Alliance Bank a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, and an appropriation of £7,112 to reserve, which will be raised to £162,500. At the corresponding period of the previous year the dividend was at the rate of 7 per cent per annum.

The London and South-Western Bank a dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, and an appropriation of £2,500 to reserve. At the corresponding period of the previous year the dividend was at the rate of 6 per cent.

The Bank of Egypt a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum and a bonus of £1 per share, making 16 per cent. for the year. At the corresponding period of last year the dividend was at the rate of 20 per cent.

The National Discount Company a dividend at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum, leaving £1,683 to be carried forward. At the corresponding period of the previous year the dividend was at the rate of 12 per cent.

The United Discount Corporation a dividend of 3s. per share, being at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. At the corresponding period of last year the dividend was at the rate of 6 per cent.

The British and Foreign Marine Insurance Company a dividend for the half-year of 2s. per share and a bonus of 4s., making, with the payment in July, 15 per cent. for the year. In the previous year the distribution was 20 per cent.

The Merchants' Marine Insurance Company, a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, the same as at the corresponding period of last year.

The Ouvah Coffee Company, a dividend for the past half-year at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

Foster, Porter, and Co. (Limited), a dividend at the rate of 12½ per cent. per annum, the same as at the corresponding period of last year.

The Directors of the Thetis Marine Insurance Company have, owing to the losses sustained by the company on the underwriting account of 1872, decided on making a call of £5 per share, payable in two equal instalments, on the 2nd of March and the 1st of June next. The nominal capital of the company is £200,000, in shares of £20, on which £5 has been paid.

At a meeting of the creditors of Messrs. Thomas Oakes and Co., East India merchants, who suspended last month, Mr. J. N. Mason, of Gresham-street (who represented several of the largest creditors), in the chair, it was resolved to wind up the estate under liquidation, Mr. Harding (Harding, Whinney, and Co.) being appointed trustee. The total of liabilities was stated at £42,965, the unsecured portion being £21,844, against which the estimated assets (subject to realisation) are £10,402.

From the statistics issued by the Silk Association of America we learn that the imports of Raw Silk at New York and San Francisco for the last eight years were as follows:—1866, pkgs. 2,058, value $1,521,136 ; 1867, pkgs. 3,981, value $2,108,418 ; 1868, pkgs. 5,708, value $2,789,350 ; 1869, pkgs. 5,998, value $2,931,486 ; 1870, pkgs. 5,381, value $3,204,947 ; 1871, pkgs. 10,253, value $6,102,879 ; 1872, pkgs. 10,907, value $7,167,534 ; 1873, pkgs. 8,726, value $5,232,947. The importations of manufactures of Silk at the Port of New York during the last eight years were as follows :—1866, pkgs. 21,326, value $22,962,864 ; 1867, pkgs. 16,671, value $16,434,524 ; 1868, pkgs. 20,738, value $18,903,232 ; 1869, pkgs. 23,831, value $22,064,312 ; 1870, pkgs. 28,839, value $26,731,275 ; 1871, pkgs. 36,493, value $33,899,710 ; 1872, pkgs. 36,009, value $32,677,749 ; 1873, pkgs. 29,298, value $24,379,322.

It is stated that the German Government have sold £2,000,000 in silver f.5 pieces. In payment they have probably received bills on Paris and other places, which will account for the present exportation of gold.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamer China, which left Hong Kong on the 27th Nov., and Yokohama 8th Dec., for San Francisco, and due at the latter port on 1st Jan., has not yet been reported. Fifty guineas has been paid on her at Lloyds.

A great rise in the Exchanges reported from India has caused a further increase in the orders for silver for that country, and a consequent advance in the price. Purchases have been made up to 59½d. per oz. standard, and this may be considered as the present rate. It is uncertain how long the inquiry for the East will continue, and it is therefore difficult to say whether the present scale of prices will be maintained for any length of time. Mexican Dollars have again risen, in consequence of scarcity, and 58d. per oz. has been paid ; this rate would scarcely be maintained if any amount was to come to hand.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

The speculative demand for several important articles has been prolonged. The Tea market has been more active, and prices have advanced. Silk continues very quiet. The market for Coffee has been animated, leading to extensive transactions at continually advancing prices. The speculation in Rice has been renewed, although not vigorously, and prices have fluctuated whilst advancing. Nearly all other leading articles have continued to be influenced by the variations in demand or supply, in the absence of speculative inquiry. Sugar has continued dull, and prices for common qualities have given way. Spices have been dull of sale, with the exception of Cloves. Gambier has recovered from the recent decline. Sago and Tapioca have been in large supply, and are lower. Tin has also declined in value.

TEA.

The market rules firm, but the last day or two importers have shown more desire to quit their holdings at current rates. The Teas ex Weymouth have been offering, and sales are passing at 11½d. to 1s. 1d. for Shantam kinds (1,000 chests, ex Ulysses, sold at auction 1s. to 1s. 0¾d.), good useful to medium, second crop, chiefly Ningchow kinds, making 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6½d. per lb. Scented Teas : The Aracan's cargo has been on offer, and buyers are securing those parcels of Caper that cannot be affected by the Adulteration Act, say, olive-leaf kinds, and they give good profits, but the glazed kinds are unsaleable except at a heavy loss on cost. Green Teas : The great falling off in supplies has produced a very strong feeling, and Moyunes are eagerly competed for ; Pinsueys maintain the late advance, with, however, less doing. The Canada and New York markets will, doubtless, take further supplies from here, owing to the great deficiency in direct shipments from China.

Congous : Red-leaf kinds : Siftings of old import have sold more readily from 4¾d. to 5½d. per lb., showing ½d. per lb. advance ; broken-leaf kinds have also been more in request. Fair to good common has been steady at last week's prices. Fair Kaisows have been firm, but the business done has only been moderate, as also in the good kinds, from 1s. 4d. to 1s. 7d. per lb. ; fine as yet meet with but little inquiry. Pak Lin kinds have become scarce. Black-leaf kinds : The low to fair common kinds have been in active demand at 1d. to 2d. per lb. advance. Good common has sold ½d. per lb. dearer ; fair to good medium remain firm at last week's prices, with a moderate amount of sales ; good to fine kinds have been rather more saleable, but show no change in prices ; finest being scarce remain firm. New-make kinds : Common to fair remain much as before ; good kinds have sold rather more freely. The few sales of Oolongs have been at about previous prices. In Souchongs business has been limited, prices remaining much the same. Scented Teas : Canton Capers sell slowly at about former rates for glazed kinds, the olive-coloured still selling readily at full prices. Foochow kinds have been in good demand, at fully former prices. Orange Pekoes : Canton kinds remain dull of sale, at former prices ; Foochow kinds sell only slowly, without material alteration in price. Green Teas : The improved feeling last noted continues, and prices for some kinds show a further slight advance, more especially in Moyune and the finer descriptions of Pingsueys, other sorts showing but little alteration.

SILK.

The market continues extremely quiet, and as yet there are no signs of improved demand ; home manufacturers supply just their immediate wants, and will not buy in anticipation, while for export there is no enquiry whatever, the direct shipments from China to the Continent fully meeting the demand of foreign manufacturers ; prices are generally unaltered for good and fine Silk, which is scarce, but more recent sales of common Tsatlees, which are unusually abundant, show easier rates. Japan and Canton Silks are equally quiet with Chinas. The deliveries are fairly good, being from 1st to 21st inst. :—China, 2,197 ; Canton, 459 ; Japan, 575 ; Bengal, 217 ; Total, 3,448 bales.

COFFEE.

The market has continued in an active state, additional support being derived from the intelligence of rising prices in all the important markets abroad, and estimates of the coming Ceylon crop reduced to 25,000 tons or even less, and with an extensive speculative demand, large floating sales have been made, prolonging the upward movement, and at the close a further total advance of 3s. to 4s. per cwt. has been established in all positions. A large supply of Plantation Ceylon has been brought to auction, including a good proportion of new crop, which is of better quality, both as regards size and colour than for the past two seasons, and with an active demand prices have continued to advance, and a further total rise of 4s. for coloury new crop and 3s. for grey kinds has been established. The new crop of Native is also of fine quality, and sales have been made at 4s. advance. Closing prices are Plantation, triage and ordinary 113s. to 127s., small 128s. to 131s. 6d., low middling pale grey to coloury 132s. to 133s. 6d., middling coloury 134s. to 135s. 5d., good middling to fine bold coloury 136s. to 139s. 6d., pea-berry 133s. to 135s., Native ordinary to good ordinary 114s. to 115s. 6d., fine ordinary 117s., pea-berry 115s. to 118s. With an animated speculative demand the floating transactions in Plantation have been unusually large, closing at 127s., or 4s. higher.

SUGAR.

The market has continued dull ; better refining qualities, being relatively scarce, have maintained the previous value ; but common and low brown descriptions, of which a large portion of the stock consists, have been in large supply and are lower. Penang : All kinds have been difficult of sale, even at 6d. decline, and in auction, of 3,094 bags, only 600 bags sold, low yellow (duty 2s. 5d.) at 22s., fine brown (duty 2s.) at 21s. to 21s. 6d. ; 3,739 bags 484 baskets Date sort (duty 2s.) were bought in at 18s. to 20s. Manila : A reduction of quite 6d. per cwt. having been accepted for the better qualities a large business has ensued ; no sales have occurred at auction, but privately the sales comprise 64,000 bags, viz., 8,000 bags good clayed (duties 2s. and 2s. 5d.) at 22s., 50,000 bags sun-dried Ilo Ilo (duties 2s. and 2s. 5d.) at 19s. 6d. for brown to 23s. 6d. for fine dry yellow, a large portion at 20s. to 20s. 6d., and 6,056 bags brown sun-dried Cebu at 20s. 3d. Of Java on the spot 500 bags good syrups have been placed at 17s. 6d. Several floating cargoes of fine Java have been offered, but there has been little demand, and only one has changed hands, viz., the Bengal 2,700 baskets fine quality about No. 18 at 29s. 3d. for Bristol.

COCOANUT OIL has been very firm. On the spot 50 tons Ceylon have changed hands at £35 5s. cash, 30 tons at £36 for pipes with the usual prompt, and at £36 12s. 6d. for hogsheads, since when 50 tons sold at £36 cash, and some at £37 with prompt. The demand forward has continued good, and higher prices have been realised, viz., 50 tons for April-June delivery at £37 2s. 6d., 100 tons at £37 10s. and 50 tons November shipment at £37.

CAMPHOR has become rather quieter, on account of the firmness of holders, and only about 400 cases China have been sold at 90s., and in auction 50 cases at 90s. to 90s. 6d., being firm, and about 1,300 cases for arrival, f o b in Hamburg, at 87s. 6d. per cwt.

CARDAMOMS.—Of 12 bags Ceylon offered 9 bags mouldy sold at 4s. 11d.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—Prices are higher; of 8 cases reed part sold at £12 2s. 6d. to £12 7s. 6d., being an advance of 20s. per cwt., and of 50 cases lump one-fourth sold at £8 17s. to £9 10s. for fine, and £5 10s. dull usual kind.

EBONY continues to rule low, there having been further considerable arrivals; of 50 tons Ceylon at auction part sold at £8 17s. 6d. per ton.

GALLS.—The market is quiet, but China are firmly held, and the few sales which have been effected have been at the previous value, viz., 55s. per cwt.

GAMBIER.—The market has been steady, and closes firm; about 600 tons have changed hands privately, ex quay at 24s., closing at 24s. 4½d., ex warehouse 24s. 3d. to 24s. 6d.; afloat Oct.-Nov. shipment 24s.; Jan.-Feb. 24s. 4½d. to 24s. 6d., closing with buyers; 7,044 packages offered at auction mostly cubes, half sold; good to fine pale at 34s. to 36s. pressed, dark to pale 27s. to 33s., being lower.

GUTTA-PERCHA is very inactive, and of 530 baskets offered one-fourth only sold at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. for good, and 6½d. to 1s. 2½d. for ordinary reboiled to fair genuine.

HEMP.—Increased depression has prevailed, arising from anxiety to sell, and a further decline of 20s. per ton has been established for Manila. Privately about 600 bales have been sold, including 250 bales mixed quality at £38, the remainder, chiefly Quilot, price not reported. An unusually large supply was brought to auction, but there was little disposition to buy, although holders were willing to accept some reduction, and 5,429 bales, chiefly per Whitehall, imported March, 1873, were all bought in, mixed to barely fair (1,750 bales) at £38 10s., fair (2,000 bales) at £39 10s., rather mixed to fair Sorsagon (1,600 bales) at £39 10s. to £40, with the exception of 30 bales fine Quilot, which sold at £47 10s.

INDIA-RUBBER.—Market steady but quiet; Borneo rules at 1s. 6½d. per lb.

Afloat it is offering rather freely at less money. Cassia is dull, with small sales at 5s. 2d. per lb. Nutmeg is very quiet and lower; of 15 cases offered 6 cases sold at 7½d. to 7⅝d. per oz. for good quality.

RICE.—The speculative demand for new crop has become more decided, and considerable sales have been effected at improving prices, although slight fluctuations have occurred, and the closing prices show a recovery of 9d. per cwt. Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Our advices by the present P. and O. mail extend to the 16th Dec., but by the Pacific Mail Company's steamers China and Colorado, which arrived at San Francisco on the 15th and 18th ult., we have seven days' later news, viz., to the 23rd Dec., of which the following summary has been telegraphed to New York :—

Considerable speculation has arisen among foreigners over rumours of serious disagreement between the Ministers of various nations and the Japanese Government. For once these reports are not wholly without foundation. The exact circumstances are as follows :—Soon after the return of the native Embassy the question of treaty revision being brought up, an effort was made to secure a promise that the whole Empire should be thrown open to foreigners. This was met by a proposal that the foreign Governments should surrender the privilege of exterritorial jurisdiction. It was declared that this would not be conceded under any circumstances, whereupon the Japanese Government not only declined to entertain the project of opening the country, but began gradually to withdraw certain liberties which they voluntarily permitted some time ago. It is supposed that this was done to show that the unyielding temper of the foreign representatives could easily be combated by a strict adherence on the part of the Japanese to the letter of the territorial regulations. Although their right to restrain foreigners within the prescribed limits cannot be disputed, their action is loudly complained of, and as a sort of retaliatory measure, the claims for the balance of the Simonosaki indemnity have been presented by some of the Ministers and pressed with unusual earnestness. They will be met promptly by offers of immediate payment, a result which was neither expected nor altogether desired. Thus the advantage will be for a while on the side of the Japanese. Exterritorial jurisdiction is now the only important subject for debate. The foreign Ministers are all instructed to enforce its continuance, notwithstanding the fact that the British Government, after consideration, has unqualifiedly condemned the principles of exterritorial jurisdiction in the case of China.

It is urged that the whole country should be thrown open to foreigners at an early period, a proposition which the Japanese steadily refuse to entertain, except on the condition that ex territorial jurisdiction be abandoned. The Ministers of three nations concerned in the Simonosaki indemnity, of which $2,000,000 remain unpaid, will press their claims if their desires are not acceded to. These are the envoys of Holland, France and England. The United States Minister, Mr. Bingham, holds aloof from the conferences, and has even informally notified the Japanese Government that he desires no part of the amount due to be offered to him. His action is understood to imply that while the United States will not accept their share of the indemnity, they are not disposed to appear as offering rebuke to the movements of the other parties concerned. Mr. Bingham simply wishes to take no part in the proceedings, and to have none forced on him. The other representatives are met in their demand, first, by the statement that the surrender of the $2,000,000 of the indemnity would be no fair equivalent for the opening of the country, if, indeed, such a privilege could be purchased by money at all; and, secondly, that the representatives of three powers alone have not the right to negotiate for the opening of the Empire to all; or, in other words, that a money compensation offered by France, Holland, England, and the United States, even if it would entitle them to admission, could not affect Germany, Italy, Russia, and the numerous other nations with which Japan has treaties at the same time.

The Government of Japan thus urge the impossibility of making any discrimination in the matter, and, therefore, express themselves ready to pay the demand. It is semi-officially announced that the British Minister has no wish to receive the money, but is using his claim as an instrument towards effecting his design. The Dutch and French representatives, on the other hand, desire the payment of the money. Meanwhile, the amount being ready for delivery, the Japanese have taken occasion to express their opinion on the whole question of ex-territorial right in a manner unusually forcible for them, and they have issued a circular despatch to the Ministers, rehearsing all their own objections to the system, with illustrations of its dangers, and showing that European Governments have declared against it in strong terms in the cases of other Asiatic nations. The document is the most energetic yet issued, and though not declaring in positive terms, that the ex-territorial rights as they now exist shall not be applied to the country generally, it is understood to express the final decision of the Japanese Government to that effect. The result of its reception by the foreign Ministers had not yet transpired, but there is little doubt that it will arouse the formidable opposition of the whole body. The native newspapers published in Yedo and the vicinity contain numerous articles intended to throw discredit on foreign association, and especially with respect to the revision of treaties and questions arising therefrom.

A petition is in circulation for signatures by Americans, asking of the United States Government that the surplus of the Simonosaki Indemnity Fund be returned to Japan, upon condition that it shall be devoted to educational purposes.

The Japanese Foreign-office has received an interesting despatch from China in relation to Senor Garcia, the Peruvian Envoy. The Chinese say he will be received with the courtesies and attention due to a Minister, but they will make no treaty with Peru until that nation shall have released and sent back every coolie now held there, and also pledged itself to discontinue coolie importations in the future. Considerable discontent is expressed in Japanese official circles over the fact that Garcia was allowed a favourable treaty by Soyeshima, the late head of the Foreign-office.

Hanabusa Yashmato, one of the Under Secretaries of the Foreign-office, and recently Envoy to Korea, is commissioned to represent Japan at St. Petersburg, and will soon start for his post. He is especially entrusted with the Saghalien question. The arbitration of the Maria Luz case will not come up for discussion until a year hence, when other agents will be despatched in the interest of Japan. Hanabusa's rank is that of First Secretary of Legation.

Mori, formerly Japanese Minister to Washington, now holds the position of Under-Secretary of Foreign Affairs at Yedo. Kozo, for several years a resident of America and Europe, and formerly a student at New Brunswick, N.J., has been appointed Chief Director of the College at Yedo.

A fire has occurred in Yedo, sweeping away the wooden buildings from almost as large an area as that devastated by the fire of April, 1872, and undoubtedly destroying a large amount of property, as the ground burned over was occupied by shops and residences of wealthy merchants. The exact amount of the loss has not been ascertained, but it is estimated at $200,000. A much greater amount of property was saved, comparatively, than at the previous conflagration, owing to the multiplicity of fire-proof storehouses for the deposit of valuables; most of these with their contents remained unharmed. It is rumoured that many lives were lost, but of this there is no confirmation. The usual energy has been shown by the citizens in repairing the ravages of the fire, and several streets have already been nearly rebuilt.

The Mikado and the Empress continue their visits of inspection to the public institutions. On the 17th of December they sailed in state to the dock-yard and arsenal of Yokosuka, south of Yokohama, and after examining the works by day and night returned next day to the capital.

A ball was given on the 12th December in honour of Mr. R. G. Watson, at the Yokohama United Club, and was very fully attended by the foreign residents. The Mikado on being informed of the intended departure of Mr. Watson expressed his desire to bid him farewell, and in the audience granted for the purpose adverted in complimentary terms to the satisfaction he had derived from the manner in which Mr. Watson had discharged his duties at the Court.

NAGASAKI.

Heavy gales have been prevailing in the vicinity of this port. The British three-masted schooner Rubicon, Captain Watt, bound from Vladiwostock to Chefoo, with a cargo of seaweed, experienced heavy westerly gales, was driven out of her course, and put into this port short of water, and with the loss of her foretop-gallantmast and main-gaff-top, and her wheel broken; she subsequently proceeded on her voyage. The British brig Lapwing, Capt. Gilchrist, owned by Messrs. J. F. Mitchell and Co., of this port, has also put into this harbour with damage. When she was ready to go to sea the crew, consisting of Japanese sailors, refused to work; the Consular constable was sent for, and on his going forward, accompanied by the captain, one of the men stabbed them both severely. Both of the injured persons were sent to the hospital, and are at present progressing as favourably as can be expected.

All efforts to get the wreck of the steamer Nicolai afloat are for the present suspended. With the aid of two six-inch steam pumps, which take up water at the rate of about twenty tuns per minute, the preparations to float her were nearly completed, when the gale put a stop to the work, and damaged the bottom of the vessel, lying as she does partly upon the rocks, to such an extent that it has now been decided to take out the boilers and the machinery, and thus lighten her. After that, when a favourable opportunity occurs, it is hoped that she may be taken off.

We hear that the Japanese despatch vessel Kasuga-kan, which left here on the 3rd Dec. for a lengthened voyage, for the purpose of visiting the various ports of China, is also to be engaged in surveying duties.

The stone godown on lot No. 17, Desima, together with the ground on which it stands, have been offered for sale, and knocked down to Mr. L. Van de Pol for $580. We understand that the property was afterwards sold privately for $550.

We understand that the building in Nishi-Hamano-machi, now known as the Satsuma Yaski, is to be fitted up and used as the Japanese Post-office. To this place the business of this department will be removed when the new postal treaties come into force.

PEKING AND TIENTSIN.

It is stated on good authority that the Peruvian Envoy, Senor Garcia y Garcia, is having a very hard time of it with that astute diplomat and practised General Li Hung-chang, who has been delegated to treat with him on the business of the mission on which he has come. As is well-known, that business is to arrange a treaty between Peru and China. But the fact that Japan took the responsibility of acting towards Peru in the Maria Luz case in a way which that Power professed to regard as an infraction of international law worthy of being avenged by the mission of an ironclad—which ironclad and all other means of obtaining redress it nevertheless left in abeyance, and was content to accept from Japan such a treaty as that Power chose to grant—all this has evidently given the Chinese authorities their cue as to the treatment appropriate in the circumstances. It is also whispered that the forcible description given of the actual condition in Peru of the Chinese "emigrants" from Macao, by some members of the foreign legations at Peking who have personal knowledge of the subject has stimulated the Chinese Government to take very high ground in dealing with the Peruvians. What is known is that Li Hung-chang has throughout clung to the rôle of dictating terms to Senor Garcia y Garcia. And the terms he proposes must be rather difficult of digestion to the Envoy and his Government. Li Hung-chang insists that any treaty made by China with Peru must contain three stipulations, which may be stated as follows:—1. That all Chinese now in Peru shall be relieved from all and any contracts under which they are at present working, and those of them who wish to return to China shall be conveyed thither at the expense of the Peruvian Government. 2. That emigrants from China to Peru shall for the future go unfettered by any contract, shall be treated by the Courts as on the same footing with citizens of America or British and German subjects, and shall be allowed to testify in Courts. 3. That for the future no emigrants can be shipped from Macao for Peru. It remains to be seen whether Senor Garcia y Garcia will accede to such conditions, or Li Hung-chang abate in his demands.

The Emperor has granted the Governor of Shangtung, Ting Paou-chen, one year's leave of absence, that he may return home to repair his ancestral tombs; and his post of Governor of Shangtung will be kept open for him till the end of that period. His Majesty has in consequence appointed Wan-pin, Superintendent of the Grain Department in Kiangsu, to act as Governor of Shantung in the interval.

The skit upon the Audience which appeared in the last number of Puck has been gravely translated into Chinese, and now figures as a Chinese document among the archives of the Tsung-li Yamen !

It is stated that the young Emperor has twice been wandering about Peking incog. The lower classes know nothing about it, but it is believed by all the higher grades, and the ministers have been trying to dissuade him from it, as being beneath his rank and dignity.

The weather at Tientsin continues very mild, and the river is quite free from ice.

The Rice tribute will hereafter not be received at Tientsin, but at Tungchow. The junk owners are said to much prefer the arrangement.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 19th Dec. ; the French mail from London Oct. 24 arrived out on the 11th Dec. The following items of news are from the North China Herald :—

We regret very much to have to record the death, on the 13th Dec., of Lady Hornby. The offices of H.B.M.'s Consulate and Supreme Court were, in consequence, closed during the day.

The Chinese authorities of Chang-chow-foo have issued proclamations to the effect that the Grand Canal will be closed to traffic on and after the 29th Dec., for the purpose of deepening it. The two inlets from the Yangtsze, one near Chinkeang, the other below it, will be dammed up, and another will be made about twenty li from Woosieh. Sportsmen will thus be unable to gain access to the good grounds extending from Tantoo to Chang-chow-foo via Woosieh, except by the Tahoo and Kiutang. The deepening, it is said, will take one year to be thoroughly executed. Already hundreds of "Kong-poo" labourers, men and women, with implements of all kinds for the intended work, are to be seen wending their way from Chinkeang to a place distant about twenty-five li from Woosieh, where they are to be encamped. These people are engaged at Tsung-ming, &c., they say, for eighty and 100 cash a day and food.

We have the annual report of the Presbyterian Mission Press, for the year ended September, 1873. This establishment does a considerable job printing business, besides printing a number of missionary tracts, translations, &c. The balance-sheet shows that $4,064 were earned from the former source during the year under review ; Dr. Williams's Dictionary, a German-Chinese Dictionary, &c., having been among the works printed. The quantity of Chinese type which the establishment keeps for its religious work gives it peculiar facilities for also printing books of this mundane character. The Press founds its own Chinese type, and turns out some very neat specimens. A list is given at the end of the report of various religious works which have been printed during the year that will interest some readers. Judging from the figures given both in this and in the job printing department, the superintendent has evident reason to "go forward," as he says, "courageously and hopefully."

The Shanghai Steam Navigation Company's steamer Moyune has been destroyed by fire. The Moyune had been lying up for some time, in charge of a mate, two quarter-masters, and several trustworthy Chinese. The only fire on board was that to keep going the donkey-engine, with a special care for the emergency which has unfortunately occurred. There was not even a fire in the cook's galley, as the mate and all hands were messing on board one of the other steamers. A smell of smoke was first detected by the mate, and he at once ordered the hose to be got out ; the fire was discovered to be forward, near the donkey-engine room, and the hose was brought to play, and seemed for a few minutes to keep it under. But it was only for a few minutes ; in a short while the flames gathered way, and burst out beyond all control, causing even the men on board to beat a speedy retreat for their own safety. The whole ship was soon in a blaze from stem to stern, and hopelessly lost. It was fortunately ebb tide, so that there was no fear of her drifting up among the shipping, even if the fire had burnt through the cable, but this did not occur. It was found possible to haul her inshore into about two fathoms of water, in which she eventually sunk, after burning to the water's edge. The machinery is still standing upright, and a good deal that will be valuable, despite damage by the fire, will be recoverable. The loss is, of course, a serious one, the company being their own insurers against all risks. As a spectacle, the fire was magnificent. The whole harbour was lighted up for half a mile in either direction ; the varied colours of the numerous sampans that gathered near the burning steamer contrasting picturesquely with the dull glow on the water and the dark hulls of the neighbouring ships.

A notification has been issued by M. Godeaux, calling a meeting of electors on the French Concession to discuss the question of wharf extension. In the meantime, the construction of the wharf, against which a majority of the electors virtually protested in their memorial, is going on rapidly, and the all-round tenderness of official etiquette seems to restrain everyone who has power to hinder it.

The third of the series of "Winter Evening Entertainments" in aid of the funds of the Temperance Hall has been given. It was a concert by the Glee Society of Shanghai, and went off successfully.

The following items are from the Shanghai Courier :—

We give utterance to what we are sure will be a universal feeling, not only in Shanghai, but in all the foreign settlements of China and Japan visited by her, when we express our deep regret in placing in our obituary record in the present issue the name of Lady Hornby, the wife of Sir Edward Hornby, Chief Judge of H.B.M.'s Supreme Court for China and Japan. How universal was the sympathy felt was well illustrated by every Consulate and other building in the settlement showing a flag, and every ship of every nationality in harbour having their flags at half-mast. The funeral took place in the New Cemetery on the 15th December, and was strictly private, by the earnest desire of Sir Edmund Hornby.

We hear that the frigate (No. 6 of the war-vessels built at the Chinese Government's building yard at Kaou-Chang-Meaou) which for the past eighteen months has formed a conspicuous object is in such a forward state of preparation that her launch has been fixed for the Chinese Christmas Day, which this year anticipates the Christian Christmas by three days—namely, the 22nd Dec. The great aim of the native officials in charge of the Arsenal being, apparently, to built their vessels of war as closely as possible after the model of the British navy in everything (except the expense), and it having come to their knowledge that the larger British war vessels when of wood are launched in their naked state and coppered afterwards in dock, they have resolved that in this respect the frigate No. 6 shall differ from No. 5, of which it is in almost every other respect an exact reproduction. No. 5 was launched fully coppered ; No. 6 will be launched in her wooden skin and afterwards put in the Arsenal dock to be there sheathed in copper.

It is well known that most of those frequent interruptions of telegraphic communication that cause so much disappointment and annoyance to this community (and to none, of course, more so than to the Telegraph Companies and their agents) have been chiefly caused by the reckless or wilful injury of the cable near the shore, by the fishermen and junkmen from Woosung outwards. We understand that the Great Northern Telegraph Company have adopted the excellent expedient of sending a steamer down to visit all the fishing towns and villages on the islands and mainland to beyond the mouth of the Yangtsze, to explain to the natives the nature and importance of telegraphic communication, and to engage the heads of the guilds by such considerations as shall seem most likely to be efficacious, to assist the Company in protecting the cable from injury. And it is said that, at the instance of the Senior Consul, a Chinese of great local influence has accompanied Mr. Dreyer, to give all the assistance in his power to enforce Mr. Dreyer's wishes on the natives. We wish the expedition all success.

The complaint on all hands is that business is in a state of utter stagnation, and the effect of this and of the terrible tightness of the native money market begins to show itself in the reported failure of a number of large native hongs hitherto regarded as of the first standing. As to foreign finance, the dollar is, we are told, worth to-day in Shanghai only 4s. 1½d. sterling, while in England it is quoted at 4s. 9d.—a difference of about 16 per cent. Changed times since 1862, when the dollar equalled the tael in value, and was worth 7s. A party remitting £400 to England the other day had to pay for his bill the equivalent of £28 more than he paid for the same amount when the tael was at 6s ! It is in these circumstances that the business days of 1873 draw to a close. No wonder all who are able hasten to make their escape up country.

One of the passengers by the M.M.S. Provence, which left by the outgoing French mail last week, was Mr. MacPherson, one of the foreign commissioners sent by the Chinese Government to inquire into the condition of Chinese emigrants in Cuba.

The missionary question at Hangchow has been most satisfactorily settled. The missionaries have received full compensation for the lots they give up, and a suitable site has been allotted to them elsewhere.

A German masonic lodge, the "Germania," has been opened here.

FOOCHOW.

We take the following from the Foochow Herald :—

A meeting has been held at the offices of Messrs. Gilman and Co., with a view to considering certain propositions from Messrs. Kyle and Co., relative to the formation of an ice manufacturing company at this port. Mr. John Odell was requested to take the chair, and upon doing so briefly stated the object of the meeting. Messrs. Kyle and Co. had decided to discontinue the manufacture of ice, but if the community were desirous of retaining the machinery and plant, valued at $10,000, and at present in perfect order, Messrs. Kyle and Co. would be willing to transfer the same to a public company, in which they (Messrs. Kyle and Co.) would themselves become the principal shareholders. After a somewhat desultory conversation it was ultimately agreed by the meeting to refer Messrs. Kyle and Co.'s proposals to a committee of five gentlemen, viz., Messrs. Odell, Forbes, Laurie, Wright, and Nelson, and to await their report thereon prior to taking any further action in the matter.

The following is a translation of a Chinese proclamation by the Prefect of Foochow relative to an assault upon a member of the community by some of the villagers of Kaou-hu. The assault took place some time ago. Hitherto all efforts to discover the actual offenders have been fruitless, but we understand that H.B.M.'s Consul has, with commendable zeal, insisted upon the capture and punishment of the guilty persons :—

Since the opening of this port people of all nations have flocked hither for purposes of trade. Now Chinese and English ought undoubtedly to be on good terms, and when they meet should treat one another in a polite and friendly manner. Unfortunately some short time back Mr.———, a British subject, whilst strolling about the neighbourhood, happened to pass through the village of Kaou-hu, and was pelted with stones and mud by the children of the place, who were encouraged by their elders ; such an insult as this is most disgraceful. Chen Chun-t'un and others, headmen of the village, have been ordered to give up the true offenders, in order that they may be severely punished, and the Min District Magistrate has been instructed to take measures for the prevention of a repetition of the offence. Further, this proclamation is now issued, warning the grown up men and heads of families in Kaou-hu to prevent their children and younger brothers insulting British subjects who may pass through the village. Should there be any complaint of a similar offence the offenders will be at once arrested and severely punished, and the senior members of the families to which the guilty parties belong will also be punished for not exerting their authority to restrain them. No indulgence will be shown.

The approaching races on the 19th and 20th Dec. are becoming a theme of general conversation ; we anticipate some good racing, but we fear that the fields will not be large, owing to the great number of ponies at present out of condition.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 26th Dec. ; the P. and O. mail from London Oct. 3, arrived out on the 14th Dec., and the following French mail of Nov. 7 on the 21st Dec. The China Mail supplies the following items of intelligence :—

An extraordinary meeting of the Union Insurance Society of Canton was held on the 15th Dec. at the Society's Offices. There were present :—Messrs. Pyke (in the chair), Karberg, Belilios, Captain Cairns, Hon. James Whittall, Hon. P. Ryrie, Messrs. Lowcock, Agabeg, Andre, Tak Mee, Behre, S. D. Sassoon, Welsh, Benecke, Joost, Jensen, Meyer, Dhunjeebhoy, Cameron, James Greig, and Ede. The Chairman, in opening the proceedings, said :—

You have been specially advised by a printed circular of the object of this meeting. Doubtless you will remember at the general meeting held on 1st July last, with reference to the formation of the new society, the directors intimated they did not think it absolutely necessary to create a reserve fund. Personally I was opposed to such an important alteration in the constitution of the society, for a reserve fund must necessarily strengthen the position of any public company. In reference to the wishes expressed by many old supporters of the office, the provisional committee have thought it expedient to ask you to meet to-day to reconsider the question of forming a reserve fund. To do so legally, it will be necessary to make several changes in the articles of association as per memo. now on the table. I may mention the applications for shares in the new office largely exceeded the number at the disposal of the Provisional Committee, and we have good reason to believe the shares reserved for England have been placed to advantage. With reference to the reduction in the rate of premia, the Provisional Committee cannot but express regret that a combined course of action was not adopted by the various local offices. Unquestionably the premia for coast risks was high and could bear a reduction, but experience has proved the rates to England and other distant places are already below a fair standard, and underwriters at home have found it necessary to raise the scale on risks from China. If you approve of the formation of a Reserve Fund, I solicit your support to the resolution.

The resolution embodying the necessary alterations in the articles of association of the society was then read, and was unanimously carried. The second extraordinary meeting for the purpose of electing directors was then held. The ballot resulted thus :—Mr. Pyke, Hon. P. Ryrie, Hon. J. Whittal, Messrs. Joost, Lowcock, Sassoon, and Hon. R. Rowett. The above gentlemen were unanimously elected as directors for the new society, and the proceedings terminated.

The Hon. Phineas Ryrie, Member of the Legislative Council ; Henry George Thomsett, R.N., Harbour Master ; and Malcolm Struan Tonnochy, Acting Registrar-General, are appointed a commission for instituting and presenting all needful and proper inquiries into the action of the Chinese Maritime Customs in the neighbourhood of Hong Kong, and the detriment of trade arising out of alleged abuses of such action.

The Gazette notifies that tenders will be received at the Acting Colonial Secretary's office for the erection of a lighthouse at Cape D'Aguilar, and that tenders will also be received for effecting certain alterations and additions to Mountain Lodge, Victoria Peak. The Gazette publishes a notification, appending a note from the Captain-General of the Philippine Islands, to the effect that the ports of Legaspi in Albany, Island of Luzon, and Tacloban, in the Island of Leyte, have been declared open for commerce in general for importation and exportation.

The result of the military examination at Canton which was made known on the 18th Dec. has sadly disappointed the Wai Sing Lottery people, as of all the eligible surnames, only nine were amongst those of the successful candidates ; and as these were popular names—names which almost every one would choose for the purpose of the lottery—nearly every ticket holder comes in for a share of the prizes, which of course have to be divided amongst a great many people. The first graduate is a native of Toongkoon, and is only twenty years of age. Of the several thousand candidates, there were only 86 elected, and of these the Heongshan district boasted of furnishing 8, Sunooy 8, and Toongkoon 7 ; the rest were distributed amongst the various district of Kwangtung. The above three districts are famous for the courage of their inhabitants.

We regret to record the death of Mr. C. R. Reed, of the Control Department, who has been resident at Macao and in this colony for some years. He was taken suddenly ill and died almost immediately. His death is attributed to disease of the heart, to which we believe he had been subject for some time.

The flagship of the China Squadron, H.M.S. Iron Duke, arrived in harbour on the 15th December. The American and Russian Admirals saluted the British Admiral on his arrival. The salutes were returned by H.M.S. Iron Duke. The Iron Duke will shortly proceed to Singapore and Penang in connection with the recent disturbances and piracies at Laroot. Admiral Shadwell will probably visit the field of the Dutch war operations at Atchin.

The Criminal Sessions of the Supreme Court were opened on the 18th December, but there were only four cases on the calendar, one of which was a charge of piracy and murder. At the suggestion of the Attorney-General, the Court assigned Mr. A. P. Handley to defend the prisoner, who is to be tried by a special jury. The prisoner charged with uttering counterfeit coins will probably be sent back to the Magistracy for summary conviction.

We observe that the "American Cup" is to be sailed for on the 27th Dec., the race to be open to all yachts belonging to the Club. We further learn that another Douglas Challenge Cup is to be offered for competition, it being provided in part by the munificence of the head of the firm of Messrs. Douglas Lapraik and Co. and the remainder to be made up by subscription on the part of a few leading members of the Yacht Club.

The Canton races have gone off very successfully. Sir Arthur Kennedy and family, Sir Brooke Robertson and all the elite of Canton were present, and the two days seem to have given complete satisfaction. The amateur theatricals have also been most successful, and the port subsides into its everyday round of business with a proud satisfaction that it well maintained its old credit for hospitality and knowing how to make holiday properly. The Governor, Lady and Miss Kennedy and suite, left Hong Kong on the 15th Dec. for the races, and returned on the 22nd.

A fine specimen of the boa has been brought over from Kowloong, and is now domiciled at the Hong Kong Dispensary. It measures about 9 ft. in length, and is 4 or 5 in. in diameter at the thickest part. As he is alive and wriggling, some difficulty was found in obtaining the data above given. He is regarded as a rarity.

The following are the monthly returns of the various Banks :—

	Average Amount.	Specie in Reserve.
Oriental Bank Corporation	$552,015	$250,000
Chartered Mercantile Bank of India, London, and China	745,202	250,000
Chartered Bank of India, Australia, and China...	410,253	150,000
Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation	1,713,503	600,000
Total	$3,420,973	$1,250,000

We note the return by the French mail of the Hon. J. G. Austin, Colonial Secretary. M. Frater, of H.B.M. Consular Service, returned by the same opportunity, and proceeds on to Shanghai to resume his duties.

Whilst the United States steamer Monocacy was getting steam up on the 20th Dec. to leave for Bangkok, her steam chest burst, severely scalding three of her crew. She is necessarily detained here in consequence to repair.

The P. and O. Company have laid down the keel of a steam launch, at their factory, forty-five feet six inches long, nine feet beam, and six feet depth of hold.

We understand that a telegram has been received by the Naval Authorities ordering H.M.S. Salamis to return home at once.

The Corona cleared on the 12th Dec. from Whampoa with 388 emigrants, of whom forty were women, twenty-six boys, five girls, and three infants, bound to Demerara. She is thus about 100 short of her full complement, but as she had been a month and a half on the berth it was not deemed advisable to detain her longer. It would appear that at present there is little desire amongst the Cantonese to emigrate to the West Indies.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this mail extend to the 1st Jan.; the French mail from London Nov. 21 arrived out on the 22nd Dec., and the following P. and O. mail of Nov. 28 on the 30th Dec. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

A correspondence has passed between the Colonial-office and Mr. Rawlinson on the subject of the Singapore Waterworks. The decision of the Government on this question was delayed during the past year, owing to the suggestion of Sir Harry Ord, at the eleventh hour, to refer the matter back to Mr. Rawlinson to endeavour to reduce the height of the distributing reservoir by some twenty feet. To this suggestion Mr. Rawlinson replies that he fixed the head of seventy feet with all the plans, details, and sections before him, and that the proposed reduction would seriously affect the water supply in the distant parts of the town. Sir Andrew Clarke, to whom this reply was sent, referred it back for Mr. Rawlinson's opinion as to the alternative scheme of pumping into a standpipe at the impounding reservoir, which, Mr. Rawlinson points out, would effect no saving, while it might fail to provide the necessary supply of water all over the town. It is to be hoped, now, that the question is definitely settled, and that the work, which day by day becomes of more pressing urgency, will ere long be undertaken in earnest. The money lies ready at hand, the Secretary of State has given his consent to the appropriation of the funds for this purpose, and all that remains to be done is for the Council to pass the vote and the Government to place the work in hand; at all events, we trust no more excuses will be found for delay.

All the late intelligence we have regarding the Atchin war is contained in a few curt telegrams. We learn, however, that the Dutch forces have met with a stronger resistance, and had a hard-fought battle to get possession of the plain surrounding the Kraton, as the Sultan's palace is called. According to their own account the Dutch have lost heavily in officers, who would appear to have been picked out by the Atchinese. The Kraton still held out at last advices, and the Atchinese garrison had been reinforced by the Rajah of Pedir with 1,500 men. The Dutch were preparing heavy batteries, to lay regular siege to the stronghold, which cannot withstand heavy artillery, and must speedily be rendered untenable by the showers of shot and shell that will be poured into it. The Dutch believe that the Sultan is still within the Kraton, but we think this open to doubt. The little resistance this second expedition has met with so far, compared with that which the first one encountered, is due to the greater strength of the Dutch forces, to the employment of artillery wherever it can be used, and to the successful stratagem of the Dutch in effecting a landing where they were not expected, and where the preparations for defence were weaker. But from the known warlike character of the Atchinese, and the contempt of death they exhibited in the former battles, together with the large force they mustered to repel the first expedition, it would not be surprising were they yet to give the Dutch serious trouble before attaining the object of their expedition.

The Secretary of State for the Coloniea, with the masterly acuteness of a statesman, has solved the problem submitted to him near the close of Sir Harry Ord's administration, by accepting the proffered resignations of the three unofficial members of the Legislative Council. It was hoped that this step would have elicited from his lordship some expression of opinion, that would serve as a guide to the Government. of Crown Colonies in future similar emergencies; and we are willing to believe this might have been done but for the recent change in the administration; but any official censures that might have fallen deservedly on Sir Harry Ord for his Executive rough riding would certainly be misapplied by showering them upon the head of a successor, who, but newly entered upon his office, had done nothing to deserve them. Neither would it be politic for the Secretary of State to insist upon the retention of their seats, under the new Governor, by members who had indignantly thrown them up under the retiring one. So, all circumstances considered, his Lordship has, we think, it will be admitted, chosen the only course that lay open to him in accepting the tendered resignations. We presume, however, this will not prejudice their re-appointment by the present Governor; and from the valuable service which even Sir Harry Ord readily admitted they have performed in the past, we hope the public may yet continue to enjoy the benefit of their presence and influence in the Legislative body.

The disease that has prevailed among the cattle here for the past five or six weeks is, we are glad to announce, leaving the place, without having occasioned any serious losses to the cattle-owners beyond the loss of their earnings during that time. Most of the diseased cattle have recovered, and are now at work again. There were comparatively few deaths.

It being now the holiday season, there has been more than usual gaiety. Most noticeable among the entertainments have been two balls, the first at Government-house, on the evening of the 23rd Dec., which was very numerously attended, and the second at the Town Hall, on the 29th, when the Freemasons gave the most successful ball that has been held here for many years. The Government observed three days holiday at Christmas, and the banks and merchants will do the same at the New Year; and, notwithstanding mail exigencies, both these festivals this year are kept on their proper days. The usual sports on the Esplanade and a lively regatta in the harbour will be held.

The latest received Java journals represent the cholera as gradually and steadily decreasing in Batavia, where the recent official returns, dated the 10th December, report that among fifteen cases under treatment two recovered, seven died, and six remained on hand; of these latter one was a European. The disease was rather on the increase at Buitenzorg, but on the decrease at Tangerang. It was prevailing at Sourabaya, Japara and Cheribon. It is officially stated that cholera has broken out amongst the Dyaks on the Upper Kapuas River, Western Division of Borneo; it is supposed to have reached them from Sarawak.

We understand that the Hon. C. B. Plunket, Inspector-Genera of Police, has been granted three months' extension of leave of absence. He will not, therefore, be here in January, as expected, and the public will have the benefit of Captain Dunlop's services for three months longer than otherwise. It is earnestly to be hoped that means will still be found to retain him permanently in a place for which he has proved himself so eminently fitted, and where he has done so good service during the time he has filled it.

A robbery of Bank-notes, to the amount of upwards of $1,800, from the shop of a Chinese shopkeeper in South Bridge-road, has been committed. The shopkeeper had gone out, leaving his clerk in charge, and on his return missed the notes from the drawer in the counter, which had been broken open. The clerk said he had gone out behind to the well, and on his return found the drawer broken open. The shopkeeper reported the loss at once to the police, who took the clerk into custody on suspicion. The latter, finding himself in the hands of the police, became frightened, and at last confessed to the theft; search was then made about the premises, and the whole of the notes were found hidden near the well.

The s.s. Braemar Castle, Captain Marshall, has arrived from London, having made the passage under thirty-seven days.

PENANG.

Our advices extend to the 3rd January; the P. and O. mail from London Nov. 28 arrived out on the 27th Dec. The following is from the Penang Gazette:—

We have to record the death of Abraham Logan,-co-proprietor and sometime editor of this paper. Abraham Logan was however better known as the editor of The Free Press in Singapore, a paper which he raised from almost obscurity until it became the authority in all matters wherein Straits' interests were concerned. For twenty two years his connection with this paper lasted. Truth, honesty and the real interest of Singapore and the Straits were the distinguishing traits of this journal under Mr. Logan's editorship and proprietorship; and when he disposed of the paper a few years ago it was with the satisfaction that he had done his duty in his day. Mr. Abraham Logan arrived in Penang in the early part of 1842, and he was admitted as an advocate and notary public the same year. The register of his admission as an advocate bears the date of 26th April of that year, and the date of James Logan's admission bears the date of the 23rd December, 1841. For thirty years the brothers worked together; in all their transactions their interests were one. They now lie in one grave in Penang churchyard, and their revered names will descend to posterity jointly with those of Raffles, Crawford and Low, as the friends of the Straits Settlements.

From Laroot we learn that Captain Speedy has captured the strongest fortification of the Sin Engs, and was, up to the 22nd January, marching towards the coast with all his forces—driving the enemy before him. The casualties on his side were literally nominal, only amounting to five or six at the most.

We have been requested to notify that the appeal made to the public of Penang by Mr. John Allan, on behalf af the widowed mother of the late James Kennedy, of H.M.S. Thalia, who lost his life in the attack on Laroot last October, realised $212. This amount was duly handed over to Lieutenant Moysey for transmission home.

We hear from Malacca that a piracy was committed near Langat about a fortnight ago, in which eight men were wounded and only only one man survived, who reported the affair at Malacca. Three piratical boats have been seized, and eight or nine Malays arrested, one of whom has turned Queen's evidence.

We are glad to find that the Lieutenant Governor has restored to public officers a portion of the Christmas holidays enjoyed by them under the rule of the Indian Government, and which they were deprived of by the late Governor Sir Harry Ord.

The merchants and traders of Malacca have forwarded a petition to Sir Andrew Clarke on the subject of the stoppage of trade between Malacca and Linghy and Sunghie Ujong, by the authorities of Rumbow.

H.M.S. Thalia left for Atchin on the 28th Dec., with a letter to the Sultan of that country from H.M.'s Government. We believe the letter recommends the Sultan to make terms with Holland as soon as he can.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—Only an extremely small business had been transacted between importers and natives during the fortnight, and the condition of the market was most unsatisfactory. The demand for the principal Grey Cotton staples had in a great measure fallen off. Fancy Cottons had been in little request, and the inquiry for Woollens had to a large extent ceased.

SHANGHAI.—Cottons: Some little inquiry for the Japan market had led to a few sales of 7 lbs. and 8.4 lbs. Grey Shirtings; but with this exception there had been no life in the import trade during the fortnight. Dealers apparently did not want goods, and where sales were pressed the prices obtained had been below market value. The stock of White Shirtings was very small, and holders generally declined to sell at current quotations. T-Cloths, Drills, Jeans and Sheetings were without change; all quotations were nominal. Fancy Cottons called for no special comment. Woollens: Scarlet Long Ells had been placed to a small extent at a further advance in price. Plain Black Orleans had after a long period of neglect come into some demand for Japan. Some small sales of Spanish Stripes at unchanged prices were reported, but other fabrics were very dull. The markets for Metals and Coals showed no improvement.

HONG KONG.—Hardly any business had been transacted during the period under review. Dealers were clearing old purchases very slowly, and show no desire to make fresh contracts. Holders were firm, and were not pressing for offers. Quotations are nearly all more or less nominal.

MANILA.—Plain Staples had been in little request, and rates remained at about our last quotations. Coloured goods continued in fair demand, and for likely styles a slight advance had been established.

BATAVIA.—Business in imports was at a complete standstill. This exceptional position is to be accounted for by the anticipated reduction in duties at the beginning of the new year. Any sales made had been merely with the object of closing accounts, but these had been to a very limited extent, and at prices which cannot be quoted as fair market values under ordinary circumstances. All quotations must therefore be considered as withdrawn. For Metals the demand had been very dull and values were unchanged. There had been no late arrivals of Coals.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead's Circular says:—A moderate business had been done in Piece Goods during the fortnight, and prices remain steady at the quotation last given. Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., have met with small inquiry at $2.42½ for best quality; 7 lbs. have been sold at $2, and 6 lbs. continue very dull. In 45-inch goods nothing of importance had been done. T-Cloths, Mexican 7 lbs., are in better inquiry; 6 lbs., ordinary quality, are in good request, and prices are firmer. White Shirtings, fine and medium makes, continue in some request. Grey Yarn, 40's, has been more inquired for, and sales to some extent have been effected. 30's Yarn and 18 to 24 are quiet. Woollens keep in moderate request. Iron is quiet, and without change in value. Lead is quiet, and without demand for local consumption. Coals are firm, and both Cardiff and West Hartley have risen in value.

PENANG.—A moderate inquiry had existed for some descriptions of Grey Staples during the fortnight, and a fair quantity of goods had been cleared at prices which showed scarcely any alteration on those last quoted. Very little business had been done in other descriptions of imports.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

HANKOW.—Settlements of Congou had been about 2,000 chests, and the stock was estimated at 1,000 chests.

KIUKIANG.—No local purchases had been made.

SHANGHAI.—Messrs. Drysdale, Ringer, and Co.'s Report says:—As the present season for Black Tea is closed, and the business in Green yet to transpire must necessarily be of an uninteresting character, we shall not again have this pleasure till the operations of the following season become of interest. Black: A rather extensive business has been done, considering the lateness of the season, and the whole of the remaining stock of Congou, with the exception of a few parcels of very undesirable Shuntaam, has been cleared off the market. Arrivals have ceased for some time, and with the departure of the Nestor season 1873-74 closes. Exports of Congou, deducting losses, is 57,782,676 lbs., against the total of last year, 61,303,366 lbs., and a total in 1871 of 70,579,477 lbs. Green: A considerable business has been done in all kinds, and prices have advanced about one tael all round. Arrivals now coming forward are of a most undesirable description. Settlements: 688 half-chests and 7,532 boxes Pingsuey at Tls. 30.0.0 to 35.5.0; 42,471 half-chests Fychow and Moyune at Tls. 23.0.0 to 46.0.0; 1,232 half-chests Shanghai packed at Tls. 22.0.0 to 25.5.0.

FOOCHOW.—A fair amount of business had been done in Congous, the estimated settlements being 10,500 chests, at prices which showed no change. Some small purchases of Souchongs had been reported, but nothing had been done in Scented Teas. Oolongs had received more attention, and moderate sales were reported, an English firm having done the bulk of the business. The purchases had been upwards of 13,000 half-chests, in which are comprised several fine strings booked at Taels 24.55 to 25.55 o. b.; the remaining parcels are various lots taken at Taels 16.8 to 20.8, and Taels 18.8 to 22.8 o. b., showing no change from former quotations. Owing to incorrect returns made by native officials, the stock of Oolongs had been reported about 8,000 half-chests greater than it really was, the actual stock on offer being only about 32,000 half-chests instead of 40,000. Departures had been the Andreas, on 9th December, for Falmouth for orders, and the s.s. Achilles for London, via Hong Kong, on the 13th. The Eme had filled up at £3 per ton and would shortly sail for New York, and the ships Endymion and Horatio were expected to load for the same port should inducement offer.

AMOY.—The remainder of the Congou crop, some 616 half-chests, had been bought up by Parsees for shipment to Bombay, and it is reported that these firms were also offering for the common grades of the remaining stock of Oolong.

CANTON.—No business had been done.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The continued unfavourable advices which had come to hand from the home markets had checked purchases, and consequently only a limited business had been done during the fortnight. Prior to the departure of the French mail there was little or no change in values, the Chinese being generally firm holders, but subsequently they had manifested more eagerness to realise, which had led to a decline of five taels per picul all round, with symptoms of a still further drop in prices. Blue Elephant chop had been taken at Tls. 395. Settlements for the fortnight, Chinas, 1,600 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 46,300 bales; against 1872, 46,800 bales; 1871, 42,000 bales. Comparative unsold stock on this market, 18th Dec., 1873, 5,500 bales; 1872, 3,500 bales; 1871, 2,500 to 3,000 bales.

CANTON.—There had been but little enquiry, about forty bales having been purchased by one house. The general position of staple was unchanged. Stock was estimated at 1,100 bales Tsatlee, 150 to 200 bales Loongkong, 150 piculs Cumchook and Lacklow, with 800 bales of inferior Long-reels.

COMMERCIAL POSTSCRIPT.

The Eastern and Australian Steamship Company's steamer Sunfoo left Batavia on the 27th ult. with the homeward mails from that port and from Queensland.

The patience of the shareholders of the British-Indian Tea Company, Limited, is at length in a fair way of being rewarded. At the meeting held on the 29th ult. the Chairman (Mr. Capel) stated that the gardens have been working at a profit, and he hopes very shortly to have the pleasure of moving the declaration of a dividend.

The bullion by the P. and O. steamer Tanjore, from Southampton, Jan. 29, was—in gold, to Galle, £440; in silver, to Hong Kong, £32,340; to Penang, £5,000. Total in gold, £440; in silver, £37,340.

According to a circular of Mr. G. de Quetteville, the total shipments of specie by the Peninsular and Oriental steamers for the East during 1873 were £4,936,985,—£1,573,163 gold, and the remainder silver—against £7,678,287 in 1872, showing a decrease of £2,741,302. From the Mediterranean ports they were £510,718 of gold only, showing a decrease of £192,408. The export by the steamers of the Messageries Impériales during the same period was £987,401—£872,231 gold, £115,170 silver; a decrease of £555,378 compared with 1872.

The failure has been announced of Messrs. Archibald Glen and Co., merchants, Glasgow, with liabilities amounting to £150,000, owing, it is stated, to heavy losses in the East India trade.

A West-end Agency of the Messageries Maritimes has been opened at 51, Pall Mall.

The second steamer of the China Trans-Pacific Steamship Company, the Vancouver, is announced for despatch about the 8th proximo.

A correspondent writes as follows:—

Permit me to draw your attention to the evident inaccuracy of a telegram published in your issue of the 26th inst., from Yokohama, 22nd January. "Cottons and Woollens unsaleable; stocks on hand estimated to be sufficient to last for several years; current prices generally show a loss of fifty per cent." Not to enter into details, I would simply say that anyone interested in the Japan trade and in receipt of regular telegraphic information will know that none of the staple articles of import, either Cotton or Woollen, had up to the third week in January become unsaleable, that none were in sufficient stock for several years, and that the current prices for none of them showed a loss of fifty per cent. The above telegram is therefore likely to mislead, and as such ought to be corrected.

AMONG the candidates for the new Parliament we notice the following:—Dumfriesshire, ROBERT JARDINE; Ross and Cromartie, ALEXANDER MATHESON; Bedford, CHARLES MAGNIAC; Wick, JOHN PENDER; Exeter, EDGAR BOWRING; Essex, T. C. BARING; Devizes, H. N. LACY; Brighton, GEORGE DUDDELL and JAMES WHITE. Mr. R. W. CARWFORD, late member for the City of London, has withdrawn. It has been rumoured that Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK would stand for election, but his name does not appear amongst the candidates. He is making himself "generally useful" on various committees and meetings.

WE regret to see that IWAKURA, the late chief of the Embassy to Europe, has been the object of attack by his political opponents. We trust that the MIKADO's Government will not fail to make an example of the miscreants who attacked him. We do not wish to again see "cutting down" in vogue.

THE WAR IN SUMATRA.

THE HAGUE, JAN. 26.—The Government has received a despatch from the Dutch Consul at Penang announcing that the Kraton has been captured by the troops, with little loss.

THE HAGUE, JAN. 27.—The Government has received the following official despatch to-day:—"Atchin, Jan. 24.—The Dutch troops have captured the Kraton, after a successful attack on its western side. When entered, the place was found to be abandoned." This result is considered as deciding the war.

PENANG, JAN. 27.—The Dutch troops had only three killed and eighteen wounded in capturing the Kraton.

PENANG, JAN. 30.—The ex-Prime Minister of the Sultan of Atchin positively declares that the Treaty alleged to have been concluded between Holland and Atchin in 1857 is a fabrication.

THE HAGUE, FEB. 1.—The Dutch Government has received a telegram from Penang of to-day's date, expressing a belief that the war has been virtually terminated by the decisive victory obtained on the capture of the Kraton. Panglenapolim and the Sultan seemed desirous to continue the struggle, but their want of allies would prevent their doing so. Cholera had again broken out, and rumours were current that the Sultan of Atchin had succumbed to the disease, and that Panglenapolim had been attacked with it. There had been eighty-three victims of the epidemic among the reserve in three days.

SHAM RELICS.

The Athenæum has devoted considerable labour to the exposure of a colossal swindle known as the Shapira Collection of idols, vessels, and pottery with ancient inscriptions from Moab, which adds another and an instructive chapter to the history of forgery and credulity. It was an ingenious combination of forgeries, appealing at once to the scholar, the archæologist, and the numismatist. It is now about two years since it began to be rumoured that a certain Jewish Protestant convert, living in Jerusalem, was receiving from an Arab small quantities of pottery, vases broken and entire, figures of animals, and rudely-executed statuettes of men and women. Presently it was discovered that on many of these things were inscriptions in that old Phœnician character, the direct ancestor of our own, in which the Moabite Stone was written. They were evidently ancient, being encrusted with a layer of saltpetre, the natural effect of time and damp on earthenware; their form, grotesque and rude, indicated the earliest stage of art; the emblems which adorned them pointed to a cult which was apparently a mixture of astronomical and nature worship; in the seven punctures which adorned the figures were the seven planets; in the earthen calf the reference was obvious to the brazen calf. These things, it was contended, could not be forged by an Arab; each specimen would cost too much to make; and the manifest antiquity of the whole, as proved by the saltpetre, was by itself a sufficient argument in their favour. Notwithstanding all these things, English archæologists refused to give in their adhesion. They stiffly maintained that any genuine Phœnician inscription could be read; that it would be written in certain forms of letters already ascertained; and they pointed not only to forms which deviated from the recognised type, but also to a bilingual inscription on a vase, which would have been invaluable but for the fact that in neither character could it be read, while the two characters could not by any possibility be used on the same jar, except at an interval of many hundred years. But then came fresh intelligence. Two German travellers, with Mr. Shapira, crossed into Moab and dug for themselves, finding bits of pottery like those in the collection. Curiously enough, even this proof failed to convince the stiff-necked English. The German Government, however, unwilling to lose so great a prize, bought the whole collection for £1,000, and had it transferred to Berlin, the Museum of which city it now adorns. A second collection was immediately commenced, with commendable zeal and rapidity, until a sudden and disastrous stoppage to the whole business was caused by M. Ganneau's exposure of the fact that it was a forgery from beginning to end. He has sent home an account, which will be supplemented by a fuller statement, but which, meantime, is as amusing and as minute as a narrative by Defoe. M. Ganneau possessed, to begin with, a certain knowledge which placed the unhappy artist, the forger, at a disadvantage; for he knew what we may call the handwriting of the inscriptions. "These," he said, "are the work of my old friend Selim el Gari;" and on returning to Jerusalem for the Palastine Exploration Fund he resolved that his first work should be to bestow publicity upon a modest but meritorious designer. He reflected that to manufacture pottery requires the assistance of a potter, and so, without exciting the suspicions of Selim, he began by visiting in turn all the half-dozen potteries in Jerusalem, and making the acquaintance of the workmen. The result was that he speedily found the men who had assisted Selim, and has been enabled to send over as graphic a confession as we remember to have read. In it we see the twilight procession, carrying grisly Moloch and his band from the workshop to the potter; we see the artful dipping in the saltpetre, which should give the gods of the Moabites a premature and precocious age—"to make them grow old," said honest Selim; and we are told of the scrupulous care with which any tell-tale fragment was gathered up. What we do not see, but may imagine, is the consternation of the respectable Selim el Gari, with that of the pious proselyte, his colleague, dupe, or accomplice, Shapira; and the disappointment of the German archæologists.

THE ADULTERATION OF TEA.

The following memorial has been forwarded to Mr. Gladstone from firms engaged in the wholesale Tea trade in the City of London. The memorial was accompanied by a request that the Premier would receive a deputation on the subject.

To the Right Hon. William Ewart Gladstone, M.P., D.C.L., First Lord of the Treasury and Chancellor of the Exchequer. The Humble Memorial of the Wholesale Dealers in Tea in the City of London, showeth—

That your Memorialists, who are largely engaged in the sale of Tea, are most anxious to prevent adulterated Tea from being sold in or imported into this country, as being a great discredit to the trade, and most injurious to all engaged in it.

Your Memorialists have observed with much regret that the Adulteration of Food Act, 1872, has from its defective construction been administered in a manner that, without preventing many of the evils it was intended to remedy, has been most oppressive to the retailers, many of whom have been prosecuted and fined, their names published as fraudulent tradesmen, their trade damaged, and their characters injured, for selling Tea in good faith (your Memorialists believe in every case) in the same state in which it was imported from China, and on which the Customs had received Tea duty. Under the present Act sanitary inspectors can, practically, only deal with articles offered publicly for sale, and as China Tea is principally sold by the importers by private contract, the sellers of tons escape all penalty, whilst the sellers of ounces bear all the fines and discredit of a public prosecution for selling the same Tea. The novel practice under this Act of analysts applying severe chemical tests to Tea makes it impossible for the retailer to protect himself from its penalties by the ordinary careful examination he can make of the article; in support of which statement your Memorialists beg to remind you that two most able stipendiary magistrates of Liverpool and Birmingham, who have tried and convicted several grocers under this Act, have stated in the plainest language, that to escape its penalties the grocer will require to have every parcel of Tea he sells analysed. Your Memorialists respectfully submit that a much more precise definition is required in the Act as to what constitutes "adulteration," seeing that few articles of food can be prepared totally unmixed with foreign yet harmless substances, and it is the more difficult to prevent this in Tea, owing to the mode of its preparation in China.

Your Memorialists therefore beg to suggest that every chop or parcel of Tea imported should be sampled by the Dock Company, and a portion of it sent to the sanitary inspector for analysis; that no parcel should be allowed to be entered for "home consumption" until the inspector has certified that it is fit for food, and not adulterated within the meaning of the Act. Your Memorialists believe that by this simple and inexpensive mode the public would be most effectually protected, as all adulterated Tea on its arrival in bulk would be detected and refused admission for consumption. Chops of Tea generally consist of from 100 to 1,000 packages, the whole of which would thus be stopped by one inspection and analysis; but if allowed to leave the bonded warehouse, each chop or parcel would probably be distributed among a large number of retailers, many of whom would escape any visit from the inspector, whilst others would be prosecuted, as well as exposed to the conflicting opinions of different magistrates and analysts for selling the same parcel of Tea. Your Memorialists, in conclusion, respectfully urge that the present vexatious prosecutions of the retailers may be suspended until the Act has been amended, and thus prevent the infliction of further injury and undeserved discredit on the retail grocers.

THE MALACCA STRAITS.

Mr. Thomas G. Bowles, who wrote the article referred to by Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Disraeli on the Straits of Malacca, and who is the Conservative candidate for Darlington, has addressed a meeting in the Mechanics' Hall in that town. He said Mr. Gladstone had done him the honour to refer to an article which he had written in Fraser's Magazine, and with that spirit of rampagious fun which always distinguished him, made a joke on his name, but he should not try to do the same with Mr. Gladstone. This was not a subject to be approached with flippancy or in the spirit of Joe Miller. In 1819 the Government obtained exclusive possession of the Straits of Malacca; all the trade to China and Japan must pass through those Straits. We had absolute control of the Straits by the arrangement of 1819. We acquired the Malacca side, and on the other we entered into alliance with the Sultan of Atchin. Three years ago the Dutch came to us and offered if we would allow them to go and attack the Sultan of Atchin that they would give us their territories on the Gold Cast; if we gave up this gateway they would give us some territories on the Gold Cost which were worth nothing to them and less to us, and which would involve us in a war with King Koffee. This was not a very likely proposal, but our Ministry accepted it, and gave up the Sultan of Atchin to the attack of the Dutch, although we had engaged by treaty that the independence of Atchin should be respected. There never was such a bargain in the whole history of this country, but it was accepted. Mr. Gladstone made a mystery of it by mixing it up in such a way as reminded him of diplomatic correspondence. If the Conservative Government, as Mr. Gladstone had said, had given up Siak, that was wrong; but that did not make Atchin right. We were not pledged to Siak, but we were to Atchin, and upon England had rested the bloodshed which had taken place in Atchin. Our Government were told by the Dutch to take care and get the King of Ashantee, when they took over the protectorate, to sign the treaty, but they never did so. "If you don't," said they, "you will have a war." Knowing, as our Government did, as proved by the letters which passed between Lord Granville and Lord Kimberley, that if the claims of Ashantee to Elmina were not renounced they would probably have a war, they nevertheless signed the treaty.

The Morning Post prints the subjoined letter, signed "Common Sense":—It is about as likely that the Dutch could and would intercept the British trade between India and China as that they will again sail unresisted up the Thames and burn the ships in Chatham Dockyard. But the question raised by Mr. Disraeli is curious as an indication of cast of mind and character. When Mr. Gladstone asserted that the draft of the Treaty of 1871 was approved by Lord Derby, he meant of course that it was not altered in any point bearing upon the question; and when Lord Derby, in his letter to The Times, says that he "purposely excluded all mention of Atchin," his lordship evidently meant to convey the impression that the possession or control of Atchin might affect the navigation of the Straits. Mr. Disraeli, improving on the noble lord's hint, actually goes the length of saying that "this dependency, being opposite to our own dependency of Penang, has always been held necessary to the security of our navigation." It is difficult to conceive a more astounding error. Atchin forms the northern extremity of the Island of Sumatra, opposite the opening of the Straits, where the channel is more than a hundred miles broad. Penang lies to the south of the Malay Peninsula (which Mr. Disraeli declares to be at least 500 miles long), and not far from the narrowest part of the Straits. Atchin and Penang, therefore, cannot be less than 400 or 500 miles apart; and Atchin has about as much to do with the navigation of the actual Straits as the Land's End with the navigation of the Needles, or the Hebrides with the Channel between Dover and Calais.

Upon this letter the Post comments as follows:—"Common Sense" is rather hasty. If a foreign Power were to hold the Land's End, say Falmouth, the navigation of the channel would be vitally menaced. Atchin is the key to the northern entrance of the Straits, as Singapore is of the south. "Common Sense" appears to have identified Penang with Singapore; Penang is opposite to Atchin at a distance of upwards of 200 miles; Singapore is about 400 miles from Penang. Lord Derby evidently said exactly what he meant to say in his letter, and he did intend the inference that the possession of Atchin might affect the navigation of the Straits.

The following letter from Lord Derby appears in The Times of Friday:—The language used by Mr. Gladstone in his speech would seem to imply that the draft Treaty proposed to the Dutch Government in September, 1868, and for which the Conservative Cabinet then in power is responsible, was identical in substance with the Treaty concluded in 1871. This is not the case. The draft of 1868 involved a recognition by the British Government of all territorial acquisitions made by the Dutch up to a recent date, those acquisitions being then accomplished facts; but it purposely excluded all mention of Atchin, the status of which would have remained unaltered but for modifications introduced after the Cabinet of 1868 had ceased to exist.

JAPANESE POLITICS.

Japan (says the Globe) has been passing through the agonies of a Ministerial crisis. The Prime Minister retains office, but the majority of his colleagues have had to resign. The management of foreign affairs, which was in the hands of Soyejima, has been given to Terashima, late Minister at the Court of St. James's. The subject of dispute has related to Korea. The people of that country maltreated certain Japanese subjects, and instead of making reparation sent what the Japan Mail calls "an insulting message," and a "truculent assertion of independence." A party in the Cabinet clamoured for war. The national honour, they asserted, ought to be maintained, and an insolent tributary thoroughly subjected. The counsels of those in favour of peace prevailed. There is every reason to congratulate Japan on this result. It would be a pity if the country were, under all circumstances, tamely to submit to rude treatment. Without a high sense of honour and self-respect its growing material prosperity will be of little avail. But when war is proposed it is right to ask whether the object to be gained is worth the sacrifice. In the present instance there is no doubt as to the true answer to this question. Korea, as the Mail points out, "is not only not necessary to Japan, it could only be a source of burden and perplexity to her." Moreover, "the insolence of the Koreans is that of barbarians, and the welfare, happiness, and progress of the millions of Japan ought hardly to be risked for the chastisement of this." Japan has entered upon a great career, and in developing her resources her rulers display energy and wisdom that have won the admiration of the most advanced nations. Her progress would be indefinitely retarded by an expensive and useless conflict with a half-savage neighbour.

THE DEATH OF M. GARNIER.

The Globe prints the subjoined remarks upon the fate which has befallen M. Garnier. The French, like ourselves, have just lost a great traveller—Francis Garnier. He has died at the early age of thirty-four, having left the great work of his life only half achieved. His day-dream of colonising Indo-China may now never be realised; but the services which he rendered in the attempt will keep the memory of his name fresh. France was proud of the young marine who, when only twenty-three years old, had taken an important part in the Cochin China Expedition, assisted in the capture of Saigon, and been entrusted with the sole government of a city of 80,000 inhabitants. His last exploit, the capture of a fortified town, whose walls and outworks had an extent of six kilometres, and which was garrisoned by 7,000 men, showed an almost Quixotic courage. At the head of 150 marines he attacked the citadel of Ha-noi, and captured it and 2,000 prisoners without the loss of a single man. But, besides this military glory, the name of Garnier had become famous throughout Europe for the great exploration of the Me-kong in 1866, and for that most valuable but modest "History" which the full account of this expedition is set forth. It was for these services that the Geographical Society of Paris awarded him its gold medal, and that he received a similar honour from our own Geographical Society—a distinction which had not previously been accorded to a Frenchman for five-and-thirty years. At the International Geographical Congress, held at Antwerp, the medal of honour was divided between him and Livingstone. The work of colonisation did not seem to thrive under the Imperial rule. It remains to be seen whether Republican France can realise the day-dream of Francis Garnier's life by converting the whole of Indo-China into a French dependency.

STUDENT INTERPRETERS FOR CHINA.

OUR contemporary, the North China Herald, has done good service in drawing attention to the appointment of Student Interpreters for China, in direct opposition to the Report of the Commission on the Consular Service. It will be remembered that in his evidence before the Commission; Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK strongly advocated a reduction of from ten to six in the number of the staff of Students at Peking, on the very reasonable grounds that the Service in China was already so much over-manned that promotion was at a stand-still, that the public money was wasted by the disbursement of a number of small salaries among a far too numerous staff, whereas an increased scale of pay awarded to fewer men would insure a more efficient performance of the Consular duties, and that these causes tended to make the officials discontented, and to destroy that loyalty to the Service which has marked the careers of such men as PARKES, WADE, ALCOCK, MEDHURST, and many others. Sir HARRY PARKES' evidence tended in the same direction, and the Commission expressed themselves strongly in favour of the suggestions made by these two distinguished officers. Yet almost immediately on the appearance of the report eight new appointments were made, and now again two more students have been added to the already over-crowded college at Peking. A few figures will sufficiently show the cause of the present stagnation in promotion, and will explain the consternation which prevailed among the members of the Service when the news reached China of the intention of making the two further appointments which have just been gazetted. In 1863, after the establishments at the ports opened to trade by the last Treaty had been nominated, there were stationed at the fifteen ports forty-three officers, with a reserve of nine Students, at Peking. In 1868, when sixteen ports were open to trade, the Consuls and their staffs numbered forty-five, and the Students eighteen. In 1873, after two ports had been closed, forty-six officers were distributed at the remaining fourteen trading depots, and seventeen young gentlemen studied Chinese at Peking. To this number two more have now been added; so that out of the total number of sixty-five of all ranks, nineteen are kept in reserve. Twenty-six Students were appointed between the years 1863 and 1868, and fifteen between this latter year and 1873, to fill about twenty vacancies caused by deaths and retirements. The hardship inflicted on the Service by thus over-crowding the junior ranks is two-fold. In the first place, it prevents the possibility of there being any chance of that promotion which a young man entering the Service may fairly expect to get, and it relegates the prospect of gaining that increase of pay to which the whole Service is fairly entitled, as was admitted by the Commission, to the dimmest future.

If there were work for the army of Student Interpreters at Peking to do, of course no fault could be found for the recent appointments. But it is a fact, as Sir HARRY PARKES pointed out in his evidence, that the staffs at the Consulates are quite out of proportion to the work required of them. And even supposing that in 1863 the Consulates were not over-manned,—why, if nine Students were then considered a sufficient reserve, should nineteen be now required when there is one port less to provide for? We can only suppose that the officials at the Foreign-office trouble themselves as little about the wants and condition of the Service as they do about the interests of commerce in China. It is time, however, that the matter should be brought prominently forward, and steps should be taken to remedy an act of injustice upon a body of men who have devoted their lives to the service of their country under circumstances and surroundings already sufficiently discouraging.

HER Majesty's subjects in the Settlements of the Straits of Malacca must feel proud when they see that the course pursued by the GLADSTONE Government in relation to them and the Sultan of ATCHIN is turned to account by the Conservatives in the present "general election." It bears resemblance to the dissolution by Lord PALMERSTON on the question of our policy with China in 1856. It is singularly fortunate that our interests in the Far East should thus obtain prominence. We trust that the next Government, whether Liberal or Conservative, will take warning and give more heed to the maintenance of our prestige in those parts. Anything more miserable, not to say contemptible, than the policy pursued for the last five years can hardly be conceived. Our readers may rely on our judicious persistence in keeping their interests constantly before the new Government.

IN another column we report a meeting on the subject of Indian teas. Indian tea, since 1864, has made extraordinary strides, ranking now as one of the staple products from India. The prices obtainable for the leaf, during the past year or two, have been highly profitable to planters, thus stimulating them to bring under cultivation new land. Demand is now outstripping the supply, and this will be more noticeable as the year advances. The North-West Provinces of India, and also several districts in Central Asia, draw a portion of their wants from India, green tea from the Kumaon district being in especial favour, owing to its great strength and pungency. The competition of late for Indian tea has been very keen, owing to the increasing use in Ireland, especially in the north-west, and in many towns in Lancashire.

THE appointment of Mr. JULIAN PAUNCEFOTE, late Puisne Judge of the Supreme Court at Hong Kong, to the Chief Justiceship of the Supreme Court of the Leeward Islands is gazetted. The honour of Knighthood has at the same time been conferred upon Mr. PAUNCEFOTE.

IT is stated that the Emperor of RUSSIA has declined to arbitrate between the Peruvian and the Japanese Government on the case of the seizure of the Maria Luz, on the ground that the vessel has been clearly proved to have been engaged in an unlawful transaction.

THE Archbishop of CANTERBURY has conferred the degree of Doctor in Divinity on the Rev. JOHN SHAW BURDON, the new Bishop for Victoria, Hong Kong. It was intended that Mr. BURDON should have been consecrated yesterday at Oxford, but the ceremony has been postponed.

PRINCE FREDERICK CHARLES of Germany will shortly start on a lengthened tour, in the course of which he will visit China and Japan.

THE Gazette notifies that the honour of Knighthood has been conferred upon the Hon. THOMAS SIDGREAVES, Chief Justice of the Straits Settlements.

DUTCH INFLUENCE IN THE FAR EAST.

In the course of a speech delivered by Mr. Gladstone to his constituents last week, the Premier made reference to a passage in Mr. Disrael's address which had reference to our policy with regard to the extension of the powers held by the Dutch in Sumatra.

"Mr. Disraeli" (said Mr. Gladstone) "has himself chosen the scene of action with respect to foreign policy. He has laid it in a very distant quarter of the globe—about as far off as the kingdom of Brobdingnag. He carries you to the Straits of Malacca. He says that we have committed most astonishing acts of ignorance or folly in the Straits of Malacca, and have compromised the freedom of our trade with China and Japan. Well, gentlemen, I must detain you a few minutes upon this point; and although the Straits of Malacca do not sound like a very inviting subject, I am mistaken if you do not find it is not wholly devoid of interest. In the first place, I would observe that the transaction which Mr. Disraeli blames on our part was a transaction in the year 1871, and he has sat still in the House of Commons through the Sessions of 1872 and 1873, having entirely forgotten his duty to the Straits of Malacca. And now what has happened to rouse him from his nsensibility ? An article has been published in Fraser's Magazine bringing all manner of charges against the Government, and greatly enlightening the mind of Mr. Disraeli. That article I looked at to-day. I find it is written by a gentleman named Bowles, and I am greatly mistaken if Mr. Disraeli does not find on this occasion that those who play at bowls must expect to meet with rubbers. Let me give you a short statement of the case. Mr. Disraeli says that we had a treaty securing the freedom of the Straits of Malacca for our trade to China and Japan. We had no such treaty. We had a treaty with Holland which gave to England an exclusive jurisdiction on the Malay continent, and which gave to Holland a similarly exclusive title to frame treaties and to make her own arrangements in the island of Sumatra, which forms the other side of the Straits of Malacca, and in all the neighbouring islands. But that gave no security whatever for the free navigation of the Straits of Malacca. The treaty was dated in 1834, and I am not now going to discuss it. But if there is any danger in stopping the freedom of navigation in the Straits of Malacca you will agree with me that that danger accrues where the Straits are narrowest, because it is there, evidently, that interruption will be offered to the navigation. Now, the Straits are narrowest at that part of Sumatra which is occupied by the kingdom of Siak. The Dutch made a treaty some years ago by which they acquired almost a sovereignty—at all events, a virtual supremacy, in the kingdom of Siak. Well, then was the time of danger, if any. But when was that treaty made? It was made in 1858, when Mr. Disraeli was in office. It was forwarded by the Dutch Minister to Lord Malmesbury, as Foreign Secretary, on the 21st of September, 1858; and on the 23rd of September, 1858, Lord Malmesbury acknowledged its receipt and returned his thanks for the treaty. So much for Siak. But I must detain you a little longer. Under the then existing arrangement, where the Dutch made these treaties they made them treaties of exclusive trade, and so shut out British trade from the countries with which the treaties existed. That was a great evil. We had really no power of preventing them from making the treaties. We retained the truly British right of grumbling, but we never gave effect to it, and we had no power to give effect to it. The British Government thought it was a very evil thing for British trade to be excluded from those countries; and, consequently, they made a treaty with Holland under which they consented to give up this right of grumbling, which we never, for thirty years, had done anything to enforce; Holland, on the other hand, stipulating to give to British subjects and navigation in all the countries where she made treaties in those latitudes the same privileges she gave to Dutch subjects and navigation. I say that was not a bad, but a good treaty. But who made it? That treaty was drafted and was proposed to Holland in the year 1868, when Mr. Disraeli was Prime Minister and Lord Derby Foreign Secretary; and it is a most extraordinary state of things when the leader of a party is so destitute of topics—though he has, I must say, as ingenious a brain out of which to spin them as any man who ever occupied that or any other position; but such is his poverty and destitution of points to make against the Government that, although he travels all the way to the Straits of Malacca for the purpose, he manufactures his charge out of an act which is not a bad act, but a good act, and which was not done by us, but done by his own colleague, and by the Government to which he belonged. Understand me. When I say it was done, I mean this. The draft of the treaty concluded by us was forwarded by Lord Derby in the month of September or August, 1868. He deserved the main credit for it—and credit, not discredit, is what is due. And so, gentlemen, I will leave the Leader of the Opposition for the present floundering and foundering in the Straits of Malacca." Mr. Gladstone's address was frequently cheered, and at its close a vote of confidence was carried with acclamation.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

(THE TIMES.)

It is strange that a Dutch war on the coast of Sumatra should furnish a weapon in the political contest between the Prime Minister of this country and the leader of the Opposition. Mr. Disraeli observes in his address that, "by an act of folly or of ignorance rarely equalled, the present Ministry relinquished a Treaty which secured us the freedom of the Straits of Malacca for our trade with China and Japan; and they at the same time, entering on the West Coast of Africa into those 'equivocal and entangling engagements' which the Prime Minister now deprecates, involved us in the Ashantee War." The latter part of this charge needs no explanation, but the former may be less intelligible. The Straits of Malacca are here supposed to be commanded by the Power in possession of Atchin, and with that Power we were till recently in alliance. It may be said, indeed, that the Sultan of Atchin was in some sense under our protection, for it was stipulated by the terms of a Treaty to which we were parties that the independence of his dominions should be respected by the Dutch. In return, however, for the cession by the Dutch of their forts on the Gold Coast we relinquished the Treaty which restrained their operations in the East, and it may be anticipated, as a consequence, that the conquest of Atchin will sooner or later be effected. Whether the freedom of the Straits will be endangered by the result is a question of remote rather than immediate interest, but it may be conceded that such security as arose from the character of the native Government will hereafter be lost. The Commander-in-Chief of the land and sea forces engaged in the campaign has addressed a despatch to the Sultan of Atchin, in which the demands of the Netherlands Government are plainly stated. They amount, in fact, to a claim to suzerainty over the Atchinese Empire. General Van Swieten offers assurances and pledges of all kinds, doubtless in perfect sincerity, but he demands practically that the Sultan shall surrender his independence. In exchange for this sacrifice he promises the Sultan the "undisturbed possessions of his domains" and a "more extended authority over his subjects. The Dutch do not pretend to any "direct control" over the country, nor do they desire to meddle with its domestic administration. They ask only for a Treaty in conformity with a certain specified precedent, and we, with our own Eastern experience, can have no difficulty in understanding the conditions which are implied. The Sultan would accept a position of feudal dependence, as many Princes of India have done; the Dutch would confine the exercise of their control to the exigencies of their own policy, and beyond those limits would leave the native Government at liberty to rule as before. Even the undertaking to confirm and extend the authority of the Sultan over his own subjects is exactly in accordance with Indian practices. When a native State passed under our protection we guaranteed its Sovereign against popular insurrections, reserving to ourselves the right of correcting maladministration by summary intervention when the necessity arose. It is said, too, that this engagement on the part of the Dutch might be peculiarly acceptable to the Sultan at the present moment. We have been informed that his authority is repudiated by the party now in arms, and that the war is carried on by a fanatical multitude which has possessed itself of power. That there is a Peace Party as well as a War Party in Atchin is, indeed, assumed to be notorious in General Van Swieten's despatch, and the Dutch Commander almost implies that the Sultan at heart belongs to the former. The reports of movements so obscure must, of course, be received with caution, but we are assured that even the communication before us was not allowed to reach the Sultan's hands, and that the appeal itself was disregarded by the dominant faction intrenched in the citadel.

The war, therefore, goes on, nor can we suppose the ultimate result to be doubtful; but it may be inferred from the despatch of the Dutch Commander that he would have been glad to be spared from the certain difficulties and possible vicissitudes of the contest. He evidently foresaw hard fighting, and was not at all disposed to underrate the resistance of the enemy; so that, though his summons is decisive and even peremptory, it is accompanied by many conditions calculated to render it palatable. Nor need it be doubted that these terms were offered in good faith. The Dutch, when their object of sovereign control has been secured, can have little temptation to interfere with the religion or customs of the country. When General Van Swieten pledges his word that in these respects the people of Atchin shall remain undisturbed he may be readily believed, and when he disclaims any design on the part of his Government against their rights and liberties he is probably replying to reports which have been put into circulation by the War Party. The Dutch intend to reduce Atchin to the condition of a dependent principality. It is only "ultimately" that the Sultan is promised the Government of his country; but it may reasonably be assumed that the national institutions of the Empire will, for the most part, be left as they are. Interference in such matters would bring little advantage, and might create much trouble. The independence of Atchin has stood in the way of the Dutch, and they have resolved to get rid of the obstacle. It will cost them perhaps, more than they anticipated, but they have clearly no intention of withdrawing from the work. The Dutch General declares his intention to establish himself on the territory of Atchin, as, indeed, he has already done, and there, he says, he will remain "till the Empire has been conquered and a Treaty has been signed." Nor will he brook much delay in the matter. "The Dutch," he observed, "are a diligent people, and do not like to be stopped in their proceedings when they have an object before them." So his operations will not be relaxed even after the important success just announced, and any tardiness in replying to his requisitions will be taken as a refusal. As we have already said, the refusal has been inferred, and the war will now be fought out to the end. We need not scrutinise too closely the alleged causes of the quarrel. They resemble, it is true, those pretexts which on such occasions and between such belligerents are never wanting, but at the same time there is a sufficient air of probability in the statements advanced. That the Government of Atchin should have been engaged in slave-dealing and kidnapping, that it should have offered violence to traders, and withheld protection from their goods, can be believed without much difficulty; while it is certainly true that redress was refused, and that negotiations for a hostile alliance against the Dutch were opened with foreign Powers. How far the supposed designs of the Netherlands Government may have suggested such measures is a question on which we need not enter.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE.)

The objects which the Dutch proposed to themselves in venturing upon the invasion of Atchin are set forth with sufficient candour in General van Swieten's proclamation. They are determined, cost what it may, that Atchin shall not remain an independent Power. They are willing, as they profess, to leave the Sultan some shadow of local authority, but he must have no more a foreign policy of his own than the Government of India allows to Scinde or Holkar. Perhaps the Sultan himself might not be unwilling to accept a gilded servitude of this position, but his people, apart from the religious enthusiasm with which they have been lately inflamed, are animated with a strong spirit of independence. Nor has the rule of the Dutch in the southern portion of Sumatra or the neighbouring dependency of Java been such as to attract communities, however uncivilised, which retain their liberties. We do not doubt that Holland has been able to establish a specious case against the Atchinese; for when a barbarous State is fixed upon the borders of a civilised one, it is hardly possible that causes of quarrel should not arise. But the motive really animating the invaders is plainly enough an ambition for extension of territory, and if the whole island of Sumatra should thus fall into the hands of the possessors of Java the sum of human happiness, to say the least, will hardly be increased. Mr. Disraeli's remark that, by withdrawing our prohibition on the progress of Dutch conquest in the Eastern Archipelago, we have surrendered the freedom of the Straits of Malacca to our commercial rivals, is a legitimate point to make against a Ministry which blundered into a ridiculous bargain without calculating the consequences of any part of it. But the danger is, after all, rather a remote and not a very serious one. If we cannot hold our own against a third-rate Power like the Dutch so far as to make them leave the free water-way to China open for us, we must be fallen indeed; so fallen, in fact, that the piracy of Atchin would have done us at least as much harm as the jealousy of Holland. If we have sunk to this point, we may as well bid good-bye to commercial supremacy and empire together.

THE OPIUM TRADE.

In alluding to Mr. Malet's report, the Pall Mall Gazette says :—

Altogether we have here a curious and instructive chapter in the history of the foreign relations of China. There undoubtedly was a time, not very remote, when the Chinese needed neither stimulants nor narcotics beyond such as their own weak tobacco leaf or tea could supply. They are still the most temperate people in the world—all, that is, who have not been infected with the vice of opium smoking, and that is still a vast majority of the population. We were mainly instrumental in creating the taste and the want, but at the beginning of this century the whole supply brought by our ships from India did not amount to more than some 4,000 chests. It was in 1773 that the East India Company made its first small venture, and in 1781 the Company freighted a vessel with 1,600 chests. "Sold, however, at a loss to one of the Hong merchants and found by him unsaleable, the whole was reshipped to the Archipelago." And now the annual shipment from India is some 80,000 chests. The trade has been a cause of war with China ; it involves so large a share of our Indian revenue that no financier dares to meddle with it, but looks with unceasing anxiety every year on its fluctuations ; and so enormous is the capital, both in India and China, engaged in the growth, transmission, or sale of opium, that neither the British nor the Chinese Government could do more than hamper its production and sale. We cannot be surprised that neither the Indian Government nor the Anglo-Chinese and Indian merchants showed any disposition to lend a favourable ear to the propositions of the Chinese negotiators. All that could be plainly seen was the danger of legislating at all for interests so gigantic, and so intimately intermixed with labour, capital, and trade in every branch. Any sudden displacement must jeopardise both profits and revenue. Indeed, it was easier to see how £8,000,000 of the Indian revenue now collected, in fact, from the Chinese, could be damaged or lost, than any probable benefit accruing if it were freely sacrificed to the Chinese Government or people. It is not, we say, to be wondered at under these circumstances that nothing came of the urgent demands made upon us at Peking. If the cultivation of the poppy in China is unchecked, and is susceptible, as no doubt it is, of almost unlimited extension, and the Chinese can grow it so much cheaper than it can at present be sold from India, with a 200 per cent. rate of duty upon it at Calcutta and Bombay, an additional element of danger and uncertainty must be accepted. If the change of taste which these reports show is already going on among the Chinese, leading them to prefer the flavour and effects of opium of native growth, should increase, the Indian drug and our trade in it will be placed at a fatal disadvantage, the Chinese drug being so much cheaper. Such changes have often taken place in other countries in reference to various commodities. The preference of the Americans to green tea rather than black, our own developed taste for the strong wines of Portugal and Spain, now again changing for the lighter produce of the French and Rhenish vines, are sufficient warnings of the fickleness of national tastes. It may be well to wait and watch, rather than to anticipate and make the evil that we fear. The process may, it is hoped, be more gradual in its operation from natural causes than Government interference or treaty stipulations could have secured. Such a policy as has been adopted would, in that case, be fully justified, for it is the suddenness or rapidity of any change from which the greatest danger is to be feared. If that can be avoided, the rest may be met with some equanimity ; but even at best the look-out is not satisfactory, and there are probably few, whether Indian administrators or merchants, who would not be glad, if the change were made without serious loss, to see all the land and capital now employed in the growth and transmission of opium transferred to other investments with better security for the future. For, if any loss come upon us through the opium traffic, there will be no lack of friends to tell us, with the wisdom of Solomon, " that wherewithal a man sinneth, by the same also shall he be punished."

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, JAN. 28.

On the 26th inst. we received an important official despatch from our Consul at Penang, stating that the Kraton had been captured, with very small loss to our troops. This news was somewhat surprising, because the previous telegram from Atchin stated that General van Swieten waited for reinforcements. From numerous public buildings and vessels flags were hoisted, and universal joy was expressed at the success of our military operations. Of course it is now obvious that the war must soon finish by the submission of the Sultan ; and in anticipation of this some papers are discussing the question, What will we do with Atchin? For my own part I fear that when Atchin is subdued to our authority our Government will find themselves involved in much trouble and difficulty.

Up to this moment nothing has transpired about the new Minister of the Naval Department. The Nederlandsche Industrieel assures us that the Ministerial Council has resolved to establish a special department for Public Works, under the management either of Mr. Hubrecht, now Secretary-General for the Home Department, or of Mr. Klerck ; whilst at the same time the Naval Department would be amalgamated with that of the Colonies. Perhaps these rumours may prove true, but at present they are without anything like official confirmation.

The election of Dr. A. Kuyper in the district of Gouda is—I need scarcely say—a most severe blow to the Liberal party. Great efforts were made to secure the seat for Mr. van der Loeff, but without success. The Opposition grows stronger and stronger in the Second Chamber, and the Ministry can now scarcely count upon a majority of even a single vote, so that their existence is again threatened. Something must be done, and perhaps Mr. Fransen van de Putte will adopt a coup d'etat similar to that with which Mr. Gladstone has created such surprise in England. It is obvious that at present the members of the Cabinet have not the support which every Ministry ought to enjoy, and I fear that no appeal to the people will provide a remedy for the actual state of things. Under the existing election law it seems impossible to bring the Second Chamber into harmony with the country, and if the Liberal party does not open a fresh and somewhat Radical chapter of liberal policy the party itself will be in danger of becoming extinct. The Liberal, Conservative, and Clerical papers are now engaged fighting out the question which party used the basest means to secure the victory at Gouda. In consequence of the death of Mr. de Brauw another election must take place in this district, and a third will become necessary if Dr. Kuyper declines to give up his clerical office to take a seat on the benches of the Opposition. An entre-filet in his paper de Standaard makes it still doubtful whether he will accept the seat or no.

You will remember that some time ago a question was raised of the establishment of an India brigade, but according to a correspondence from Harderwyk, it seems that the Minister of War has not much sympathy with the project.

The question of the alteration of our monetary system will not be decided as soon as was thought. It is said that the Government is still waiting for information and elucidations from the Governor-General of Java, and will postpone dealing with the Bill until the information has been received.

I am informed that several financial men, who are backed by English capitalists, have asked the Government for concessions for the construction of railways in Java, but nothing has transpired as to whether the Minister will grant their requests. It is earnestly hoped that he will lay before the members a definite plan for railways in Java when the Session is reopened next month.

The King has appointed Mr. J. F. Mossel President of the Chamber of Accounts in Java.

The day before yesterday H.M. screw steamer Sambas, destined for the Java Squadron, was successfully launched from the yard at Feyenoord.

A sum of f.10,000 has been subscribed here on behalf of the persecuted Roman Catholic priests in Switzerland. Charity does not begin at home with our Catholics, for their establishments of charity here are, it is said, utterly unprovided with funds.

The Steamship Company Nederland has made some alterations in the tariff of freights. Henceforth the freight will not be charged by the last, but by the cubic meter. The alteration is much approved.

The Society Tot nut van 't Algemeen has published a sketch of the history of the culture system in Java. It is very well written.

Mr. Schot, a member of the First Chamber, has met with an accident, but is recovering from its effects.

I regret to record the death of the Belgian litterator and novelist, Antoine Bergmann. His works are very popular in this country.

About the Money Market there is nothing to communicate of any interest. The rate of discount remains unaltered, and transactions at the Bourse have been very unimportant.

Bishop Williams, of Canton, has forwarded to the Jardin d'Acclimatation at Brussels a remarkable China plant—the first specimen of its kind received in Europe. This plant changes its colour three times a day, and is appropriately named Hibiscus mutabilis.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

COFFEE.—Prices went up again last week, and 71c. has been paid for good ordinary Java. There are, however, but very few parcels offered. The private transactions include about 10,000 bales, of which no particulars have transpired.

TEA.—There is no business doing, and the trade is inspecting the samples of the cargo China, ex Bellona, comprising 2,798/4 and 4,370/12 chests, which will be sold in auction on Feb. 11.

SUGAR.—The market is somewhat more animated, but prices have declined again. About 2,200 mats No. 10/12 changed hands at f.2 under November, and 2,200 mats No. 14⅝ at f.32 for export.

TOBACCO.—Prices of Java are well maintained, but transactions are of no importance. To-morrow about 300 mille Manila cigars will be offered in public auction.

TIN (Banca).—The market is very dull, and prices have greatly declined ; f.71 can scarcely be obtained, but holders decline to operate at this price. Billiton is nominally quoted at f.69½. There is not the least speculative demand.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—Holders decline to operate without an advance. The stock comprises only 15,000 kilo. Prime Cochin is quoted f.21½, prime Ceylon, f.21½, but these prices are nominal.

INDIGO (Java) has met with more demand, and about 200 chests changed hands at firm prices.

RATTANS.—A fair business has been done. About 1,000 piculs changed hands, but prices did not transpire.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

A letter forwarded to the Sultan of Atchin by Lieutenant-General Van Swieten, in which an explanation is given for the resumption of hostilities upon the part of the Dutch, has been published. The General remarks:—"This time I am better provided, and I shall not return without my object being attained. I have sufficient forces to conquer the strongest resistance. I count my soldiers by thousands; they are armed with the best rifles. I have brought men on horseback, who can go everywhere with swiftness; I bring more guns than are wanted to crush ten Kratons; I bring many steamers armed with guns of so wide a range that they can batter the Kraton from the sea; I bring coolies and materials of all kinds for building barracks for the soldiers, and store-houses for their supplies. I am able to, and I shall, establish myself on the territory of Atchin, and remain there till the Empire has been conquered and a treaty has been signed. I ask your Highness to consider that I cannot pause for long consideration, but I must continue to gain advantages. The Dutch are a diligent people, and do not like to be stopped in their proceedings when they have an object before them. If your Highness is disposed to take my proposals under consideration, and to send trustworthy persons to inquire into my stipulations or to negotiate for peace, it must be done without delay. In the meantime I continue to do what warfare requires; if attacked I will defend myself, and if not receiving a speedy answer I shall conclude that my proposals have not been accepted, and that the war party has triumphed."

INDIAN TEAS.

On the 23rd ult. Dr. Archibald Campbell, late Superintendent of Darjeeling, read a paper on this subject at the Society of Arts, Sir Louis Malet, C.B., member of the Council of India, in the chair. In introducing the lecturer to the meeting, the Chairman observed that the subject was of great importance both to England and India, because it affected the prospects of the tea industry in the latter country, and afforded an additional bond between the two countries. It had a peculiar interest, because there was a system in operation by which a very large part of the China teas was adulterated, and which might be checked by a supply of pure tea from India. Dr. Campbell said the lecture was given in consequence of a recent correspondence in The Times relative to the adulteration of China teas and the obstruction to the sale of pure Indian teas. His observation led him to believe that little was known of the subject in this country, although it was forty years since tea was first discovered in Assam, growing wild, and thirty years since it was found in the same state in Cachar. It was very satisfactory to be able to state that the Indian authorities had been roused to vigorous exertions in providing means of communications between the tea-producing districts and the seaboard. Merchants from Thibet, Cashmere, and Afghanistan had crossed the Himalayas into India, and were carrying off the teas from the factories in the north-west at highly remunerative prices, bespeaking all the crop of next year in Kumaon, and paying down half the cash in advance. Taking all circumstances into consideration, the tea prospects were brighter than the pioneers of the great Indian industry could hitherto boast of. The tea crop of India was in 1873 about 20,000,000 lb., of which Darjeeling contributed 2,600,000, increasing at the rate of 15 per cent. per annum on the land actually under tea cultivation—i.e., 14,000 acres. For the present year 21,000,000 lb. could be reckoned on, of which 3,000,000 would be from Darjeeling. There were other lands which, when cultivated, would increase the supply. Dr. Campbell dwelt upon the quantity of spurious and adulterated China teas imported into England, and the extent to which pure Indian teas were kept back from the public for the purpose of mixing to make them saleable. He said the public were not fully alive to the excellence and economy of Indian teas, and concluded by trusting that the Society of Arts would point out some means of protecting the people from the calamity of flooding the country with adulterated teas, and of securing for the Indian teas a fair field in the English market. A discussion followed, in which Mr. Hyde Clarke, General Tremenheere, Mr. Coates, Mr. Rehden, and others took part, and the proceedings closed with votes of thanks to the lecturer and the chairman.

THE American Postmaster-General, reports to the Postal Committee that the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, in violating their contract, have forfeited the last subsidy granted them of $500,000 a year, and that it will be necessary for Congress to re-enact the law granting it before they can again be entitled to it. The contract between the company and the Post-office Department provides that the company shall forfeit $1,000 for the first thirty days, and $2,000 per day for every day after, in which the provisions of the contract for increased service remain unfulfilled. The contract went into effect on the 1st of last October.

The following further announcements of dividends have been made by banking and other companies:—

The London and County Bank a dividend of 10 per cent. for the half-year, appropriating £25,000 to the reduction of premises account. This, with the June payment of 10 per cent., will make 20 per cent, for the year.

The Credit Foncier of England a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, or 2s. 6d. per share on the old shares, and 1s. 3d. per share on the new shares. The report states that the net profits for the half-year amounted to £58,776. A sum of £17,359 accrued interest, not yet received, has been carried to a separate suspense account, and £31,034 has been written off on account of losses on securities realised and bad and doubtful debts. These deductions leave a divisible balance of £33,177. At the corresponding period of last year the dividend was at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum, leaving £11,680.

The English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered Bank, a dividend at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, and an appropriation of £9,000 to reserve (thus raised to £45,000). At the corresponding period of last year the dividend was of similar amount.

The British Land Company (Limited) a dividend for the past year of 3 per cent. At the corresponding period of last year the dividend was 4 per cent.

The London Financial Association a dividend of 7s. 6d. per share, equal to 2½ per cent. per annum, leaving £1,286 to be carried forward.

The English and Foreign Credit Company (Limited) a dividend of 5s. 6d. per share, being at the rate of £6 17s. 6d. per cent.

The Standard Discount Company, an undertaking formed in May last, a dividend at the rate of 8 per cent. per annum.

The directors of the Trident Marine Insurance Company announce that, by transferring to the underwriting account for 1873 a sum sufficient to meet estimated claims which may yet come forward against 1872, the directors are enabled finally to close that year with a net loss of £39,768, an amount which includes the whole of the preliminary expenses. It is added that the premiums received in 1873 amount to £55,014, and the interest earned to £1,708, and that after deducting all returns, re-insurances, claims, and charges, there is a balance to carry forward to the credit of 1873 of £20,771. The directors have not drawn any portion of their fees for the past year.

The Pacific Mail Company's steamer China, upon which fifty guineas was paid last week, arrived at San Francisco on the 15th ult., having been delayed by the breaking down of her engines.

The New York Commercial and Shipping List states that the new American silver trade dollars are becoming daily more popular in China, driving out the Mexican dollar, which does not bear a general uniformity of weight and quality.

Messrs. J. C. Sillar and Co. call attention to the word "interest" being printed in our extract from their Circular, instead of "usury," as in the original.

The high price of 59½d. per oz. for Bar Silver that was ruling last week caused supplies to come forward from various parts of the Continent. The demand has since become less urgent, and rates have slightly given way, transactions having been entered into at 59¼d. per oz., and this may be taken as the closing quotation. Mexican Dollars, to the value of about £180,000, by the West India and French steamers, have come to hand, but too late to be sent out by the P. and O. steamer leaving Southampton Thursday. There have been no purchases, and the value is nominally as last quoted.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The tone of the market continues very strong, the demand from the Trade being of a full average character, whilst there have been a few speculative purchases. Prices of common to good red-leaf kinds show a rise of fully ½d. per lb., other kinds being firmly maintained. The public sales still continue on a very limited scale, only 6,996 packages, including yesterday's sales, having been brought to auction, nearly the whole of which have been sold without reserve at good prices. The deliveries for the week amount to 2,241,000 lbs., against 3,464,000 lbs. last year.

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings, of old import, maintain the late improvement in price, with a fair demand. Broken-leaf kinds have advanced ½d. per lb., as also common to good common, which are now quoted 1s. 0½d. to 1s. 1½d. per lb., the latter for Teas free from dust. Fair to good Kaisows from 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 5d. show a rise of ½d. per lb. Good to fine have been firm, with a moderate business only; in finest but little has been done. Paklin kinds remain very firm. Black-leaf kinds: The advance last quoted in low to fair common kinds has been fully supported; good common has been firm. The few sales of fair to good medium have been at last week's prices; good to fine show no change, the demand being moderate, as also the finest kinds. New-make kinds have sold more freely, and in some instances at ½d. per lb. advance for fair to good quality. There has been a fair inquiry for Oolongs at full prices. Souchongs have sold to a fair extent at previous prices. In Flowery Pekoes and Uncoloured Japans there is nothing of interest to report. Scented Teas: There has been an improved demand for Canton Capers, but prices show but little alteration. Foochow kinds remain saleable at full prices. Orange Pekoes: Canton kinds have realised former prices. Foochow kinds have been more in request at an advance of ½d. to 1d. per lb. Green Teas: The market remains firm, with a fair business doing at the improved prices lately established, and for fine grades of Moyune even higher prices have been paid.

SILK.

There has been rather more inquiry during the week for China Silk, but at lower prices, and in a few instances a slight reduction has been submitted to, but the general tendency among holders is to be firm for full quotations. The transactions of the week are chiefly on Continental account, country buyers being probably somewhat taken up with the elections. Still there is more general disposition shown to be operating in certain classes of Tsatlees, and we may fairly look for more demand shortly. Cantons and Japans are unchanged, still quiet and with little doing. Deliveries are satisfactory, and compare most favourably with this time last year. The deliveries from 1st to 28th ult. inclusive have been:—

Canton	639	560
Japan	745	527
Bengal	275	373
Total	4,472	3,512 bales

COFFEE.—Only a light supply, consisting almost wholly of Plantation Ceylon, has been offered by auction, and disposed of at firm rates to a slight advance, viz., triage at 114s. to 126s., small to low middling 131s. to 134s., middling 134s. 6d. to 136s. 6d., pea-berry 133s. 6d. to 134s. 6d. A good demand has prevailed afloat, and business has been effected at a further slight advance, Plantation Ceylon crops at 129s. to 130s., 200 tons Manila at about 118s., per cwt.

COCOA NUT OIL.—The market has been quiet at £36 10s. for Ceylon, and £40 for Cochin.

CUTCH.—Fine Pegu is in moderately active demand at 21s. 6d. per cwt., showing a slight advance.

GAMBIER is steady at the last quoted rates. For arrival about 50 tons have been sold at 24s. 6d. ex ship.

GALLS.—The quiet tone of the market continues, but holders of China continue firm at the previous quotation, 55s. per cwt., at which price 44 cases offered in public sale were bought in.

HEMP.—The market is without alteration.

HIDES.—At the fortnightly sales held Thursday there was a fair demand for East India kinds, and Singapore, Penang and Rangoon realised full prices, though they sold rather irregularly. Singapore and Penang Buffalo were in moderate demand at about previous prices. Batavia were in good demand, and the best sorts sold well. Of 4,350 Batavia Buffalo offered, 2,550 sold, yellow 1st light, average 17¼ lb. at 10d. to 10½d., 1st heavy 24⅞ lb. at 9½d. to 9½d., extra heavy 35⅛ lb. at 8⅝d. to 8⅝d., 1st light 15⅞ lb. at 8⅞d., 1st heavy 24¼ lb. at 7⅞d. to 8d., mixed 5½d. to 6¾d. per lb.

HORNS.—At auction 11,710 (18 tons) Siam Buffalo sold, average 713 to 620 horns to ton, at 33s. to 33s. 6d., being lower.

JAPAN WAX continues quiet; 17 cases stained saucer at auction were bought in at 60s. per cwt.

PEPPER.—Market dull and prices without important alteration.

PLUMBAGO.—At auction Thursday 476 barrels Ceylon offered met only a moderate demand, and about half the quantity was disposed of at a further concession in value, fair to good lump at 20s. 6d. to 25s. 6d., fair to good chips 11s. to 13s. 3d., ordinary ditto 8s., and dust at 10s. 3d. to 11s. 6d. per cwt.

SPICES remain unaltered since our last report. About 30 cases Penang Cloves have been sold at 2s. 3d.

RICE.—A decidedly quieter tone has prevailed for floating cargoes of new crop, and prices are weaker. In other respects the market is steady. A cargo of 1,200 tons new Rangoon now loading has been sold at 12s. 3d. open charter.

SUGAR.—Scarcely any demand has prevailed, and business has been exceedingly small.

TIN.—Telegrams from Rotterdam announce that the 20,000 slabs Banca offered there Wednesday realised from f.70¾ to f.71¼; average f.70¼; £121 laid down here. A further decline has occurred in this market, the current rates being Straits on the spot £117, afloat £118; Banca, £121; Billiton, £118 per ton.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

The feeling is quieter, with less inquiry. Prices on the whole have been fairly maintained, but in some instances slight concessions have been submitted to.

NEW YORK MARKET REPORT.

COFFEE.—The market for Brazil Coffee is very quiet, stocks being low and holders being inclined to ask extreme values. In Mild Coffees the market is strong, but, as stocks are low, business is impeded. We quote as follows:—Java (Government bags), 30c. to 32c.; Java (mats), 30c. to 34½c.; Ceylon Native, 21c. to 28c.

CORDAGE.—The current prices are as follows:—Manila Cordage, sizes above 12-thread, 16½c.; do., 6-thread and 9-thread, ¼ in. and 5-16 in. diam., 17½c.; do., 12-thread, ⅜ in. diam., 17c.; do., Hay Rope, 17c.; do., Cordage, Bolt Rope Yarns, 18½c.; do., 6-thread and 9-thread, 19½c.

HEMP.—There are a few sales of Manila at 9½c., but business is inactive.

INDIGO.—This market is firm. The sales are 15 to 16 cases Manila at 75c. to 80c. currency, and 5 chests fair quality Bengal at $1 10c.

RICE.—The demand for all descriptions is good, and prices are fairly supported.

SUGAR.—Business in the raw Sugar market continues on a very moderate scale, the buying being only on account of immediate wants. The refined Sugar market is also slightly weaker.

SPICES.—Cloves are in demand and have been largely dealt in. Pepper is also in request. Other descriptions are quiet, but the market is strong. Prices are as follows:—Nutmegs $1.01 to $1.04, Mace $1.25 to $1.30, China Cassia $24½ to $25, and Batavia 20c. to 30c. (gold).

TIN.—Straits is quoted 28c. to 28½c., and Banca 32c.

TEA.—The Trade, having become pretty well supplied by late purchases, are not so anxious to buy as heretofore; the market, however, shows no signs of weakness, though late rates are perhaps not so readily obtained. New Crop, especially of desirable qualities, meet with ready sale, while Old Crop, including Oolong, which was bought freely on speculation at the time of a probable imposition of a tax, are not so easily moved, and it probably would be difficult to realise their cost. The stock of all kinds is considerably reduced. Tea is now brought here via the Suez Canal and England, in about the same time taken to come via San Francisco, and thence overland, with a slight difference as to cost in favour of the former routes. It is probable that considerable of our future supplies may reach us via England, as they are, as a rule, laid down here in better order. By auction 2,460 packages Green sold at 32½c. to 83½c.; 764 do. Oolong, 27c. to 60c.; and 42 do. Japan, 55c. to 56½c., cash.

FREIGHTS AND CHARTERS.

Berth rates of freight to the Eastern ports have a downward tendency, owing probably to the large amount of tonnage now offering. Coal freights to Galle have improved since our last report. Homeward chartering is dull, and there is but little business doing.

CASUALTIES.

GLASGOW, 22nd Jan.—A telegram dated Batavia, 20th Jan., from the master (Kerr) of the Tamerlane (ship), of Greenock, from Yokohama to New York, which stranded on the Alceste reef, Gaspar Straits, states that the vessel has got off, and that she will proceed to Batavia for repairs as soon as her cargo is landed.

IMPROVED COMPOUND MARINE ENGINES.—The screw steamer Teniers, owned by Messrs. Lamport and Holt, which lately completed her cargo in the Victoria Docks and sailed for the West Indies, has been fitted for her present voyage with new compound engines, upon a plan which the owners have had in use for eight or ten years past, but which during that period has been subjected to various modifications and improvements. As now carried out, it is found to effect so considerable a saving of fuel, at the cost only of a comparatively small diminution of speed, that it is likely to be generally adopted for steamers from which very quick passages are not required. The compound engine was first patented by Arthur Woolf, in the year 1804; and he placed his two cylinders in a vertical line, one above the other, and worked them by a single crank. Since that time a great many experiments have been made in relation to the subject, and almost every conceivable combination of cranks and cylinders has been tried; but the accepted type at present is the two-cylinder engine, with the cylinders placed either vertically or side by side. The engines of the Teniers afford, perhaps, the latest example of the construction by which economical steaming may be accomplished; and they occupy so much less space than those with which she was originally fitted that the change has in this way also, as well as in the smaller amount of coal stowage required, added considerably to her carrying capacity. They were built for Messrs. Lamport and Holt by Messrs. John Jones and Sons, of Liverpool.

A RETURN has just been issued under the authority of M. de Lesseps showing the total traffic on the Suez Canal, as well as the amount of tonnage and receipts, month by month, during the year 1873, and contrasting it with that of the corresponding months of the years 1871 and 1872. In 1871 the number of ships which passed through the Canal was 765, of 761,467 tons, and the receipts were 8,993,732 frs.; in 1872, 1,082 ships, 1,439,169 tons, the receipts being 16,407,591 frs.; while last year the ships had increased to 1,172, the tonnage to 2,085,032, and the receipts to 22,891,861 frs.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

THE LIVER, THE STOMACH, AND THEIR AILMENTS.—Alternations of temperature, muggy weather, a troubled mind, sedentary habits, excesses at the table, and a gay, reckless mode of life exert the most deleterious influence over the liver and stomach. When once these organs are fairly out of order, great inroads are quickly made on the general state of the health; the constitution, which loses the aid of two of its noblest organs, soon gives way, and diseases quickly follow, from which, if neglected, the worst consequences will inevitably result. If a course of Holloway's celebrated Pills be persevered in, all will be well again, as they are the finest and noblest correctives of the blood ever known, and effect certain cures of all disorders of the liver and stomach.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

The present French and Pacific mails bring advices from this port to the same date, the 23rd Dec. The French mail from London Oct. 10 arrived out on the 29th Nov., the P. and O. mail of Oct. 17 on the 5th Dec., the French mail of Oct. 24 on the 16th Dec., and the P. and O. mail of Oct. 31 on the 22nd Dec. The news has been to a great extent anticipated by the lengthy telegraphic intelligence which was published in our last issue.

One of the chief events of the interval had been a visit of the Mikado and the Empress to the Government Dockyard and Arsenal at Yokoska. The subjoined account of the proceedings is condensed from the Japan Herald:—

The Mikado arrived in Yokohama by special train from Yedo. On alighting from the train, the Royal party, entering the vehicles awaiting them (the body guard on either side of the Imperial carriages), proceeded leisurely from the Station along the thoroughfares leading to the landing place of the English Hatoba, where the Mikado and his suite at once stepped into a ship's gig, and were rowed off to the Tsoju-Maru, the band of which, on his arrival, played the Japanese national anthem. Her Majesty and suite followed in the barge in waiting, towed by one of the steam launches. His Majesty had no sooner entered the gig than the foreign vessels of war in harbour manned yards, and fired Royal salutes in honour of the occasion. On the conclusion of the demonstrative salutation of the men-of-war, the Japanese squadrons got under way, the Riojo-Maru leading, closely followed by the Hosho-Kan, Tobo-Kan, Tsoju-Maru, Wingo-Kan, Adzuma-Kan, the Nishin-Kan, containing the Foreign Ministers, bringing up the rear. As the Tsoju-Maru, on her way to Yokoska, passed the various foreign men-of-war, the yards were again manned, and the Mikado received with hearty cheers. After the departure of the fleet carrying the Imperial party and Diplomatic Corps from Yokohama, the vessels observed the order they took at starting, until about half-way between this port and the Arsenal at Yokoska, when the Nishin-Kan, carrying the Foreign Ministers, put on steam, and passed the other vessels, in order to arrive at the landing pier first, where his Majesty was to disembark.

The Mikado, having landed from the Tsoju-Maru, the fleet meantime saluting, and the band playing the national anthem, was received by the Diplomatic Corps, M. Verney, and the officials of the Arsenal in full uniform. The reception over, his Majesty, passing through a triumphal arch of tasteful design, preceded by some officials and his standard-bearer, the Empress following, accompanied by the kuge or ladies of the Court, proceeded to a small house on the Bluff, where seats on a throne, in a rustic but tasteful style, had been prepared for their Majesties. Here the Mikado, in a few appropriate words, expressed his pleasure at seeing the Foreign Ministers on the occasion, and thanked them for their presence. Sir Harry Parkes, the doyen, replied in a short but pithy speech, manifesting the interest with which the Diplomatic Corps watched the progress of the Empire; and on their behalf complimented the Emperor on the solicitude he had shown, on this and many other occasions, in regard to whatever might be of moment touching the welfare of his people. On the conclusion of the ceremony, the Emperor commenced the inspection of the Arsenal works, beginning with the patent slip, on which was a vessel in course of construction. During the inspection several ribs were put in position. The Imperial party, mixing freely with visitors, foreign and native, next proceeded to the blacksmiths' shop, where several machines were seen at work, cutting iron plates, &c. Thence the party sojourned awhile for refreshments in Mons. Verney's offices. This finished, a diver descended into the basin opposite, going down at one side and coming up at the other. This took some eight minutes to accomplish, in the course of which his Majesty manifested much curiosity. A vessel was next floated in the new dry dock, after which the Imperial party returned to the workshops, and inspected the steam hammers from a raised platform, on which was also seated the Empress. The operations consisted chiefly in beating into different shapes a mass of iron some two feet square. The party remained here some twenty minutes, apparently much interested. The store-room was next gone through, and then the smelting furnaces were visited. The party here presented a most unconstrained and heterogeneous character, the Mikado and the Empress apparently mixing freely with all comers. There were some five of the furnaces in operation, from the molten iron of which several large castings were made. The rope-works were next visited, where the various processes of this division of the establishment were inspected, from the rough hemp to the making of the final cords and ropes.

Thousands of Japanese were present to witness the inspection; everything passed off in a most orderly manner. As formerly, whenever the Mikado passed, his faithful subjects fell on their haunches; in other respects there was no indication of restraint. At sunset the whole of the Arsenal buildings were illuminated with parti-coloured lamps, the effect of which after nightfall was very agreeable, and contributed not a little to the pleasures of the occasion. The Royal party returned to Yedo next day.

The following items of news are also taken from the Japan Herald:—

The Japanese, since their return from Europe, have become somewhat exacting and impracticable. The return they are making for the consideration and kindness shown them abroad is by rendering the clauses in the existing treaties as obnoxious as possible. After having enjoyed the liberty to travel everywhere, they are restricting foreigners to within the narrow limits of the Treaty Ports, and have issued instructions to the tea-house keepers to deny foreigners food or shelter. As to the foreigners themselves, they are arrested and sent back to the ports.

The Ministers have put themselves in communication with the Government with respect to the unpaid instalments of the balance of the Simonosaki Indemnity, long overdue. The Government has admitted its liability, and the amount, with the exception of that due to America, will probably be paid.

Yamada, one of the late Embassy, has been appointed Minister to China, and Mori, late Minister to the United States, has been appointed Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs. Hanabusa, the new Minister to Russia, left by French mail steamer on the 9th December, with Kawase, Minister to Italy. Yanigawara, who was lately designated Minister to Holland and Belgium, will not proceed abroad, but has accepted an appointment in the Foreign-office.

Another theatre is in course of erection. The proprietors of the German Hotel are hastening towards completion a building intended to be opened permanently as a theatre and public meeting room some time during the coming Christmas season. The construction measures 97 ft. by 25 ft.; from floor to ceiling, 13 ft. The stage is 24 ft. square; the front or drop scene, 15 ft. by 9 ft. At the other end of the building are private boxes, with seats for some forty persons. The entire building is calculated to contain about 300 persons.

Several lots belonging to the bankrupt estate of Messrs. Textor and Co. have been sold by auction by Messrs. Bourne and Co. Lot No. 29 was bought by Messrs. Ahrens and Co. for $22,000; lot No. 46 by Mr. R. B. Baker, for $5,900; and lots 158 and 159 by Captain Lane, for $5,200 and $1,700 respectively.

The residence of Mr. De Long, on the Bluff, has been purchased by Mr. Pistorius, Yokohama agent for the Netherlands Trading Society, for the sum of $12,000.

The agent of the Oriental Bank Corporation announces that the bank is prepared to keep current accounts, and receive fixed deposits in gold and silver yen. This step will involve some extra clerical work on the part of the bank officers, but will be a convenience to several of its customers. It indicates that the bank has every confidence in the management of the Mint, and the integrity of its issues.

The Government, in order to check the rabbit mania, has issued a notification imposing a tax of $1 per month on each rabbit. This has at once brought the trade in these animals to an abrupt conclusion.

The Japan Mail contains the following items of intelligence:—

It has been announced that the Government had intimited its recognition of the illegality of the institution known as the Kiito Aratame Kaisha, or guild of native silk merchants. The intelligence is, so far, premature; but the Government has pledged itself to inquire into the procedure and mode of action of the guild, with the view of learning how far they may be a variance with the terms of the treaty stipulations.

Lord Granville has intimated that Her Majesty's Government has decided to discontinue the payment of the sum of £400 per annum out of the public funds towards the chaplaincy at Yokohama. The allowance will, however, be continued in 1874.

A notification has been published by H.B.M. Minister announcing that the exportation of rice, barley, and wheat is now permitted by the Japanese Government.

A statement of the position of the Bluff Gardens property has been circulated by the directors. Three years' rent is now due, and it is proposed to pay off two-thirds of this, and to request the Government to forego its claim to the remainder on the condition of the proprietary rights of the original subscribers being unconditionally surrendered to the public.

The Japanese Postal Authorities have introduced stamped envelopes and paper, in imitation of the postal card system, which has come into universal use.

An Imperial notification has been issued of a new "Statute of Limitations" to be introduced into Japanese judicial practice. The reasons given by Iwakura, who signs the notification, for its introduction, are that owing to the mildness of Japanese creditors debtors have often escaped before the majesty of the law was attempted to be invoked; and even when the debtors were to be had witnesses were not unlikely to have died or left the place. To obviate these inconveniences it is enacted:—

1. That money due for the following shall not be recoverable unless sued for before the end of six months after the debt be incurred, viz., salaries to teachers, expenses of portage, sleeping and other hotel bills, bargain money, goods on credit between merchants, coolies' services, day labourers' services, money due on contracts, admittance to and price for seats in theatres and hire of musicians, &c.

2. Doctors' expenses, expenses of their keep by scholars boarded by their teachers, money for goods sold on credit to a customer, and overdue wages to a yearly servant, must be claimed within one year of the accruing of the debt.

3. Money or rice lent on interest (together with the interest) or deposited for safe keeping, rental of house, ground, or rice-fields, bond-money, shiki-kin (money deposited by an incoming tenant with the landlord, to be returned on leaving), money for clothes, &c., lent and not returned, for bringing up a child, or due to a servant hired for over five years or without agreement, must be claimed within five years.

The law is to come into effect on the 1st January.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 26th Dec.; the P. and O. mail from London Oct. 31 arrived out on the 20th Dec. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

We hear that Mr. Coryell and Captain Paul went up the Yangtsze in the S.S.N.Co.'s steamer Shanse, to take the machinery, &c., out of the wreck of the Kiangloong.

The First Concert of the Philharmonic Society for the season was undoubtedly one of the best with which we have yet been favoured. The attendance, we regretted to notice, was not so large as the efforts of the Society for our amusement entitled them to expect.

We have been disappointed in a promised report of Saturday's paper hunt, and are only able to say that Mr. Bigsby was the first to reach the Fox, Mr. Shaw leading the heavy weights. We are informed, however, that objection has been made that these gentlemen did not follow the line of paper at the finish.

We have received a further letter from "Liberal," going more fully into the Missionary question, raised by correspondence in our columns some weeks ago; but we have advised the writer to withdraw it, on the ground that it would probably lead to acrimonious discussion that is better avoided.

An ingenious contrivance has been fixed up in the club for giving alarm to the several police-stations in case of fire in the neighbourhood. Inside a locked case is an instrument connected with the telegraph wires on the Bund. By turning a handle, a certain number of strokes are rung on the bells at the different stations—this number indicating the neighbourhood from which the alarm is given. In case the key of the case should be not readily obtainable, it is possible to gain access to the handle by smashing a piece of plate glass in its front.

The frigate (No. 6) was successfully launched at the Arsenal.

It is stated in the papers to hand by the Costa Rica that the Hon. F. Low, United States Minister to Peking, has not resigned, as was reported at the time of his departure. It is expected that he will shortly return to China. Mr. Low has fulfilled his duties so ably that this will no doubt afford much satisfaction not only to the citizens of his own country, but to the foreign communities generally in China.

Kiukiang is now beginning to show signs of recovery in the shape of municipal improvements from the wretched state in which the rebels left it. Last year some Tls. 25,000 were expended on the embankment and the Chentai's Yamen, and this year Tls. 15,000 have been granted for the erection of a yamen for the departmental examiner (Literary); in addition to which a handsome temple is being completed near the pagoda. The official buildings are paid for out of the Likin fund, and the temple by subscription. Eleven small gunboats have been launched, and appeared to be for the maintenance of order on the river, and preventive service work. The troops have taken to the European drill, though they have not quite abandoned the bow and gingall. An English missionary has just returned from the western part of the province, where he seems to have been well treated by all but the officials. One magistrate refused to see him on terms of equality, because his passport described him as a Min jen—one of the bourgeoisie, who are never admitted on equal terms into the official presence. It is stated that the Catholics have succeeded in getting the mandarins to rebuild the chapel destroyed by the mob in the Fuchow prefecture of this province. Our community has been increased by the addition of two missionaries from the States.

CHINESE PROCLAMATIONS.

The following are the official translations of the Proclamations recently issued in connection with Mr. Mayer's visit :—

Proclamation by Liu, Bat'uru of the Chen-yung grade, Financial Commissioner and Director-in-Chief of the general Li-kin Board of the Province of Kiang-si.

Whereas, when Chinese or foreign merchants, having taken out duty certificates, transport foreign merchandise inland for sale, they are wholly exempted from payments along the course of their journey, as is set forth in regulations publicly notified, with the tenor of which every one is acquainted—it is incumbent upon the officials and other persons employed at the li-kin taxing-stations to exercise a watchful supervision, and to tolerate no discrepancy in the weight or number of packages, or variation as regards the point of delivery. In like manner, it is their duty to act in a spirit of entire justice and integrity, and to suffer no obstructiveness to be wilfully indulged in by clerks or underlings. In cases where fines and confiscations are entailed, they must, in conformity with the action already established, transmit the merchandise to the provincial capital to be re-weighed and examined, thus combining just and equitable treatment, with a proper regard for the careful discharge of duty. If all ye Chinese and foreign merchants will but implicitly observe the established regulations, letting no disturbance of packages, or divergence from the declared points of destination take place, there is no occasion to fear that partiality or harshness will be manifested at the taxing-stations, neither can there be any reason for timorously holding back, whereby ye yourselves do harm to your trading interests.

This proclamation is accordingly issued—wherefore it is hereby notified to the clerks and underlings of all taxing-stations, as also to the Chinese and foreign merchants, that they may be informed, one and all, of what is set forth above.

Disobey not.

Translated by W. F. MAYERS, Chinese Secretary.

Proclamation by Liu, Financial Commissioner; Li, Judicial Commissioner; Wu, Comptroller of the Salt Gabelle; Wang, Comptroller of the Rice Levy; and K'iao, Expectant Intendant of Circuit—constituting the General Board of Reorganisation* for the Province of Kiang-si.

Whereas, since the establishment of treaties between China and foreign Powers, liberty to trade (in China) has been conceded to the subjects of different foreign countries, whence advantage is mutually enjoyed on either side—and whereas it is similarly permitted to them to journey into the interior for purposes of travel, in which particular also no detriment accrues to the country, now, ye scholars and people in general, although ye be not restrained from gazing at such travellers as come from distant lands, yet must ye be careful to avoid clamorous shouting or crowding, which may go so far even as to produce disturbances, whereby the gracious wish of his Majesty to cherish tenderly those from afar would be set at naught, and ye yourselves would become liable to punishment. Accordingly, this proclamation is issued. Wherefore, it is hereby notified to all of ye scholars and people aforesaid that all may be alike informed thereof, and obey with trembling.

A special Proclamation!

An inquiry has been instituted with reference to the burning of the steamer Moyune. The inferences drawn from the evidence taken were that the fire did not originate from the furnace of the donkey-boiler nor in the coal bunkers, but from some accident at or near the lamp-room. The steamer Appin arrived on the 19th inst. from Tientsin. She has accomplished twenty trips between Shanghai and that port during the year. This performance exceeds that of any other steamer on the line, and may be attributed in a marked degree to the ability of her commander and the general good management.

The French Council having opposed a projected meeting with reference to the covered wharfs in front of the Bund, the Consul-General very properly urged that the public could not be denied the right of discussion, and a meeting was called. In consequence of this, it is stated that Messrs. Leroy and Mackintosh, together with the Rev. A. Aymeri, have resigned their seats at the Council.

Some interesting particulars are given in the North China Herald of a journey from Hankow to Szechun.

Mr. J. Livingston has retired from Tientsin; his partner, Mr. William Forbes, will continue the business in his own name.

The following remarks, having reference to Mildewed Shirtings, are from the Shanghai Trade Report :—

Locally, the trade has been supplied from mildews, which, unfortunately, are again on the increase—unfortunately, because even the natives are now getting tired of them, and are claiming and obtaining heavier allowances than ever on mildew damaged goods. In former years, Ningpo was the distributing centre for the refuse of the Shanghai market, and in those days buyers claimed 1 mace to 1½ per piece allowance for damage; but last season the Northern dealers also entered the market, and the value of mildews was raised to within 3 or 5 cands. per piece of that of sound goods. The Northern fancy, however, is played out. The native advices by the last steamers from Tientsin and Cheefoo discourage, if they do not actually forbid, further operations in damages, in which are included mildews, wax-finish, sizings, and false weights; and, by the courtesy of a friend, I am permitted to insert here the following laconic extract from a letter lately received by him from a traveller in the North of China. "Great complaints at Tientsin about the rotten goods from Manchester—sizing and false weights. The English manufactures are suffering from universal discredit." It must be borne in mind that Drills, and almost every kind of Plain Cottons, share equally with Grey Shirtings in this "universal discredit," and it is just within the bounds of possibility that Lancashire, in her desire to send "what they ask for in China," may discover when too late that her weighing and finishing genius might have been turned to better account.

The following paragraph regarding the loss of an American vessel appears in the Diario de Manila:

The year about expiring has been a fatal one to shipping in this Archipelago. A new disaster at sea has come to our knowledge. The American ship Charger, which left this for Cebu on the 10th inst., in which port she was to take in for Europe the remainder of her cargo, has been lost on a coral reef, at about a dozen miles from the entrance to that port. The Charger, despatched by the firm of Peele, Hubbell, and Co., had on board two thousand piculs of hemp.

The Comercio supplies the following additional particulars :—

By the steamer Pasig we have received a letter from Cebu, dated the 20th instant, in which the sad intelligence of the loss of the fine American ship Charger is furnished us. The letter is as follows :—The only news current here is the loss of the American ship Charger, which left Manila for this on the 10th inst. On the night of the 14th inst. she struck upon a coral reef called Dajun-Tajun, near the entrance to this port. It is possible that, owing to the badness of the weather, neither the vessel nor her cargo will be saved, notwithstanding the assistance afforded afterwards to the captain, who arrived here in his boat on the evening of the 15th, in order to bring intelligence of the disaster.

The drawing of the Manila lottery took place on the 23rd, on which occasion the largest prize ($50,000) fell to ticket No. 7,717, which had been forwarded, along with others, to China. The second prize for $25,000 was won by an artillery lieutenant, who is now in Spain.

$6,367.95 had been collected at Manila for the benefit of the sufferers from the hurricanes which lately raged in the Philippines.

The Gazette has the following from Mr. W. Walters, who writes from Gunong Tabong :—

"December 12, 1873.

"I beg to report that I have cut a line and made a batang road from the coal at Silantik to this place (about thirteen miles), and that the ground is very favourable, i.e., undulating, and giving sufficient earth for filling up the lower parts of the line within a great distance of them. I have avoided the great swamps predicted to be met with, also the hills or mountains on each side of the line, by merely crossing the lower part of the spurs.

"On the 30th of last month I received a fine specimen of coal from Gunong Tatei, a place which I previously wrote to H.H. the Rajah as being likely for coal to be found. When I have completed this job, which I hope to do in about a fortnight, I propose to visit both the coal of Tatei and Sibuyau, the latter of which is reported to be five feet thick; and on having done so I will forward to you the facts of my investigations, &c."

BATAVIA.

The Customs and Excise regulations framed to enable the new Netherlands India tariff, which came into operation on the 1st inst., to be worked, were submitted, in draft, to the Chamber of Commerce in Java for their opinions. The result is thus described by the Indier :—

As we had foreseen, the general regulation for the levying and collection of import and export and excise duties, as also the ordinances for the levying of an excise duty on native distilled spirits, have been announced to come into operation on Jan. 1 next. The excise law endows us with an unfree (shackled) territory, and the formalities connected with the excise are considered to be so oppressive that most of the arrack distilleries will disappear. The former farm was also an excise one, but did not work in such an offensively vexatious manner. The regulation on the levying and collection of duties has been left unchanged, in the main, although the most draconic of the rules have been modified. Thus, sixty hours after arrival, instead of forty-eight, are now allowed to make the general manifest. Thus, forfeiture of ship and cargo is replaced by fines which reach f.5,000 and upwards. But forfeiture of goods and fines are retained, even for actions which do not affect the captain. The favourable regulations for discharging cargo from steamers, first introduced in 1871, have disappeared. The chief difficulty from a legal standpoint, the price current, whereby the ad valorem tariff principle is set aside and broken, remains. The whole forms a collection of badly drawn up regulations, in conflict with the spirit of the age, and with every idea of freedom of trade, which will inflict injury upon the trade of Netherlands India, and will cause the trade of Singapore's free port to flourish and increase. We pointedly draw the attention of the powers that be in the mother country, who passed the law, to this method of carrying out a truly liberal law.

* NOTE.—The Shan-how Tsung Ku—literally a General Committee or Board for arrangements contingent upon the restoration of peace and order. This title is given to the Councils of administration existing in each Province since the conclusion of the Taiping Rebellion, taking the place of the Councils of War or Military Boards which wer previously constituted by the same officials.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this mail extend to the 9th Jan.; the French mail from London Dec. 5 arrived out on the 7th Jan. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

We think the petition of the Province Wellesley planters is a very moderately worded document, except in so far as it impeaches the late Magistrate of the Province of having encouraged vexatious proceedings against them, and of having far exceeded his legal powers. No doubt the action of his Excellency Sir Andrew Clarke, in immediately appointing three Government Hospitals in the Province, will have, even in their eyes, sufficiently provided against a continuance of the medical neglect they complain of; and we think they may be satisfied that the Magistrate's conduct will be well looked to in the trial of the coming coolie cases.

We cannot congratulate the Government upon the appearance of the new post-office building now in course of erection on the site of the late Fort Fullerton. The lower story, with its numerous columns, looked promising, and we were under the impression that an elegant building was in course of erection, but when, instead of an upper story that would have been in keeping with the heavy architecture of the lower part, the whole is topped with a squatty roof, the effect is sadly marred. A roomy upper story would have afforded very valuable accommodation either for the post-office or for other public purposes.

Though it was beyond all doubt very desirable that the Legislative Council of the Settlement should have restored to it the full strength of its unofficial element, we question if we have much room to congratulate ourselves on the manner in which this restoration has been effected at the present juncture. Better men than the three honourable members who re-accepted office on Tuesday last it would be impossible for us to obtain, men even as good it would be difficult to obtain. Yet it seems to us, unless we have been grievously misinformed, that by the manner of their re-acceptance of their seats in Council they have cancelled any good which their resignation on September 29th was calculated to secure.

His Excellency seems inclined to look difficulties fairly in the face, and to take pretty bold measures to meet them, if what we hear of the interview the municipal commissioners had with him be true. In alluding to the town drainage, so long in abeyance, and to the distribution of the water supply, which we are now to have in earnest, his Excellency said it was just as well to make up our minds at once to an expenditure of $450,000 on those two undertakings, as they would cost very little less; and to meet this expenditure he said he was quite prepared to sanction a new municipal loan of £100,000 sterling, and to give the guarantee of the Straits Government to the same. Well, it is certainly a good deal of money this, and there is no doubt a species of moral courage in being able to look its expenditure in the face; but having attained to this courage, we trust we shall reserve a proper caution as to the manner in which the money goes.

The Commissioners, it appears further, made his Excellency aware of their wish to have a first class engineer for the Municipal Works; and we believe the prompt reply was the despatch, there and then, of a telegram to London for an engineer whose abilities are well known to his Excellency, and whose salary is to be £1,000 per annum. We are half induced to cry "Ca canny" on hearing this last.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

The following account of the events in the Atchin Campaign up to the 17th Dec. is supplied by a correspondent of the Penang Gazette:—

On the 28th November the Princess S. Alexandra, with General van Swieten, arrived, and was lustily cheered by the troops on board the fleet and saluted by the flag-ship. The same day the surgical and medical staff arrived in the Koningen Sophia, also the landing pontoons and rafting materials in the Sumatra. On the 29th two small war steamers, accompanied by the General and Naval Commander, proceeded to the mouth of the Atchin river on a reconnoitring expedition. About 9 A.M. they saw what they took to be a masked battery, and fired into it. They were answered immediately by two guns, which were so well manned that one shot passed right over the bridge where the General and Naval Commander and their staffs were collected, and struck the water about fifty yards on the other side of the vessel. On the 2nd Dec. as many men as could be accommodated on board the store-ships were removed to them, in order to relieve the overcrowding of the transports, and the sick were landed on Pulo Nassy. On the 7th, all the available forces were collected off the entrance to Nazar River and a show of landing was made; thirty-five vessels in all anchored off it; rafting, pontooning and collecting boats astern of the transports was the order of the day. This move however turned out to be a clever ruse on the part of the Dutch in order to mislead the Atchinese. On the night of the 8th the ships received orders to be ready to move early next morning. At 1.30 A.M. on the 9th the war ships commenced to heave up their anchors, and by 4.30 the whole squadron, transports included, were under way and steaming to the eastward. At 6 A.M. Pedro Point was reached, and the fleet stood in, making for the land about half a mile to the westward of that headland. At 7 o'clock the war ships ranged up and opened fire, shelling the jungle all along the foreshore.

The first landing division, amounting to 1,980 men, was in the meantime got into the boats, which, while the shelling was going on, were laying on their oars, ready to start for the shore when the signal was given. A few Atchinese were seen among the bushes, but no demonstration was made by their large guns. At 9 A.M. the boats began to move towards the shore in two divisions; no opposition was shown until they were within a few yards from the beach, when they were met by a brisk fire of musketry from the sand ridges, behind which the Atchinese had entrenched themselves. The boats replied with their bow howitzers, but there was apparently some hitch, as the boats stopped for a few minutes; this was caused, we afterwards found out, by the cowardly conduct of the convict boatmen, who stopped plying their oars as soon as the firing of the enemy commenced. At the sight, however, of some of the Atchinese on the shore, the troops cheered lustily, and the convicts evidently managed to pluck up courage, and a few strokes of their oars landed the boats on the beach. At 9.20 A.M. the first man (a lieutenant of the 14th battalion) leaped on shore, the troops followed and scattered along the beach in apparent disorder, but were seen to form themselves almost immediately and moved up steadily under the Atchinese fire, the Dutch reserving theirs till the sand ridges were gained, when a few sharp volleys were exchanged and the Atchinese positions taken; the Dutch flag replacing that of the Atchinese in less time than it takes to describe the struggle. It is supposed that the number of Atchinese defending these ridges was very small, as there was not time for them to concentrate any large force to oppose the landing of the invaders. Through the remainder of this day there was little or no opposition shown to the Dutch troops, who were marching to the westward along the shore; several of the fortified positions of the Atchinese being found deserted, the shells from the vessels of the fleet making them untenable. A rather exciting incident was witnessed during this march by those on board the fleet. Two sailors managed to land suddenly from one of the ships some distance ahead of the troops, and were seen to make for the thicket; no one appeared to know what they were up to, and they were for a few minutes lost to sight, when suddenly one of them was seen climbing up a flagstaff in one of the mud forts, and to tear the Atchinese flag down amid great cheering from the troops and fleet. The boats after landing another detachment of infantry commenced to land cavalry and artillery.

In the evening, the troops having reached Gegan Creek, encamped for the night, the fleet occupying a position commanding both flanks. About two A.M. on the 10th very heavy firing was heard around the camp. The Atchinese appeared to be attacking in considerable force, but were beaten off. At seven A.M. the whole of the troops forded the Gegan Creek, and the day was spent in skirmishing along the shore towards the westward, the fleet moving in a parallel line to the land forces, keeping slightly ahead and pouring shot and shell into every position of the enemy which was within range. At night the Dutch encamped on the west side of the creek. On the morning of the 11th, portions of the land force were detached and disappeared into the jungle skirting the banks of the creek and cleared it of the enemy. At noon the Atchinese came down with a large force and attacked the Dutch with great vigour. They came to the assault without any apparent order, yelling and screaming like so many red Indians. When this assault was commenced it must have taken the Dutch troops by surprise to a certain extent, as all of them, with the exception of the sentries and pickets, were evidently resting themselves, and were scattered about in undress in the camp; but so perfect was their discipline that within two minutes from the time when the alarm was first sounded almost the whole force was under arms, and marched forward in array to repel the attack of the enemy. The battle lasted for three quarters of an hour, when as many of the Atchinese as escaped the terrible fire of the Dutch breach-loaders disappeared into the jungle. The band struck up the Dutch national air, and all was quiet again for that day. There is no computing the loss of the Atchinese, but it must have been fearfully large, owing to the manner in which they repeatedly exposed themselves in the most reckless manner, in vain attempts to come to close quarters, and they were consequently literally mown down. An hour after the close of this fight the whole bush in front of the Dutch Camp was one sheet of fire. It is not known exactly how this was caused, but it is supposed that some Dutch sailors did it in order to drive the Atchinese out; be this as it may, there was no fighting for the rest of that day, nor all that night, owing to the conflagration, which separated both forces from one another.

On the 12th, at day light, a portion of the troops recommenced their westward march, the ships continuing their programme of keeping in advance and shelling the works of the enemy. No fighting of any importance took place that day, and the troops encamped about a mile to the eastward of the Atchin River. After dark however the Atchinese made a series of harassing attacks, and the firing of musketry and field pieces was heard throughout the whole of the night. The morning of the 13th saw the fleet heavily bombarding several extensive earthworks which were discovered on both sides of the entrance to the river. At 7 A.M. the fleet ceased firing, and the troops advanced to take the above, but were met by a brisk fire of musketry from them and a fort which was situated about 600 yards from the beach. The troops immediately retired, and the fleet opened fire and continued blazing away for about two hours. At noon the ships again stopped firing, and the troops advanced inshore and attacked the forts and earthworks from the rear, but met with very little resistance, and they captured the whole of them with ease. During these operations an officer of cavalry, in attempting to cross a creek to attack an earthwork, was drowned; besides this the Dutch losses for the day amounted to three killed and twenty-two wounded. The camp at the Gegan creek was deserted that afternoon, and a permanent camp was pitched on the same spot as a portion of the forces had encamped on on the 12th (within three quarters of a mile of the river). Firing was heard all night, but nothing serious took place.

On the 14th, at six A.M., all the troops moved from the camp and marched on in fighting order, and were met by a heavy fire from the Atchinese, who were in ambush, and under cover of the jungle. The Dutch replied at once, and continued moving forward; after half an hour of very heavy firing on both sides, the Atchinese suddenly ceased theirs, and the Dutch entered the jungle in pursuit. The latter, however, only went in a short distance, when they brought their mortars to the front, and commenced to throw shells in advance, so as to drive the enemy out, an object which they were not long in accomplishing. On the afternoon of that day the troops all marched further to the westward, and took possession of the whole east bank of the river. There was some slight fighting going on that day inshore, but nothing worth recording happened. On the morning of the 15th, twenty armed launches went up the river and captured a fort on the west side of it. The Dutch commenced landing wooden materials for erecting hospitals and quantities of stores during the course of the day. The fighting among the troops was confined to a few skirmishes with the pickets. That night the bush was again on fire in several places. On the 16th an advance was made from the camp in the direction of the Kraton, the course taken being apparently in a straight line from the Dutch camp to it. There was during the early part of the day a good deal of firing and skirmishing going on, and at night the Atchinese managed to come to close quarters with the Dutch several times.

On the 17th a portion of the troops crossed an arm of the river. After a hot engagement, which lasted half an hour, in which a captain of infantry was killed and several Dutch were wounded, the Dutch captured several strong and well fortified earthworks. In one was found a 40-pounder gun of European manufacture. In another they came across two, the smaller measuring 13 ft. 6 in. in length, and 8½ in. in bore; the larger was 20 ft. in length, of 5½ in. bore, 19 in. at the muzzle and 2 ft. at the breach in diameter. Both these were of solid brass, and evidently cast in the country; the latter had not, however, been mounted, so of course was of little use to the defenders. The principal features of the earthworks themselves were that they all consisted of holes dug in the ground, and the earth was thrown up in front of them, being thus well calculated to protect the occupants against every kind of missile, with the exception of shell. The firing of the Dutch vessels was excellent, as is testified to by the fact that several shells dropped right into the holes and exploded there, of course causing great havoc.

The Dutch have lost a great many of their small boats, which, owing to the heavy surf on the coast, have been dashed to pieces, but so far without any loss of life arising therefrom. The medical arrangements of the expedition are perfect, and it is but fair to say that great humanity has been shown by the Dutch towards the Atchinese, the wounded of the latter being attended to by the medical department just as carefully as those of the former. What loss the Atchinese have suffered it would be impossible to say, but judging from the large number of dead which are met with, in the creeks and swamps, and taking into consideration that the enemy carry away as many of their dead as they can, there must have been fearful havoc committed amongst them.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Business had been on a small scale, in consequence of the fire at Yedo, coupled with the near approach of the new year. For Grey Shirtings, 8¼lbs., a good demand had existed at higher prices, which, however, had ceased at the close. For Cotton Yarn there had been rather less inquiry at higher prices for best qualities, while almost all other goods had been neglected.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—There had been little change in the market. Business in imports generally had remained on a limited scale and unsatisfactory as hitherto during the season. Stocks of many articles were still excessive, whilst, on the other hand, there was altogether only a trifling demand. Cottons: In consequence of heavy supplies Shirtings had declined in value to $2.60 to 2.70 for 8¼ lbs., but had since recovered, and closed firm at $2.78 to 2.81 for best chops of this weight; other descriptions were not wanted. The demand for Black Velvets had ceased, and prices were consequently weaker, $8½ to 9½. Taffachelass continued in good demand and firm, good assortments being scarce. Yarns were unchanged, but with a little better feeling at the close. Woollens: Except Black Orleans there was scarcely any article in demand, and most of them, especially Cloth and its substitutes, such as Union Cloth, Pilots, Presidents and Sealskins, were lower, and more or less nominal. Nail-rod Iron was wanted, and prices were firm at an advance.

SHANGHAI.—No alteration of importance had taken place in the market during the week. In Grey Shirtings a moderate business had been done at rather easier rates for 7 lbs. descriptions. White Shirtings had still been firmly held, but the additional settlements had been small. T-Cloths and Drills had continued almost unsaleable. Fancy Cottons had been in rather better request. The further sales of Woollens had been mainly confined to Long Ells and Black Lastings.

FOOCHOW.—The only sale reported had been 200 pigs Lead, at $8.50 per picul.

HONG KONG.—The market had been quiet, and unchanged for all descriptions of merchandise, as the usual holidays had interfered with business.

MANILA.—The market for Plain Staples remained in much the same position as last reported, and no alterations had occurred in quotations. Coloured Goods maintained the advance previously recorded for suitable styles.

SAIGON.—After a somewhat weak market, brought about by abundant supplies from Singapore, holders had become decidedly firmer. Quotations: Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs., $2.55 per piece; ditto, 7 lbs., $2.12½; Irish Linen, No. 150, $1.60; Grey Supers, $1.90; ditto, No. 1, $2; T-Cloths, 6 lbs., $1.62; ditto, 5 lbs., $1.32½; ditto, 4½ lbs., $1.20; ditto, 4 lbs., $1.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—A steady business had been done in medium to choice grades at former prices. Settlements were estimated at 5,000 piculs; arrivals had been on a smaller scale than last reported, and stocks were somewhat reduced. Quotations:—Common (nominal), $21 to $23 per picul; good common, $24 to $27; medium, $29 to $32; good medium, $33 to $36; fine, $38 to $41; finest, $43 to $47; choice, $50 and upwards. Export from June 1 to date, 8,198,553 lbs., against 8,696,743 lbs. for the corresponding period last season.

HIOGO-OSAKA.—There had been a fairly active business doing durin the month, and settlements aggregated 4,200 piculs. Quotations showed little alteration, but were very irregular. Stocks were estimated at 4,000 piculs. Shipments by this (Pacific) mail were 520 tons, which made the export to date about 1,000,000 lbs. under last season for a similar period.

SHANGHAI.—Black: The few parcels remaining at the date of last advices had been eagerly bought up, at prices ranging from Tls. 12½ to 20½ per picul, showing a further advance of one tael per picul, except for the very common kinds. The market was bare of stock, and the season was considered as practically closed. Green: An advance of about two taels had been established, at which a considerable business had taken place. Supplies had come forward on a small scale, and the stock was considerably reduced. Total arrivals, 508,585 half-chests. Settlements had been Teenkai, fine, at Tls. 3.50; Teenkai, fine lines, Tls. 53; Moyune, fine to finest, Tls. 36 to 45; Moyune, medium to fine, Tls. 31 to 35.50; Moyune, common to medium, Tls. 25.50 to 29; Fychow, medium to fine, Tls. 29 to 35.50; Taeping, Tls. 27.50; Pingsuey, Tls. 20 to 33; Local Packed, Tls. 25 to 28.50. Total settlements 20,982 half-chests. The stock consisted of 24,379 half-chests Country Tea; 11,206 half-chests Pingsuey; and 3,000 half-chests Local packed. FOOCHOW.—During the week transactions on this market had been on a moderate scale, the selection on offer having been of most undesirable character. The remaining stock consisted of the lowest grades, and but little more Tea was expected from the country. Considerable purchases had been made in Oolongs for the United States. The Export to Great Britain and the Continent of Europe to date had been:—Season 1873-74, 50,594,258 lbs.; season 1872-73, 50,111,456 lbs.

AMOY.—The small remaining stock of Oolong had been all bought up, and as no further arrivals were expected from the country we may consider the season as at an end. The total supply had been 151,102 half-chests, or nearly 70,000 half-chests under last season's. The Oberon sailed for New York on Dec. 18, taking 339,073 lbs. Amoy Oolongs: There was still a fair quantity of Tea waiting shipment, but as yet no vessel had been fixed to take the berth, and it would most likely be shipped coastwise.

CANTON.—There was no activity whatever in the market, and no settlements of general merchandise were reported. Tea had remained entirely neglected, no offers having been made for any description, and both the Teamen and purchasers appearing disposed to await the result of the Home market before taking any steps towards resuming business. Three small vessels, the Peiho, Hohenzollern, and Glamorganshire, had been advertised to load for New York, and it was reported that they would take only part cargoes from this port.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been a current business doing, and settlements were estimated at 900 bales. Good average parcels of Hanks were very difficult to meet with, and rejections had again been heavy. Arrivals had been fair and stock was slightly increased. There had been scarcely any change in prices, and last quotations were virtually unaltered; in some cases lower prices had been accepted, and with the near approach of the New Year and settling period a slight weakness was apparent at the close. Silk-worms' Eggs: A few cards were going forward by this American Mail, which close the season, and the total export had been 1,400,000 cards, against 1,280,000 cards last year.

SHANGHAI.—The market had been less active than for some weeks previously, and French buyers were less eager. The stock although large was mostly undesirable, and of very coarse and inferior qualities. Chop silks were very scarce. For Red Peacock Tls. 185 was asked, and quality was 1s. worse than early shipments. Dealers were disposed to sell, and lower prices were expected before China New-year. Total settlements to date about 47,000 bales; unsold stock about 6,000 bales.

CANTON.—During the week 70 bales of Tsatlee Reel had been purchased for Europe, and some 400 boxes of Rereels were reported as settled for the United States. Quotations for Tsatlee Reel and Loong Kong continued unchanged. No. 4 Tsatlee Reel $375 per picul, and No. 1 Loong Kong $455; Rereels however were somewhat dearer, Lacklow Extra calling for $505 per picul, No. 1 $475 to 480, and No. 2 $465; Rereeled Kotengon No. $560 per picul. Stock was estimated at 1,000 bales Tsatlee Reel, 150 bales Loong Kong, 100 bales Cumchook and Lacklow, and 300 bales middling to inferior Longreels.

THE WAR IN SUMATRA.

THE HAGUE, FEB. 6.—A telegram from the Dutch Consul at Penang was received at noon to-day at the Colonial-office, announcing that cholera is decreasing among the Dutch troops. Official advices, dated the 1st inst., have been received here from Atchin, stating that the Dutch troops made a reconnaissance on the 29th ult., to seek a line of communication between the two provinces, when they encountered the enemy, who opened fire on them, killing three and wounding eighteen men. The inhabitants of three provinces appeared desirous of submitting upon the Dutch guaranteeing to secure them liberty of religion. No reinforcements were needed. The cholera was decreasing.

THE HAGUE, FEB. 8.—The Government has to-day received an official despatch from Atchin, dated the 4th inst., announcing that the Atchinese chiefs remain hostile and are erecting forts in the interior. This, however, is not regarded as of much importance, the capture of the Kraton having broken the enemy's strength. The Dutch camp is now no longer subject to alarms from the Atchinese. Lieutenant-General van Swieten, before resuming operations, will see what attitude is taken up by the less hostile portion of the natives. A rumour is current that the Sultan of Atchin is dead.

ROYAL GEOGRAPHICAL SOCIETY.—At the meeting of this society on the 9th inst., the President, the Right Hon. Sir Bartle Frere, in the chair, a paper was read on "A Journey Outside the Great Wall of China," by Dr. S. W. Bushell, physician to the British Legation at Peking. The route taken was north-westerly, through inner Mongolia to Kalgan, and thence north-easterly to Dolonnor (a large town the exact position of which was previously unknown), and Shang-tu, the old northern capital of the Yuan dynasty, described in glowing terms by Marco Polo. The ruins of Shang-tu, built by the famous Kublai Khan, were identified by the existence of a marble tablet, with an inscription of the 13th century. It is the place referred to by Coleridge in his well-known lines—

"In Xanadu did Kublai Khan
"A stately pleasure dome decree," &c.

The author found the site a complete desert, overgrown with rank weeds and grass, the abode of foxes and owls, which prey on the numerous prairie rats and partridges. The walls of the city, built of earth faced with unhewn stone and brick, are still standing, but are more or less dilapidated, and the enclosed space is strewn with blocks of marble and other remains of large temples and palaces, while broken lions, dragons, and the remains of other carved monuments lie about in every direction, half hidden by the thick and tangled overgrowth. From Shang-tu the author travelled south-easterly past the great enclosed park called the Imperial hunting grounds, to the city of Jehol, and thence to Peking. A second paper was read on a Chinese subject by Mr. George Phillips, entitled "Notices of Southern Mangi." In the discussion which followed, Sir Rutherford Alcock dilated on the great service rendered to general knowledge by contributions on special points of geography like the papers of Dr. Bushell and Mr. Phillips, which, although apparently of limited interest, supplied accurate data for subsequent use. Mr. Baber, the Rev. Joseph Edkins, and Mr. W. Lockhart also took part in the discussion.

THE American Postmaster-General is reported to have declared that he shall be guided in the matter of the Pacific Mail Company subsidy by the action of Congress. If that body made the usual appropriation for a subsidy for the next fiscal year he will pay the amount to the company if they perform their contract, not otherwise. The impression prevails that the appropriation for the present fiscal year will be returned to the Treasury, the company having failed to comply with the contract made with the Department.

THE Messageries Maritimes Company's extra steamer Danube, with the screw steamer Provence in tow, left Aden on the 8th inst. for Suez and Marseilles, at which latter port they may be expected on or about the end of this month.

THE Japanese houses exhibited at the Vienna Exhibition have been purchased for the Alexandra Palace at Muswell-hill, and the Japanese builder who had them in charge is now on a visit to England.

IT is announced that 111 ships passed the Suez Canal in January, and the receipts from transit dues alone amounted to f.2,190,000 from the 1st to the 31st of Jan. Total receipts in 1873, f.24,297,060 80c.

DR. M'DOUGAL, formerly Bishop of Labuan, has been installed Canon of Winchester Cathedral, the vacancy having been caused by the death of the Rev. Dr. Watson some months since.

THE China Trans-Pacific Steamship Company's steamer Vasco de Gama, Capt. J. F. Rice, arrived at San Francisco on the 8th inst. from Hong Kong and Yokohama (seventeen days from Yokohama).

"FLOUNDERING AND FOUNDERING."

THE expression which we have prefixed to this article, and which was applied by Mr. GLADSTONE to the leader of the Conservative party, in reality very happily describes the conduct of those who, during late years, have controlled our policy, and charged themselves with their country's interests in the East. Reges delirant, rival statesmen fall out, and deliver themselves of contradictory assertions; but meanwhile—whoever may be the responsible party—and this is no business of ours to decide—the prospects of our trade in quarters of the globe "about as far off as the kingdom of Brobdingnag" are most materially sacrificed. Our relations with the Dutch in the Malay Archipelago, and more especially our behaviour towards Atchin, have been dragged before the British public, and represented to audiences naturally unfamiliar with the subject in lights shaded and coloured to suit the immediate purposes of electoral warfare, rather than intensified so as to convey true and accurate information. We have a more faithful and a more important duty to discharge, we wage no partisan strife; our simple task is to say what we can in defence of our true commercial interests, and while desiring to so set out our facts and put forward our arguments as to be understood by all, we do not forget that a goodly number of our readers are actually better versed in the history and bearings of the case than either Mr. GLADSTONE or Mr. DISRAELI can pretend to be. As to these two gentlemen, it is hardly worth our while to discuss and criticise their utterances. Each makes use of the Atchin question as a peg on which to hang political invective; and the Treaty lately concluded between the Dutch and ourselves is tossed from one side to the other like a shuttlecock. This treatment is of a kind little calculated either to redress mischief already occasioned, or to prevent further mischief in the future. One thing is at any rate apparent from the controversy, that both parties acknowledge the disastrous character of what has been done by our Foreign-office with respect to Sumatra and the Atchinese; for if this were not the case we should not see Mr. DISRAELI and Mr. GLADSTONE striving alike to shift the responsibility—it would be more correct to say the blame—on to the shoulders of his antagonist.

We may, however, take Lord DERBY'S recent letter to The Times as being not only substantially correct, but as a clue which will guide our less instructed readers through the mysteries of a question in itself somewhat involved, but which has been designedly enwrapped in complications in order to screen those who have offended from condemnation. On April 22nd, 1819, Sir STAMFORD RAFFLES concluded a Treaty of friendship and defensive alliance between the East India Company and the Sultan of ATCHIN. Nearly five years afterwards (that is, in 1824) we ratified another Treaty with the Dutch, by which—subject to certain conditions—we made over to the Netherlands Government our possessions in Sumatra. At the same time, we notified them of our compact with Atchin, agreeing to modify its provisions, but on the understanding that the integrity of the Atchinese dominions was to be respected. We never did—as it would seem—take any steps to modify this now partially superseded Treaty, and so the matter rested until September, 1868, at which time the Dutch made propositions to Lord DERBY to revise their Treaty relations in connection with this subject. A draft of a new Treaty was therefore prepared, in which—in return for certain points conceded to us by the Dutch, we on our part consented to recognise all the actual territorial acquisitions which the Dutch up to that time had made in Sumatra—for these were accomplished facts—but we purposely excluded all mention of Atchin, the status of which was to continue unaltered. The Cabinet of 1868, however, ceased to exist before these negotiations were completed, and it is now pretty clear that the Treaty ratified by Mr. GLADSTONE'S Government in 1871 differed in material points from that left unfinished by Lord DERBY when he quitted office in 1868—the most notable alteration being that by which the retention of Atchin as an independent State was abandoned. We have every desire in considering this question to put the saddle on the right horse—if we may be allowed to use a colloquial phrase—and we fear that the facts force upon us no other conclusion than that Mr. GLADSTONE'S late administration are solely responsible for the fall of Atchin, and for all the consequent mischief. We certainly should not like—in the interests of our trade with China and elsewhere—to see a predominant controlling power in territorial possession all along one side of the Straits, yet such—by our own weakness and want of foresight—must ever after be actually the case. Our pepper trade in Penang will also most seriously be affected—as we have once before pointed out—and many other evils, less easy to foretell now, are likely hereafter to ensue.

One other remark may here be added of a more general character as affecting our Eastern Foreign-office policy. We urge upon our friends to reflect upon the moral damage, the loss of prestige and confidence—sustained by the English among all the neighbouring native States. We overthrew the Sultan of ATCHIN by concluding a treaty on which he was never consulted, and he and his people—who have been taken greatly by surprise—consider that they, though unoffending, have been abandoned and betrayed by English statesmen. This view will also be shared generally among the Malay rajahs, and hence we shall forfeit much of that salutary moral influence over them which is so important where trade and credit are concerned. We may perhaps revert to the SULTAN and to his recent treatment by our authorities when he recently applied himself to them with appeals for succour and support, but we have no space to do full justice to this last point here; so much only we believe to be well ascertained that, by giving up our Treaty of 1824, we have suffered greatly commercially, and also in prestige, and while we brought this direct injury upon ourselves, we also placed ourselves in a position so equivocal towards a former ally that we shall at any rate be considered to have broken faith.

OPENING UP OF CHINA.

MR. CONSUL MEDHURST, in his report on the trade of Shanghai, makes some comments, which we give in another column, on the difficulties and obstructions now felt to the pushing of our manufactures into the interior. When the negotiations for a revision of the Treaty in 1869 were instituted this was the chief demand, and its urgency increases every year. That we should be still only scratching at the crust of China after so many years' trade is discreditable to our energy and enterprise, not on the part of our merchants, but of our Government. It is a singular coincidence that the position of the English is in this respect precisely analogous to that of the Chinese. Both suffer from the action of their respective Governments. The Government of China are obstructive to all extension of privileges to the foreigner, while our Government quietly acquiesce and cannot be roused to a sense of their duty. The only other Governments actuated by the same interests, viz., the extension, pure and simple, of trading facilities, are unfortunately precluded from acting alone in making demands for the benefit of their subjects. Combined action by the German, American, and English Governments, could hardly fail to bring about concessions for free travel and trade throughout the Empire, as well as the working and development of its mineral resources. It is aggravating to feel that we are kept at arm's length at a few ports, while all China—except the governing classes—are anxious for our aid in developing the resources of the country. The whole army of petty mandarins, who now exact their squeeze from every article of foreign manufacture, are of course opposed to our getting any nearer to the consumer. They very naturally wish all this trade to pass through their filters. It is, however, now time that action be taken on the part of the merchants and others interested to bring about a revision of our Treaty.

THE Pall Mall Gazette prints an account, "gathered from eye-witnesses," of the reception of the Foreign Ministers by the Emperor of CHINA. We have reason to believe that this account is authentic, and from the pen of a well-known Peking resident. It is informal, and is evidently from a private letter, not written for publication, though this hardly justifies such slip-shod English as the last sentence, which is delightfully complicated in its construction, and might be set to candidates for the Consular Service as a test of their powers of parsing. We must be grateful for very small mercies, indeed, if we profess ourselves satisfied with the miserable and humiliating ceremonies which terminated the long-vexed question of the Imperial Audience, and we by no means agree with the writer of the letter in question in his jubilations over the event.

WE note the arrival in Europe of Mr. MALET, C.B., Her Majesty's Secretary of Legation at Peking, transferred to Athens as Chargé d'Affaires. As already mentioned, the successor to Mr. MALET is Mr. JOHN WALSHAM, but we do not yet see his name as a passenger. Hon. H. G. EDWARDES, Second Secretary, Peking, is entered for the mail of 20th inst. We can understand that the "dirt, dust and decay" of Peking are most unpalatable to men accustomed to the luxuries and life of a great European capital, and we do not wonder that there is among the diplomatic service a dislike and disinclination to visit the Chinese Court, where receptions are held at daylight, and society is entirely of the masculine gender.

WE hear that Captain LEWES has submitted to the Chinese Government an effective and economical scheme for dredging the Woosung Bar. Better late than never, though we should think the Chinese authorities would be ashamed to look the Bar in the face.

THE consecration of the Rev. Dr. BURDON, the new Bishop for Victoria, Hong Kong, which has been postponed, will be held about the 15th of next month, in the Chapel of the Episcopal Palace at Lambeth.

MR. R. B. READ has been appointed Swedish Consul at Singapore.

EXTRACT FROM MR. MEDHURST'S REPORT.

It must be remembered that the consumption of goods in China is not so elastic as the productive powers of Lancashire and Yorkshire, and cannot be so so long as the bases from which the goods are distributed are but limited, and the means of transport into the interior as defective as they are at present. Undoubtedly there do exist large, fertile, and thickly-populated districts in China to which an inappreciable quantity of foreign goods has as yet penetrated, and this fact, together with that of the well-known commercial spirit of the Chinese, which drives them to buy their goods in the cheapest market, makes the merchants here and manufacturers at home look anxiously for the time when new markets will clear out overstocks of goods, and equalise again production and consumption. As yet the import trade has not readjusted itself to suit the new condition of the telegraph and Suez Canal; and it is to be feared that it will not, so long as the facility of shipment from England to China is confronted by the difficulty of carriage from the Treaty Ports to the inland marts.

THE MALACCA STRAITS.

In the course of a speech delivered to his constituents at New Cross, Mr. Gladstone has made further reference to the passage in Mr. Disraeli's address which had reference to our policy with regard to the extension of the powers held by the Dutch in Sumatra, and to the letter of Lord Derby on the subject, which appeared in our last issue.

One word (said Mr. Gladstone) upon the subject which has become almost an old friend with us—the Straits of Malacca. A new question has been introduced to your notice, which I never mentioned on Blackheath—the question of the kingdom of Atchin. I never spoke about the kingdom of Atchin. Lord Derby published a letter in the newspapers—I must say it was impossible there could be a letter couched in more moderate and becoming terms—in which he said that some might suppose from my speech that while he was at the Foreign-office the Government had given powers to Holland with respect to Atchin which they had not given; and therefore he said they had not given these powers or privileges. Now, you are my witnesses that I never spoke of Atchin at all. I found in the address of Mr. Disraeli a statement that we had surrendered control over the Straits of Malacca. This is a geographical question. If you will turn to the map you will find that the kingdom of Atchin is separated by little short of 200 miles from the other side of the water. Do you call a sea of 150 or 200 miles broad "Straits?" I should like to know what Straits in the world are 150 miles broad. You have heard of the Straits of Gibraltar, which are about twenty miles wide. You have heard of the Straits of Dover, which are about twenty miles broad. The real Straits of Malacca are also twenty or thirty miles broad. "But no," says Mr. Disraeli, "the Straits of Malacca are betwen Atchin and the Continent, where the sea is 150 miles wide." Now, I ask, is it not reasonable, when I found him complaining that we had abandoned the Straits of Malacca, that I, in examining the case, instead of saying what we had done with respect to the part 150 miles broad, should look to the part which was twenty miles broad, and which I really thought to be the Straits? I said that control had been given up over the movements of the Dutch with regard to the Straits of Malacca. I added that this control was reasonably and properly given up, being of itself of little or no practical value, and that it was given up in return for most valuable concessions—namely, perfect equality of trade in those countries; and I would this good act, which has been charged upon us as a bad act, had been done by the preceding Government. Every word of that is strictly true. But Mr. Disraeli—I have no doubt quite unintentionally—has fallen into a sad error, which I will endeavour to expose. The narrow part of the Straits in the island of Sumatra is bordered by the kingdom of Siak. It was with regard to Siak I stated that Lord Malmesbury had accepted with thanks the Treaty transmitted by the Dutch announcing that they had assumed the control of Siak. I stated also that the kingdom of Siak was the part of Sumatra which was important with respect to the Straits. Mr. Disraeli has unfortunately been led to state, if he be correctly reported, that Lord Malmesbury was perfectly right in making no remonstrance, because he says we had no more power to stop the Dutch from obtaining control over the kingdom of Siak than we had to stop the transit of Venus. When he said that we had no more power to do so, I suppose he meant that we had no more right to do so, because I suppose we have power to cope with Holland if we please. However, he says we had no right to stop that proceeding on the part of Holland. Now, on this point I will quote the language of Lord Derby, Mr. Disraeli's own Foreign Secretary. In 1868 Lord Derby demands from the Dutch Government commercial privileges and equality; and what is the equivalent he offers? The equivalent he offers is the surrender of our right of remonstrance against the acquisition by Holland of Siak and the other territories she had acquired in Sumatra. On May 11, 1868, Lord Derby writes:—"The equivalent we offer is the withdrawal of our right of protest against territorial encroachments effected in Sumatra, which we have never acknowledged, and the concession to the Netherlands of the right to consolidate acquisitions in that island, which, under existing circumstances, it is impossible for Great Britain to recognise." So that even Lord Derby assumes the right to protest against these acquisitions, which right Mr. Disraeli says we did not possess.

Mr. Disraeli has also adverted to the subject in the course of an address to his constituents. He said—

Mr. Gladstone is a Minister especially of peace and economy, and he must know very well that the conduct of the Government in that part of the world has, at any rate, occasioned already two wars, and, according to Mr. Goschen, an expenditure of one million of money to this country. I think, therefore, gentlemen, that what has occurred in the Straits of Malacca is, at any rate, no laughing matter. That subject, gentlemen, as I have to trouble you, although as briefly as possible, on one or two topics, is one on which I will not now longer dwell than to make one observation. After a long trial you know it is the business to sum up the merits of the case, and all that I have got to remind you is, that in my address to you which was published some days ago I stated that the present Government, from ignorance or from folly, had, by terminating the treaty which we passed with Holland, which secured, according to the opinions of English Ministers, independence of the Straits of Malacca, involved themselves in engagements, and at the same time, to adopt the language of Mr. Gladstone, had involved this country in engagements so equivocal and entangling that a war with Ashantee was the consequence; a war which had already incurred great expenditure, and the cost of which is still indefinite. Now, it is said that the Treaty which had produced these effects, or at least which had indirectly led to these consequences, had been negotiated by Lord Derby, the Secretary of State for the Government over which I presided. That was one of the most serious charges which could be made against a public man, and imputes an incapacity or levity, or perhaps even a want of principle, in public statements, which would have been, as was said by his friends, of a crushing character, if it were true. However, there can be no doubt, from what has since transpired, that that statement of Mr. Gladstone's was entirely incorrect, that the Treaty negotiated by Lord Derby had no provision in it which surrendered the points in question, namely, Atchin to the Dutch Government; but, on the contrary, it had been negotiated with a condition on the principle that the independence of Atchin, which we considered vital to our interests, should be respected.

Mr. Alderman Cotton, the newly elected member for the City of London, in the course of a speech to the electors, said there seemed to be one point which had never been alluded to either by Mr. Disraeli or Mr. Gladstone, and although not in Lord Derby's councils whenher refused to allow the kingdom of Atchin to be included in the draft of the treaty about to be made with the Dutch Government in 1868, he

(the speaker) could well imagine that one of his objects was to protect the trade between that country and the British island of Penang, from whence the former derived all its Manchester goods, paying for them in pepper and other articles of produce to the extent of about a million sterling per annum; and he could not help expressing his surprise that a Government which called itself Liberal, and prided itself upon its free-trade principles should hand over to the tender mercies of a Government (the Dutch) which existed only upon monopolies, the control of an important commerce which had hitherto been free and untrammelled.

Mr. Thomas G. Bowles, who wrote the article referred to by Mr. Gladstone and Mr. Disraeli on the Straits of Malacca, has addressed the following letter to The Times:—Since the credit has been given to me of inventing the Straits of Malacca as a political question, allow me to say one word as to that abandonment of Atchin to Dutch conquest by which their control has been lost to England. Lord Enfield maintains that Atchin was effectually abandoned and debarred from calling on England to fulfil her engagement to defend it by England's Act in 1824 and by its own Act in 1857. Mr. Gladstone gives us to understand that it was abandoned by Lord Derby's Act in 1868. In reality, Atchin was not abandoned nor the obligation of England repudiated until 1871, as anybody may see who will read the Sumatra Convention dated the 2nd of November in that year. By this Convention England "desists from the reserve" contained in the notes attached to the Treaty of 1824, which is a reserve of the independence of Atchin as against the Dutch. If that reserve had ever been "desisted from" before there would have been no sense in the Convention. Since, therefore, Atchin was not abandoned until 1871, it could not have been abandoned in 1868, still less in 1857, and, least of all, in 1824. What is more important is that, as I submit, this Convention of 1871 could not release, and has not released, England from her obligation under the Treaty of 1819 to defend Atchin; and it is a flagrant violation of public faith to refuse to fulfil that obligation.

THE SUMATRA TREATY OF 1871.

Subjoined is the official text of the Convention between Her Majesty and the King of the Netherlands for the settlement of their mutual relations in the Island of Sumatra, of which the ratifications were exchanged at the Hague on Feb. 17, 1872:—

Her Majesty the Queen of the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland and his Majesty the King of the Netherlands, being desirous to consolidate more and more, in the spirit of the Treaty of the 17th of March, 1824, the friendship between the two countries, and consequently also to remove all occasion of misunderstanding in their mutual relations on the Island of Sumatra, have agreed to conclude a Convention for that purpose, and their Plenipotentiaries have agreed upon and concluded the following articles:—

ARTICLE I.

Her Britannic Majesty desists from all objections against the extension of the Netherland dominion in any part of the Island of Sumatra, and consequently from the reserve in that respect contained in the notes exchanged by the Netherland and British Plenipotentiaries at the conclusion of the Treaty of the 17th of March, 1824.

ARTICLE II.

His Majesty the King of the Netherlands declares that, in the kingdom of Siak Srie Indrapoora and its dependencies, as it is defined in the compact concluded by the Netherland Indian Government with that kingdon on the 1st of February, 1858, the trade of British subjects and the British navigation shall continue to enjoy all the rights and advantages that are or may be granted there to the trade of Netherland subjects and to the Netherland navigation; and, further, that the same assimilation shall be granted to the trade of British subjects and to the British navigation in any other native State of the Island of Sumatra that may hereafter become dependent on the Crown of the Netherlands, provided always that British subjects conform themselves to the laws and regulations of the Netherland Government.

ARTICLE III.

The stipulations of the preceding Article shall not interfere with the distinction established by the Netherland-Indian laws and regulations between individuals of Western and individuals of Eastern extraction, nor with the application of the stipulations of the Convention of the 27th of March, 1851.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, FEB. 3.

The excitement created in the minds of the German public at the result of the general elections has been only fomented by the great number of fresh trials of strength between the two candidates at the head of the polls, and who in every case represent two different political parties. The fiasco of the Liberal and respectable portion of the inhabitants of this city, who at the first election, on the 10th January, were outvoted in two of the three electoral districts, not so much by their numerical weakness as the apathy of individuals has had the effect of rousing them to some exertion, but by no means to the extent desired. In the first electoral district Herr Möring was placed at the head of the poll, having 10,481 votes, whilst his competitor, the Social Democrat Hartmann, had only 6,262, and about 130 voting cards were irregular and inadmissible. Zacharias, who was in the minority at the first ballot, and might have been at the head of the poll and returned as representative of the Liberal party, had not Möring been put up in the eleventh hour by his friends, which caused a division in their camp, was now hors de concours, and could not come forward again, as the battle was solely between the two at the head of the poll. After spending some 30,000 marks in—call it electioneering expenses, for there is no law here against bribery and corruption—he is dreadfully put out, and has been heard to threaten to resign the offices that he holds (he is member of the Finance Department and President of the Chamber of Commerce), and retire to Berlin, of which city he is a native. But perhaps by-and-by, when his anger has had time to cool down, he will think better of it.

In the second electoral district the trial lay between the blacksmith, Schmidt, and the journeyman shoemaker, Hartmann. He is first cutter-out of our principal boot and shoemaker, Carl Kegel, in the Hermannstrasse, but a Social Democrat of the first water, whilst Schmidt belongs to the more moderate section of the working classes, and may perhaps be found useful in the German Parliament, should they be locked in or the keys lost or mislaid. This latter polled 10,276 votes, and his opponent Hartmann 8,217, so that Schmidt is returned for the second district. This result is more favourable than might have been expected, for though Hamburg may be for a time deprived of, I daresay, a good locksmith, it is a consolation to think that Herr Carl Kegel will not lose the services of his foreman, nor his customers risk having to wear ill-fitting boots.

From the above figures it will be seen that the number of votes polled in the two electoral districts was about 36,000, which, with the 16,000 given in the third or rural district, makes a total of 52,000 persons who exercised their right of suffrage. It is true that at this final election some five or six thousand more voted than on the 10th of January; but as there are more than 80,000 electors entitled to vote, it appears that 28,000 declined to go to the poll at all.

A still greater indifference or apathy is recorded of the final struggle at Berlin, where, in almost every electoral district Social-Democrats have won the victory and been returned for the metropolis of Germany, which is far from being a subject of rejoicing. A day or two afterwards the semi-official Norddeutsche Allgemeine Zeitung, in commenting on the elections, ventilated the question as to the expediency of passing a law to make it compulsory on every elector to vote, under the penalty of a fine. This was put forth as a "feeler," and has been taken up by the press, and is now being argued according to the views entertained by the various writers of leading articles. The most powerful remarks on this subject have appeared in the Berlin National Zeitung, where a certain H.B. Oppenheim pleads strongly in favour of such an enactment, urging its necessity as the natural consequence of the present electoral law, which requires an absolute majority, and pointing out that in the districts containing the most educated persons and advanced politicians the electors that go to the poll are never more than fifteen or twenty per cent., whilst in those inhabited by the poor and ignorant classes, who lose their time—which to them is money—by recording their votes in the ballot-box, much more enthusiasm is shown, and more than fifty per cent. of their number make use of their suffrage. He adds that in Prussia fines are inflicted for refusing to serve on juries or undertake unpaid duties and appointments of the Municipal Corporations and Communes, so that there is a precedent for making voting compulsory; but he admits that there are serious difficulties in the practical execution of the proposal, especially in the manner of exercising a proper control, which, however, he thinks are not insurmountable.

On the other hand, a writer in the Hamburg Correspondent rejects Oppenheim project as totally out of time and place, although, as he confesses, the same idea once in an idle hour crossed the brain and fertile imagination of Prince Bismark, but was quickly laid aside as an anachronism. "Oppenheim," the writer says, "maintains that the people don't vote from apathy and laziness, but that is not the case. A part of the non-voters remain at home because they are in different as to the result and take no interest in the election, and if forced to vote would probably take the wrong side and support the objectionable candidate, in doing which they would only make matters worse. Another part of the non-voters keep away because none of the candidates have the same political creed as themselves, and if forced to vote, would probably give in their voting paper with no name at all, against which no law can provide, as they are delivered in rolled up or folded." He therefore concludes by arguing in favour of open voting and doing away with the ballot.

A day or two ago the friends and political supporters of Herr A. G. Mosle entertained that gentleman at a public banquet at Bremen, to celebrate his return as member for our sister city. Professor Hertzberg was in the chair, and a number of loyal and patriotic speeches and toasts opened the door for a great consumption of wine. A special telegram was sent off to Prince Bismark, informing him that 400 citizens of Bremen, met to celebrate the return of their new member, had just drunk the health of his Highness, whose policy they supported, and placed the fullest confidence in his mode of conducting the affairs of the now happily united Fatherland.

Just as I prognosticated when I wrote you last summer that Captain Werner, of the German navy, had been recalled from the command of the squadron on the coast of Spain for capturing the insurgent vessels sailing under piratical colours, and was superseded by another officer, it is now stated on good authority, though not yet officially announced, that Captain Werner, who is the Senior Captain on the list, is about to be promoted to the rank of Rear-Admiral. As a further proof of his being restored, to favour it may be mentioned that he was decorated with a distinguished Order of Knigthood on the recent birthday of the Emperor.

We learn from Vienna that the recall of the Japanese Minister Resident Dano Tsockotaemi, hitherto accredited at the Austrian and Italian Courts, appears to be a settled thing. In future the representation of Japan at Vienna and Rome will be separate. The new Envoy for Italy is Yositaka, who has hitherto held a high and important office at the Court of the Mikado, whilst Watameble, the First Secretary of the Embassy at Vienna, is promoted to be the head of the Mission, and will continue to reside there.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, FEB. 3.

Public interest is chiefly centred in the telegraphic news from Atchin, or "Atjih," as it is now written. I have told you already that in all our principal towns the greatest joy was manifested at the news that General van Swieten had successfully attacked the Kraton. From every part of the country congratulatory telegrams were forwarded to the King, who himself used the telegraph to countermand a great demonstration which it was intended to hold in the Hague in honour of the great victory. It is said that the King took this measure because he intends to have a grand fete militaire for the same purpose. I need not add that the telegrams from Atchin are not very clear, and that much was left for further elucidation. The chief question is what had become of the Atchinese soldiers who garrisoned the Kraton, who numbered at least 10,000, and who appear to have quitted the Kraton without being observed by our troops. Another question is shall we be involved in a guerilla war if the Atchinese have fled to the mountains? It is of no use to repeat here all the utterances of our pessimists and optimists. Less satisfactory is the Reuter's telegrams stating that the ex-Prime Minister of the Sultan of Atchin has positively declared that the Treaty alleged to have been concluded between Holland and Atchin in 1857 is a fabrication. Several papers have already declared this to be false, and that it had no other signification than that the Atchinese were endeavouring to destroy the principal basis of our ultimatum. The Amsterdamsche Courant offers the following explanation of the real circumstances of the case. The Treaty of Peace and Friendship was laid before the Sultan, who believed it to be an offensive and defensive alliance. When, however, the document came to be ratified, he found that it was not the same which had been first submitted to him, and he refused to sign, and complained that he had been deceived. Thereupon a very clever diplomatist, a naval officer, was sent to the Sultan to persuade him to sign the Treaty. Our Ambassador succeeded in convincing the Sultan that there could be no question of an offensive and defensive alliance, because the Sultan did not possess the same naval and military force as we had. Thereupon the Sultan signed the Treaty without making further objection. I may here state that a copy of the Treaty was laid before the Second Chamber in September, 1857, whereas the section report thereupon, was not published until 1870.

The same telegrams which record the success of our arms mention the deplorable fact that in the space of only three days eighty-three cases of cholera have occurred in our army, so that we shall probably lose more men by that epidemic than by conflict with the enemy. It seems that Panglima Polim, an Atchinese chief, has been attacked, whilst it is not by any means certain whether the Sultan himself has not succumbed to the epidemic. But whatever has been his fate it is certain that peace will very soon be concluded with Atchin. Before leaving this subject I must notice the fact that our press is most angry that the foreign newspapers speak in so depreciative a tone about our policy in Atchin. Formerly the general complaint was that the foreign papers did not take any notice of Holland, but now the leading papers are scolding because The Times, Pall Mall Gazette, Holnishe Zeitung, e tutti quanti, do not say exactly what we should wish. Nascetur ridiculus mus. There are some of our journals which urge that our diplomatic agents should be instructed to contradict the statements which have been made.

Our home political news is very scanty, and we cannot expect anything lively before the Second Chamber reassembles. On the 17th inst. another election must take place at Gouda, the same district where, some weeks ago, the Liberal candidate was beaten by the Ultra-Orthodox-Protestant, Mr. A. Kuyper. It is, however, very improbable that he will take his seat in the Chamber. The paper war about the monument to Mr. Thorbecke still continues. Our Conservative papers are bringing another monument question on the tapis. They propose that a statue should be erected to the memory of Carl van den Bosch, who introduced the "squeezing" system in Java, and who died in the year 1844.

The Netherlands India Trading Bank and some other trading houses have forwarded an address to the Government, in which they beg that on the export permits it should be obligatory to mark, with regard to cotton goods, whether they are bleached or not, and also the width. They think this necessary to ensure correctness in the statistical returns. The Government, however, decided—after having consulted the Rotterdam and Amsterdam Chambers of Commerce—that the demand should not be granted.

The Trading Company have issued a circular to the shareholders, in which an alteration of the statutes is proposed. The main points are—to increase the capital to fl.38,500,000, by means of distribution of the reserve fund on the 31st December next. The distribution is proposed as follows:—Every holder of a 2,000 guilders share would obtain a half share of fl.500; every holder of a 4,000 guilders share a whole share of fl.1,000. The minimum of interest would be fixed at 5 per cent., whilst the reserve fund would be reduced to five million. On the 14th of February a general meeting will be held, in order to discuss this proposal, which has made a very bad impression on the Bourse. The price of the company's shares has gone down considerably, notwithstanding the well-provided money market and the total want of any speculative demand for foreign funds. The Bank has decreased the minimum rate of discount one-half per cent.

According to the Handelsblad the Minister of the War Department is occupied with the reorganisation of the medical service in the army. The plans will very shortly be laid before the Second Chamber.

A solemn mourning lodge has been held in the Hague, in consequence of the death of Captain Lafors in Atchin. The lodge was open to the public the day after the service, and the entrance fees will be given to the "Red Cross" Society.

The weather is still very mild, and the whole winter has passed without frost or snow. The public health is in general satisfactory, notwithstanding that in some towns cholera still prevails.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

COFFEE.—Prices have gone up again 1c., so that good ord. Java is quoted 72c., whilst holders decline to operate at the close of the market without a further advance of ½c. Several lots of private import found buyers. The unsold Trading Company's stock is 434,500 bales.

SUGAR.—The market looks dull for this article. Some small parcels have changed hands, viz., 1,000 mats No. 15 at f.32, 597 mats No. 17, ex Zuid-Holland, at a price not named.

TEA.—Firm, without anything doing; 774/4 and 1811/12 ch. China were sold at Amsterdam at 90c. to 115c.

RICE.—The market remains unaltered; 1,000 bales Rangoon were sold at f.7.

SPICES.—Some transactions took place in Nutmegs, Nos. 2, 3 and 4. Cloves are nominally quoted at 105c. to 106c. Pepper 39c.

VANILLA.—Prices are enormously declining; 30 kilos. Java were sold at f.25.

TIN.—There has been some demand for Banca, to be delivered out of the January auction, for which from f.72 to f.73 was paid, but at the closing of the market only f.72 could be obtained. The result of the auction was anything but satisfactory; the average price was f.71½. To-day a small parcel was sold at f.69. Billiton has found buyers at f.68¾ to f.68½.

CUTCH.—Very firm at f.14½.

COCOA-NUT OIL.—The stock of white quality is rather abundant. The nominal quotation is f.22, but without transactions.

INDIGO has met with a good demand, and about 125 chests Java changed hands. The quality was in average very inferior.

RATTANS.—230 piculs ex Electra, 180 piculs ex County of Berwick, and 75 piculs ex Copernicus found buyers at high but unstated prices.

HIDES.—An important business was done in this article, but as usual no particulars transpired.

CIGARS.—200 mille Manila Nuevo Cortados 1873 were partly sold (160 mille) at f.44½ to f.45½; 40 mille were bought in. Of 100 mille Nuevo Habano 70 mille were sold at f.42, whilst the rest was bought in.

TOBACCO (Java).—The market looks rather dull, but prices are well maintained. The stock includes 7,058 bales Java and 336 bales Sumatra.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders for £500,000 in bills on India were received on the 4th inst. at the Bank of England, when the amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £440,000; to Bombay, £60,000. The minimum price was fixed, as before, at 1s. 10d. on all Presidencies, and tenders on Calcutta at 1s. 10¾d. will receive about 76 per cent., above in full; on Bombay, at 1s. 10¾d., in full. These results show a reaction of about 1½ per cent. from the rise of about 3 or 4 per cent. caused a fortnight back by the extreme activity of the demand for means of remittance to the East.

The receipts of the Eastern Extension, Australasia, and China Telegraph Company (Limited) for the month of January amounted to £20,717, against £16,523, the receipts in the corresponding period of 1873 of the four separate lines—viz., the British Indian Extension, China Submarine, British Australian, and the Victoria and Tasmanian Telegraph. The Eastern Telegraph Company's receipts for the month amounted to £37,037, against £33,287 in the corresponding period of 1873. The traffic receipts upon the China and Japan lines of the Great Northern Telegraph Company during the month of January were 156,431 francs, against 38,470 francs in January 1873.

In the list of directors of the Light Cable Telegraph Company we observe the name of Sir Rutherford Alcock, our late Minister at Peking.

With reference to the telegram referring to the large stocks of Woollens on the Yokohama market, which appeared in our issue of the 26th ult., a correspondent writes:—

I do not know where your last correspondent on the subject of over-stocks in Japan may derive his information, but yours is confirmed by a private telegram dated 4th inst., saying "You must stop shipments. Financial crisis probable. Large supplies of all goods unsaleable." I am confident of the correctness of my information as regards woollens, and I should suggest that your correspondent should take the stocks of cloth and moussellaines, and see how many months' consumption there are.

Messrs. Malcolm, Hudson, and Co., of London and Yokohama, have been appointed commercial agents to the Finance Department of the Japanese Government.

The Union Insurance Society of Canton have opened a branch at Liverpool under the management of Messrs. Escombe Brothers and Co.

Mr. Sam Mendel has prepared some very useful tables, showing the exports of plain, coloured, and printed cottons, from London, Liverpool, Southampton, and the Clyde, during the last ten years to the following places, viz., Singapore, Batavia, Manila, Hong Kong, Shanghai, and Japan, Calcutta, Bombay, Madras, and Ceylon, the Brazils, the River Plate, and the West Coast of South America. From the same source we are also supplied with a tabulated statement of the fluctuations in the Bank rate of discount, Consols, together with the prices of cotton, yarn, and cloth during the last ten years.

The following further announcements of dividends have been made by banking and other companies :—

Lloyd's Banking Company (Limited), a dividend at the rate of 20 per cent. per annum, and an appropriation of £20,000 to reserve. At the corresponding date of last year the distribution was of similar amount.

The Anglo-Italian Bank (Limited), a dividend at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, leaving £1,502. At the corresponding date of last year the dividend was of similar amount.

A letter from Mr. John Fordred appears in Friday's Times upon the subject of tea adulteration. Mr. Fordred says :—

In the lengthy correspondence which has been published in The Times relating to the suppression of the adulteration of tea, none of the writers appear to have been aware that there is machinery already in existence by means of which the required object could be attained with little trouble, and at an almost nominal cost. I allude to the Government Laboratory at Somerset House, where there is an efficient staff of chemists specially trained in the detection of adulteration, and where thousands of samples are yearly examined, not only for the two great Departments of Inland Revenue and Customs, but also for almost all other Departments of the State. It is true, as stated in your columns, that Excise officers have the power of seizing adulterated tea offered for sale, but this power is never exercised in cases where the adulterated tea is in the state in which it has paid the duty, and it would obviously be unjust to do so while the Customs knowingly allow it to pass into consumption. The case of tobacco affords a striking illustration that so long as the present course is followed it will not be possible to suppress the trade in adulterated tea. Prior to 1863, the Customs accepted the duty upon all imported Cavendish tobacco, whether genuine or not, and although, as in the case of tea, the Excise Department had the power of seizing all that was offered for sale in an adulterated state, it was found impossible to check the traffic in illicit Cavendish, whether smuggled or of home manufacture, until a change in the law was made in the above-mentioned year. Nothing would be easier than to make similar regulations with regard to tea ; for probably not more than 2 per cent. of the entire quantity would require any examination whatever, and in only a fractional number of cases would a reference to the chymical officers be necessary. A knowledge of the regulations in force is now sufficient to prevent all but isolated attempts to import adulterated tobacco, and in such cases as do occur the tobacco is not confiscated, but is allowed to be re-exported. It is well that this should be known, as I believe there is a very prevalent, but mistaken, idea abroad that, should the Government undertake the examination of tea in bond, all that was found to be adulterated would be confiscated and destroyed.

A dividend of 2s. in the pound has been declared in the winding-up of the Oriental Hotels Company (Limited).

Bar Silver has varied in price since our last report. Transactions were entered into on the 30th ult. at 59¼d. per oz., and the rate then gradually receded to 59-1-16d. per oz. standard on the 4th inst. The depression increased on announcement of the price of issue of the India Council Bills, and the market for the moment is quite in a state of suspense, 58⅞d. per oz. being the nearest quotation for an actual transaction. Mexican Dollars lately arrived by the West India Mail and French Steamers have been sold at 57½d. per oz., showing a decline of ½d. per oz. in the price.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Shephard, Harrison and Rehden's Circular says :—The position of the market remains firm, but business has been restricted the past few days, the sudden dissolution of Parliament drawing attention to the elections now taking place. Orders from New York have come in daily at increasing limits, preference being given to Moyune, which is in short supply. Deliveries for January are very good :—

	1874.	1873.

Red Leaf : Dust, siftings, and leafy kinds rule very firm ; flavoury kinds at 11½d. to 1s. 1d. no change ; Kaisow kinds, and medium Kaisow at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 7d., in improved demand, as also fine and finest at 1s. 8d. to 2s. 3d. per lb. Pakling : None offered of fine quality ; a few parcel, medium sold at 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. per lb. Tayshan leaf : Supplies have been liberal, with fair transactions at 11d. for good common, 1s. to 1s. 0½d. for fair, 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d. medium, malty kinds, 1s. 4d. to 1s. 6d. Pekoe kinds, fine quality 1s. 7d. to 1s. 10d. A small parcel per "Achilles," made to imitate Indian leaf, sold at 2s. 2d. per lb. Black leaf : There is nothing under 8d. per lb., in old leaf ; Shantam district, new 1s. to 1s. 1d. ; preferable kinds at 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 3d., are rather scarce, medium to fine 1s. 4d. to 1s. 10d., and finest at 1s. 11d. to 2s. 2d., transactions limited at no change in prices. Souchong : Good to medium 1s. 2d. to 1s. 5d. ; a small parcel of finest sold at 2s. 8d. per lb. Oolong : Supplies have come on rather freely of late, and prices are easier, except for Formosa leaf, which has been taken for export. Scented Tea : No change. Green : There has been an active inquiry for Moyune kinds, and the market is bare of desirable quality, fine Young Hyson and Gunpowder being dearer. Ping Suey kinds comprise the bulk of the supplies held by importers, and have not been so saleable.

Messrs. Percival and Co.'s Monthly Circular says :—The improved tone noticed in our last of the 9th ultimo has continued to strengthen day by day, and a large business has been done at a further considerable advance in prices of both Black and Green Teas. Latest advices from China report the closing of the season at the various ports, with a very material falling off in the total shipments, as compared with the previous season ; this, coupled with the serious falling off in the stock in this country, and the quantity afloat, which together show a deficiency of nearly 20,000,000 lbs. as compared with same period last year, cannot fail to place holders in a very strong position for some months to come. It is also worthy of remark that before the arrival of New Season's crop the stock in the United Kingdom will be reduced to a lower ebb than was perhaps ever before known, and will probably be little more than equal to three months' deliveries at the end of June. Deliveries for the month have been good, and compare favourably with last year.

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co.'s Circular offers the following remarks :—Since the first fortnight of January, during which the Silk market was very quiet, there has been rather more disposition shown to buy, and one or two pressed sales of Chinas at a slight reduction from recognised quotations have further stimulated the market by inducing more general inquiry at lower prices. Importers, however, as a rule, decline to accept lower rates for Silk than those now current, and there is in consequence a firmer tone with some little daily business doing at steady rates. Owing to the rather full arrivals last month the stock of China Silk shows an increase of 3,000 bales on 1st February, as compared with same date last year ; but as the arrivals during the next few months, until the beginning of the new season, must necessarily be at least 4,000 bales less than in the corresponding season of last year, a fairly steady delivery will soon tell upon present stocks, and a reduction may be confidently expected. Canton Silk is firmer, and nothing in market Tsatlees is now to be had under 13s. ; stocks are declining. Japans are quiet, but prices are unchanged ; there was a good delivery last month. The deliveries for the month are satisfactory.

Messrs. Durant and Co.'s Circular says :—We have to report another month of dull dragging business. The deliveries show some improvement upon the two preceding months, just good enough to prevent any increase of stock, but not sufficient to warrant the idea of any decided extension of consumption, although prices having still further drooped would seem to hold out considerable inducement for more active operations. At present, however, we do not hear of any increased demand for manufactured goods, and so buyers seem content to go on from week to week taking only what they really require for immediate objects, relying on the very heavy stocks preventing any sudden rise in prices.

ANTIMONY.—In public sale 294 bags and 3 tons loose Ore from China were bought in at £11.

CAMPHOR.—The market for China has ruled quiet throughout the fortnight, and there has been but little business done. Prices are, however, without change, and rule as last quoted, viz., at £4 10s. to £4 10s. 6d. per cwt.

CARDAMOMS have been dull, with a declining tendency ; Ceylon have, however, been scarcer than other kinds, and have improved 28 cases, being quitted at 5s. 3d. to 5s. 6d. per lb.

CHINA PRESERVES.—At auction of 713 cases 50 casks Ginger 110 cases Chyloong sold at 10d., the remainder being bought in at 7d. to 9d., and 13 cases dry at 1s. per lb. in bond.

COCOA-NUT OIL has been in request at easier prices. Ceylon is obtainable at £36. In public sale 228 pipes Ceylon dull to good sold at £35 15s. to £36, 10 puncheons, yellow to fair at £36 to £36 5s., and 54 hogsheads common to fine at £35 15s. to £36 5s. per ton.

CUTCH has been in improved request, and has been speculatively dealt in to some extent, about 7,000 cases having changed hands privately up to 22s. per cwt., but in auction 1,314 cases and bags were offered and retired ; the market closing quiet, though holders are firm.

CUBEBS.—There is no demand, and we have no business to report ; 202 bags offered in public sale were bought in.

COLOMBO ROOT is in steady demand but large supply ; in auction 46 bags were sold at 11s. to 13s. 6d. per cwt. for fair quality.

DRAGON'S-BLOOD.—The market has ruled quiet ; of 15 cases Reed offered part sold at £11 10s. for good, and of 42 cases lump one-half sold at £6 5s. to £7 10s. for fair and good.

ESSENTIAL OILS.—Aniseed has been dull; spot sales effected at 9s. 6d., and afloat at 9s. 6d.; Cassia very dull; 40 cases offered and retired. Nutmeg very quiet and lower; 5 cases bought in at 8d. Cinnamon scarce; 3 cases leaf sold at 3d. to 3½d. per oz. Citronelle steady; 10 cases retired. Lemon Grass quiet.

EBONY.—Ceylon has continued quiet, but has, notwithstanding, slightly improved in value, 10 tons Ceylon having been sold at auction at £10 12s. 6d. for large logs, rather roughly cut.

GUMS.—Benjamin: Siam scarce; 14 cases sold, low to good 4ths at £3 15s. to £8. Sumatra steady, but a large stock of 2nds; of 60 cases, one-third sold at 67s. 6d. for middlings 3rds. Copal dull; 262 cases offered retired. Damar dull; 454 cases at auction retired. Gamboge lower; of 41 cases offered one-half sold at £11 5s. to £11 10s. for good pipe partly run.

GALLS.—China have continued firm but quiet at the previously ruling quotation, viz., 55s. per cwt., which is the present value; of 144 cases at sale one-fourth sold at 54s. 6d.

GAMBIER has been firm and is rather dearer; afloat 300 to 400 tons have changed hands at 24s. 9d. for October-November, and 25s. January shipments; on the spot about 600 bales at 24s. 6d. to 24s. 9d. (ex quay), and at auction, of 2,181 bales, bags, and mats, about one-fourth sold at corresponding prices.

GUTTA-PERCHA.—The market has been very dull; of 1,422 baskets, and about 8 tons in blocks offered, only about 200 of the baskets were sold at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 3d. for fair, and 7d. to 9d. reboiled, being lower.

GALANGAL ROOT.—Quotations have been steadily maintained, but no business is reported.

HIDES.—Messrs. Dyster, Nalder and Co.'s Monthly Circular gives the subjoined report upon the market:—East India Hides have been in moderate supply, and with an active demand for all descriptions of light weights (7 lb. and under), prices of these have advanced quite ½d. to 1d. per lb.; Kips of about 9 lb. have generally realised full to slightly advanced rates, whilst Extra Heavy of 11 to 13 lb. are still most difficult to quit, and may be quoted fully ½d. per lb. lower, thus making the all round price of import parcels of heavy average little, if any, dearer than on the 31st Dec. Singapore and Penang Ox and Cow Hides have been in good demand, and full to slightly advanced rates have been paid, especially on light averages. Sales 18,862 Singapore and Penang, light 11½d. to 13½d.; heavy 8d. to 11½d.; thirds 8d. to 10¾d.; fourths 5½d. per lb. 22,971 Rangoon, light 11½d. to 12½d.; heavy 8d. to 10d.; thirds 7½d. to 8d.; fourths 5d. to 5½d. per lb. Singapore, Penang, &c., Buffalo Hides: The demand has not been active; about former rates have been paid for fair to good qualities, whilst stale ordinary parcels have occasionally sold slightly in buyers' favour. The sales of the month comprise 6,747 Singapore and Penang; slaughtered, 1st heavy, average 39½ lb., 6¼d.; fair to very good, 1st heavy, average 22½ lbs. to 35¼ lbs., 6¼d. to 6¾d.; 1st light, average 10⅝ lbs., 6¾d.; ordinary to fair, 1st heavy, average 24 lbs. to 35 lbs., 5d. to 5½d.; 1st light, average 4⅝ lbs. to 16⅞ lbs., 5½d. to 7d.; seconds, 4⅝d. to 5d.; thirds, 4d. per lb. Java Hides: Ox and Cow are in fair demand, and some small parcels have realised good prices for the quality. Buffalo are also in fair demand, and by public and private sale 3,702 hides have been sold at full rates. The prices paid at auction were as follows:—Shaved, first light, average 17¼ lb., 10d. to 10½d.; 1st heavy, average 24⅞ lbs., 9¼d. to 9½d.; extra heavy, average 35⅛ lbs., 8⅝d.; unshaved, average 6½ lbs. to 15⅞ lbs., 8⅞d.; average 24¼ lbs.; 7⅞d. to 8d. per lb.

HORNS.—About 20 tons Siam Buffalo have been sold under the hammer at 33s. to 33s. 6d. per cwt. for horns averaging 620 to 713 to a ton, being rather lower.

HEMP.—The market for Manila has exhibited no recovery from the dulness which has characterised it since the beginning of the year. The business transacted has been extremely small. The current quotation for fair roping is £37 to £37 10s. per ton.

INDIA-RUBBER has been steady, with a fair amount of activity in the market, considerable sales of Borneo being effected at 1s. 6½d., and of Penang at 2s. per lb.

CASUALTIES.

The Insuldine, of Amsterdam, Duinker, which sailed April 26 from Sunderland with coal, for Macassar, has not since been heard of; she has been posted at Lloyd's as a missing vessel.

A telegram from Port Said announces that the Harrington (str.), from Java to Rotterdam, arrived at Suez Jan. 25, and is likely to be detained a fortnight for repairs, the junk packing ring of one of the cylinders having broken.

MISCELLANEOUS.

BRIXHAM, Jan. 31.—The surveyors of the Blair Athol, from Sunderland to Singapore, which put into Dartmouth Jan. 23, with crew refusing duty, have pronounced the vessel to be seaworthy; they are, however, of opinion that the space allotted to the crew is not in a fit condition, and the charge against the crew for refusing duty has therefore been dismissed by the magistrates.

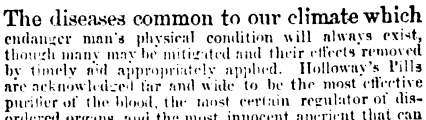
34, Koniggrätzer Strasse, Berlin, Prussia.



The diseases common to our climate which endanger man's physical condition will always exist, though many may be mitigated and their effects removed by timely and appropriately applied. Holloway's Pills are acknowledged far and wide to be the most effective purifier of the blood, the most certain regulator of disordered organs, and the most innocent aperient that can be prescribed. This medicine is applicable to all alike, young or old, robust or delicate; it increases the appetite, and controls all derangements of the bowels. After the disorder is subdued, occasional doses of these Pills will prevent any relapse, and moreover secure, promote, and intensify the good results which flow from perfect purity and regularity.

BREAKFAST.

"By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Epps has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately-flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctors' bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."—Civil Service Gazette.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

PEKING.

The Peking Gazette of December 15 contains Imperial decrees which confirm the report that has been lately current of a success obtained by the troops under Tso Tsung-tang over the Mohamedan insurgents in Kansuh; and it turns out that the achievement is no less than the capture of the city of Suh-chow, in the extreme north-west of Kansuh, which has for ten years past been in the hands of insurgents. It is the last remaining stronghold hitherto occupied by the Mahomedans "within the wall," and its recovery therefore is deservedly a matter of high importance to the Imperial Government. Tso Tsung-tang's memorial relates that he arrived in person before Suh-chow during the month of October last, and took the supreme direction of affairs. Repeated assaults were delivered at intervals during the early part of the month, and at length on the 24th a lodgment was effected, after some hard fighting, upon the city wall. On the 4th November the insurgent leader Ma-sze gave himself up. A few days later he and other of the leading insurgents were put to death, after being solemnly reminded of their crimes by Tso in person; and at the same time various bands of prisoners were indiscriminately slaughtered. The troops, to quote from the Imperial decree, "thereupon entered the city, and massacred the Mussulman inhabitants down to the last man. Thus truly are Heaven's vengeance accomplished and the feelings of humankind assuaged." For this brilliant success the Viceroy Tso Tsung-tang receives his nomination to the Cabinet as hieh-pan-ta-hio-sze, and he is also raised by a step in the hereditary peerage. Honours are likewise showered on his military colleagues and subordinates.

What effect this victory will have in relieving the Chinese Government of anxiety owing to the Mahomedan insurrection on the north-west frontier, remains to be seen; and it will probably influence but slightly the movements of the Ataligh Ghazi or the Tunganis further north. From recent Gazettes we learn that the important city of Hami has been besieged and is still harassed by a body of the Mahomedan insurgents from Shen-si. As regards the actual limits of China proper, however, the Imperial Government may now boast that it is absolutely free from organised rebellion.

A printing-office has recently been opened in connection with the Peking College. It is now chiefly occupied with a voluminous History of the Taiping and Nienfei Rebellions. It has also in the press a work on Chemistry by Professor Billequin. Prince Kung has visited the establishment and expressed himself as much pleased with the new method of book-manufacture.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 2nd Jan.; the French mail from London Nov. 7 arrived out on the 28th Dec. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

The recent discussions regarding the Bund frontage have led to the resignation of five members of the French Municipal Council—so that a previous vacancy, and the absence of Dr. Galle in Europe, leave Mr. Wheelock at present the sole representative of that body. A notification by the Consul-General announces an election, to fill the vacancies, on the 5th January.

A number of interesting matters was as usual brought before the meeting of Treaty Consuls held on the 23rd Dec. The subject of the Woosung Bar was again raised, and it was resolved to keep the provincial authorities posted in all information on the subject. A general inability to take action in regard to the encroachment on the river off the French Bund was again demonstrated. The Taoutai agrees to forbid the discharge of ballast into the stream from junks, which is so much gained. The project for a Lifeboat Institution, to which we have before referred, was brought up, and various minor points were discussed. Correspondence giving further details will be found elsewhere.

The result of the polling for Chief and District Engineers by the Fire Company Delegates is as follows:—For Chief Engineer, Robert MacKenzie, 27, or the full number of votes; for No. 1 District, C. J. Ashley, 27; No. 2 District, B. A. Clarke, 21, C. M. Donaldson, 6; No. 3 District, A. Charrier, 15, H. Fitz Henry, 12. The appointments have of course to be confirmed by the Municipal Council.

Native thieves have been giving a new direction to their energies of late, having paid special attention to mail matter. Several robberies of this kind took place a short time ago, and within the last week the Soochow regular mail has been plundered twice. The Chinese are in the habit of sending small specie remittances through the Post-office, and a mail bag no doubt affords a good many crumbs. The inconvenience to native merchants must be very great, and we hear that the advertising columns of the Shun-pau have been, in consequence, quite filled with notices of bills lost and cancelled. We should imagine that it would be a subject important enough to stir up the numerous native gunboats which line the Canal between this and Soochow.

We are glad to note that the prospectus of a Lifeboat Institution for China has been translated into Chinese, as a step towards interesting the natives also in the project.

A case in which a Chinese play-actor was brought before the Mixed Court on a somewhat complicated charge of improper matrimony—has, we are told, been decided by the Che-hsien as follows:—The actor has been sentenced to and has received 100 blows on the ankle, and is to be sent to his native province of Chihli; while the girl has received 100 blows on the face for maintaining pluckily in Court that she liked her husband, and meant to stick to him. We hear that while he was in jail also the man was subjected to horrible torture—strung up a whole night by the thumbs and placed in a wooden collar which presses on the apple of the throat. The Chinese condemn the torture inflicted on the man as cruel, and it is said even the Taoutai has declared his sentence excessive. All concerned were Cantonese, except the actor.

We understand that the plant necessary for printing the Evening Gazette, the publication of which has been suspended since the burning of the Ching Foong Printing-office, in September last, has arrived, and that the paper is to reappear shortly after the New Year.

Our Newchwang correspondent writes:—The river is full of ice and the weather beginning to get cold. Skating commenced some days ago. The thermometer last night (Fahr.) showed 9½ degs. St. Andrew's Day was celebrated at Captain Man's hospitable mansion on the 29th Dec.; and although the speeches were not so lengthy as those I have seen sometimes reported, the pith and beauty of the sentiments expressed were quite equal to any that a good dinner can produce.

The United States steamer Palos has been towed into the harbour in a disabled condition, and is at present anchored off the naval yard.

The collection at Trinity Church on Christmas Day, in aid of Church missionary work in North China, amounted to $655.

SWATOW.

A letter from this port says:—A native guard has been sent over to Kakchio, to protect property till after the Chinese New Year. This is not altogether unnecessary, as several depredations have been committed lately. Among other things there has been stolen a flag bearing the word Bethel, that used to be hoisted on Sundays over the room used as a chapel. I notice the arrival per Douglas of Mr. Kruger, of Messrs. Dricks and Kruger, and Vice-Consul for Germany.

Mr. Unwin, of the Imperial Maritime Customs, is removed from this port to Takow. Steamers in are Lingfeng (H.I.C.M.S.), Haining, Kiushu, Lee Yuen, and Kwangtung.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 8th Jan.; the P. and O. mail from London Nov. 28 arrived out on the 7th Jan. The China Mail supplies the following items of intelligence:—

An extraordinary letter from Mr. John Paul appears in the Overland China Mail with reference to his missionary experience. Mr. Paul has been engaged in distributing books and tracts among the Chinese, and he has travelled about to various places for this purpose. He is doubtless a very energetic man, and is very zealous in what he believes to be a great work, but at the same time, his letter is of a most peculiar nature. It is so interlarded with quotations from the Bible and the Christian creed, coupled with denunciation of Mohamedanism and Roman Catholicism, that it is a little difficult to appreciate the advantages which the Chinese population would be likely to derive from Mr. Paul's efforts.

Vice-Admiral Shadwell has received a letter from the Chairman of the Hong Kong Chamber of Commerce, expressing the thanks of the Chamber for the heartiness with which the gallant Admiral has seconded their efforts to obtain a re-survey of the China coast. This communication was addressed to the Admiral in reply to his letter, enclosing an extract from a communication received from the Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty, in which it was stated that a vessel will in all probability be appropriated next year for survey service in China.

In the further hearing of the case of Landstein v. the King of Annam, in the Supreme Court, before Chief Justice Smale, an adjournment was decided on until next Friday; Mr. Kingswell in the meantime to hand a copy of his argument to the other side by Tuesday week, and all evidence to be closed by Monday next.

A sad accident, resulting in the death of Mr. Robert Banes, third engineer in the P. and O. Factory at West Point, took place on the 28th December. The deceased had gone to bed, as usual, the night before, but was found next morning dead in the compound below, having evidently fallen on his head from a parapet outside his room. The event has caused much regret, as Mr. Banes was very generally respected.

The Hon. J. Gardiner Austin has resumed his duties as Colonial Secretary.

Mr. H. J. Holmes and Mr. H. L. Dennys have successfully passed the examinations to qualify them for admittance as attorneys in the Supreme Court.

THE ABOLITION OF THE MACAO COOLIE TRADE.

Viscount de San Januario has issued in the Boletim do Governo a proclamation totally prohibiting the coolie trade from that port on and after 27th March, 1874. The following is a translation of the text:—

No. 89. The Governor of the province of Macao and Timor and its dependencies, Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary of his Most Faithful Majesty in China, Japan, and Siam, etc., etc.

In obedience to the orders from his Majesty's Government, the following is enacted:—

The Chinese emigration hitherto carried on in the port of Macao is henceforward prohibited.

In conformity with the provisions of Article 83 of the Emigration Regulations, this determination shall be complied with within three months after this date.

Let the competent authorities take note and execute the present proclamation.

Government House, Macao, 27th Dec., 1873.

The Colonial Chaplain gave some interesting details of Church matters as far as regards the established Church in this Colony. The last census showed the total number of members of the Church of England to be 540 out of 757 British residents. Of this number 116 are communicants. With regard to the offertory the total receipts during the year were $1,305.53, of which $408.46 were for the Diocesan Home, $293.66 for the Choir, $196.79 for the Cathedral, and $256.12 for general purposes of which have been distributed $109.18 for church purposes, and $142 for charitable uses. The total sum of the offertory for 1873 was $400 more than for the preceding year. With regard to the Cathedral, he stated that exclusive of its use for military purposes, 198 services had been held, 93 sermons preached, 11 marriages solemnised, and 36 baptisms celebrated. Mr. Kidd also stated that the Sunday School, the Bible Class, and Prayer Meeting established under his auspices had been most successful. The names of 87 children had been entered on the Sunday School books, and some 60 were now in the School. Thanks were due to the ladies and gentlemen, who had given their services as teachers.

The Russian corvette Vitiaz left for home, via the Suez Canal, on the 28th Dec. Before leaving she saluted the Russian Admiral and had her yards manned in a novel but effective style, the end men having flags, which they waved, keeping time with the cheering which they gave to and received from the various men-of-war in harbour.

The British barque Eleanor Dixon was sold by public auction, and was bought by Manila merchants for the sum of five thousand dollars.

A very excellent scheme is being carried out at the City Hall. It has been proposed to establish an Herbarium in the Museum, and steps are being taken by the Superintendent of the Government gardens to that end.

We learn that the incoming American mail will bring amongst her cargo about one hundred and eighty coffins, containing the remains of deceased Chinamen who died in Japan. About forty of them were amongst the unfortunate coolies who shared the F. A. Palmer disaster, and about forty more perished in the burning of the P.M.S.S. America. These coffins are consigned to the leading Chinese here, who have petitioned the Government for some ground to erect a matshed wherein to temporarily accommodate this remarkable consignment.

In the Supreme Court Mr. Hayllar, the Acting Attorney-General, made an ex parte application to have the name of Mr. Francis removed from the rolls of the Court, to practise as an attorney, proctor, &c., in this Court. Mr. Hayllar had received an affidavit from him wishing to be removed from the rolls. The Acting Attorney-General also mentioned that there was an error in the affidavit as to the date of Mr. Francis's admission; it was put down as 1870, whereas it should be 1869. The application was granted.

A confirmatory meeting of the shareholders of the Union Insurance Society took place on the 29th. There were present Messrs. Pyke (in the chair), S. D. Sassoon, Lowcock, André, Karber, Hon. J. Whittall, Capt. Cairns, Hon. P. Ryrie, Joost, and Ede. The special resolutions brought forward at the last meeting, with reference to the formation of the reserve fund and the consequent change in the articles of association of the society, were confirmed on the proposition of Mr. Pyke, seconded by Mr. André.

In the Supreme Court on the 5th the Acting Attorney-General, Mr. Hayllar, moved for the admission on the rolls of the Supreme Court of Mr. Wm. Mossop, a solicitor at Dublin, to practise in Hong Kong as a solicitor, proctor, and attorney. The usual affidavits of identification having been put in, the application was granted. Mr. Kingsmill observed that Mr. Mossop had brought him excellent introductions, one being from a former member of Messrs. Jardine, Matheson, and Co.'s firm at Foochow.

Of the passengers that were to leave in the Regalia, December 30, six young Chinese females were withdrawn. They were evidently intended for an improper purpose, and as they could not satisfactorily account for the object of their emigration the authorities prohibited their leaving. We understand that in consequence of the evil practice of substitution adopted by certain Chinese, native women emigrating to Singapore and other places are required to present themselves before the Registrar-General to have a stamp put to their names, so that those who pass the emigration officer not bearing this stamp may not be allowed to leave.

The prosecution against Captain E. R. Warsaw and Captain Freeman for bringing over more Chinese coolies than the law allows has terminated adversely to the Pacific Mail Company. The penalties are so heavy that the Company plead for a remission of the fines, with what result has not yet been ascertained.

H.M.S. Iron Duke left for Bangkok on the 30th December. H.M.S. Rinaldo is under orders to proceed home. Sub-Lieut. Master, 80th Regiment, has, we hear, sent in his papers resigning the service.

The American ship Cashmere, from Newcastle (N.S.W.), reports had a fine passage until November 6th, when, in lat. 19 N. and long. 151.30 E., experienced a very heavy gale, commencing at E.S.E., going through north, and blowing with typhoon violence, lasting twelve hours, and ending at W.N.W. During the gale carried away our rudder and blew the lower main topsail and storm staysail (under which we were laying to) out of the boltropes. November 7th, moderate somewhat, but still blowing hard, and lasting twelve days, during which time could do nothing towards rigging a jury rudder; ship under lower main topsail and storm staysail and perfectly unmanagable. Got a drag out to keep her to the wind and found it of little service. On the 19th November, weather better, wind moderate N.E.; rigged and fitted a jury rudder and made for Guam, where we arrived on November 23rd. Got timber and commenced to build a larger and stronger jury rudder than the one fitted at sea, but on 7th December, and before the rudder was finished, it commenced to blow a heavy easterly gale; the ship dragged both anchors with ninety fathoms of cable on each and drove out to sea. Left Mr. Ralph Brandon of New York (who was a passenger on shore at the time) behind. It continued to blow hard for two days, and the sea did not go down for a week sufficiently to allow us to get our rudder fixed. On Dec. 15 got rudder overboard and fitted it, and shaped our course for Hong Kong. On Dec. 21, wind N.E., increasing to a gale, carried away two of the hawsers with which the heel of the rudder was secured to the sternpost. Rudder sank and went to windward as the ship was drifting bodily to leeward. It hung by the remaining hawsers on the weather beam for five days till the weather moderated. On Dec. 24 got rudder on deck again and carefully refitted all the gear, fitting chain to the heel. On Christmas Day got the rudder over and fitted it to the sternpost again, and made another attempt to reach Hong Kong. Sent the pilot boat in for a steam-tug. The Fame came out at 1 P.M. of 4th Jan., and we arrived at the Union Dock buoy at 5 P.M.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this mail extend to the 15th Jan.; the P. and O. mail from London Dec. 12 arrived out on the 15th Jan. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

On the 31st Dec. H.E. Sir Andrew Clarke sent for Messrs. Thomas Scott, Dr. Little, and W. R. Scott, and read to them the despatch from the Secretary of State for the Colonies, accepting their resignations as unofficial members of the Legislative Council. Sir Andrew, however, offered them all reappointments, which they accepted—so that our Council is now so far reconstructed. It is satisfactory to learn that the point for which the unofficial members contended has been gained, and that in future no measure against which they may protest, except such as may be ordered by the Secretary of State, will be put in force without giving the Secretary of State an opportunity of considering their objections. There has been no meeting of Council, but the public are not, nevertheless, wholly in the dark as to the policy the new Governor intends to pursue. Not only has he shown a ready willingness to forward two urgently necessary municipal works,—the water supply and the drainage, which are now to be actually carried out,—but he has addressed himself earnestly to the settlement of the disturbances long existing in Laroot and Perak,—that have proved seriously detrimental to the trade of Penang. The measures already instituted to this end show that his Excellency has evidently mastered the details of his situation, and we think he can scarcely fail to accomplish his object.

The small steamer Johore, of very light draught, has been chartered, and has left for Penang, taking down Major McNair, Colonial Engineer, and Captain Dunlop, Acting Inspector General of Police, who will be followed early next week by the Governor in the Pluto. The Iron Duke, with the British Admiral, is expected here from Hong Kong on the 20th Jan., and we hear that a number of other gunboats and larger vessels of war are also under orders for Singapore, for the purpose of making a strong naval demonstration at Laroot and Perak. The object of the present mission is to endeavour to effect a reconciliation between the chiefs of Perak, and also to put a stop to the piracies which have become so rife in Laroot waters. These piracies are due, we are credibly informed, to the fact that one Chinese faction in Laroot is being starved out by the other, and have recourse to row boats to forage for provisions. While the Government is addressing itself to the chiefs, it does not leave other means untried to restore peace in the disturbed territories, as we learn that Mr. Pickering, the Chinese interpreter, has been sent down, and is now in Laroot endeavouring to effect a settlement of the Chinese disputes. The steamer Luzon has sailed with rice and provisions for the Laroot miners, who are said to be in great want, and to bring to Singapore any of the miners who may desire to leave the country.

The news from the seat of war in Atchin is conflicting, but we believe the Dutch official reports are mainly correct. The Dutch expeditionary force have captured a fortified mosque near the Kraton, or Sultan's stronghold, which they held and were still fortifying at last accounts, and they had got their heavy guns in position and begun to shell the Kraton. There is no doubt, however, that the Atchinese are fighting desperately, and have proved themselves by far the most formidable foes the Netherlanders have yet had to contend with in this part of the world. H.M.S. Thalia has been to Atchin to convey a letter to the Sultan, and has returned to Singapore. The U.S. gunboat Yantic, now here, also intends visiting the scene of operations.

Recent events in Province Wellesly have placed the grievances of the planters in a very different light to that in which we have been accustomed to view them. Lately, the planters, held an indignation meeting in Penang, and drew up a petition praying for increased medical assistance and hospital accommodation in the Province for the benefit of their coolies. The Government responded readily to this, and three hospitals are to be established, under the care of Madras apothecaries. But the planters had also asked for an inquiry into the alleged ill-treatment of their coolies—and though the report of the Commission has not been made public, we understand enough was elicited to show that on some of the estates the coolies were very cruelly treated—while evidence adduced at coroners' inquests and at the Police Court has resulted in the committal of three European managers and assistants for trial at the sessions on charges of culpable homicide, and, further, two of the three have been sentenced by the Province Magistrate to rigorous imprisonment, one for four and the other for three months, for beating their labourers.

The criminal session here opened on the 6th and closed on the 9th Jan., there having been only nine cases on the calendar, a fact that may, we trust, be taken as evidence of a decrease of crime. The Court has been engaged for the last three days in the trial of an important Admiralty case, arising out of a collision at sea between the German steamer Egeria and the Siamese barque Advance, some months ago. The steamer, which arrived from Europe on the 5th Jan., is still detained here for the examination of witnesses, after which, we presume, she will be allowed to proceed on her voyage to China.

News has reached here of the stranding, on the Alcestis Reef, Gaspar Straits, of the British ship Tamerlane, of Liverpool, tea laden, on a voyage from Yokohama to New York. The British steamer Regalia, of 600 tons, has left this port in order to render assistance to the ship.

On the 5th January the Governor and the Colonial Secretary, accompanied by Mr. W. H. Read as Consul for the Netherlands, proceeded on a visit to the Resident of Rhio.

PENANG.

Our advices extend to the 17th January ; the P. and O. mail from London Dec. 12 arrived out on the 13th Jan. The following is from the Penang Gazette :—

We hear that it has been determined by the British Government to proclaim a Protectorate over the territories of Salangore. No well-wisher to the Straits or man of common sense can gainsay the wisdom of this measure so far as it goes ; but it is, to say the most of it, only a half one. The time has arrived when, on the broad grounds of humanity, as the paramount power in these waters, and in discharge of a sacred duty, the British should put a stop to the atrocities which the weak rule of the Malayan chiefs and the consequent anarchy existing in their territories have made so common of late. It is a stain on the honour of the nation and a standing disgrace on its fame, that life on the high seas between this and Malacca is not worth a moment's purchase, and legitimate trade consequently is at a standstill, owing to the ravages committed by the followers of "black flag." The only cure for this state of things lies in either directly annexing the whole of the peninsula from the river Kreean to Johore, or the establishment of a protectorate over the same area.

On the 30th December Mr. Joseph Smith, the manager of Tasek Estate, was arrested. It would appear that two of the coolies on the estate went before the Province Magistrate, Mr. W. E. Maxwell, and swore that a few days previous Mr. Smith had beaten a coolie to such an extent that the man had died in consequence. A warrant was immediately issued, Mr. Smith was incarcerated, and the body of the murdered man was exhumed, and a post-mortem examination was held on it. The medical evidence given before the coroner proved that there were no marks of external or internal violence whatsoever, whereupon the jury returned a verdict of "died from unknown cause." Mr. Smith was released on bail, and appeared before the magistrate on the 5th January to answer the charges laid against him by the two coolies. The Court however, considered that the verdict of the coroner's inquest entirely exonerated Mr. Smith, so dismissed the case. Mr. Smith immediately initiated proceedings against the two coolies, who had sworn the information against him, for perjury, and they have been committed for trial at the ensuing sessions.

Some time has now elapsed since the memorial from the planters was forwarded, asking for a commission to examine into the condition and treatment of the coolies ; and, so far as we have heard, no steps whatever have been taken by the Government in consequence of that memorial, nor has any reply been received. There is one part of the planters' statement demanding such immediate attention that we cannot but express surprise at the delay. We refer to the medical arrangements. The Province Assistant Medical Officer having declined to attend the Estates' Hospitals, there can be no doubt that the managers and coolies are placed in a painful position, and we venture to think that the Assistant Colonial Surgeon should at once be required to attend the Estates' Hospital, of course at the expense of the planters, or, if his present duties are too onerous, that assistance should be at once given to him.

A Chinese riot took place in Queen-street on the 7th January. The cause was a dispute regarding some money transactions in connection with emigration to Delhi. The police were on the spot in time to quell the disturbance before it reached serious dimensions. Six men were made prisoners, were tried, convicted and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment. The day following a Chinaman got a most unmerciful beating on the Church-street Ghaut from some of the men concerned in the previous riot. Three of the assaulters were made prisoners, and were sentenced to three months' rigorous imprisonment each.

On the 13th January a fire broke out among the coals on board the Dutch ship Johanna Elizabeth, which came into this port the previous day. The harbour and police authorities were promptly on board, and the conflagration was got under ; later on, however, it broke out again, and it was found necessary to drop the vessel down to the south end of the harbour and there cuttle her.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

HANKOW.—Business had been again unusually small, though a slight improvement in the demand for Grey Shirtings was noted, compared with the settlements reported for last English mail. The few sales reported had been principally in 8¼ lbs., of common to medium quality. Of 10 lbs. some 600 pieces had found buyers, but for light weights there was no inquiry. White Shirtings showed no alteration ; sales trifling. T-Cloths : 7 lbs., of medium quality, were still the kind most in demand, at former rates. 8 lbs. in limited request. Drills : Transactions limited, at unchanged rates. Jeans : Little inquiry, and quoted slightly lower. Woollens and Worsteds : Long Ells and Camlets had changed hands to the extent of about 300 pieces, but there was no business to report in Spanish Stripes. Figured Orleans : Business on the same restricted scale as before. Metals : Lead. No sales reported for the fortnight, and rates unchanged.

SHANGHAI.—Cottons : The intervention of the Christmas and New Year holidays had added to the dulness which otherwise would prevail at this time of the year. Buyers for Japan had taken off a fair quantity of 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings at unchanged rates, and local wants had been supplied from rejected or mildewed goods that seem to be always available. White Shirtings had been in no demand, but the low current values of 7 lbs. Mexican T-Cloths were attracting the attention of dealers. This class of goods would soon be in season, and it was reasonable to hope for some improvement on quotations. Drills, Jeans, and Sheetings had called for no special comment. Fancy Cottons : Demand was very trifling, and only low prices tempted buyers. Woollens : Scarlet Long Ells, owing to reduced stock, had further advanced, though the sales reported were few ; other goods were dull of sale. Metals : No settlements reported. Coals : Market much depressed for nearly all kinds, and little improvement expected till after Chinese New Year, as the natives were only buying for daily wants.

FOOCHOW.—No sales reported.

HONG KONG.—Business had been considerably interrupted by the usual Christmas Holidays, and the import trade generally was at a complete stand. The principal dealers had been out of Hong Kong for the holidays, and were only just returning. They had brought back very deplorable accounts of the depression of trade in the country districts, and it was regarded as not improbable that business would be very dull time until after the turn of the China New Year.

CANTON.—Lead : At the moment there was no demand with consumers ; quotation for L.B. $8.80 to $8.90, at which prices some 1,500 pigs had changed hands on foreign accounts. Quicksilver : There had been some inquiry, and offers were reported to have been made as high as $160 per picul, but without resulting in business.

BATAVIA.—Owing to the reduced tariff only just coming into operation, quotations for imported goods were as yet somewhat irregular, and sales had not been of sufficient extent to justify a full report. Demand generally was still very dull, and the clearances effected had been mostly for immediate requirements.

SINGAPORE.—Messrs. Boustead's report says : The arrivals with general cargoes are the steamers Leon and Consolation from Liverpool, and Egeria from London. A small business has been done in Piece Goods during the past fortnight, and the market closes quiet. Stocks of most descriptions being moderate, and shipments afloat not excessive, holders are not pressing sales, and prices remain firm.

PENANG.—There had been a moderate inquiry throughout the fortnight, and a fair business had been done in Grey and White Staples. There had been scarcely any alteration in quotations.

EXPORTS.

TEA.

KIUKIANG.—No business had been done, all arrivals having been forwarded to Shanghai. Export from the commencement of the season to 27th December, 1873, 19,910,706 lbs. ; do., 1872, 19,724,111 lbs. ; increase, 1873, 186,595 lbs.

SHANGHAI. — Black : Business had been restricted by the small quantity on offer, and the market was all but cleared of stocks. Prices had continued firm at the recent advance. Arrivals had been very small, and no further supplies of importance were expected. Settlements for the fortnight and re-shipments on owners' account, 4,131 chests. Green : At the advance quoted in our last an active business took place for a few days, but the total settlements for the interval showed a considerable falling off as compared with the heavy settlements of the previous fortnight, but as the stock was getting into small compass holders were unwilling to make any concessions. Settlements, 30,201 half-chests. Total export to Great Britain :—

FOOCHOW.—An active business had been done in Congous at somewhat dearer prices, purchases having amounted to nearly 31,000 chests. Ooloongs had been settled upon a larger scale, upwards of 19,000 half-chests having been bought during the interval. Prices for these Teas had been irregular and generally weaker, a decline of one tael having been obtained in some cases. Export to Great Britain and the Continent of Europe to date :—Season 1873-74, 51,396,558 lbs., Season 1872-73, 51,482,069 lbs.

AMOY.—The season was over. The Yarra had sailed from Tamsui direct to New York.

CANTON.—A purchase of 1,000 packages of Gunpowder comprised the business of the interval.

SILK.

SHANGHAI.—The transactions since the departure of the last English mail had been on a small scale, and continued weakness in values having prevailed, the quotations of some descriptions were slightly lower. The settlements of Chop Silks during the fortnight included No. 3 Chicks alone at Tls. 477½, XX Chop at Tls. 430, X at Tls. 405, Blue Elephant at Tls. 395, Fa-May's No. 2 Hainings at Tls. 397½, No. 2½ at Tls. 377½, Taeho's "Cheang-foong" Kahing at Tls. 415, "Pangling" at Tls. 390, and recently, Kukee's "Chin-jan" at Tls. 400, and "Kinhock" at Tls. 380. Settlements for the fortnight, 1,300 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 47,600 bales against, 1872, 49,000 bales; 1871, 43,000 bales. Comparative unsold Stock on this market on the 1st January, 1874, 5,000 bales; 1873, 2,000 to 2,500 bales; 1872, 2,000 to 2,500 bales. The North China Herald report says:—The orders received from London this season especially have been for fine size silks; yet, strange to say, when such silk has been sent they have classed it as "coarse and mixed," even some of the finest size silks shipped from Shanghai this season being so classed. It is inexplicable, but no less a fact, that in the face of this demand for fine size silks home buyers should have so readily taken Lingho, Hochow, and Songling Tsatlees of a flatcatcher nature and full and much mixed size in preference to Tsatlees from other districts, which have run more even and finer in size. It is astonishing that "Ku Kee," "Blue Elephant," and similar medium chops, which have so much deteriorated in quality and size, should be so readily saleable when far superior silk in every description is neglected. It is difficult to arrive at the wants of the home buyers, but experience leads one to suppose they prefer inferior silk bearing a known chop to superior silk bearing none!

CANTON.—Messrs. Deacon and Co.'s Report says:—80 bales were taken for the French steamer, and only 30 bales have since changed hands. With so limited a business passing and no change in quotations there is but little to chronicle concerning this article. Good Tsatlee of Nos. 1, 2, 3 and 4 classifications has been inquired for, but at the moment only mixed staple appears to be obtainable, and as the season advances a marked deterioration is visible in the quality of stocks. Home advices are still of a disheartening nature, and no hope of a better demand at advanced rates is held forth.

MASSACRE OF CHINESE IN COSTA RICA.

A correspondent of the Panama Star and Herald, writing from San José under date of the 10th inst., gives details of a massacre of Chinese in Costa Rica. It appears that on the morning of the 5th a row broke out in one of the camps of Messrs. Myers, Douglas, and Co., contractors for a considerable portion of grading, between the Chinese labourers and the chief of the camp, a Frenchman named Lafeychine. The cause of the row seems to have been that the Chinese refused to go to work in a fog, when the Frenchman, who appears to be an irascible person, commenced lashing them with his horsewhip, and indiscreetly invited the native peons to assist him in bringing the recalcitrant Chinamen to their senses. The Chinamen met their adversaries with a volley of stones, sticks, and other missiles, which drove them off. Then they ran away from that camp and made their way to the next one, where there was a larger number of their countrymen, and thence they despatched emissaries to the next camp, still further beyond, to spread the alarm. The Chinese, reinforced in this way, were, to the number of about 300, preparing to march upon the camp where the trouble first broke out, when their old adversaries, headed now by Mr. Myers, principal of the firm mentioned, who had been hastily summoned from a neighbouring village for this purpose, came upon and surprised them with a discharge of stones, running away, however, as fast as they were thrown. The Chinese rushed after their opponents, and overtook one of their number, a native named Alvarez, and him they belaboured to their entire satisfaction. The whites, who had meanwhile succeeded in reaching the camp houses, became frightened, leaving the Chinese in full possession of the field. Mr. Myers repaired to the adjoining town of Paraiso, where he sent a telegram to the Governor of Cartago asking for a body of troops. The request was acceded to, and a force of thirty-five soldiers was despatched to Paraiso with orders to lay over there that night and proceed next morning to the camps and quell the insurrection. The commander, Captain Chinchilla, and his men, after drinking too much, resolved to march towards the camp. At a little after nine o'clock in the morning the end of the journey was reached, the civilians remaining at a safe distance, and the soldiers advancing cautiously into the camp. They entered the huts of the sleeping Chinese and fired volley after volley upon the defenceless men. The Chinese, awakened by the noise of the rifles, leaped in the wildest disorder from their bunks. Somebody providentially shouted, "Cease firing," but already six men had been killed and nine wounded. Five of the killed were Chinese and the sixth a Coolie. All of the wounded are Chinese. As soon as these horrible details reached San José, the Director-General of the road appointed an official commission, composed of Mr. Mark J. Kelly and Don Jose M. Oreamuno, to investigate the affair. The report of the commission is said to throw the responsibility for the killing of the Chinamen on the officer in charge of the troops and to blame Mr. Myers for unmanly timidity. Captain Chinchilla is under arrest, and will be tried by Court-Martial.

SINGAPORE AND SYDNEY LINE.

The following account of the passage of the Sunfoo, Captain Clark, from Singapore, via Java to Sydney, is given in the local paper. Capt. Clark reports :—"We left Singapore on the 18th November, passing through Rhio and Banca Straits, and arrived at Batavia on the 20th inst., from which port, after some delay, we proceeded on our voyage on the 24th. We passed through Sapoedie and Bali Straits, we then steered due east, passing south of the chain of islands extending to Ombay Passage, through which we passed on the 29th. The course was then shaped for Booby Island, which we made on December 4th, and we deposited the provisions sent by the authorities of Singapore in the cave provided for the reception of stores for shipwrecked mariners, leaving also a letter in the Post-office there informing the visitors of our arrival, and that the Sunfoo was the first of a monthly line of steamers between Brisbane and Singapore, adding suggestions in case of the shipwreck of any seaman. Having entered Torres Straits by the Prince of Wales' Channel, we observed the Ipili Reef, mentioned in the book of directions as a 'singular cluster of high rocks.' The steamer then proceeded without any difficulty until darkness compelled us to anchor south of Albany Island.

"At dawn on the 5th we again proceeded without the slightest difficulty, every island and reef being most accurately delineated on the Admiralty charts. We arrived off Cape Weymouth at 6.45 P.M., and it being imprudent to continue through the numerous reefs in the absence of lights or beacons, we anchored for the night. At dawn on the 7th we again proceeded until dark, when we brought up off Flinders Group. Next morning, 8th, again weighed, and after passing Cape Tribulation we could congratulate ourselves that the difficulties of the inner route were successfully overcome, as thence we were enabled, with a good masthead look-out, to proceed full speed day and night."

Captain Clark remarks upon the absence of beacon lights upon this route, and points out various places where these are absolutely necessary. Speaking of the route generally he says :—"With regard to the route from Singapore to this, I may be permitted to remark that it will always commend itself, as the whole voyage is executed in fine weather and smooth waters, more resembling river pilotage than sea navigation. The land is never out of sight, and the ever-varying and picturesque scenery relieves the monotony of a long sea voyage. It is a route adapted for families and invalids, and anyone who may wish on arrival at Singapore can have the choice of any of the numerous line of steamers to India, China, or England."

OUR POLICY IN WESTERN AFRICA.

Sir Richard M'Donnell, late Governor of Hong Kong, and formerly engaged in the administration of the West African Settlements, has delivered a lecture before the Royal Colonial Institute on "Our Relations with the Ashantees and other Tribes on the Gold Coast." He said the time had come when a thorough inquiry must be had into the causes of the present war, and a permanent policy be inaugurated for our future relations with the tribes of Western Africa. Our only interest there was the protection of our trade, and the one necessity of that was the keeping open of the roads so frequently closed by the wars of the native chiefs. We had ourselves fomented the feuds of Western Africa, in the interests of the slave trade. We gave the chiefs rum and gunpowder, and they went to war and kidnapped to be sold to us, not less than 150,000 negroes in the year. It was the slave trade that had kept up turbulence and prevented civilisation in Western Africa. We had, to our credit, abolished that trade, but its results still remained, degrading the whole course of African social life. He combated the general delusion that the African was averse to industrial pursuits. A long personal experience convinced him of the exact contrary. Having shown how trade was disturbed and obstructed by the quarrels of the chiefs, he proceeded to contend that our policy was radically wrong, because we assisted the Fantees to intercept the communications of the Ashantees and other inland tribes with the sea coast. The Ashantees had, he believed, no wish to be on hostile terms with us, and that, therefore, our true policy would have been to open up with them a clear and safe road from Coomassie to the sea. He reviewed our governmental policy in Africa, which had not been successful since the time of Governor Maclean. The Government, he said, had neither been firm in asserting their powers, nor had they left things alone; in fact, they had only meddled enough to muddle. In the words of Earl Grey they had been halting between two systems, so as to suffer the disadvantages of both without reaping the advantages of either. He condemned Governor Hennessy for having sent back the Ashantee chief, who at once led an army into our Protectorate, and said that in the negotiations for the German missionaries Mr. Salmon had closed the roads, an act which the Ashantees looked upon as a declaration of war. He had a thorough confidence in the future, in spite of the very difficulties and many acts of mismanagement in the past. Perhaps England might have to pay a million or more for this war, but did this represent a tithe of what we owed to Africa, whose trade had so seriously injured by fostering the slave trade? He adverted to the folly of suggesting that the coast should be abandoned when our troops had established our prestige, and the Dutch and Danish had left the coast. It was quite possible to obtain all that was needed to free and to extend commerce without expense or risk of future wars. During the seventeen years of Mr. Maclean's Government £4,000 a year covered all the expenses, and the number of police required was less than 100. Mr. Maclean had never allowed any outrage upon traders to go unpunished, and he had maintained the prestige of the English name on the coast. It must be admitted that when the crisis arrived the Government met their task with energy, and in the most admirable manner.

THE NATIONAL RIFLE ASSOCIATION.—The annual report of this association, recently issued, gives important information respecting the progress of rifle shooting throughout the kingdom and in the colonies, and shows in detail the rapid advances which are being made in the use of the national weapon in this country. County rifle associations are, it appears, in existence in no less than sixty-eight counties in England, Scotland, and Wales, and in Ireland, and thirty-two regiments of Militia, Canada, China, India, Japan, the Mauritius, New Zealand, Prince Edward Island, South Africa, and the West Indies. In China the Shanghai Municipal Corps shot for $808. In India the Hyderabad Rifle Association held a meeting, in which the European and native regiments took a conspicuous part; 137 prizes, value Rs. 6,054, being offered; at Calcutta, Rs. 4,090, in thirty-two prizes, was shot for; at Yokohama $215, in fourteen prizes, was contested, the natives taking an active part; but none of them were sufficiently skilful to wrest the National Rifle silver medal from a Scotchman named Cameron, who made 52 points for it, out of a possible 60.

THE EXPLORATION OF TONKING.—A young lieutenant in the French navy, M. Delaporte, who about a year ago set out with several other naval officers (among whom it is believed was Lieutenant Garnier) on an exploring expedition up the river Tonking, has recently sent home a number of packing cases containing the results of his researches. These, amounting to more than a hundred, have lately been deposited in the Cour Carée, of the Louvre. The expedition started with the object of discovering whether a communication between China and the Indian Ocean could not be opened up by means of the Tonking. During his geographical and scientific researches M. Delaporte has been enabled to collect a large and important collection of ancient monumental remains which he discovered on the banks of the Tonking and in its neighbourhood. These are of the greatest importance, as Oriental architecture and sculpture can seldom be seen except by the traveller in Asiatic countries.

THE Pall Mall Gazette publishes a letter from Hong Kong, which appeared in the Cologne Gazette, in which the following passage having reference to the Straits of Malacca appears. The writer, alluding to the Atchinese, says :—"The Atchinese are not wanting in courage; but whether their diplomatic knowledge is of any value time will show. It has recently transpired that a group of Islands on the coast has been offered to the United States through the American Consul at Singapore, on condition that America should conclude a defensive treaty with Atchin. The Cabinet of Washington has telegraphed in reply that it will postpone its decision until it is informed of the text of the proposed treaty." The correspondent adds that as the Dutch had not enough ships of war to make the blockade of the coast effective, they have hired a number of ships of the Netherlands Steam Navigation Company for that purpose.

A SCREW steamer has just been completed under the supervision of Dr. Siemens, and will be launched on Tuesday next at Newcastle, which is designed entirely for work in connection with telegraphic cables. This vessel, which is called the Faraday, although only of 4,000 or 5,000 tons, has as much cable room as the Great Eastern. She is perfectly symmetrical fore and aft, with a rudder at each end, so that she can move with equal speed in either direction. This is a very essential point in cable work. In order to diminish the rolling, the Faraday has no keel at the bottom, but two bilge keels running along the sides, so that the cross section is nearly rectangular. She is driven by twin screws, whose axes converge, and by this means a greater turning power is obtained. The axes of the screws would pass the centre of gravity of the ship at a distance of 27 feet. In this way her head can be kept to the wind when she has no way on.

BOARD OF TRADE NOTIFICATIONS.—JAPAN AND MANILA.—The Board of Trade have received a translation of a notification of the Japanese Government, dated 17th November last, under which the exportation of flour made from rice, wheat, and barley is henceforward permitted free of duty; also copy of a Note addressed to Her Majesty's Consul at Manila by the Captain-General of the Philippine Islands, announcing that by a Decree of the 3rd of December last the ports of Legaspi, in the island of Luzon, and Tacloban, in the island of Leyte, were declared open to the general commerce of importation and exportation from the 1st of January, 1874.

THE iron clipper ship Hallowe'en, Captain Watts, belonging to Messrs. John Willis and Son, built by Messrs. Maudslay, Sons, and Field, has just made one of the fastest passages from Shanghai, having left the light ship on the 19th November, passed Anjer on the 5th December, St. Helena 18th January, and arrived in the Downs on the morning of the 16th February—eighty-eight days. The Hallowe'en left London 31st March for Sydney, and from thence to Shanghai she made the passage in thirty-one days.

FOREIGN OFFICE NOTIFICATION.—The Queen has granted unto John Bush, Esq., her Royal licence and authority that he may accept and wear the class of Knight Commander of the Order of the White Elephant, conferred upon him by the King of Siam as a promotion of the same Order which he was allowed to accept in 1862, as well as the Gold Medal of the Siamese Order of Merit, he being actually and entirely employed beyond Her Majesty's dominions, in the service of the King of Siam.

THE U.S. receipts from Customs and inland duties continue favourable. As the revenue grow the feeling for increased taxation is dissipated; the Protectionists, however, are making strenuous efforts to get the 10 per cent. decrease made in certain classes of duties in 1872 repealed, and will probably carry their point. This will be virtually an increase of 10 per cent. in these duties in the Protectionist interest.

THERE has been launched from the building-yard of Mr. Jas. Gardner, North Hylton, a barque of over 500 tons register, classed 15 years at Lloyd's. This vessel, named the Truth, is the fourth that Mr. Gardner has built for the same owners, Messrs. J. Smith and Co., of Liverpool, within the last two years, all of a similar class and tonnage, and engaged in the China and India trades.

MR. P. J. ROBERTSON, who was one of the Conservative candidates for the borough of Hastings, has been found in a fit in a railway carriage. It is thought that his exertions during the election were too severe for his constitution. Mr. Robertson was formerly a resident in China, and was a director of the Oriental Bank.

IT is said that Thomas R. Van Buren will be rejected as U.S. Consul to Kanagawa, the Committee on Foreign Relations refusing to report the nomination favourably, on the ground that if Mr. Van Buren be guilty of the charges made by Minister Jay in relation to the Vienna Exposition then he is not fit to be a Consular officer.

MR. DAVID CHADWICK, M.P., has offered £5,000 and 10,000 pounds of books to build and stock a free library in the town of Macclesfield.

THE OPIUM TRAFFIC.

WHEN the time arrives for the revision of our Treaties with China and Japan, we shall find ourselves occupying a very different position from what we have held when discussing Treaties and Conventions with those Powers. Hitherto the suggestion of reforms, innovations, and improvements have proceeded from ourselves. The demands have always been ours, the concessions theirs. But during the last ten years both countries have made great strides in their knowledge of Western affairs. Our form of government and the political views of our foremost men are as well known in Peking and Yedo as they are in Fleet-street, and the wisdom and importance of having some claim or claims, to urge in opposition to the concessions which will be demanded of them, when the treaties shall be revised, are not likely to be lost upon the astute rulers of the two Empires. We are not therefore surprised to hear that the Japanese Government are prepared to claim the abolition of our ex-territorial rights, and that the statesmen at Peking have determined to press upon our Government the necessity of stopping the importation of opium from India. We are informed that the Chinese Government, after carefully calculating the consumption of the Indian drug in China, have estimated that forty million taels are annually spent by natives in indulging in its fumes. From a Chinese point of view the expenditure of so large a sum of the nation's money on a practice which is believed by them to be highly prejudicial to the health of both the bodies and minds of its votaries without doubt establishes a grievance, and we may rest assured that they will make the most of it. It is possible that in prosecuting this claim they may gain the support of many in England. But the matter is one of great financial as well as of moral importance, and it may be questioned if any Government would be willing to forego so large a portion of the income of India, to oblige a Government which has certainly shown no disposition to meet our views on any given point.

CHINA AT THE BRITISH MUSEUM.

STUDENTS of Chinese literature who reside in the Far East will, doubtless, be glad to learn that, if on their return home they desire to pursue their favourite study, the British Museum will ere long afford them facilities for so doing, which have not hitherto existed. The Curator of Chinese books (Mr. R. K. DOUGLAS, formerly of H.M.'s Consulate at Tientsin) has for some time past been employed on a catalogue, which was much wanted, to make the valuable Chinese Library of the Museum available to students. With regard to this catalogue, it was resolved, after careful consideration, to adopt MORRISON'S system of writing the sounds, as being the most widely known. The works are catalogued under the authors' names, and the English sounds of these names, preceded by the Chinese characters, are arranged alphabetically. In order, however, to enable the student to find any book, an index will be added, containing the titles of all the works arranged alphabetically (but without the Chinese characters), with references to the authors' names in the body of the catalogue. As may be imagined, the labour involved in preparing this catalogue—containing about 15,000 entries—for the press has been very great, the more so when we consider that Mr. DOUGLAS has been without the aid of a Chinese scholar. When the Museum authorities determined to print the catalogue they asked for tenders for the execution of the work, and accepted that made by Messrs. Austin and Co., the Oriental printers of Hertford; which firm procured a small fount of metal type from Shanghai. The difficulty of setting up Chinese type in England is naturally very great, but this has been met by numbering them, and as numbers are placed over the characters in the manuscript catalogue, the compositors really have nothing to do with the Chinese characters. The proofs have, of course, to be carefully revised two or three times before they can be finally sent to press, and consequently, though about a quarter of the catalogue is already set up, it cannot be hoped that the whole will be finished before the end of the year. We understand that 500 copies of this catalogue will be printed, and we trust that Chinese scholars, both in Europe and the East, will take up those offered to the public, and thus reduce the heavy cost of bringing out such a work in England.

THE diplomatic struggle which ended in the admission of the Foreign Ministers to an audience with the Emperor of CHINA was doubtless a severe one; but, while giving them all praise for their perseverance, we fail to see that the severity of the fight justifies the Envoys in lying on their oars as completely as they have done since that memorable Sunday morning when they were admitted into the Siamese Tribute-hall. In no Oriental country, and especially in China, is it prudent to allow any concession to become obsolete. The one great diplomatic blunder which has run through all our intercourse with the Chinese has been the neglect we have shown in following up the advantages which we have so repeatedly gained. If we had insisted on the faithful fulfilment of the Treaty of 1860 most of the difficulties, the Audience Question included, which have since presented themselves would never have arisen, and it is much to be regretted that when the right of Audience has once been granted, the privilege should be treated as an isolated concession, and not as a precedent for the regulation of our future relations with the Chinese Court.

MR. NEY ELIAS has left for India, where he hopes to find an opening under Government for further explorations into Thibet via Sikim. It will be remembered that the gold medal of the Royal Geographical Society was awarded last year to Mr. ELIAS, for his journey across Mongolia into Siberia and Russia, the scientific results of which were found especially valuable.

WE hear that Comte ROCHOCHONART, recently French Charge d'Affairs at Peking, has proceeded to India, with the intention of finding a practicable route through Thibet or Yunan into China. He is said to be supported by his Government.

WE have to note the arrival at St. Petersburg of Mr. HANAKUSA, as acting Chargé d'Affaires for Japan, and of Mr. KAWASSE at Rome as the newly accredited Minister to Italy.

PACIFIC MAIL STEAM COMPANY.

STATEMENT OF THE DIRECTORS.

The board of directors have authorised the publication of a report and statement to the stockholders of the Pacific Mail Steamship Company, of which the principal facts and figures are subjoined :—

THE REPORT.

Owing to the manner in which the accounts of the company have heretofore been kept, and the official reports yearly certified to and published according to law, they have found themselves embarrassed in the discharge of so important a duty, and have been compelled to enter upon explanations that they would have preferred to have omitted.

The accounts of the company show no charge to depreciation account for a long period of years, while the fact is well known that steamship property deteriorates by at least ten to fifteen per cent. per annum.

In the various official yearly statements furnished to the Legislature and circulated in the public newspapers the actual cost of all the steamers owned by the company, without reference to their depreciation, has been persistently adhered to, by which means the capital stock has been made to appear in an unimpaired condition, or as representing an actual value of $20,000,000, whereas the true value of the steamships, varying in age from twenty-two years to six, seven, and eight years, and representing on the books of the company over $11,500,000, are found, by a careful examination and by a reference of the subject to well qualified experts, to have depreciated to less than one-quarter that sum.

It is also distinctly apparent that the old side-wheel wooden steamers have not been used with any profit to the company, and that the substitution of the iron propellers has become an absolute prerequisite to future success.

With this conviction the company is devoting all its efforts to the introduction of this class of vessel. Large economies are certain to be effected by this change, and a confident reliance is placed upon greater productiveness than has been enjoyed for a long period as soon as the fleet, consisting of eight first class iron screws, are fairly afloat and in the position required for the proper discharge of the duties of its extended and important service.

It is proper to state that while the wooden side-wheel steamers belonging to the company no longer constitute an available asset for a sum, perhaps, beyond that affixed upon it by the Board if offered for sale, many of the ships, however, for the present are available for the work of the company, and may have a greater value in their hands than can be found anywhere else. It will be the effort of the board to make them subserve the company's objects until the new steamers are all in place.

In the matter of insurance the company has been its own underwriters; but no credit appears in the insurance account, while since August, 1872, five steamers have been lost, property charged in the old account as costing $1,763,492.

The present board have devoted themselves to a heavy reduction of expense in all and every department of the company's service, and while the present statement of its assets shows a considerable reduction in the value of the capital stock, the facts and figures have long existed, and have been at all times under the control of the stockholders. If they have failed to require from the managers correct and reliable data as to the actual condition of affairs they have only themselves to blame.

The policy of the present board will continue to be exercised on the side of economy and efficiency, and they allow themselves to believe that by these processes the company will yet play an important part in the history of the steam marine of the United States.

RUSSELL SAGE, President.

Meeting the Sun; A Journey All Round the World. WM. SIMPSON, F.R.G.S.: London, Longmans and Co.

The author is an old friend. We have already had occasion to mark our appreciation of the service he performed when at Peking, by laying before home readers the daily habits and customs of that peculiar people. In the handsome volume now before us he has wisely consolidated that work, and we trust that he will be well rewarded for the effort. The books on China and Japan are certainly numerous, not to say legion, but for the general public Mr. Simpson's "Journey Round the World" is at once the most entertaining and instructive yet published. In carrying conviction there is nothing like a picture, and here we are enlightened and aided by admirable sketches of all the most interesting places and objects as we follow the traveller through Italy, Egypt, the Suez Canal, the Red Sea, Ceylon, the Straits, Hong Kong, the Peiho and Peking being the conclusion of the outward passage, while homeward we have Japan, California, and the Modoc war. Our author is no novice, having been present at the Crimean war, the Indian rebellion, Abyssinian campaign, opening of the Suez Canal, Mont Cenis Tunnel, and, lastly, the great German war, including the days of the Commune in Paris. With such experience he might venture on such secluded ground as China and the marriage ceremonies of the Emperor. Verily no one of less knowledge could have had a chance of success among a people who hold the Emperor too sacred to be looked on by ordinary mortals, to say nothing of the "foreign devil." How all those difficulties were overcome by the aid of Mrs. Edkins is intensely interesting, and we can appreciate the courage and determination of the author in accomplishing the mission to sketch and describe the "Marriage Ceremonies of the Emperor of China."

It required no ordinary nerve to hold fast to the fixed purpose, for sure are we that he must have encountered many a jeer at the utter absurdity of expecting to get such admission as would enable him to carry out the project. Knowing the difficulty, we have no hesitation in saying that Mr. Simpson has placed himself on a pinnacle of fame, and grievous indeed would it have been not to have put together in a connected form the results of such extraordinary tenacity and ability.

The notes on Hong Kong and Shanghai are necessarily brief, as time pressed to be at Peking. Hong Kong is described as more worthy to be called the "City of Palaces" than Calcutta, an opinion which is fully confirmed by the photographs of Mr. Thomson, which we lately noticed. The author alludes to Li-hung Chang of Tientsin in a manner which would cost that worthy his head if the statement be true. Of the Shanse temple, which serves both for theatrical and religious performances, the author says:—

It belongs to the merchants from the province of Shanse, living in Tientsin, who meet about once a month and use the place as a club, the temple and theatre being only necessary adjuncts. There are tables where they eat and drink and manage to combine friendship with business. A temple, a theatre, an exchange, and a club all in one is a strange combination to our Western ideas, but, when properly understood, it is a very good arrangement, and no doubt exactly suits the tastes and habits of the Shanse merchants. The place is kept in good order, delightfully clean, with plants and flowers all round.

His description of the Mahomedan mosques is also very interesting. Here, as throughout the book, we see the power of comparison which the author possesses by his multifarious experience. His notes on the journey from Tientsin to Peking are full of interest, while to most travellers it is simply only, flat and muddy. Here is the entrance to Peking:—

Imagine about sixteen square miles of tumble-down bricks, dirty earthen tiles, dusty or muddy thoroughfares, open stagnant sewers, and unlimited filth of every kind lying about, and you have a general and very correct idea of Peking. When you have looked at the great wall of the city from the outside, and passed through the high archway, which is impressive from its size, you expect to find a place of corresponding importance within; but, on the contrary, you see only the beginning of a street, with low, one-storied miserable houses, in no way different from the villages you have passed on the way. It was certainly disappointing, but I hoped as we went along that we might see something better. Our progress did not realise these hopes. There were the same unswept dirty streets or lanes, with dull walls on each side, the same low mean houses. The temples, monasteries, and similar buildings are only spots in this vast unsightly region, and do not affect the general conclusion. The Imperial Palace is certainly an exception; but as it is within high walls, and no one is allowed to enter, it did not influence my impressions.

The volume contains some 400 pages, is written in a light, pleasant style, and the type, paper, and general get-up are all that could be desired. The reader of this work will, at a trifling cost of time and money, acquire a knowledge of China and its people. In the event of a second edition, we may suggest that the spelling of some Chinese names be corrected; we do not refer to the "Pidgin English" or the parody on "Excelsior." The Rev. Joseph Edkins is not a "Chinese missionary," but a missionary of the London Missionary Society.

Essays on Modern Military Biography. By COL. C. CHESNEY.—As a rule, few books have less attractiveness for the general reader than technical biographies—stories of the lives of men eminent to some extent, no doubt, but eminent only in one direction, wedded to one profession, and engrossed in pursuits separate and apart from the ordinary run of mankind. Such a volume as Col. Chesney's, however, appeals to a wider range of sympathies, and is not by any means to be confounded with an ordinary class biography or set of sketches. It covers a large tract, both in regard to time and place. It presents us with an admirable sketch of a conspicuous Indian statesman, Lord Cornwallis, who, without any extraordinary ability, yet effected a complete revolution in the Indian Public Service; with excellent essays upon French military character, and the great struggle in the United States, where the conditions of war on a grand scale were to the full as much displayed as in the recent Franco-German conflict on the Continent; and it presents us also with a sketch—which, we doubt not, our readers in China will much appreciate—of the Engineer officer, Col. Charles Gordon, whose brilliant military genius saved the Chinese Empire from disintegration, and who has now succeeded Sir Samuel Baker in the enterprising attempt to suppress slavery within the Nile regions of Africa. It is with this last-mentioned sketch we have to do, and we commend it with all heartiness to our readers' best attention. Mr. Wilson's frothy and unsatisfactory book, "The Ever Victorious Army," is the peg on which Col

Chesney hangs his essay upon "Chinese Gordon," and we may affirm, without hesitation, that the few pages of this sketch contain more solid matter, and convey more accurate information about the hero, than can be found or extracted from Mr. Wilson's ponderous and bulky volume, which is crowded with unnecessary verbiage and padding. Mr. Wilson is so anxious to prove the inferiority of Europe to China, the saddening failure we have made of our attempts at civilisation, so anxious to impress us with the grand conceptions of Chinese philosophy, and the superioity of Chinese officials, that the great campaign he professes to record, and the military successes he undertakes to chronicle, pass almost out of sight, and seem at best "but a pennyworth of bread to all this sack." We cannot but regret that Col. Gordon's journals did not fall into more conscientious—albeit less practised—literary hands. Its very partiality sets the reader against it at the outset, and we have very little sympathy with the partiality which praises all things Chinese, and condemns all things European. But Col. Chesney devotes few pages to Mr. Wilson, and hastens to portray the state of affairs which led to Gordon's assuming the command of the force with which he worked such miracles. The sketch of the country which formed the scene of operations is clearly and explicitly presented to the reader, accompanied by some interesting details respecting the composition of the Ever Victorious Army—a name, by-the-bye, which was given to the force as soon as it had fought its first battle and gained its first victory under the brave but ill-starred adventurer Ward. Colonel Chesney dwells, as it is natural a military biographer should, upon the movements and strategy of the campaign, the organisation of the force and its successive steps towards the investiture and capture of the rebel strongholds. But we get also interesting glimpses of Gordon's character, his fearlessness and firmness, his coolness and generosity, his utter disregard of self, his almost Quixotic refusal of all reward, and above all, of his simple, manly, unaffected Christian character. Free from everything like cant, yet with deep-seated religious convictions, it is most refreshing and invigorating to find in an age of scepticism and general unbelief a high-minded, cultivated soldier, not ashamed to confess his faith in the creed of Christianity, but drawing from it inspiration and encouragement, like his compeers Stonewall Jackson, Hedley Vicars, and Henry Havelock. We yield to no man in our admiration of Col. Gordon; we regard him as a true type of chivalrous manhood, and if we cannot but regard his present mission under the Khedive of Egypt as partaking of a somewhat filibustering character, we are yet convinced that Col. Gordon is actuated by the highest of motives, and will come out of the campaign still stainless and without reproach. Col. Chesney's essay is invaluable as drawing attention to the character and career of a man who is destined yet, we hope and believe, to win a great and abiding place in the history of our own times and in the service of his country.

De l'Emigration des Chinois au Point de Vue des Interêts Européens. By ED. MADIER DE MONTJAU. Paris, 1873.—Estimated by the number of those who speak languages, the Chinese are the most important race in the world, and the English the second. In speculating on the future history of mankind the populousness of countries is an extremely valuable point. When countries are populous the people are usually increasing in number, and are politically not on a descending scale. The Chinese, therefore, must in the coming age enact a most conspicuous part. The loftiest position in the future history of the world will be assigned to those races that are practical, that have a superfluity of population which throws itself off in colonies, and that are capable of founding among themselves stable political institutions. In these respects no race can compare with the English. The Chinese, perhaps, holds the next place. Certainly in power to emigrate in great numbers, and to hold their position in new countries, these two races are foremost in the modern world. There are none to compare with them in the power of multiplying rapidly, of self-government, of amassing riches, and of perpetuating their own type. Hear M. De Montjau on the Chinese power of self-government in the new homes which they are now finding in every part of the world where there is a demand for labour, where land is cheap, and where commerce admits of new competitors.

> The Chinese, wherever they are, in great numbers or in small, form a world apart, which sustains itself, keeps watch over its own members, chooses the most worthy and the most capable person to discharge a function, in the exercise of which, while becoming an individual more powerful than his fellows, he remains, notwithstanding, the dependent servant of the associated community.

Here is a development of the political faculty, which, while it differs essentially from the English, still presents permanent and self-sustaining characteristics. The Anglo-Saxon race has political energy enough not only to establish sound popular institutions in new lands, but to rule other races. The Chinese have not the power to rule others, but they have eminently the power of combination, and of living together on understood principles of a moral and social kind, so successfully as to become wealthy, strong, and influential.

The Sandwich Islands, says M. de Montjau, ruined rapidly by alcohol and European maladies, and by the certain extinction of the Kana race, are destined to be very soon repeopled by the Chinese.

For the prosperity of that part of Cochin-China which is now French the extended cultivation of the sugar-cane is essential. All that is wanted for this is a class of labourers possessed of arms, intelligence, and will. The one desideratum, says our author, is a sufficient supply of peasants from the South of China who, accustomed at home to this branch of cultivation, will tend to make the colony populous and rich. All the English, Americans, and French superintendents and employers of labour declare that the Chinese are industrious, intelligent, careful, docile, and economical. Such is the character they bear in New Caledonia, and in New Guinea as agriculturists. Planters in South Carolina say they work better than the negroes, have more robust health, and are more sober. They say, too, that they have the spirit of justice, provided that others also maintain the principles of justice in treating them. This brochure is adapted to be very useful, as containing a large collection of facts respecting Chinese emigration. There is one point in which we venture to think the author mistaken. It is upon the special adaptedness of the Chinese to amalgamate with the French more readily than with Germans, English, or Americans. If this were true, how is it that they prefer the English to the French, as we believe to be the case? Why does he say, "Our language is the only European language which is comprehended and spoken at Peking?" We have good ground for believing that there are many more Chinese speakers of English in Peking than there are speakers of French. The frankness of French manner is an excellent quality, and the Chinese will not fail to appreciate it; but as to preference, they will be best pleased with those who are sincere and who treat them kindly and justly. If the Latin race is more genuinely sincere and hospitably inclined than the Teutonics the Chinese will prefer it. The Spaniards and Portuguese have not treated them well of late, nor have the French won a good name by their behaviour towards the South Sea Islanders. We shall be glad to learn that at Saigon the expected immigration of Chinese sugar cultivators is wisely conducted by the representatives of France in that colony, and that the labourers have no reason to complain of their employers on the score of firmness and kindness.

"Debrett" has been for so long regarded as a necessity that the publication of a revised addition from time to time is looked upon as a matter of course. The new volumes for 1874, "Debrett's Peerage" and "Debrett's Baronetage with Knightage," contain the latest reliable information, and they are corrected up to the 20th of January. The changes occurring by promotions, appointments, removals, together with the alterations of surnames, are faithfully recorded. "Debrett" has been published for upwards of a century and a half, and the popularity and reputation for accuracy enjoyed by this standard work is due, doubtless, to the fact that no trouble or expense is spared in gathering correct information. Amongst the host of information relating to the titled aristocracy contained in this work the insertion of the addresses of the widows of peers, baronets and knights, and of the children of the two former is an exclusive feature, and is to be found in no other work. The new volumes are got up with care, and published as usual by Messrs. Dean and Son, of Fleet-street.

The Foreign Office List for 1874 is as complete as any of the former volumes, and its list of Her Majesty's Ambassadors, Envoys, Ministers, Chargé d'Affairs, &c., is compiled by Mr. Hertslet with the greatest care, the Appointments, Promotions, Transfers, &c., being supplied. The statement of services, containing the ranks, dates of appointment, together with other particulars respecting those persons now living who have served, or who are now serving, under the Foreign Office, is a special feature of this work. A table is also given of the pensions and superannuation allowances to consular officers, &c., and a host of useful information is furnished as to passports, Pension Acts, Consular Acts, and the management of churches and chapels abroad. "The Foreign Office List" is absolutely necessary in all matters relating to the Diplomatic or Consular Service. It is published, as usual, by Mr. Harrison, of Pall-mall.

The Colonial Office List has not yet reached us, and we presume is not yet issued.

We have received a copy of the China Punch for December last. The number is accompanied by a capital sketch of Mr. Justice (now Sir Julian) Paunefote, the late Attorney-General. This gentleman figures as the theme both in poetry and prose, and under the title of a "Public Dinner" the proceedings at the farewell dinner given in his honour are unmercifully burlesqued. The lines "Farewell," intended as a parody on Dibdin's "Farewell My Trim-Built Wherry," are decidedly pointed. The China Punch is certainly very amusing, and reflects great credit upon its contributors.

In Macmillan for February a new story is commenced, entitled, "Castle Daly; or, The Story of an Irish Home Thirty Years Ago." Ireland seems fairly represented in this number, for there is a paper containing reminiscences of duelling in that country which certainly does not leave, at least to an ordinarily constituted mind, any lingering desire that the good old days of the duello should be restored either to Ireland, or any other civilised country. Mr. Burnand's contribution, "My Time, and What I've Done With It," maintains its interest.

Ocean Highways for February contains a paper on the Bengal famine, in which some particulars relative to previous famines in that district are given, together with the means adopted for the relief of the sufferers. An interesting paper, by Capt. Burton, appears, entitled, "Two Trips to the Gold Coast," and accompanying it are two excellent maps, one of the route from Cape Coast Castle to Kumassi (as it is spelt), and the other of the Lower Volta River.

An important work on the Maritime Provinces of China is in preparation. By direction of Mr. Hart, the Inspector-General of Chinese Customs, each Commissioner of Customs at the Treaty Ports is now engaged in compiling, from native and other sources, a complete statistical and topographical history of the province in which his port is situated. The entire work will be edited by Mr. Hart, and will probably be published at Shanghai during the course of the present year.

Monetary and Commercial.

Subject to the audit of the accounts, the directors of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company (Limited) announce a dividend of 20 per cent. (£2 8s. per share), in addition to the ad interim dividend of 5 per cent. already paid—carrying forward a balance of about £19,000.

The liquidators of Overend, Gurney, and Co. have issued a statement to December last. During the year they have realised from the assets £100,124 19s. 7d., and have made two further returns of 10s. per share. The payments made to the shareholders during the past year have, with the previous returns, made up £2 10s. per share, or 25 per cent. more than the amount offered for the shares offered in February, 1872. There is now in hand £14, 690 8s. 6d., and the liquidators hope to be able to make a sixth distribution of 10s. per share at a very early date.

The Comptoir d'Escompte de Paris have declared a dividend for the past half-year of 35 francs per share, of which 20 francs were paid on the 1st August last.

The Glasgow Chamber of Commerce have resolved to memorialise Government to the effect that early consideration be given to the subject of the duties now levied on yarns and manufactured goods on import to India, with a view to those duties being abolished.

The suspension is reported of Mr. Washington Irving, Manchester, commission merchant, carrying on business under the style or firm of Washington Irving and Co., and a petition of liquidation has been filed.

A further decline in the price of Bar Silver has taken place, the large amounts recently despatched to India have for the moment supplied all existing orders, and the rate has gradually receded to 58½d. per oz. standard, at which quotation the market may, for the present, be considered quiet. A few small parcels of Mexican dollars lately to hand have been sold at 57d. per oz., showing a decline of ½d. per oz. They have been taken only for the China Market.

THE BOARD OF TRADE RETURNS.

The Board of Trade Returns for the month of January have been issued, and show that business has continued uninterruptedly dull, as noticed on several previous occasions. The declared value of British and Irish produce exported was £19,472,367, against £20,298,547 in 1873, and £18,879,980 in 1872, showing as regards last month a diminution of 4 per cent. compared with January, 1873, but an increase of 3 per cent. on the corresponding month of 1872. There is a decrease in most of the leading items, coal and cotton manufactures being, however, favourable exceptions. In textile fabrics cotton manufactures exhibit an augmentation of 7¼ per cent.; linen manufactures, a decline of 2 per cent.; silk manufactures, a rise of 28 per cent.; and woollen manufactures, a fall of 21½ per cent. In iron and steel there is a diminution of 32½ per cent. in quantity, but of only 18½ per cent. in value. As regards the importations of the month, the total declared value was £31,274,404, against £27,397,673 in 1873, an augmentation of 12½ per cent. The excess has been mainly in cotton and wool, the receipts of the former from the United States showing a considerable increase.

The following is an extract from these returns of the figures which refer to our Export trade with China and the Far East :—

TEA.

The market has been quiet during the week, the General Election having greatly interfered with business, the trade complaining of want of orders from the country; the export demand also continues light; there has, however, been no pressure to sell, the position of the market being very strong, and prices have been firmly maintained. In public sales, including Thursday's auctions, 9,436 packages have been offered, of which 8,715 packages have been sold without reserve. Congous went at full prices, and Moyune Greens 1d. to 2d. per lb. higher. The deliveries for the week amount to 2,754,939 lbs., against 3,383,209 lbs. last year.

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings have been steady at previous rates. Broken-leaf kinds remain firm. Common to good common show no alteration. In fair to good Kaisows the few sales have been at previous prices. In fine to finest but little has been done. Pak Lin kinds have been enquired for. Black-leaf kinds: Low to common kinds remain firm at the late advance. Good common has been saleable at former prices; fair to good medium show no change, the demand being steady, but not active; good to fine have not been so much enquired for; finest remain as before. New-make Canton kinds: The few sales made have been without change in prices. Oolongs have been firmly maintained. Souchongs have been dull of sale. In flowery Pekoes and Uncoloured Japans there has been no change, and but little doing. Scented Teas.—Canton Capers have been in better demand, and prices, although rather irregular, have somewhat improved, the good to fine kinds being most saleable. Foo Chow kinds continue firm. Orange Pekoes: Canton kinds remain much as before. Foochow kinds have been slow of sale at previous prices. Green Teas.—The improved tone of the market continues, and Moyune kinds have sold at a further slight advance. Ping Sueys at about last week's prices.

SILK.

The market is still very quiet, and only a limited business has been doing this week. Prices are unchanged. Deliveries are not so good, there being a falling off during the last ten days; but this may be in some measure owing to the elections, which have to a certain extent checked business in the Silk districts. The clearances from 1st to 11th inst. have been:—China, 917 bales; Canton, 158; Japan, 274; Bengal, 147; total, 1,496 bales.

Messrs. Arles Dufour and Co.'s Circular, dated Lyons, 6th inst., says:—We confirm our Circular of the 17th Jan. Business in general had been very quiet during the first days of the month. Soon after foreign buyers, tempted by present moderate prices, began to effect important purchases in Black Silk Piece-goods. Simultaneously manufacturers bare of Silk bought more freely, and the market became decidedly more active. It was then expected that prices would show more firmness; on the contrary, the improved demand revealed the existence of heavier stocks of Silk than expected. Holders, so often deceived, were particularly eager to sell when the news of the General Election in England began to check business, and in spite of former large transactions prices lost gradually f.3 to f.6 on European Silk and f.2 to f.3 on Asiatic sorts. It is worth remarking that Asiatic throwns have attracted particular attention; but as prices leave no margin yet, many throwsters are compelled to reduce their production, and purchases of raws have been comparatively very limited of late.

COFFEE.—The Dutch Trading Company's February sale was held on the 11th inst., when 96,200 bags of Java, &c., offered went off at an average reduction of ¾c. below valuation, good ordinary Java selling at 71c. to 71½c., against 62c. at the previous auctions in November. The result of the Dutch sale being less favourable than expected this market has become quieter, and the small quantity of Plantation Ceylon in public sale has gone off at a decline of about 1s. per cwt. Triage at 119s. to 124s. 6d., small at 127s. to 131s. 6d., low middling at 132s. to 133s. 6d., middling 134s. to 136s., good middling bold 136s. 6d., pea-berry 132s. to 134s. 6d. per cwt.; 400 bags of native Ceylon, garblings, sold at 60s. to 75s.; 300 bags of Singapore mixed, 111s. 6d.; bold pale, 117s. to 120s.; and 700 bags of pale Manila were bought in at 118s.

The following were the inquiries into casualties to ships belonging to the Chinese ports:—1861: The Prima Donna, 179 tons, Singapore, stranded and lost through the negligence of the master. 1863: The Jemima, 152, Colombo, rightly abandoned. 1865: The Fohkien, 866, Hong Kong, stranded, in consequence of the master mistaking the position of the ship, and not slackening speed when the fog came on. 1866: The Erin, Singapore, stranded, and the master and mate were committed for trial for wilfully making away with the vessel. 1867: The Douglas, 291, Penang, stranded through the gross neglect of the captain. The Genkai, 606, Hong Kong, rightly abandoned; fifty Chinese, who boarded the vessel after the crew had left her, lost their lives. 1869: The Reiver, 778, Hong Kong, stranded and lost, through the imprudence of the master in not taking bearings and going full speed through a dangerous place. 1870: The Ada, 398, Hong Kong, stranded, through no blame on the part of the master; three of the crew lost their lives. The Lan Tong, 438, Hong Kong, stranded, and the Court found that the master was justified in running his vessel (which was unseaworthy) ashore to save life. 1872: The Anne, 304, Hong Kong, parted cables and stranded. The total number of inquiries during the seventeen years was 1,163, the casualties to passenger ships numbering 239, and those to other than passenger ships 924.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Our advices from this port by the present mail extend to Jan. 6th. The French mail from London Nov. 7 arrived out on the 30th Dec. The Japan Herald contains the following items of news:—

On the 29th Dec. the adjourned meeting of the subscribers of the British Episcopal Church Establishment was held at the British Consulate, Mr. Russell Robertson, H.B.M.'s Consul, presiding. On the proposition of the President, the report was read over; and the sense of the meeting having been taken, was adopted unanimously. The accounts may be summed up as follows:—The general account showing total receipts, inclusive of the Government grant for 1872, and all moneys and subscriptions received during the year from British and other subjects, $5,105.85, against total expenditure $5,317.35, leaving a balance due to the treasurer, $211 50. A discussion followed on the future prospects of the Church, and the following resolutions were carried:—

That the Government subvention of £800, to be received for the years 1873 and 1874, be applied to the liquidation of the present standing debt on the Church.

That H.B.M. Consul be requested to ask the British Government to give the promised sum of £800 in one payment, to enable the subscribers at once to take over the affairs of the Church.

That H.B.M. Consul should send a telegram to the Foreign-office, requesting the immediate payment of the sum of £800.

That a committee of Messrs. Cargill and James, and the present Church committee, be formed to report fully in the matter, especially as regards ways and means, as well as on the scheme proposed by Mr. James, at the meeting to be held in January.

All the Government offices in Yedo have been closed for the New Year's holidays.

Motono, Japanese Chargé d'Affaires in London, has been delegated to negotiate a postal convention between the Japanese and British Governments.

The natives of Yokohama would seem to be by no means disposed to pass over the advent of the New Year (European style) without evincing some outward indication of their appreciation of the festival. The dwellings of the poorest just now, almost without exception, are undergoing decoration, principally with the feathery foliage of the bamboo, and with a profusion which makes some amends at least for lack of variety. In the Foreign Settlement, on the other hand, evergreens of all descriptions are freely brought into requisition for decorative purposes, to celebrate the death of the old year and the advent of the new one. A successful entertainment has been given at the German Club, the attraction being a couple of laughable farces, most of the characters of which were sustained with admirable spirit, and gave universal satisfaction.

A new theatre, styled the "Variety," has been opened to the public. The whole of the interior of the building is most tastefully decorated, producing an agreeable effect.

LATER INTELLIGENCE VIA SAN FRANCISCO.

The China Trans-Pacific Steamship Company's steamer Vasco da Gama arrived at San Francisco on the 9th inst., with advices from Yokohama to the 18th January, of which the subjoined summary has been telegraphed to the New York press :—

The relations between the Government of Japan and the foreign Ministers, except the representative of the United States, are becoming more and more inharmonious. Japan still resists the pleas for opening the country, and requires strict enforcement of the treaties as they stand until a revision shall have been agreed upon. Mr. Bingham acquiesces, and the other envoys are vehement in opposition. At the New Year's reception by the Mikado Mr. Bingham was absent, by reason of illness. Other members of the diplomatic corps presented an address, which has occasioned great irritation in high quarters. It directly urged the removal of all restrictions upon free intercourse and trade. When first received, the question was seriously discussed whether it should not be returned as unacceptable. The decisive step was not, however, taken. The good faith of the European Ministers is shown by a remarkable circumstance. A German was fined by his consul for transgressing treaty boundaries. The German Minister instructed the consul to rescind judgment, and notified the Government to that effect. The Japanese Government have, therefore, informed Mr. Von Brandt that unless the just penalty be enforced they will decline further communication with him and make the necessary representation to the German Government. This means, of course, that they will ask for his recall. In a precisely similar case, the punishment of an American for going beyond the treaty limits outside of Hakodadi, the United States Minister has fully approved the consul's action. The demeanour of certain Ministers has now become so aggressive that it will be necessary for the few moderate foreign envoys to cease to act with them, as hitherto, in a united body.

The following are the particulars of the attempt to kill Iwakura on the night of the 14th of January :—"As Iwakura was returning from the Mikado's temporary residence to his own dwelling his carriage was stopped near the outer castle moat by a bamboo pole stretched across the road. The sides of the vehicle were cut through by swords, and Iwakura, hastily descending, found himself attacked by several armed men, from whom he received wounds in the loins and shoulders. He ran to the moat, close at hand, and sprung into it, remaining hidden for about an hour, after which he returned to the Mikado's palace, to which foreign surgeons were summoned, and who at once discovered that his injuries were in no degree dangerous. He will probably be able to resume his duties in a few weeks." This is the first attempt at assassination of a high official since the murder of Hirosawa Sanga, early in 1872. No clue to the persons has yet been discovered.

Until recently the Japanese have found it expedient to conceal the actual condition of their financial affairs, on account of both foreign and internal complications. It has now been determined to publish statements of their resources, the first of which will be issued in about two months from this time. It will appear that the amount in the national treasury is no less than $25,000,000, including the last English loan, and that the surplus revenue of 1873 was nearly $5,000,000.

The great temple of Tenshig Daijon in Yedo was burned on the morning of Jan. 1. This was the most imposing structure of its kind in the capital, though not one of the most sacred. The huge bell, ten feet high, was so injured as to be rendered worthless.

A second decree has been issued—this time a peremptory one—recalling all students now residing abroad at the expense of the Government, except those who have given the very highest proofs of advancement.

A small detachment of French troops stationed at Yokohama is about to be withdrawn. The English troops remain in defiance of the wishes of the Japanese Government.

The Japanese Government is exultant over the decree of Portugal suppressing the coolie trade in Macao—an action which it traces to the course of Japan in the case of the Maria Luz.

Sonoda Kokichi has sailed for England as Commissioner to the London Exposition of 1874.

NAGASAKI.

Our advices extend to the 6th January ; the French mail from London Nov. 7 arrived out on the 1st January. We take the following from the Nagasaki Express :—

The second anniversary of the new calendar in Japan has not been to show that the natives appreciate the change, and we think we may safely say that it was very quietly and partially kept by them. It is true that some shops were closed, or partially so, and that a statement of accounts and the suspension of business took place. But the town of Nagasaki in appearance was not like Nagasaki usually is on a Japanese New Year's Day, and it is quite evident the energies of the people have been reserved for enjoyment on the approaching New Year's Day by the old reckoning feeling.

Advices received here from Yedo announce the satisfactory settlement of the terms on which the Takasima Colliery is to be taken over by the Japanese Government. This, we presume, means that the latter have withdrawn their proposition to deduct $60,000 from their offer.

The investigation into the charge against a Japanese seaman named Torakitchi, one of the crew of the Lapwing, for cutting and wounding Captain Gilchrist and Mr. John Brown, has been concluded. The Court considered there were extenuating circumstances in the case, and that the offence would be adequately punished by imprisonment with hard labour for three months.

The old Daimio's Castle in Kagosima, Satsuma, has caught fire, and more than one half of the entire line of buildings has been destroyed. The powder magazine exploded, and six persons are reported killed. These buildings were of wood, placed, as was the custom, upon lofty stone battlements and foundations. In that portion which is burnt was what was called the Prince's room, highly embellished with gold ornaments and ancient relics. The castle was built nearly 600 years ago.

The vacant lot No. 2, Nagasaki, has been taken by Mr. Thomas Russell, the manager of the Great Northern Telegraph Company at this port, and upon it new buildings are to be erected and used as the office which is to be connected with the Japanese Government Telegraph by means of one wire. The new buildings are expected to be completed sometime during next year, and ready for use by the time the term expires for which their present station was taken. The Pacific Mail Steamship Company have purchased lot. No. 11, Oura bund, formerly occupied by Messrs. Textor and Co., and to these premises the office of the agency will be removed.

The total amount of treasure imported into this port from Yokohama, Hiogo, and Shanghai by the Pacific mail steamers between January and December, 1873, both months inclusive, was $1,168,163.60.

The Nagasaki Gazette reports its own demise as likely to follow the issue of its last number for the year, the plant and goodwill being advertised for sale by auction, to foreclose a mortgage.

The Russian gun-boat Aleout, from Vladiwostock, arrived here on the 27th Dec., for the purpose of having repairs done to her boilers, machinery, &c. She will probably stay here all the winter.

Steps are being taken by the Nagasaki Amateur Dramatic Corps to contribute to the amusement of the season by giving a public performance some time about the middle of January.

CHINA.

PEKING.

During the night of the 21st and morning of the 22nd Dec. the winter solstice took place ; and in accordance with Chinese custom or law the Emperor on the 21st repaired to the Temple of Heaven to worship. Early on the morning of the 22nd he returned to his palace. Both his going and coming took place in the dark, and when the streets were quite free from people, so his visit in no way interfered with the street traffic, which is the main object, now-a-days, of his proceeding to the Temple in the night time.

Among the foreign residents the festivities of the Christmas season have commenced, and pleasure and not business will be the ruling occupation during the next ten days.

Captain Garcia, the Peruvian Minister, arrived at Peking on the 21st Dec., accompanied by his suite, and took up his residence in the German Hotel. He will reside in Peking for the remainder of the winter, to negotiate a treaty with the Peking Government. There are no interesting events in the diplomatic or political world, beyond a rumour that the foreign Ministers are at present awaiting reports from their Consuls in Shanghai regarding the Woosung bar and the Shanghai river generally before taking action with the Central Government in respect to that difficulty.

On the 24th Dec. the annual examinations of the pupils of the Tung-wen College, under the management of President Dr. W. A. P. Martin, took place, when several of the high officials of the Tsung-le yamen were present.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 9th Jan. ; the P. and O. mail from London Nov. 14 arrived out on the 2nd, and the following French mail of Nov. 21 on the 7th January. The following items of news are from the North China Herald :—

The election of councillors for the French Municipality has taken place. The roll numbers 205 electors, of whom only 62 voted, and one ticket proving to be blank, 61 votes were recorded. The result was as follows :—French residents : Messrs. Grenot, 36 ; Leroy, 32 ; Meilhan, 22. Foreign residents : Messrs. A. N. Brown, 44 ; Aymeri, 30 ; and Mackintosh, 28. We understand that Mr. Brown has signified his intention not to accept the seat to which he was elected. Mr. Brown was unaware of the honour intended him until he was made acquainted with the result ; otherwise, had he been asked, business engagements would have obliged him to decline the nomination. Mr. Brown adds, we believe, as a further reason for declining office, that several of the gentlemen elected as above had previously expressed themselves in favour of the Wharf scheme, which he, as an elector, had felt obliged to oppose.

If Christmas day was warm enough for spring the New Year has brought some thoroughly seasonable weather. The rain which had been falling for twenty-four hours changed, about 10 P.M. on the 31st Dec., to snow, and by midnight the houses and open country were clothed in white. The fall ceased before morning, while the biting wind continued, and the roads were frozen hard by daylight. The frozen ground, strong wind and bitter cold on New Year's day effectually stopped the Paper Hunt; and induced even the countrypeople and boatmen to give themselves a holiday. Not a single workman and hardly a pedestrian was to be seen in the fields, and hardly a boat on the river outside the harbour limits. Passage boats made for the nearest creek and lay there. Ponds and still creeks were covered with a thick coating of ice next morning, when the continued cold weather rendered the Paper Hunt still out of the question. The ground was far too hard for the ponies, and the wind too strong for the paper to lie, and too cold for the riders to have found any enjoyment, even without these hindrances. Early risers, however, might have varied their amusement in the morning on the ice on some of the ponds and still creeks in the country—though it was not thick enough to bear more than two or three at once. There is not room on these small pieces of water for good skating, but there is room on many of them to move about fairly. But even a good slide is not to be despised, as a variety.

The cold still continues, the thermometer at night marking about 23 degrees, which however fails to represent the sensation caused by the keen wind. On the water the range has been much lower; the Peking reports her thermometer as low as 9 degrees on the morning of the 2nd January, and that it only rose to 11 degrees during the same day. Those who have had the hardihood to leave warm chambers at early morn and face the keen rigours of the frosty air, in search of that most enjoyable and healthful of winter amusements, skating, have had rare opportunities of indulging in the pastime. The ice has "borne" in safety, and, notwithstanding the provident harvesting of the ice-farmers, each successive day has seen the uncertain recreation ground become more solid and expansive. The ranks of the skaters have gone on increasing, and every morning now sees a migratory crowd descend on the ponds behind Hongkew, where, in graceful evolutions and invigorating exercise, the hours are passed till business demands a return to the Settlement. More lasting than the fleeting pleasure of skating, however, we may expect from the present severe frost to have a good supply of ice against the next hot season, of a quality superior in purity and power to that we usually obtain from local sources.

A report of the working of the recreation fund from April, 1872, to October, 1873, has been issued. The assets of the trust are valued at Tls. 38,029, and the liabilities at Tls. 1,409, besides a disputed sum of Tls. 174. The income for the year is estimated at Tls. 9.545, and the expenditure at Tls. 6,045, leaving a surplus net income of Tls. 3,500. The report will give some impression of the trouble which has been taken by the honorary secretary, Mr. Groom, in managing the affairs of the trust; and the public, who are so much interested in it will, we are sure, fully endorse the following passage in a letter from the trustees, acknowledging the receipt of the report which we subjoin:—"We feel that it has been mainly owing to your exertions that the fund now under the control of the trustees was rescued from the jeopardy in which it was placed by the depreciation of the property in which the capital was originally invested, and to your subsequent care that the income has been brought into its present satisfactory position. As a slight acknowledgement of your services in this respect, which have been extended over a period of nearly six years, we beg your acceptance of the accompanying cheque for Tls. 500, and we request you will provide yourself with such suitable testimonial as you may deem most acceptable."—The fund is in fact not only free from encumbrance (except the mortgage of Tls. 27,500 on the Club building), but in possession of an income which may be very usefully applied.

The S. S. N. Co.'s steamer Plymouth Rock, which left for Hankow on the 31st Dec., returned to Shanghai on the 7th Jan., in tow of the Hirado, having been disabled by an accident to her rudder. The steamer had nearly passed the crossing at Olyphant's Island in safety, sufficient water having been found to warrant the attempt, when she got aground. The Honan was in attendance, and having received some of the Plymouth Rock's cargo, helped her to get off, but as the Plymouth Rock was backing astern her rudder struck one of those humps of mud which suddenly form or are deposited in the Yangtsze, and of which no trace had manifested itself as the steamer passed over the same spot the previous day. By this accident she was disabled, and as she slewed round she was held by the obstruction. Her cargo was transhipped into the Honan, which took it on to Kiukiang. The Plymouth Rock is reported to be uninjured as regards her hull, while the damage her rudder has sustained, though disabling the vessel for the time, is not believed to be of a nature to require that she should be docked.

The Pacific Mail Company announce that their contract with the Pacific railroads, for the conveyance of through freight from China and Japan, has been cancelled; but that they will in future give through bills of lading for New York via Panama. A steamer will be despatched from Hong Kong to Panama once a month, touching at Yokohama and San Francisco; the Shanghai connection with the main steamer at Yokohama being maintained as before.

The Loonghwa passenger boat has been upset and sunk near the mouth of the Pagoda creek, during a heavy blow by collision with a Minhong cargo boat. The passengers saved themselves by swimming ashore. Some of our readers may not be aware that Chinese passenger boats, from all the considerable villages in the neighbourhood, ply daily to and from Shanghai; starting and returning with the tide as this suits.

A very sad accident has happened on board the tug Fokelin, resulting in the death of the mate, Henry Anderson. The Fokelin had been outside, cruising in quest of employment, and meeting with the mail steamer Delta, which had that day picked up the castaway crew of a junk, was directed where to fall in with the wreck. When it was found, Anderson and a Chinaman went off and fastened a hawser to it, but in returning to the tug their small boat was capsized by the heavy sea running, and they were in a position of great peril, hanging on to the boat for some time before they could be picked up, while the enterprise in which they were engaged had to be abandoned. Anderson in a short time declared himself recovered from the effects of his immersion in the chilly water and resumed duty in the wheelhouse. While he was momentarily leaning from the doorway, a sudden lurch caused him to lose his footing and fall with considerable force against the rail, on which his head struck, behind the ear. He was assisted to a berth, and as grave symptoms manifested themselves, all speed was made to reach Shanghai and obtain medical assistance. On the return of the tug, Dr. Macgowan was called, but the unfortunate man was past the reach of medical aid, death from concussion of the brain occurring very soon after his arrival here.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 15th Jan.; no later mail from London had arrived out.

The Hong Kong Daily Press, remarking upon the subject of the proposed essays on the British Opium Policy and its results, says:—

"It is clear that the object which the prize-givers have in view is to obtain a condemnation of the opium policy, and that it will be hopeless for any to enter the lists who are not prepared to take up this side of the question. The subject, however, has been so well discussed that it is little likely that anything new can be advanced upon it on either side. If, however, it is desired simply to arrive at the facts connected with the subject, this can be done with the greatest ease by simply perusing the evidence which was given before the Select Committee on the Indian Revenue in 1871. The points which have, however, been urged most persistently against the opium traffic, is that Great Britain was responsible for introducing the trade into China, and that but for foreign opium being imported the use of the drug would discontinue. Both these statements are, however, clearly proved to be contrary to fact."

It is beyond question that long before any foreigner placed his foot on the coast of China a steady trade in opium had been conducted between China and India over the borders, and that the cultivation of the poppy has been going on for ages in many provinces of China itself. Speaking of the action of the Chinese authorities, who propose to encourage the cultivation of opium, should there be any attempt made to stop the foreign trade, the Daily Press says:—"In the face of such facts as these it is impossible not to feel that the whole subject has been much misrepresented and misconceived from the first; that opium is by no means so injurious as is imagined; and that certainly foreign nations are not responsible for its consumption in China, so that there can be no valid reason for the British Government putting down a valuable source of revenue in India. The only effect of so doing would be to largely increase the cultivation in China, and to place in the hands of the Chinese officials the taxes which we might fairly collect ourselves in India."

Notice is given that an extraordinary general meeting of the shareholders of the Canton Insurance Company will be held at the offices of the Company, for the purpose of passing a special resolution for the formation of a reserve fund, and also to consider a proposal having reference to the mode of dealing with such reserve fund.

An elaborate report has been issued by Mr. Price, the Surveyor-General to the Colony, for the best method of supplying Hong Kong with water. Mr. Price recommends that water should be collected in a reservoir at the Tytam valley, and he propounds a scheme for the construction of the necessary works, the cost of which he estimates at £302,147.

The chief mate, second mate, carpenter, sailmaker, cook, and fifteen of the crew of the American ship Charger have arrived in the Chinese steamer Aden.

A notice has been issued by the Tung-wa Hospital Committee calling upon the native residents to send and take away a number of dead bodies which have been forwarded to them from Shanghai, and elsewhere, to be returned to their native places.

Another case of kidnapping has been brought under the notice of the authorities. Foo-a-shing, gardening coolie at Wong-nei-cheong, was charged by Lee-chu-tok, also a Government gardener, with kidnapping his nephew, Lee-tam-sing, to Macao, on the 21st November last. After hearing some evidence the inquiry was adjourned.

The case in which Wong-a-cheong, who described himself as owner of a mandarin cruiser, stationed at Macao, charged one Ng-a-cheong with kidnapping his clansman to Macao, came on again to-day, when Inspector Gair asked for a further remand.

MANILA.

By the Manila papers no further particulars appear regarding the operation of the Spanish squadron in Sulu waters. The pirates contrive to elude the vigilance of the cruisers.

The Diario de Manila states that a private company has applied to the Colonial Department in Spain for a concession for the purpose of lighting Manila with gas. The conditions are not known, but are said to be confined to the lighting of the walled portion of the city.

During 1873 the approximate value of the exports from Manila, Cebu, and Ilo Ilo amounted to $16,753,614, against $16,732,240 in 1872.

The Swedish steamer August Leffler, Bjorck, from Singapore, put into Manila Roads to take in a supply of coals; she afterwards continued her voyage to Swatow, Amoy, and Ningpo.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

—o—

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this mail extend to the 23rd Jan.; the French mail from London Dec. 19 arrived out on the 22nd Jan. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

Admiral Sir Charles Shadwell landed officially at Dalhousie pier under a salute of nine guns from Fort Canning and a guard of honour of the 10th Regiment; he was received on landing by the Hon. Colonial Secretary. His Excellency the Governor's Aide-de-Camp and a number of officials, foreign consuls, and residents were present. He is guest at Government House.

The exact results of Sir Andrew Clarke's expedition to Laroot and Perak have not yet transpired. What Sir Andrew Clarke has done is to secure for the Rajah Muda of Perak the acknowledgment and submission of the Muntri of Laroot and of all the native rajahs and head men of both, and to have him crowned as Sultan in their presence, thus putting an end for ever to the hereditary differences which have existed there so long. The Rajah Muda, or Sultan as he is now termed, has on his part entered upon a treaty with us, allowing a British resident to be appointed to his capital, with an assistant resident at the capital of Laroot, and he also agrees that the revenues of his country shall be collected by the British Government, which will put an end to the petty oppression of which we have heard so much. The Chinese societies in Laroot have all been disarmed, and substantial security to the extent of $50,000 obtained for the preservation of the peace. The Muntri of Laroot has agreed to pay all the expenses of the expedition. The foreshore opposite the Dindings, concerning which there has existed an old dispute, has, we further hear, been conceded to us by the Sultan.

In the Supreme Court the Chief Justice has delivered judgment in the actions against the Siamese steamer Chow Phya, which have been pending in Court for some time past. The decisions are important, involving some very nice points of law as applied to foreign ships. It was given against the ship in one case and in her favour in another.

We learn that the N. I. S. N. Co.'s steamer Lieut.-Gen. Kroesen, which has been plying for some time past between Singapore and Macassar, via Samarang and Sourabaya, has been laid up at the latter port for repair. In consequence, the company have chartered the steamer Fenelon to replace her on this line until the repairs are completed.

The following is from the Batavia Handelsblad:—

"We are informed that from the British ship Tamerlane 8,000 half-chests of undamaged tea have been saved; salvage operations are being steadily continued. We hope that this new mishap may induce the authorities concerned to carry out, as speedily as possible, the plan that has been formed for the purpose of building a lighthouse on Gaspar island."

The official report of the loss of the Aeroliet runs as follows:—

"According to a telegram from the Resident of Sourabaya, the Netherlands barque Aeroliet, lying in that roadstead, has been totallly destroyed by fire, in consequence of the explosion of gunpowder forming part of her cargo. By her being sent to the bottom two other vessels were in time prevented from sharing the same fate. Amongst the cargo of the Aeroliet were 1,000 pieces of Government tin, and f.40,000 in specie belonging to private persons."

IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—Business had been insignificant in extent—far short of that usually booked at this season of the year. For this the holidays were partly accountable, but the principal cause was the action of the native bankers, who by their refusal to countenance other than men of undoubted credit, had effectually prevented the customary speculation and confined the trade within more legitimate and more satisfactory bounds. To merchants of good standing money was cheap in the native market, but few such required facilities or rather care to speculate until they can see more clearly how the native New Year settling time is to pass over. Of 8¼ lbs. Grey Shirtings the settlements for the fortnight were under 60,000 pieces, against upwards of 200,000 pieces last year, but holders were raising their prices for good to best cloth. Collie's Lions were not now obtainable at Tls. 1.97, and for one of Dewhurst's best chops Tls. 2.03½ was refused. Amongst the sales registered were Mendel's Hand and Branch at Tls. 1.97, Pillars at Tls. 1.92, and Horse and Jockey at Tls. 1.95; Collie's Lion and Eagle at Tls. 1.97 nett. Dewhurst's Red Pheasants at Tls. 1.94, and their best Eagles at Tls. 2 nett. 7 lb. saleable only at very low rates; Tls. 1.51 to 1.54 for common, and Tls. 1.66 for Collie's Lions. For 6 lbs. there was scarcely any demand, but an enquiry had sprung up for heavy Shirtings, and business resulted at full previous quotations. In White Shirtings no movements were recorded, but about 19,000 pieces of 7 lb. T-Cloths Mexicans had found buyers. Prices, however, were very low, and must show a heavy loss on cost; Tls. 1.32 to 1.35 for Ship on Globe; and Tls. 1.35 for Stewart's Lion and Flag. Drills: The course of the market was still downwards; good 14 lb. English, Tls. 2.25. In Jeans no business had taken place. Of Fancy Cottons only a few Gentian Shirtings at Tls. 2.50 per piece, some 2¾ lb. Turkey Reds at Tls. 1.90 per piece, and a small parcel of Black and Gentian Brocades at Tls. 2.65 to 2.90 were reported. Turkey Red Shirtings of the lighter weights were asked for. Woollens: Nothing done in any article saving Scarlet Long Ells, and demand for them not brisk, being choked off by high prices demanded. C.P.H. chop, Tls. 7.25 and Tls. 7.10 declined for H.D.B. quality. Metals and Coals without alteration.

FOOCHOW.—The only business done had been comprised in the sale of 500 pieces T-Cloths at $1.90 per piece.

MANILA.—There had been no change in our market for Plain Staples, and quotations remained unaltered. For Coloured goods of suitable styles a fair demand existed.

Miscellaneous.

THE CHINESE IN AUSTRALIA.

The Times correspondent gives an account of a riot that occurred at Clunes, owing to the determination of the Miners' Association at that place to shut out the competition of Chinese labour. The owners of the Lothair Mine at Clunes had spent large sums in labour and machinery without getting dividends, when their miners began to claim exceptional indulgences which the company were not in a position to concede. They wished work stopped from three o'clock on Saturday to seven on Monday; to work only eleven "shifts" every fortnight, but to be paid for twelve, and, if called upon to work on an emergency after the hour for leaving off on Saturday, to get double pay for that "shift." The miners struck for these terms, and the mine was unworked for about three months, during which the directors were looking out for labour and found many who accepted the company's conditions, but these were induced to break their engagements by the Clunes Miners' Association. As a last resource, the directors engaged a number of Chinamen, who would not be subject to the same influences, and, expecting an attempt at intimidation, obtained an escort of police for the coaches in which the labourers were to be driven to Clunes. The miners, who had received information of the expected arrival, threw up a barricade across the road which the coaches had to pass and turned out in force to defend it, armed with axes, picks, and other weapons which came to hand. As the coaches approached they were met by a volley of stones, and the police, who gallantly attempted to force a passage, were driven back by overwhelming numbers, some of them seriously hurt. The Chinese were glad enough to make their escape, and would have no more of Clunes, so the miners gained the day.

The Melbourne Age, which cannot afford to risk its popularity with the miners any more than the Government, finds an excuse for the outrage in what it calls the improper interference and partiality of the police in "taking the side" of the Chinese from the first, which, in view of the facts, is about as reasonable as it would be to charge the police with "taking a side" in protecting a child against a mob of ruffians. Indeed, the police appear to be the only people who have done their duty in the matter.

THE PLUNDER OF THE SUMMER PALACE AT PEKING.—The question of the Civil List of Napoleon III., about which so much has been said, seems likely to end in a compromise. A certain sum, probably about £60,000, will be given for the disputed collections. With respect to the Chinese Museum, a curious point of discussion has arisen, which is understood now to constitute the chief obstacle to a final settlement. That collection was made by the army; in other words, it is a selection from the plunder of the Summer Palace and from the general booty of the campaign in China. The question is whether the presents made to the Empress by that army were offered to the Sovereign or to the woman. It has not been a common custom with armies to present tithes of their spoils to their Sovereign. It appears that the Empress was very generous to the troops employed in China, and sent them large quantities of lint, brandy, cigars, and other necessaries and comforts, paid for out of her own pocket. So her advocates say that the princely gift was a token of gratitude to the charitable woman. The Commission inclines to think that an army could make such a present only to the Sovereign, and in this latter case, the Sovereign being deposed, it belongs to the country. It is thus a very nice question, but it is expected to be settled in favour of the Empress, since it would not comport with the dignity of a great country to show itself too rigorous and exacting in such a matter.

THE Weekly Review says:—Native Christian chapels have been so far constructed along the two thousand miles of the sea-coast of China that for eight hundred miles of that coast a traveller might put up at a Christian chapel each night of the journey. We learn by a recent mail that the Rev. Mr. Corbett, an American missionary, in a tour he has just made in the Shantung Province, extending over two months, baptised about one hundred adults, and about sixty children of believers. Those who know Mr. Corbett, says the correspondent, will feel assured that he is not a person to be carried away by a tide of enthusiasm, or to receive persons into the Church on superficial evidence. There seems to be a genuine work of grace in the rural districts of the Shantung Province, where the truth has been made known. These persons are drawn to the Christian standard by no hope of support or emolument. On the other hand, they encounter reproach and persecution that often affects their business as well as their social standing.

THE Athenæum says:—From a letter from the Abbé Armand David, dated Kiang-si, and addressed to a member of the Paris Geographical Society, we learn that this traveller, in his journey through China, has discovered that the river Hangkiang, the very name of which was until lately unknown, is by no means an insignificant stream, but, on the contrary, an important highway of commerce, traversed by vessels of every size. The lower part of the river is wide, but studded here and there with sandbanks. The remainder of the stream is navigable, but the rapids are numerous, and rocks are not unfrequent. Coal was seen to exist in two places in the south-east of Shansi, and in the north-east of Houpe. The town of Kien-tchang-fu, about three leagues off, is well provided with coal, as, indeed, are all the towns passed by Père David from Kiu-kiang up to Kiang-si. He intends to finish his tour by a journey along the eastern parts of Kiang-si, and perhaps by a visit to Fo-kien.

A PAPER on Buddhism was read by Mr. Beal, at Plymouth, last week. A translation has recently been made by this gentleman of the Abhinesh Bramana Sutra (Fo-pen-hing-tsi King), a work that contains the original life of Buddha. This book forms one of the Chinese Buddhist books in the library of the India-office, and is regarded as a valuble authority upon the subject of the origin and development of the Legend of Buddha.

GERMANY.

HAMBURG, FEB. 17.

At the last sitting of the Bundesrath the important subject of the paper money with which Germany is inundated came under discussion, and gave rise to a very satisfactory explanation and solution on the part of the Government. The representative of Saxony wished for information as to the steps intended to be taken with regard to calling in and cancelling the Bank-notes and paper money issued by the Governments of the various separate States, in reply to which the Minister of State and Vice-Chancellor Delbruck stated that the grounds of objection which induced the Government last year to postpone any alteration now no longer existed, and that he was prepared to bring forward the discussion on the Bill to be laid before Parliament at one of their next meetings, if so wished for. The Saxon Plenipotentiary expressed himself in favour of losing no more time; and the representative of Baden pointed out that the Southern States had an especial interest in settling the question of the proposed issue of Imperial paper money, because the notes of the South German States were made out in florins, and it would be impossible to prevent the deterioration of their value after the introduction of the new currency, which was expected to take place on the 1st January, 1875. In reply to the Bavarian Plenipotentiary the President Delbruck announced the intention of the Government to lay before Parliament the draft of the Bill for the general regulation of the banks and banknotes in their next session in the autumn. This announcement was received with great satisfaction.

The above-mentioned draft of the Bill for the creation of Imperial paper money runs as follows:—

Art. 1. The Chancellor of the Empire is authorised to issue Imperial paper money (Reichs Cassenscheine) to the extent of 3 marks per head of the population by the census of December, 1871, in sums of 5, 25, and 50 marks, and to distribute them to the separate States according to their respective populations.

Art. 2. Every State of the Union is bound to call in all the paper money issued by them and now in circulation by July 1, 1875, at the latest, and proceed to cancel them as soon as possible.

Art. 3. Those States whose outstanding notes exceed three marks per head of their population receive from the Imperial Treasury one-half of such excess as an advance repayable in ten equal annual instalments. These repayments are to be employed in cancelling an equal amount of Imperial Cassenscheine.

Art. 4. Those States that have issued notes of their own are only to employ the Imperial Cassenscheine in exchange for their own, provided that the amount is not more than the above-mentioned proportion to the population.

Art. 5. The Cassenscheine will be taken in payment at their full nominal value at all the public departments of every State of the Union, or exchanged for gold coin at the option of the holder. In private trade no one is obliged to take them in payment.

Art. 6. The business of preparing, printing, and issuing the Cassenscheine is committed to the Prussian Chief Administration of the State Debts, which has also to receive and exchange for account of the Empire defective notes, provided that the missing part is less than one-half. Whether in other cases compensation can be made exceptionally is left to the discretion of the above-named department.

Art. 7. Previous to the issue of the Cassenscheine a notice must be published giving detailed particulars of their appearance, for the general information of the public. The control over the execution and issue of the Cassenscheine will be exercised by the Commissioners for the Imperial Debt.

Art. 8. All further emissions of paper money by any of the separate Governments can only be effected by the passing of an Imperial Act of Parliament.

But the most important and absorbing business of the present short session is that for the reorganisation of the Army, which, according to the Ministerial Bill, will comprise on the peace establishment a force of 401,659 non-commissioned officers and privates, exclusive of commissioned officers and the one-year Volunteers. The army is to be divided into eighteen army corps, of which Prussia and the North German States will furnish fourteen, Bavaria two, and Saxony and Wurtemberg one each. After three years' service the men may be transferred to the Ersatz-Reserve, which is formed for filling up vacancies in the line or to strengthen the army, if requisite. In addition to this force, each regiment has its Landwehr Regiment, which is liable to be called out for active service in case of war or mobilisation. Thus the total disposable force in case of necessity that can be placed in the field at a fortnight's notice is a million and a half of fighting men.

In Parliamentary circles at Berlin, the question has been raised what course should be pursued if any of the thirty members for Alsace-Lorraine, which now for the first time is admitted to direct representation in the German Parliament, should get up and make a speech in French if not feeling himself able to express himself adequately in German. There is no regulation in the bye-laws of the House that directly prohibits the use of a foreign language in addressing the Parliament, but the 42nd Section allows members not sufficiently acquainted with German—this has reference to the Polish members—to read off their speeches when written down in German. It is supposed that this rule will apply to the Alsatian members, at all events for a limited period, though practically it would be superfluous, as of course all the members—perhaps with the exception of the eleven tailors, tanners, printers, and locksmiths, who represent the Social Democrats—understand French quite as well as their native German. There is, however, no particular necessity for bringing the question specially before Parliament and settling it by a formal resolution of the House. A much more important question for solution is the attitude to be taken by Parliament if the Alsatian members protest against the forced annexation and make a motion to take the sense of the local population by a general plebiscit. It will depend very much on how the motion is worded, whether the President of the House will deem it admissible at all, or, which is more likely, will refer it to the standing committee to be dealt with by them. This is not such a shadowy subject as the imaginary one about the language above mentioned, for it is well known that the majority of these new members are Particularists and Ultramontanes, opposed to the Government, and anxious for re-annexation to France, though their own sense, if they have any, must tell them that that is entirely out of the question, and can only be effected if the French become victors when they undertake their threatened guerre de revanche.

The Foreign-office at Berlin received last year 38,869 political despatches (against 37,906 in 1872), and sent off 42,400, (against 41,500 in 1872). Among those received were 194 from Yedo and 101 from Peking.

The Gazzeta di Venezia publishes an Italian translation of the Japanese Press Law of the 19th October last. According to this document all newspapers printed in Japan require a concession, and each number must contain the date and place where printed, together with the names of the publisher and editor. They are allowed to notice, but without a malevolent tendency, extraordinary natural events, conflagrations, wars, commercial intelligence, births, marriages and deaths, advertisements, literary notices, and similar subjects; but they are prohibited from attacking the Government or criticising its acts, discussing the laws, or "confusing the public mind by obstinately comparing native institutions with those of foreign countries to the prejudice of the former." The publisher is bound to give the authorities any explanation they require.

Dr. J. J. Rein, the Frankfort naturalist, who last year made some interesting discoveries in the Atlas Mountains and the Canary Islands, has been engaged by the Prussian Government to make a scientific journey in Japan, and has already gone out for the execution of his mission.

The commander of the German corvette Nymphe has sent to the Hydrographical Department of the Admiralty at Berlin a long and interesting account of the capabilities of Chusan and the neighbouring islands of that group, which is now being reproduced in the Hamburg Börsen-Halle. The harbour of Tinghai, a town containing 35,000 inhabitants, is praised as having good anchorage, and being roomy and safe, because sheltered from all winds. Provisions and naval stores are good and cheap, wages are low, and merchant vessels are recommended to touch there if they stand in need of repairs or provisions.

Baron von Richthofen, the president of the Berlin Geographical Society, who has gained some celebrity by his scientific researches in China, has been elected corresponding member of the Imperial Geographical Society at St. Petersburg.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, FEB. 18.

The Second Chamber of the States-General re-assembled to-day, and it is earnestly to be hoped that in the next few months something like business may be done. It is a fact, and a lamentable one, that our Liberal party has, since 1869, been in a most abnormal state. Three Liberal Cabinets have successively held the reins of Government, and notwithstanding that they were backed by a majority they have felt themselves obliged to resign office, and undoubtedly the present Ministry would have shared the same if the Atchin war had not formed a buoy to which they could cling. There are some who believe that the decay of the Liberal party is due to a want of talented men, but I think the true reason must be ascribed to the prevailing dislike on the part of the public for economical reorganisations, both here and in Java. There are very wealthy classes in Holland, and in the first place I name the landlords, farmers, and capitalists, who enjoy much higher incomes than they obtained twenty years ago. But the third and fourth class—the clerks and the workpeople—are reduced to poverty, because their incomes do not increase in a ratio with the higher cost of living. And their struggles become every day more arduous because our national capital is not now used to promote trade and industry, but is for the greater part invested in foreign stocks and in financial undertakings abroad. It is almost impossible to find subscribers for any large national undertaking, and the capital for such has to be sought in England. A great fault of our legislators is that they have hitherto permitted the injustice that capital invested in home and foreign stocks should not be taxed whilst home industry is subjected to a heavy income-tax. Pecple grumble because the Liberals on their accession to power promised to abolish several obsolete and unjust taxes; promised a reorganisation of our means of defence and of our army; a Reform Bill and several other important reorganisations, promises for which we have waited in vain for fulfilment. If this should continue it is more than probable that the days of our Liberal Government are numbered. The result of the incidental elections which have just taken place clearly proves that the Liberal party is losing ground. For instance, Mr. H. C. Verniers van der Loeff is again in the minority at the election for the district of Gouda. He only obtained 985 votes, whilst Mr. M. Bichon van Ysselmonde obtained 911, and Mr. H. J. van der Heim 686 votes. Both these gentlemen being anti-revolutionists it is more than probable that the Liberal candidate will be finally ousted by the representative of the Orthodox party, Dr. A. Kuyper, who has at last accepted the seat to which he was elected.

The day before yesterday a meeting was held at Utrecht to promote the interests of the establishment of a college at Batavia. An amount of f.500,000 is wanted for this purpose, and Amsterdam has already contributed f.160,000.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

FROM the telegrams received it appears certain that there has been a vast number of deaths from cholera amongst the Dutch Expeditionary forces; next we are confirmed in our opinion that General VAN SWIETEN and his colleagues have created much distrust and ill-feeling by stopping all information except such as they choose to disclose through their own official channels; petty successes are thus magnified into triumphs, and all damaging intelligence is suppressed. We learn in addition to these particulars that the Dutch have endeavoured to combine diplomacy with warfare, and have all the while been pressing advantageous (or what they themselves please to deem advantageous) overtures on the Sultan for his acceptance. This course is far from statesmanlike. Holland would attain her ends best if she refrained from putting forward her terms of peace until her soldiers had inflicted a crushing blow. This blow has not yet been struck. In spite of the fall of the Kraton the Atchinese still keep the field, and "the result considered to have decided the war" (we quote from the telegram of Jan. 24) seems to have left VAN SWIETEN with his task but half accomplished. Inland the Sultan's dominions are "extensive, mountainous, and thickly wooded;" and military opinion is that the Dutch troops, unless largely reinforced, would be utterly inadequate to follow the enemy into the unknown fastnesses of the interior.

But if our information as to the condition and prospects of the Dutch is scanty, our knowledge, on the other hand, of the state of affairs among the Atchinese rests wholly on the reports conveyed by spies, and upon rumours contradictory and confused. Thus, the scouts affirm that there are two Dutch, three French, three English, and five Americans assisting the Atchinese, and the military skill shown in constructing earthworks and handling guns is alleged to support this statement. But though the presence of these foreigners was believed in, no further reference to the subject has since that date been made. Then we have had the Sultan's death announced, and a short time after the announcement is contradicted. Sometimes he is said to be determined to resist to the last, sometimes to be personally willing to conclude terms of peace. One day he has been deposed by his people, and on the next it turns out to be the people who are weary of the war, and their chiefs who are goading them on to resistance. And so one after another irreconcilable telegrams keep pouring in; our latest news being to the effect that the Dutch have been repulsed when in pursuit of the Atchinese, losing two mitrailleuses, and having eighteen of their soldiers slain. This message comes to us from an "independent" source, or, as we should term it, a source not to be depended upon.

The end, the "bitter end," has not yet come, and it would be unwise to affect a foreknowledge which may, after all, turn out ridiculously incorrect; but the interests of England will be best served by a speedy conclusion of these unhappy struggles. The war may, perhaps, give a little briskness to the cattle trade at Penang, and to one or two other special branches of commerce, but this circumstance by no means makes up for the serious losses which would result if Atchin become largely depopulated, and the pepper plantations fall out of cultivation. There can be no doubt, however, that, unless the war party in Holland are defeated by the leaders of the Opposition at home, or decide that the objects to be gained are not worth the expenditure involved, the kingdom of Atchin must in no long time be reduced completely to subjection. Of course if their ammunition fails them the resistance of the Malays must suddenly collapse; and we confess that it puzzles us to know by what means they contrive to keep up their supplies of powder; but, that difficulty left out of the question, it is clear that they can mass their own soldiers in positions where the invaders will find it impossible to drag up their military train; they can protract the contest by vigorous jungle warfare, they have the hot season coming on, and they can weary the Dutch forces by marching and countermarching along difficult lines of route; and then, when the rains begin to fall, they may count upon the reappearance of cholera and fever among VAN SWIETEN'S exhausted army. These are the resources still available to the Sultan of ATHCIN and his generals if they are bent, like GAMBETTA, on resisting to the last. Allies they have none, for the Rajah of PEDIER may be counted as one of themselves, and though we know nothing of the numbers which they have actually under arms, yet it is clear that, as their own battalions are thinned by war or disease, few—if any—recruits will be obtainable; in spite, however, of these disadvantages, evidently the Dutch, though they have carried the Kraton, are not yet at the end of the campaign, but have still plenty of trouble and a heavy expenditure before them. It would be a wise, a graceful, and (we suppose we must needs mention it) a costless act on the part of England if she were now to step in and offer to lend her good offices to close this melancholy little war, by mediating between the Dutch aggressors and the Sultan. Both parties are, or have been, in alliance with ourselves, and though we lately withdrew from our Treaty obligations to the latter, yet he certainly never did us any wrong, and only got involved in his present distresses because we somewhat shabbily abandoned him to the tender mercies of the hungry Dutch.

THE CHINA CUSTOMS STATISTICS, 1863-72.

IN a recent issue we acknowledged the receipt of a copy of the above returns, compiled for the Vienna Exhibition by the order of the Inspector-General. We gladly recommend them to the notice of all interested in trade relations with the Chinese Empire. The compilation is prefaced by an introduction explanatory of the part taken in the Vienna Exhibition by the Chinese Customs, and the object in view—the illustration of the international exchange of products—is pointed out, as well as the method taken to ensure its attainment. The statistics which follow consist of a series of elaborately drawn up and somewhat complicated tables, showing (1st) the gross amount of foreign tonnage under different flags employed in direct trade between China and foreign countries, or in the coasting trade between the several Treaty ports; (2nd) the gross values of all cargoes in foreign bottoms, subdivided under the headings of import, export, re-export and coast trade; (3rd) tables showing the revenue derived by China on trade in foreign bottoms at the Treaty ports; and (4th) population statistics of the Chinese ports frequented by foreigners, with notes on the number of cities, the population and physical characteristics of the provinces in which the ports are situated.

Thus the scheme is tolerably comprehensive, and though it seems at first somewhat involved, "a mighty maze without a plan," yet a careful study will deduce order out of the seeming chaos, and we doubt not that mercantile men will derive much information from the tables. We refrain, reluctantly, from quoting any of the figures, for the reason that each table forms part of a whole, and is dependent in some measure on those which precede and follow it. There are some few imperfections; and we cannot avoid noticing that no returns or statistics of China trade can be worth the labour bestowed upon them, so long as certain obvious fallacies and assumptions are allowed to pass unchallenged and uncorrected; and first and foremost among these fallacies is that which is paraded so ostentatiously in all the Chinese Customs Returns, i.e., that Hong Kong is a foreign port, and that goods reaching any Treaty port from thence are to be regarded as of foreign origin, and as coming from a foreign country. This assumption leads to anomalies so absurd as to be almost incredible. Thus, for instance, goods of Chinese origin from Canton to Shanghai, merely passing through Hong Kong, lose their nationality by the mere fact of transhipment, and on arrival at their port of destination, are regarded as foreign and subjected to the same duties as goods from London or Marseilles.

WE rejoice to see that the last mail brings a complete and satisfactory confirmation of the telegram received in January, of the abolition of the odious Macao coolie trade. At last our efforts in aiding members of Parliament to expose this vile traffic during the last ten years have been crowned with success. The honourable inhabitants of Macao will, we are sure, always remember with gratitude our persistence in clearing their Settlement of the foul stain which for so many years has hung over it.

WITH the present number we give—in a separate sheet for reference—the complete list of the new House of Commons; also a list of old M.P.'s excluded, and we regret that this list includes many who took an interest in the affairs of China and the Far East, such as ROBERT JARDINE, CHARLES MAGNIAC, JAMES WHITE, EDGAR BOWRING, EDWARD AKROYD, SINCLAIR AYTOUN, and Sir CHARLES WINGFIELD.

IN calling attention to the reduced rates of the STANDARD Insurance Company for life risks in China, we should have explained an apparent incongruity in grouping Peking with the southern ports. It appears that the directors decided on placing it in that category, after carefully comparing all information of the average of European deaths, during the last ten years.

THE telegrams from Japan, which we publish in another column, have alarmed the Stock Exchange dealers in the Japan loans, which are quoted at 100 to 105 for the Nine per Cent., and 90 to 95 for the Seven per Cent. We believe that the telegrams exaggerate the position.

Literature.

The Compiler of the Colonial Office List for 1874 has presented his thirteenth publication. This volume, like the previous ones, contains all the requisite information respecting our Colonial Dependencies, and it is very complete, the services and salaries of the various officers being recorded. The list of Parliamentary papers on Colonial affairs and the rules and regulations for the Colonial Service are an important feature of this publication, while the extracts from the various Imperial Pension Acts are very useful for reference. Mr. Harrison is the publisher of this work.

Naval and Military.

We are enabled to confirm the statement which recently appeared in our columns that Rear-Admiral F. B. P. Seymour, C.B., one of the Lords of the Admiralty in Mr. Gladstone's Administration, will succeed Vice-Admiral Sir C. F. A. Shadwell, K.C.B., on the latter completing his three years' command, in August next.

The Audacious, 14, Capt. H. D. Hickley, ship of the first reserve on Coast Guard service in the River Humber, is to be fitted out at Chatham Dockyard as a flagship for the China station, to relieve the Iron Duke.

Lieut.-General C. Crutchley, who joined the army in 1826, and was promoted to his present rank in April, 1872, has obtained the colonelcy of the 80th Regiment (now stationed at Hong Kong), vacant by the death of Lieut.-General H. J. French.

The corvette Modeste, 14 guns, 1,890 (1,405) tons, 2,149 (350) horse-power, Captain Frank T. Thompson, sailed from Plymouth Sound on the 19th inst. for the China station. The Modeste will relieve the Cadmus, wooden corvette, Captain William H. Whyte, which will return to Devonport to be paid off.

It is officially notified that Sub-Lieut. Francis Elliot Walker has been promoted to the rank of lieutenant in Her Majesty's fleet, with seniority of the 18th of November, 1873, confirming a commission given by Vice-Admiral Shadwell, K.C.B., Commander-in-Chief of Her Majesty's ships and vessels on the China station, in the death vacancy of Lieut. Frederick Hope Johnstone.

In the Liverpool County Court, on the 13th inst., twenty-two ships' carpenters and joiners obtained judgments for 26s. and 25s. 6d. each, beyond the amount paid into Court, against John Feddern, master shipwright, of Liverpool, for work performed on board a vessel chartered on behalf of the Dutch Government for the transport of troops to Batavia.

The Actæon, 26, wooden corvette, is at Portsmouth, undergoing conversion into a torpedo ship. She was the last wooden sailing ship which came into Portsmouth harbour under full sail,—now some twelve years since, on her arrival from the China Station. On her completion she will be attached to the Excellent, gunnery ship.

Deputy-Commissary G. C. Murray, who recently arrived home from China, has taken over the charge of Upnor Castle, near Chatham, and the powder magazines in connection with it, from Deputy-Commissary J. R. Herapath, who is ordered to proceed to Natal for duty there.

COURT OF QUEEN'S BENCH.

CHARTERED BANK OF INDIA, AUSTRALIA, AND CHINA V. JUST.

This was an action on a guarantee. In October, 1871, the defendant, who is a merchant in Cornhill, requested the plaintiffs to open a credit in favour of Messrs. Velge Brothers and Co., merchants, at Singapore, and gave them a written guarantee in respect of it, by which it was stipulated that it was to be a continuous credit for one year, but limited to £5,000 at one time, and to £2,000 in any one month. The plaintiffs, accordingly, during the ensuing year made various advances to Messrs. Velge Brothers, and in the following October were under advances to them to the amount of £4,000. On the 9th of October, 1872, Messrs. Velge Brothers brought a draft of their own upon the defendant for £1,000 to the bank for negotiation. The bank bought the bill, but a few days afterwards Messrs. Velge Brothers stopped payment, and Mr. Abraham Velge, one of the firm, absconded. The defendant refused to accept or pay the bill for £1,000, and thereupon the bank brought this action on the guarantee. The defence mainly relied upon was that at the time when the bank's agents at Singapore took the bill in question they knew that Messrs. Velge Brothers were in an insolvent state, and that not communicating this fact to the defendant before taking the bill on him they had vitiated the guarantee. For the plaintiffs it was contended that, though they might have been somewhat suspicious of the credit of Messrs. Velge Brothers, they had no knowledge of their insolvency. The question thus became of importance—What was the meaning or amount of the insolvency, a knowledge of which it was the duty of a person holding a guarantee from another to communicate to the latter. His Lordship (Justice Blackburn) directed the jury, subject to the opinion of the Court above, that it would not be sufficient to relieve the defendant that the plaintiffs' agent had a low opinion of Velge Brothers' credit, and would not have trusted them without a guarantee; there must be such a knowledge that they were on the brink of stopping payment as would make it morally wrong and inequitable for the bank not to communicate such knowledge to the surety.

The jury found a verdict for the plaintiffs, and the learned Judge gave the defendant leave to move for a new trial.

Monetary and Commercial.

Tenders for £500,000 in bills on India were received at the Bank of England on the 18th inst. The amounts allotted were —to Calcutta, £280,000 ; to Bombay, £200,000 ; and to Madras, £20,000. The minimum price was fixed as before, at 1s. 10d. on all Presidencies ; but in future no minimum price will be given. Tenders on Calcutta and Madras, at 1s. 10⅝d., will receive about 56 per cent., above in full ; and on Bombay, at 1s. 10⅝d., about 42 per cent. above in full. A further diminution in the means of remittance to the East is apparent from these figures. On Friday the tone was steadier, with better inquiry for good 8¼lb. Grey Shirtings. Inferior descriptions of all weights were, however, rather pressed for sale. In Yarns there was little doing, but prices remained steady.

Messrs. Grant Brothers and Co., as bankers and agents in Europe for the River Plate and Brazil Telegraph Company, are offering for public subscription 1,000 First Mortgage Debentnre Bonds of that undertaking at the price of £90 per £100 bond. Full particulars will be found in another page.

The report of the Indo European Telegraph Company states—

That the Imperial Russian Government has granted an extension for ten years of their Concession, together with important abatements of the Royalties payable for the transit of the company's telegrams through Russian territory. In consideration of the above grant the Board have agreed to erect for the use of the Russian Government, subject to a toll payable to the company for every message transmitted, a wire from Kertch to Ekaterinodar at an estimated cost of about £4,000. The erection of another wire between Djulfa and Tiflis is under negotiation.

The Board are in negotiation with the Persian Government with the object of making an arrangement respecting Persian International telegrams, corresponding with one made by the English Government. The shareholders are aware that a negotiation has been entered into with the Eastern Telegraph Company, with the object of forming a joint purse arrangement with that Company, but that in deference to the opinions at first expressed by the Concessionary Governments these negotiations have been suspended.

The balance of the revenue account, after deduction of the claim for wire rental, amounting to £12,000, retained by the British Post-office, but disputed by the company, of £24,000 payable to Messrs. Siemens for maintenance, and of the general expenses, amounts to £5,118 19s. 0d. Of this sum £3,888 3s. 2d. has to be set aside for the liquidation of the Persian debt, leaving a balance of £1,230 15s. 10d. to be carried forward to the credit of the current year. In the absence of any arrangement with the Post-office respecting the heavy deduction from receipts of £12,000 for wire rental there is no sum available for dividend. The appeal of the company against this excessive payment, supported by the recorded opinion of Mr. Scudamore that the company is entitled to relief, is still before the Treasury, and the directors have been, and still are, urging that the justice due to the company shall not longer be delayed.

The imports of Raw Silk at New York and San Francisco, from July to January were in 1867, pkgs. 368, value $252,978 ; 1868, pkgs. 2,512, value $1,390,016 ; 1,869, pkgs. 3,446, value $1,979,923 ; 1870, pkgs. 3,067, value $1,488,111 ; 1871, pkgs. 3,477, value $2,397,330 ; 1872, pkgs. 5,580, value $3,576,780 ; 1873, pkgs. 7,538, value $4,844,248 ; 1874, pkgs. 4,548, value $2,709,632. The total importations of Manufactured Silk for the same period were, 1867, pkgs. 11,779, value $12,374,141 ; 1868, pkgs. 10,282, value $9,578,174 ; 1869, pkgs. 12,833, value $12,037,471 ; 1870, pkgs. 14,102, value $12,664,803 ; 1871, pkgs. 17,123, value $16,787,681 ; 1872, pkgs. 21,127, value $20,154,247 ; 1873, pkgs. 19,790, value $18,010,765 ; 1874, pkgs. 15,294, value $12,508,850.

According to a statement prepared by Messrs. Page and Gwyther, the exports of specie and bullion to the East during the year 1873 amounted to £7,807,605, against £10,988,705 for 1872, showing a decrease of £3,181,100. The average total during the last ten years has been £10,317,737. The shipments to Alexandria during the year showed a decrease of about half a million ; to Bombay three millions ; and to Madras and Calcutta one million ; while to China and the Straits Settlements there was an increase of about one million and a quarter ; and to other places a quarter of a million.

The comments on mildew goods in the Shanghai Chamber of Commerce Circular have been published in our journal and in several London and provincial papers, and we trust will be productive of some check on this miserable business.

A fair amount of business has been done in Bar Silver, but the market is now quiet, and the quotations, 58⅛d. to 58⅝d. per oz. standard, are the nearest we can give. A few small parcels of Mexican dollars have been sold at 57⅛d. per oz. About £120,000 has been received from New York, chiefly Dore Silver.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison, and Rehden's Circular says :—During the early part of the past fortnight a quiet tone prevailed, the elections, consequent on the dissolution of Parliament, partly stopping business ; within the past few days there has been more doing, chiefly from the late arrivals (7,500,000 lbs.), but at prices occasionally showing a slight reduction on those ruling during January. Importers continue to give strong support to the market. The late arrivals bring a large proportion of ordinary to good common Congou, and it is quite evident that medium and better grades of Congou will run into a small compass before we can receive supplies of new ; the increasing supply of Indian leaf will, however, prevent scarcity. The Continental trade, which has for some months been inactive, shows no signs of revival ; in fact, we understand supplies of red leaf have been shipped here. For the New York and Canada markets Moyune Tea is taken at relatively higher prices than other districts.

Black.—Red Leaf : No change in siftings and broken leaf ; Amoy kinds, common to fair sell at 11d. to 1s. ; flavory Foochow kinds with twisted leaf at 1s. to 1s. 1½d., and Sayune and Kaisow kinds at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d. have realised the full valuations ; medium to fine Kaisow at 1s. 6d. to 1s. 9d., fine and finest at 1s. 10d. to 2s. 2d., transactions limited. Pakling : No further imports. Tayshan leaf : There has been less doing at 11d. for clean common ; other grades no change. Black leaf : Speculators hold the bulk of old, chiefly Shantam leaf, and ask 9d. to 9½d. per lb. Of new, considerable supplies are to hand ; ex steamer "Nestor," mostly of ordinary to good common quality, selling at 11d. to 1s., earlier growth of leaf ex sailing ship, but same grades, selling at ½d. to 1d. per lb. more. Preferable to medium black leaf at 1s. 1d. to 1s. 4d. rules as before, but good medium at 1s. 5d. to 1s. 7½d., and fine and finest at 1s. 8d. to 2s., show a slight decline. Souchong : No change. Oolong : Sales at 1s. 2d. to 1s. 4d. for medium, 1s. 5d. to 1s. 8d. for fine, 1s. 9d. to 2s. for finest. Scented Tea : Canton Orange Pekoe : The black leaf kinds it would seem are being superseded by olive coloured and Foochow leaf. Caper has been in improved demand, and there are few parcels of olive leaf kinds held by importers ; glazed leaf has been sold at 1d. per lb. advance, and there is still a large quantity available. Foochow Scenteds are scarce, and Capers realise high prices. Green : The market is bare of Moyune, demand both for home use and export taking supplies as offered. The bulk of the stock consists of Pingsueys and Shanghai packed, mixed with Japan leaf, and as these are obtainable at a moderate scale of prices, they will doubtless go into consumption, as from last advices from Shanghai the quantity to come forward is very small, and the bulk of the last import, per steamer Nestor, has been passed in transit for New York. A few parcels of fine uncoloured leaf from Nagasaki and Yokohama have realised extreme prices.

Messrs. Capel and Co.'s Circular says :—There has been a fair amount of business done during the past week without any material change in prices, the demand being of an average character. The supplies placed on the market from recent arrivals have been large, but importers are very firm, and only accept offers when at full prices, the prospects of moderate supplies for the remainder of this season being now confirmed. Public sales have comprised, including Thursday's auctions, 10,014 packages, of which the whole has been offered, and sold without reserve. The deliveries for the week amount to 2,732,000 lbs., against 3,192,000 lbs. last year.

Messrs. Goddard and Co.'s Circular says :—We have no fresh feature to notice in the market. Prices have remained steady, but there has been very little buying, and the clearances have been small. A rather large amount of Tea has been put forward out of the fresh arrivals, amounting to 14,000,000 lbs., this month, and dealers do not quite like the extreme values demanded, but merchants are very firm. Green Teas of the Moyune descriptions, of a pale colour, have sold at extreme rates, but the coloury kinds are difficult of sale. Amoy Teas, ex Caroline, have been offering, and some parcels have been sold at from 10½d. to 1s. 0¾d. per lb. Deliveries from London from 2nd inst. to 17th inst. inclusive, or 14 days, 6,468,000 lbs., against 7,762,000 lbs. in 1873.

SILK.

The market continues in an unsatisfactory state, business is very restricted, and prices of some descriptions have undergone a further slight decline. In China Silks transactions have been on the smallest scale, and although in some instances full rates have been obtained, prices generally are less firm than they were at the beginning of the fortnight. Canton Silk has shared in the general inactivity. Japan Silk has been neglected, and prices are lower. Deliveries 1st to 18th inst. inclusive : China 1,543 bales ; Canton, 345 bales ; Japan, 411 bales. Total, 2,299 bales, against 2,732 bales in corresponding period last year.

COFFEE.—The unfavourable reaction reported in our last issue has since become more decided, owing to the powerful influence of large shipments of Brazil combined with a decline in the value of good ordinary Java in Holland to 65c., and the market has been exceedingly weak. All descriptions have participated in the depression, but it has been greater in pale and ordinary qualities, which have declined 6s. to 8s.. The better kinds of Plantation Ceylon, although less depressed, have been dull of sale at a decline of 5s. to 6s. per cwt. Closing quotations are—Plantation triage and ordinary 108s. to 119s. 6d., grey to coloury small 123s. to 127s., low middling 125s. 6d. to 128s. 6d., middling coloury 129s. to 131s., bold 133s., pea-berry 123s. to 129s. 6d. ; Native good ordinary Galle kind at 108s., fine bold 112s.

CAMPHOR.—The market for China has been inactive ; small private sales have been made at £4 7s. 6d., showing a decline of 2s. 6d. ; 100 cases at public sale were retired.

CARDAMOMS.—Ceylon maintains the last quoted rates, viz., 5s. 3d. to 5s. 6d. per lb., but no business is reported.

COPRA.—Penang is firm and in request.

CUTCH has been quiet, but speculators hold still ; early in the fortnight 600 boxes were sold at 21s. to 21s. 3d. for fine, being a decline of 6d. per cwt. Small sales have been effected since at 21s. 6d. ; 940 boxes at auction were bought in.

CUBEBS.—The market has shown an improvement ; 202 bags offered at auction were quitted at 23s. 6d. to 25s. per cwt. for good quality.

HEMP.—There has been no improvement in the market for Manila, which has continued extremely dull, and of 2,790 bales at auction only a small proportion sold at £34 to £37 5s. per ton for middling to fair roping.

INDIA-RUBBER.—Market steady, but quiet; 21 packages Borneo offered and retired.

JAPAN WAX.—The quiet tone of the market has continued, and prices are easier; 500 cases good saucer have been sold privately at 60s. per cwt., and 100 boxes at auction at 59s. 6d. to 60s. 6d. per cwt.

MUSK has brought firm prices. The auctions have embraced 58 caddies Tonquin, of which 38 sold at 41s. 6d., to 42s. 6d. for fine selected even well-shaped pods 32s. to 33s. 6d., part bally and dry rough, and 20s. 6d. to 22s. rough bally and false packed; 8 caddies Yunan sold at 38s. 6d. to 39s. 6d. for fine; of 3 tins Nepaul one sold at 25s. for fair, and 24 tins Grain were retired.

Afloat but little has been done. White is ⅜d. cheaper; of 2,777 bags offered about 600 bags sold; last week Singapore at 10d. to 10½d. (2 lots 10¼d.) for fine, and 9½d. to 9⅞d. dull small to good, Penang at 9½d.; this week fine Singapore at 9½d. to 9⅝d., fair 9d. to 9⅛d.

RHUBARB.—China has been firmly held; at public sale, of 56 cases about one-third sold at 1s. 2d. for high dried root, small pinky fracture, and 9d. for dull greyish.

RICE.—The market has been decidedly quiet throughout, but new crop Burmah has been particularly dull, and the closing prices exhibit a further decline of 4½d. per cwt., sales having been effected at 11s. 1½d. for Rangoon, ship named.

RATTANS.—Fine descriptions are firm, but common sell at low rates; of 18,740 bundles offered about half sold; good Penang at 4s. 6d. to 4s. 7d.; inferior to fair Singapore, 1s. 4d. to 4s. per 100 canes.

SHELLS.—The periodical sales were held on the 17th inst., with the subjoined results. Mother o' Pearl: The sales embraced of Macassar 212 cases, the whole of which found ready buyers at full value. Of Manila there were 299 cases offered, which met but little attention, and were, with the exception of 34 cases, all retired. The 34 cases realised £11 15s. for small to bold in sorts, part badly grubby and yellowish; £10 fair clean Chicken; and £7 pickings, being a decline of 10s. to 15s. per cwt. Tortoise: The auctions embraced of Singapore and Manila 15 cases, 6 of which were sold; good and very good shell in sorts, medium to large, fair to fine mottle, 21s. to 24s. per lb.; thin and part dull, and slightly defective, 16s. to 17s. 6d. SUGAR.—The market is still adversely influenced by the continuation of heavy arrivals and further augmentation of stocks, and holders have again been pressing sellers, which has resulted in a further slight reduction. A telegram from Hong Kong, Feb. 16, announces that the Columbia (Peruv. ship), loading a general cargo for San Francisco, caught fire, and is still burning. She will probably be a total loss; cause of fire unknown.

Bristol, 9th Feb.—The Adelphoi (barq.), Gunn, which arrived here to-day from Batavia, ran against the pierhead, and had bulwarks, &c., knocked in.

THE P. and O. Company's steamer Nizam, Captain Barlow, arrived at Southampton on the 17th inst., with seventy-three passengers, and a large cargo, including 1,830 chests of tea and 575 bales of silk; also 6,711 chests of tea and 29 bales of silk for New York. The Nizam left Hong Kong Dec. 25; Singapore, Jan. 1; Penang, Jan. 3; Galle, Jan. 10; Aden, Jan. 18; Suez, Jan. 26; Alexandria, Feb. 3; Malta, Feb. 8; and Gibraltar, Feb. 13.

LAUNCH OF A SCREW-STEAMER AT KINGHORN.—A magnificent screw-steamer was launched on the 16th inst. from Mr. Kay's shipbuilding-yard at Kinghorn. As she left the yard she was named the Ithuriel, the christening ceremony devolving upon Mrs. G. W. Pollexfen (wife of Mr. Pollexfen, managing partner of Messrs. King, Baillie and Co., of Liverpool), and who discharged her part in a most admirable manner. The Ithuriel is a vessel of 1,154 tons (B.M.), and about 1,200 tons gross customs; and her dimensions are:—Length, 260 feet; breadth of beam, 30 feet 2 inches; depth of hold, 20 feet. Her engines, which were in her when she was launched, are 140 nominal horse-power, and are constructed on the compound surface-condensing principle, with all the latest improvements. She will carry a crew of thirty-six, and has, besides, excellent saloon accommodation for twenty first-class passengers. The vessel is owned by Messrs. Blyth Brothers, of London and Liverpool, but is under charter to Messrs. King, Baillie and Co. She is advertised by Mr. F. W. Allan, of Glasgow, to load there and sail direct for Bombay on the 21st proximo, and is expected to make a very quick passage.

As the screw steamer Petrach was on her outward voyage from Antwerp to China she was caught in the gale of the 10th inst., and rolled heavily. In the midst of a huge wave the ship gave a sudden lurch, and in the confusion a voice was heard, but no notice was taken of it. Shortly afterwards Captain Pomeroy, the commander, could not be found, and it is believed he has been washed overboard. The ship has put into Plymouth to obtain another captain.

THE new iron screw steamer Hochung, Capt. Drage, of 1,000 tons and 130 nominal horse-power, built by Messrs. Bowdler, Cheffer, and Co., of Seacombe on Mersey, to the order of Messrs. Matheson and Co., of London, for the North China trade, went out for her trial on the 13th inst. The speed obtained was ten knots on the measured mile. She leaves for China to-morrow.

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT

HOLLOWAY'S OINTMENT AND PILLS.—Many aggravating sores stand ready to pounce upon the aged, when an accident weakens any part, or over-fatigue and exposure to wet or cold have irritated the nerves, rendered exquisitely sensitive by the distended condition of the veins, and the partial obliteration of the valves. This Ointment is most potent in curing all cases of ulceration, abscesses, and "bad legs" after every other means have failed, and the sufferings from them are utterly unendurable. Soon after the application of the Ointment, coolness and comfort are obtained in the affected part, the patient finds himself more at ease, and daily becomes more hopeful, as with departing pains a visible growth of granulations comes forth.

Issue of 1,000 Seven per Cent. First Mortgage Debenture Bonds of £100 each.

REPAYABLE IN TEN YEARS.

EMPIRE OF BRAZIL.

THE RIVER PLATE AND BRAZIL TELEGRAPH COMPANY

(COMPANHIA TELEGRAPHICA PLATINO-BRAZILEIRA).

Incorporated as a Societé Anonyme under the Laws of the Empire of Brazil.

Under Exclusive Privilege from the Imperial Government of Brazil for 60 years for Submarine Telegraph Communication between the Capital of Brazil and the States of the River Plate.

To be worked and maintained, free of charge to this Company, by the Western and Brazilian Telegraph Company, Limited, on the terms of this Company receiving 20 per Cent. of the entire Gross Receipts of the united system. These Debenture Bonds are a first charge on the entire net receipts accruing to the Company from the Cables and land lines, and are secured by a Deed of Mortgage executed to Trustees for the Bondholders.

The Debenture Bonds are to Bearer, with Coupons for the Interest attached, payable Half-yearly in Gold, in London, at the Banking-house of Messrs. GRANT BROTHERS and CO., on 1st March and 1st September in each year.

ISSUE PRICE—£90 PER £100 DEBENTURE BOND.

The rate of Interest to the Investor will be about 7¾ per cent. per annum on the price of Subscription, in addition to a Bonus of £10 per Bond, as the Debenture Bonds are paid off at Par.

Messrs. GRANT BROTHERS and Co., as Bankers and Agents in Europe, are authorised by the River Plate and Brazil Telegraph Company (Companhia Telegraphica Platino-Brazileira), to offer for public subscription the above-mentioned 1,000 First Mortgage Debenture Bonds of £100 each.

The Price of Subscription is £90 per £100 Debenture Bond, payable as follows:—

£5	per Debenture Bond	on	Application.
25	„	„	Allotment.
20	„	„	1st April, 1874.
20	„	„	1st May, 1874.
20	„	„	1st June, 1874.

Payment in anticipation of the instalments may be made in one payment on Allotment, under discount, at the rate of £5 per cent. per annum.

The Debenture Bonds bear interest at Seven per cent. per annum, payable by Coupons attached, half-yearly, in London, at the Banking-house of Messrs Grant. Brothers and Co., on the 1st March and 1st September in each year, the Principal being repayable at par, namely, £100 per Debenture Bond, on 1st March, 1884.

The River Plate and Brazil Telegraph Company (Companhia Telegraphica Platino-Brazileira) is formed to complete the chain of communication between Europe and South America, by connecting by a Submarine Cable the City of Rio de Janeiro, the capital of Brazil, with the Cities of Montevideo and Buenos Ayres.

For this purpose an exclusive privilege has been granted by the Imperial Government of Brazil for a period of sixty years.

By this concession facilities will be afforded to the important commercial districts of the River Plate and (by the Transandine Telegraph system) to Valparaiso, and the West Coast of South America, not only for intercommunication, but also for communicating by telegraph directly with Europe.

The Submarine cables, about 1,130 miles in length, have been constructed by the well-known firm of Messrs. Siemens Brothers, and the first portion has already left England by the steamer Ambassador, and the remainder will be shipped, within about a week, by the steamer Gomos.

The specifications of the cables have been prepared by Sir William Thomson and Professor Fleeming Jenkin, the well-known Electricians and Telegraph Engineers, under whose superintendence they have been constructed.

The Company also owns the land lines erected under the concession granted by the Montevidean Government for that Republic.

An Agreement has been entered into with the Western and Brazilian Telegraph Company (Limited), whose line extends from Pará to Rio de Janeiro, to work and maintain, free of charge, all the cables of this Company, and to pay to this Company for the term of 40 years 20 per cent. of the gross receipts of the entire system between Pará on the North and Montevideo on the South.

An Agreement has also been made between the Montevidean and Brazilian Telegraph Company—whose cable extends from Montevideo to the Brazilian frontier, and which was laid on the 6th of September last—by which that Company agrees to hand over its cable to this Company, receiving for the same 3 per cent. out of the 20 per cent. to be received by this Company from the Western and Brazilian Telegraph Company.

Upon the net receipts coming to this Company from the working of the cables and the land lines the Debenture Bonds now for subscription are secured as a first charge by a deed of mortgage duly executed to Trustees for the Bondholders.

The Western and Brazilian Company have already completed the laying of their lines from Pará to Pernambuco and from Pernambuco to Rio de Janeiro.

The Debentures take precedence over the Share Capital of £400,000, and are a first charge on the undertaking.

The total amount required for the interest on the £100,000 Debentures is only £7,000 per annum, and the estimate of receipts (from competent persons resident in Brazil) is from £50,000 to £70,000 per annum, therefore affording an unusually large margin for security.

Scrip Certificates to bearer will be issued against allotment letters and receipts for deposit, and will be exchanged for the Bonds at the Banking-house of Messrs. Grant Brothers and Co., as London Agents for the Company, when all the payments are completed.

Certified Copies of the concessions, &c., may be inspected at the offices of Messrs. West and King, Solicitors, 66, Cannon-street, E.C., London, where also the agreements with the Western and Brazilian Telegraph Company and the Montevidean and Brazilian Telegraph Company may be seen.

Applications must be made in the annexed form, accompanied by the deposit of £5 per Debenture Bond on the number applied for. Should the amount allotted not require the whole sum so paid, the surplus will be applied towards the payment of the amount due on allotment.

In case of default in payment of any instalments all previous payments will be liable to forfeiture.

In case no allotment is made, the deposit will be returned forthwith without deduction.

Forms of Subscription may be obtained on application.

In addition to the favourable terms above mentioned, Messrs. Grant Brothers and Co. desire to draw special attention to the fact of this Company differing from nearly all other Telegraph Companies, in the fact of its having an exclusive concession or monopoly for a period of 60 years over the enormous traffic of the River Plate and Brazil, secured by the same.

Debentures on telegraph enterprises are now fully recognised as an eligible security; as an illustration may be mentioned the Six per Cent. Debentures of the Eastern Telegraph Company, which are officially quoted on the London Stock Exchange at 102 to 103 per £100 Bond, whilst the Eight per Cent. Preference Shares of the Mediterranean Extension Telegraph are quoted 115 to 125 per Cent.

MR. BRIGHT ON THE BRIGHTON ELECTION.—The Sussex Daily News says that the following is an extract from a long letter addressed to the late senior member for Brighton, Mr. James White, by Mr. John Bright:—"My dear Mr. White,—I am much grieved at the result of your contest, and especially that you should be shut out from the House of Commons, where your more than common knowledge of some branches of public affairs enabled you to be so useful. I refer particularly to everything connected with taxation and finance. . . . I hope some opening will soon come to enable you to return to the House, if you are not tired of it. . . . If I come to Brighton next week I will call upon you."

NEW RECORDER.—Mr. J. Dugdale, of the Midland Circuit, has been appointed Recorder of Grantham, in the place of Mr. John W. Mellor, who was a candidate at the recent election to represent that borough in Parliament.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Our advices by the present P. and O. mail extend to the 13th Jan. The P. and O. mail from London Nov. 14 arrived out on the 4th Jan. The Pacific Mail Company's steamer Japan arrived at San Francisco on the 13th ult., with advices to the 23rd Jan., of which the following summary has been telegraphed to New York:—

The memorandum of the Japanese Foreign-office to the European representatives, mentioned in the despatch of December 23, refuting the arguments in favour of the extension of exterritoriality throughout Japan, has received a rejoinder, in which the former pleas are reiterated. The matter of proposal is no less objectionable than before, although the manner is less offensive. It is noteworthy that this document is not signed by the United States Minister. A second answer by the Japanese is equally firm in its rejection of the demands. In their last reply the Japanese refuse to entertain any proposals looking to the opening of their country except by means of an entire revision of the treaties, previous to which they will require the credentials authorising the Ministers to act in so important a matter. They say that such a radical step must be regulated by conventions between nations and not by an agreement between the Foreign-office and the European representatives.

The position of the German Minister, Herr Von Brandt, in his dispute with the Japanese Government, is understood to be as follows:—He claims that, inasmuch as existing treaties exclude all foreigners from the interior of the Empire, the Japanese have already violated it by introducing foreign teachers, &c., for the instruction of their youths, the development of their mineral resources and other kindred purposes. On this ground the Minister proposes to resist exclusion of any of his countrymen who choose to travel beyond the prescribed limits, either for pleasure or trade. The native authorities are firm in their resistance to what they call "a monstrous assumption."

The official census of 1872, just published, fixes the entire population at 33,110,825. The males and females are about equal in numbers. There are 29 members of the Imperial family, 459 of the higher order of nobles, and about 700,000 of the lower order of gentry.

Iwakura is rapidly recovering from his wounds. No positive clue to his assailant has been discovered, though several arrests have been made.

PEKING.

Wan-seang returned to Peking from Manchuria on the 27th Dec., and on that day had an audience of his Majesty, who accorded him five days' leave of absence from official business, to recruit his health after the fatigues of his long journey. The old Minister is said to suffer from asthma during the winter, and in consequence does not then frequently appear at the Council Board of the Tsung-le Yamun. The Tsung-le Yamun has become a very important office at Peking, and the leading men of the Six Boards are in general also the chiefs of the Tsung-le Yamun.

It is stated that Don Garcia y Garcia, the Peruvian Minister, accompanied by his Secretary of Legation, will call on Prince Kung and the other chiefs of the Foreign-office on the 31st Dec. It appears that the Peruvian Minister is met in a courteous manner by the high Chinese Officials of Peking, so we may augur favourably for its final results.

On Christmas Day a newly-erected chapel, situated within the British Legation grounds, was opened for public worship. The Rev. Mr. Collins acted as chaplain on the occasion; and the foreign Protestants resident at Peking attended to join in the ceremonial service. At midnight High Mass was celebrated in the Roman Catholic cathedral, when the foreign Roman Catholics of Peking and the bulk of the resident Chinese Catholics were present.

The weather has become colder. The Yei-ho (which runs through the city, past the British Legation) has been frozen over at the sides, but in the middle it is free from ice. On the whole the weather has been extraordinarily mild in comparison with former seasons.

CHEFOO.

There has been an outbreak against missionary teaching, at a place in the interior of Shantung, which contrasts so remarkably with the good feeling Mr. Williamson met in his recent excursion that we shall await with interest some explanation of the occurrence. It will be seen that no suspicion is in this case thrown on the local officials.

For four months previous to the occurrence a missionary had been labouring in the Chih Nieh district, about 150 miles south-east of Chefoo. Upwards of 100 persons were received into the church, and almost daily persons declared their determination to forsake idolatry and live Christian lives. Others came by night, saying that they were convinced of the truth of Christianity, but feared the opposition of their families and the persecution they would have to suffer should they make an open profession. One day the missionary was stoned by a large number of men, when passing through a town on his way to preach at a station among the Lau San mountains. When the magistrate was informed of this he promised protection in the future. Proclamations were issued, telling the people that according to the treaty foreigners must be protected in their lawful callings, and while none were compelled to listen to the preaching of the Gospel, there must be no hindrance to those who wished to hear. A fortnight later the people, at an annual fair, again stoned the missionary, and he was obliged to flee for his life. The native Christians, who assisted him in escaping, were also stoned, and two of them seriously injured. The magistrate sent to the missionary, saying matters were becoming serious, and he would send him to Chefoo under an escort of soldiers, if he would leave. The missionary finally decided to leave without the soldiers. He had only been gone a few hours, when 2,000 men from the disaffected villages arrived and surrounded the inn, demanding the missionary. The magistrate, hearing of this, went out and told the leaders if they did not disperse at once he would seize and behead them. After they had searched and were convinced that the missionary was not there they disbanded. Two days later a crowd went to the village where the missionary lived, broke the windows and the door of the house he had occupied, and were in possession of the house when the Christians of the village all fled to places of refuge. Placards had been posted all over the country.

The stories about stealing children, &c., have as usual been used to arouse people. It is said that the "Death-blow to Corrupt Doctrines" has been extensively circulated in that region. What action, if any, the authorities may take in this matter remains to be seen. The magistrate of that district is apparently disposed to do justice, and has formerly dealt fairly with foreigners whether he is equal to the present emergency is uncertain.

A little town 140 miles south-east of Chefoo has been startled by the announcement of murder. A man named Moo, who had leased a piece of land by paying a sum of money in advance, went to the owner of the land and wished him to refund the money or a portion of it, to meet debts which were pressing upon him. The request was not complied with, and a serious quarrel followed. According to the statement of the friends of the murdered man, Moo, in company with others, went the following night to the house of the landowner, murdered him, put out both his eyes, and then dragged the body to Moo's threshing floor and threw it on a stack of straw, to which they set fire.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from the port to the 16th Jan.; the P. and O. mail from London Nov. 28 arrived out on the 13th January. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

A motion or preliminary application by the plaintiffs in the suit Samuel Brown v. the Union Steam Navigation Company has been heard in Chambers before Sir Edmund Hornby. Mr. Cooper appeared for plaintiff and Mr. Drummond for defendants. The defendants had filed a motion to have plaintiff's petition dismissed, without any answer being required of them, on the following grounds of law—(1) That the petition did not disclose or show any jurisdiction in the Supreme Court in respect of the subject-matter of the suit, and that it had no jurisdiction thereon; (2) that all the shareholders in the company should have been joined as defendants; (3) that the petition improperly prayed for different forms of relief, which could not be given or decreed to one and the same suit. Upon this motion by defendants, plaintiff's counsel filed a counter-motion, which was the one heard yesterday, and which called upon defendants to disclose further particulars of their grounds of objection. The discussion was of a conversational character; and as the arguments will in the main be those used when the defendant's demurrer comes up, we do not now attempt to reproduce them. His Lordship refused the application, on the ground that it was unnecessary for the defendants to have given further particulars in their demurrer, and that plaintiff was sufficiently informed as to what the other side intended to urge in support of their motion for the dismissal of the petition.

At the Mixed Court two respectable Canton men have been sentenced to a short term of cangue for assaulting the police in Hongkew. The men belong to the large mechanic class, who form an important section of the native community in Hongkew, and who are accustomed to assert themselves with all the independence and freedom which distinguish the Canton man as compared with the apathetic Northerner. The difficulty arose through a quarrel with a shopman, on whose behalf the police had to interfere. The men were taken to the station, but were allowed to depart with a caution. No sooner were they at liberty, however, than they returned to the charge, and a constable again interfering, they assaulted him, and extended the beating to another who came to the assistance of the first. We have been told that a native constable was last year so severely beaten in Hongkew by men of this class that he died from the effects.

In the precincts of the Mixed Court are at present stowed, awaiting final disposition, a number of bags of "lie tea," or Maloo mixture, which were confiscated by the Customs' authorities. There being here no counterpart of the institution known to the English Customs as "the Queen's Tobacco-pipe," the Mixed Court magistrate finds himself in some difficulty how best to get rid of the mixture so that it shall be beyond the ingenuity and the patience of the native économes of tea-rubbish again to utilise it. It would probably be difficult to burn it, unless in a strong furnace; and if some Court runner were commissioned to have it made away with, the temptation would be great to turn a dishonest penny on the transaction by raising it again to the dignity of tea. The smart official would have a clear conscience regarding the matter so long as he kept the lieges of the Son of Heaven from being poisoned by its vile decoction, while as to the barbarian he may say—caveat emptor.

An animated correspondence has been going on in the Shun-pao, between Northern and Southern Chinamen, about the torture case to which we lately called attention. The Cantonese of course stand up for the Chelsien, who is their countryman, and carried out their views in the affair. The Northerners condemn his action as cruel, and satirise the collective effort of Cantonese society at Shanghai to crush a simple actor and a poor girl. It is as though the Taeshan mountains were moved to crush an egg, or elephants and tigers were employed to kill a hare! We are glad to say the Northerners have had much the best of it, and the Cantonese are very much beaten and very angry. The incident again raises the question, why do not Ministers insist on the foreign settlement being made a separate district, whose magistrate shall be independent of the Shanghai Hien? There are two Hien districts in Soochow; why should there not be two in Shanghai, which is as populous, and really more important?

The shooting parties who were frozen in up-country are struggling back to the Settlement on foot or in native boats. We hear of one party who were frozen up for five days, and had to break through several miles of ice to escape into broader water. Another gentleman writes:—"We were frozen up for three days, more or less, being only able to break through ice for a few hours each afternoon. Had we remained in the smaller creeks we should have been fast still." But these were the more fortunate ones. Several men have walked back 120, 150, and 170 miles, to Shanghai, leaving their boats jammed; others have not yet returned.

The milder weather has permitted a Paper Hunt to be held, and a good field met on the occasion. The start was from the Cross-road; the paper led out towards Jessfield, round back towards the Bubbling Well, and finished at the Two-mile Bridge

Mr. Ogle, on Ivanhoe, won the light-weight, and Mr. Reid, on Red Herring, the heavy-weight cup.

We hear that the Amateur Dramatic Company are busily engaged in rehearsing the famous comedy "Masks and Faces," and the farce "Incompatibility of Temper," for the opening night in the New Lyceum Theatre, which it is hoped may be about the end of January. Safe casts have been selected; and the prices, admirable in themselves, promise to be well treated.

Three of the gentlemen who were elected to the French Municipal Council having declined to accept office, a fresh election will be held on the 23rd Jan.

An alarm of fire was given on the 12th Jan., but before the engines could turn out to proceed to the French Settlement, the district indicated, a message arrived to say that the fire had been extinguished. It occurred, we believe, in a Chinese dwelling near the police station, and was promptly subdued by the means at hand. Superintendent Penfold, on learning this, at once sent word to the various fire companies in the neighbourhood, the members of which were doubtless very glad to be spared doing duty at the inconvenient hour of dinner.

The steamer Chihli reports that the brig Lapwing, Captain Gilchrist, was wrecked in Litau Bay, on the coast of Shantung, on the 1st Jan. All the crew were saved. The Yuen-tze-fee reports that on the 8th she steamed into Litau Bay, but could see nothing of the wreck.

H.B.M. gun-vessel Curlew, Captain Church commander, left on the 10th Jan. for Ningpo, where she will remain until the 26th. She will then proceed to Hong Kong, where, we believe, she will be docked, and the blades of her screw, which were slightly bent on one of her trips down the Peiho river, will be repaired. The Curlew will probably return to Shanghai in March.

It is reported that the new wharf and godowns below the Hongkew Wharf, built by Messrs. Farnham and Co., have been leased by that firm to the Chinese Merchants Steam Navigation Company.

Shinagawa, Japanese Consul at this port, has officially notified his colleagues that the Japanese Imperial Government remove Ida from the Consul-Generalship of China, on the 13th Dec. We learn also that Consul Yamada, the newly-appointed Minister from Japan to Peking, is not expected here until communication is re-opened with Tientsin.

Two Chinese, one the lowdah of the yacht Madcap, and the other a friend who kept him company on board, were suffocated during the night of the 3rd and 4th Jan. by charcoal fumes. The Madcap had returned from an upcountry trip, and was lying near the receiving ship Ariel. The sampanman of the Ariel went on board the yacht, and not finding the lowdah, looked below, and discovered the two men apparently asleep. Their unresponsive stillness alarmed him, and he went and called Captain Croal, who seeing the state of the case, sent for Dr. Gottburg, the medical man in attendance on the ship. Dr. Gottburg at once pronounced the men asphyxiated, evidently by charcoal fumes. They had fallen asleep with a charcoal brazier in their little cabin, to retain the heat from which they had closed up every aperture that could admit the entrance of pure air. Meanwhile among the assembled mob of Chinese a rumour was got up that the men had been severely beaten, and the lowdah's friends declined to take away his body unless they were handsomely compensated. The awkward position in which an Eastern is placed by a dead body being found on his premises, where death has occurred from causes outside the natural order of events, was no doubt present to the native mind, and the opportunity was too good a one to be allowed to pass without attempting a squeeze, but the threatened terrorism becomes unavailing when foreigners have to be dealt with, and has generally the effect of freezing the current of charitable intent which the pitiable circumstances of the case may have set in motion. Thus Capt. Croal, who proposed to bear the funeral expenses of the unfortunate victims of their own imprudence, felt obliged to abandon his charitable purpose till the clamorous friends withdrew both their unfounded accusations and claims. A more minute examination of the bodies was made by Dr. Little, at the suggestion of Inspector Fowler, and showed that they were those of healthy men, and were wholly free from marks of violence.

Our Newchwang correspondent writes that the river is not frozen over, though much ice had appeared in it. Nothing had been done in manufactures. Malwa nominally Tls. 510 to Tls. 520. Produce declining in value.

The Herald has received the subjoined communication from a correspondent at Peking:—

The Manchester trade is going to the devil (sic). It is too bad to send out such filthy Shirtings. The storekeepers here are afraid of buying the trash which rots in their shops. In a short time there will be no sale here at all for British Cottons. The hotelkeeper showed me sheets of washed Grey Shirtings which he said had lost half weight, and they certainly were most miserable flimsy rags, which tore at a pull.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 22nd Jan.; the French mail from London Dec. 5 arrived out on the 16th Jan., and the following P. and O. mail of 12th Dec. was due the day this mail left. The China Mail supplies the following items of intelligence:—

A special meeting of the Chamber of Commerce was held on the 17th Jan., the following gentlemen being present:—Hon. P. Ryrie (chairman), Messrs. Greig, Karberg, and Kaye, Hon. J. Whittall, Messrs. Pyke, Campbell, Phillipe, Blakeman, Granville Sharp, Hoppius, Welsh, Cameron, Stevens, Lapraik, Kahn, and Deacon.

The Chairman stated that the meeting had been called for the purpose of taking into consideration a letter which had been received from the Colonial Secretary by the Governor upon the advisability of proclaiming the Japan silver yen and the American trade dollar as legal tender in the colony. Mr. Cameron, of the Oriental Bank, who spoke at some length upon the subject, proposed a resolution to the effect that it was advisable to encourage the production of current coin by reliable mints suited to the wants of the colony. After this motion had been seconded, another resolution was proposed by the Hon. Mr. Whittall, with a view to its modification. Some discussion having taken place, it was ultimately agreed to adjourn the meeting in order that an opportunity might be afforded of ventilating public opinion upon the matter.

Three yachts started on the 17th shortly after 10 A.M. for prizes presented by the Yacht Club, viz., Aura, Naiad and Wave. Loiterer did not leave the starting-buoys, her owner being prevented by other engagements from joining in the match. The wind came out about North and freshened up as the vessels neared Green Island, until it piped up a fresh sailing breeze, sending Aura's lee rail under, and compelling Wave to send down gaff-topsail. Aura rounded Green Island a few lengths ahead of Naiad, Wave considerably astern, but in the stretch across to Cow-e-chow, Naiad drew through Aura's lee and went to the front, Wave overhauling the pair a little. Naiad tacked when clear of Cow-e-chow, followed by Aura, and the latter fell away perceptibly, being buried with her balloon topsail aloft but the wind was evidently light in the harbour, and the sail had to be dragged along for the time. Naiad got spinnaker on bowsprit end and reached for the mark-boat, but Aura's big topsail now began to tell, and she gradually drew up on the leader until both ran into a stark calm. Wave ultimately joined them, and the desirability of postponing the match until a more favourable opportunity was discussed. Upon drifting to the Fort William, the sailing masters of the Naiad and Aura asked Captain Purchase's opinion and decided to give up the match, as it was likely to be most uninteresting and tedious. Wave continued on the second round, drifting down westward in a flat calm, but eventually gave up and returned to her moorings, as the other two had done.

The steam launch built by Messrs. Inglis and Co. was launched on the 14th, and named the Wah Loong by Mr. Inglis's daughter. Her dimensions are—length, 80 feet; beam, 14 feet; depth, 7 feet 10 inches. Gross tonnage, 100. After the launch she was towed to Messrs. Inglis's yard at Wanchi. Her boiler has been shipped to-day; she will be fitted with engines of 30-horse power, and is expected to attain a speed of 12 knots.

Commander Theobold has been appointed to H.M.S. Kestrel, in place of Commander Bolton, resigned.

The American schooner Scotland, which left this port in May last to trade amongst the islands in the Pacific Ocean, returned on the 9th laden with beche de mer, cocoanuts, and pigs.

The first examination, under the Government system of grants in aid, of Chinese pupils attending St. Stephen's Church Mission School was held on the 13th, when out of twenty-nine boys sent up by the Rev. A. B. Hutchinson, twenty-five passed the required test successfully. The rev. gentleman is to be congratulated on this success, not the less that the Inspector of Schools expressed a marked satisfaction at the intelligence evinced by the scholars.

From Amoy we learn that at the cricket match, Hong Kong won first innings by twenty-two runs, Lieutenant-Colonel 80th Regiment contributing forty-three. Second innings, Hong Kong ninety-eight runs against fifty-one runs.

The P. and O. steamer Columbian, it is said, is likely to be the vessel chosen to contest in the next season's tea-race home.

Admiral Parrot, U.S.N., left suddenly for America on the 12th, the cause being ill-health. On striking his flag, it was saluted by the Hartford, Askold, and Princess Charlotte.

H.M.S. Rinaldo left for England on the 20th. The gunboat Teazer, under orders for home, will await here the arrival of her relief, the Growler. Lieut.-Commander Paul, from the Thalia, will succeed to the command of the gunboat Mosquito, vacant by the retirement of Commander Bond. Lieut. Atkinson, of the Iron Duke, is at present in command.

At a meeting of the Hong Kong, Canton, and Macao Steamboat Company (Limited), held on the 17th of January—Mr. G. F. Heard in the chair—a dividend of eight per cent. was declared, and a sum of $1,155.85 was carried forward to the new account. The Hon. R. Rowett was elected a director in the place of the late Mr. Sage.

The Governor of Macao has been addressed by the leading merchants upon the subject of the tea adulteration on the part of Chinese merchants at that port. His Excellency in reply said that he could not interfere legally in the trade, but that it was best that the names of such manufacturers who adulterated their teas should be published in the newspapers.

The P. and O. steamer Madras, for Yokohama, had to put back on account of an accident to her machinery.

An incident illustrating the superstitious character of the natives has occurred here. The proprietors of the Tung-heng Theatre exhibited some idols which belonged to a junk lately arrived from Amoy. People flocked to the place to such an extent that the proprietors of the theatre were summoned by the magistrates and fined for allowing their theatre to be used for purposes of idol worship.

SIAM.

BANGKOK.

(FROM A CORRESPONDENT.)

The leading spirit in the management of the Siamese Government since the decease of the late King, in 1868, has been his Grace the Regent, best known among Europeans in former years as Chow Phya Kalahome. On the 25th of December last this much esteemed statesman completed his sixty-fourth year, and as birthdays are held in Siam to be peculiarly auspicious and lucky, that occasion was selected for the ceremony of conferring new and crowning honours upon this faithful public servant, whose age has entitled him to be at last relieved from the duties and cares of administration.

The best cultivated (with perhaps one exception) and, on the whole, the prettiest district in Siam is to be found on the banks of the river Mekong, in the vicinity of Ratburer, and at that town it appears for some years past the Regent has been erecting himself a retreat. Few save those who have lived in the country can be aware how much of the progress of Siam is due to the personal energy and intelligence of the retiring Minister, and it is therefore not out of place to mention that while in the provinces, under the Regent's department, roads have been made, creeks cut, and progress pushed forward in many other ways, the northern districts, which a different official has in his control, remain pretty much as Europeans found them some fifteen years ago. Both the Kings of Siam, attended by their retinues, honoured the Regent with a visit on his birthday investiture, and the inevitable troop of yellow-robed Buddhist priests were also at hand to complete the ceremonial with their customary chants. The Regent, in thus quitting the helm of the State, and retiring into quarters at Ratburee, will carry with him the respect and good wishes of the residents in Bangkok, as well as of many absent friends. But he will take something more besides, viz., a new title, containing at the lowest estimate the gratifying number of thirty-three words, some of them twenty-five syllables long. Lest, however, we should suppose that the honour thus conferred is meant to be ornamental rather than of use, we are further informed that it endows its happy possessor with princely rank, with the power of life and death, and with an authority in many other respects exceedingly great.

Seriously, we shall be sorry if the Regent really abandons all the cares of the State, for we think that his services cannot well be spared; we know, too, his remarkable energies, and cannot, therefore, avoid the belief that his voice will yet be heard, and his influence felt in the Councils of the King of Siam.

The Siam Weekly Advertiser says it is rumoured that the Portuguese Government at Macao has repudiated the acts of their Consul at Bangkok. It has decided that the Portuguese Consul has no right to give protection papers to Chinese who are not Portuguese subjects, and insists that moneys which non Portuguese Chinamen have paid for such papers shall be refunded to the proper parties. This piece of intelligence will strike our readers as obscure, but we may perhaps interpret it as follows:—

Chinese in Siam are very numerous, and it has been the policy of the Government to incourage their immigration. For this reason they are exempted from many taxes which are laid upon pure Siamese, and in particular they escaped the annual liability to serve either the King or some superior Lord, which was, till quite recently, one of the chief burdens imposed upon all the males of the Siamese race. But to partially compensate for this indulgence every Chinaman was once in three years compelled to pay a capitation duty, for which an acknowledgment was given in the shape of a mark affixed to his wrist. To avoid avoid this poll-tax, the Chinese flock in numbers to the foreign Consuls, and apply to be enrolled as natives of Malacca, Hong Kong, Saigon, Macao, or other appropriate places. They do not mind the light fee exacted by a Consul, which brings many incidental benefits in its train, but, rightly or wrongly, they dread being drawn into the clutches of the officials of Siam. A few years ago, on such an occasion as this, the Portuguese Consul at Bangkok took several hundred Chinese on to his books, and received several hundred fees, but the Siamese instituted complaints at Lisbon, on the ground that such conduct was illegal, besides being an injury to their revenues, and the Consul, as a consequence, lost his post. It may be that something of this sort is taking place now.

In 1833 the King of Siam was a persistent foe to Europeans, not wishing them to reside in his country, and dreading their progressive tendencies. In those days there were only four Siamese of rank who sought the society of foreigners and strove to derive from them the ideas and knowledge of the nations of the West. These were the late Supreme King, then known as the Prince Priest, and who was, in fact, for State reasons, a Buddhist monk; his younger brother, the late Second King; Chowkatai, who at the time of his death, a few years back, was the Supreme Judge of the International Court at Bangkok; and, lastly, Koon Sit, who, starting with two names, and rising step by step till he became Regent of the Kingdom, now retires from office with thirty-three titles to write down whenever he signs himself in full. Although these four distinguished men devoted themselves early in life to the study of English there was only one of them (the late Second King) who really obtained perfect mastery of the language. As for him his handwriting was unapproachable, and we do not believe that any Siamese who has been at school in this country can talk in our language with the fluency which his late Sovereign had at his command. But, besides cultivating a knowledge of English, the Second King and the Regent in those early days devoted themselves to the building of ships and steamers. Thus they did a great deal to spread a knowledge of naval architecture among their people, and at the same time, by sending their craft to Singapore and other places, they made gradual progress in the development of trade. Things remained much in this position—the missionaries discountenanced, and European knowledge in favour with but a few—till Phra Nang Klow, the then ruler of Siam, deceased. Then the Prince Priest and his brother were raised to the vacant thrones, embassies followed from abroad, and the conclusion of the present treaties opened up the country to Europeans. Since that time the sceptre and diadem have been entrusted to new and younger hands; the Monarchs' ashes are stored in urns of gold; the Chief Judge can no longer listen to the suitor's voice; and the Regent has bid a last adieu to the toils and anxieties of State; but for all that the wheel of progress which those worthy men successfully set in motion continues steadily to revolve.

STRAITS SETTLEMENTS.

SINGAPORE.

Dates by this mail extend to the 29th Jan.; the P. and O. mail from London Dec. 26 arrived out on the 27th Jan. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

Although in the negotiations with the States on the West Coast of the Peninsula much has been attained towards restoring order, there yet remains work to be done with the turbulent States lying between these and our own settlement of Malacca before tranquillity can be permanently restored on our borders, and the protection of the legitimate trade of the Colony assured. The shocking murders and outrages that have been committed, the illegal exactions that have been made from traders passing up and down the rivers close to Malacca, and very recently a piratical attack made upon the Cape Rachado Lighthouse, call for serious and determined action on the part of this Government—a responsibility which, we trust, from the indications we have already had of the policy of our new Administration, it will not hesitate to accept. Admiral Shadwell, with a fleet consisting of the Iron Duke, Midge, Thalia, and Frolic, left this on the morning of the 26th for Malacca and Penang, and H.M.S. Salamis, which remained behind to catch the English mail, left yesterday morning to join the fleet. Though the precise object of their visit is not made public, we understand they will remain about four days at each of those Settlements, and will probably show themselves at Perak and Laroot, returning to Singapore.

We learn that the engineer superintending the erection of the North Sand Lighthouse has succeeded in firmly fixing two of the foundation piles, and hopes to have the whole of the foundation down shortly, so that the erection of the lighthouse may then proceed without further delay. Contrary to the doubts that have been expressed regarding the stability of the ground, we understand that a groundwork of solid rock has been found to exist under that part of the bank where the lighthouse is being erected.

The importation of $20,000 in copper coin by the Government has not had the effect of materially reducing the rate charged for changing dollars, the entire stock having been, we hear, taken up the first day—and what is most to be regretted, the greater part of it fell into the hands of persons who intend to reap a profit on putting it into circulation. The high rates charged are, of course, due to the insufficiency of the supply of small change for the requirements of the people—large quantities being taken for circulation in neighbouring native States; but as this is manifestly to our advantage, and as Government reaps a very handsome profit on its coin, we see no reason why it should not keep up constant importations, as least so long as there is a demand for it.

The annual general meeting of the Singapore Chamber of Commerce was held in the Exchange-rooms, when the following gentlemen were elected office-bearers for the ensuing year:—W. H. Read, Esq., Chairman; Hon. T. Scott, Deputy; H. W.

On the low rate of exchange the same paper says :—

What has brought the dollar to its present low sterling value and what keeps it there? is a question of very considerable moment to most of us here. It concerns the merchants and the bankers in the largest measure, but if to a smaller extent, it not less seriously and far more disastrously affects all the recipients here, Government and otherwise, of monthly and annual stipends which are paid in dollars. We remember when the sterling allowances of the Government establishments were being converted into local currency, many thought in fixing the dollars at 4.3 a too liberal exchange had been conceded, and that the Settlements were parting with their dollars at less than the real value. We were not of the number ; we characterised the exchange as a fair one, and, as events have proved, even that opinion has not been borne out. We do not suppose any of the banks would have sold for last mail a demand draft on London at better than 4.2 per dollar, or over 2 per cent. less than the rate at which we are forcing our dollars upon our public servants ; that is to say, instead of getting £100 for their $470 (the rate at which we pay them) they can only now get £97 18s. We give the effect in the case of our public servants because it is more clearly reducible to figures ; but the state of the present exchange tells equally hard upon every one in the place who, having a fixed income here, has to transmit part of it to Europe—and how very, very few of us are not in this position?

A letter from Malacca says :—A party of police left this for Cape Rachado to endeavour to arrest a certain number of Malays supposed to have gone from Laroot and attacked the men in charge of the lighthouse, stabbing one of them. Another party of police left in the steamer Telegraph for Linghy River, where the pirates who attacked the men in charge of the Cape Rachado Lighthouse are supposed to have fled.

The machinery for the Chindrass Gold Mine arrived here from Singapore a fortnight ago in two tongkangs, and a portion of it has been carted away. During the process of hoisting the machinery, a large and noble tree was brought to grief. It was afterwards cut in pieces and sold by public auction for $18.

Commercial Report.

IMPORTS.

YOKOHAMA.—Owing to the intervention of the holidays and to the closing of the native dealers accounts, there had been scarcely any business doing except in 16-24 Cotton Yarn, which had been dealt in at 50c. advance, and was quoted $30 to $40.50 per picul. In other articles little or no transactions had been effected, and quotations were nominal.

CHEFOO.—Messrs. Wilson, Cornabe and Co's Circular says : Since the issue of our last Circular we have had a steady demand for 8¼lb. Grey Shirtings at the rates therein quoted, and as we close there are still buyers at the same figures. We cannot yet record any improvement in Drills or T-Cloths, in fact the reverse is if anything the case. Fancy Cottons are quite neglected. In Woollens there is not much doing, and quotations are for the most part purely nominal. Metals : Iron is not in so much request, but we look for a good enquiry for both Nail Rods and Bar in spring. Lead is dull of sale, and to effect sales a decline on our quotations would have to be submitted to.

HANKOW.—Only a moderate business had been done during the fortnight though some improvement in the demand for Grey Shirtings had again to be noted ; as also for 7 lbs. T-Cloths. Grey Shirtings : In better request, chiefly 8¼ lbs., of which some 10,000 pieces had been taken at an advance of two candareens per piece. Sales of 7 lbs. and 10 lbs. on a small scale at rather firmer prices. White Shirtings : No business. T-Cloths : A slight improvement in the demand for these goods, which still continued to run on medium 7 lbs. Sales of 6 lbs. and 8 lbs., trivial. Prices generally without alteration. Drills : Few settlements at previous rates. Jeans : Some 2,000 pieces had found buyers at last quotations. Fancy Cottons : No transactions. Woollens and Worsteds :—Long Ells and Camlets : Sales on a smaller scale, but for Spanish Stripes there had been a better inquiry. Figured Orleans : No settlements

SHANGHAI.—Cottons : The business of the interval had not been large, but there had been more inquiry for all classes of goods. 8½ lbs. Shirtings of good makes were still in demand, and large sales "to arrive" are reported at an advance of 3c. to 5c. per piece. Common makes were still low in value ; 7 lbs. were neglected, and only wanted when at cheap prices. White Shirtings remained steady ; some sales are reported at unchanged rates, notwithstanding the small stock. Mexican T-Cloths were in good request at very low rates ; some large sales are reported, but the tendency to speculate in the article had been effectually stopped by the stringent action of the native banks, who would only advance money to really good houses. There was, however, a better feeling apparent, and prices had advanced slightly. For Drills, Jeans, and Sheetings, prices seemed to get lower every day, and the business is not large. Fancy Cottons unchanged, Gentian Shirtings being almost the only article inquired for. Woollens : Scarlet Long Ells still in demand, and there had been some little inquiry for Lastings. Other Fabrics were attracting almost no attention beyond a temporary demand for Plain Black Orleans at somewhat higher rates, for last Japan steamer.

FOOCHOW.—No sales of Piece Goods had been reported. Of Lead sales had been made to natives at $8.75 per picul.

HONG KONG.—Cotton Yarns : A considerable business had been done in Nos. 16/24, and the best spinnings showed an advance of $1.00, but the common chops were in good supply and little wanted ; Nos. 28/32 and 38/42 were saleable in small quantities at last prices. Piece Goods : During the first week of the fortnight dealers entered the market and made large purchases of Grey Goods, nearly clearing the market of 8¼ lb. Shirtings, and generally meeting holders in their views as to price. 7 lb. Grey Shirtings were firmly held at quoted rates, and 8¼ lbs. showed an advance of 2 to 5 cents per piece. White Shirtings of all qualities were in good demand, but unchanged in value. T-Cloths had likewise been considerably dealt in, and nearly all weights were 2 to 3 cents better in price. Inquiry for Drills had not improved, but rates had gone no lower. Woollens : Scarlet Long Ells had advanced 60c., and Assorted 25c. to 30c. per piece ; stock was small and demand good. German Spanish Stripes were 1c. per yard dearer, but other kinds were neglected. Blankets of heavy weights were in better demand. Camlets 25c. dearer, and stocks not large. Lastings moved slowly, but were in improved request. Metals : Nail Rod and Bar Iron could be fairly placed at slightly easier rates ; Hoop and Wire not wanted. Tin Plates slow of sale. Tin in demand for the Northern markets, and improved $1.00 per picul in value. Lead neglected at a marked decline in price. Quicksilver sensibly dearer, and held in firm hands. Coals : Arrivals, 3,733 tons Australian, and 500 tons Cardiff. Sales, 1,500 tons Australian at $10 to 10.50, ex ship, and 100 tons Cardiff at $13.75, ex ship. Market quiet, values nominally unchanged. Rice : Settlements small, owing to light receipts and reduced stocks, and the market continued firm at former quotations, notwithstanding that the inquiry for native consumption was restricted.

BATAVIA.—Early in the interval a somewhat improved demand was experienced, but this proved to be due only to a desire on the part of dealers to assort their stocks with a few goods, imported at the late reduced duties. The demand for consumption was still extremely limited, and the requirements of dealers had been very speedily satisfied, so that business had again relapsed into the dull position which formerly prevailed, nor can any revival be expected until after the Chinese New Year. The wet monsoon was interfering with the means of transport in the interior, and steamers had also for the time discontinued calling at many of the Coast places. As usual at this season the demand for Metals had been very dull, only for Swedish Iron there had been some enquiry.

SINGAPORE.—The market had been quiet, the demand had been small, and quotations were unaltered.

EXPORTS.

—o—

TEA.

YOKOHAMA.—Early in the interval a spirited demand sprang up, owing to a report very currently believed that the duties on Teas in America were to be reimposed. This resulted in the settlement of nearly 10,000 piculs at an advance of quite $3 per picul on all grades. At the close, the market having been almost entirely cleared of stock, native dealers were very firm in their demands, but the quotations given below represent the business that had been done. The James S. Stone sailed on the 4th Jan. with 540,951 lbs., and the Corea had been laid on the berth. The Vasco de Gama, to sail about the 18th Jan., would take a full cargo. Quotations :—Common (nominal), $25 to $28 per picul ; good common, $29 to $31 ; medium, $32 to $34 ; good medium, $36 to $39 ; fine, $41 to $45 ; finest, $46 to $50 ; choice, $55 and upwards per picul. Export from 1st June to date, 9,098,572 lbs., against 9,536,571 lbs. to corresponding date last season.

HANKOW, KIUKIANG, AMOY, and CANTON.—At these ports no business had been done, the season being closed.

SHANGHAI.—Black : A few lots, the equivalent of 974 chests, had been placed upon the market during the interval, and had met with buyers at prices ranging from Tls. 14½ to 20 per picul. There was none on offer at the close, and no further arrivals being expected, the season had been brought to a close. Green : A steady business had continued at the advance quoted in our last, but the market had assumed a quieter tone, mainly owing to the small stock, which consisted principally of undesirable kinds. Common teas could be purchased on somewhat lower terms, but the few fine chops on offer were held for even higher prices. A small business had taken place in Pingsueys, which had been sold at rather easier figures.

FOOCHOW.—Business during the week had been limited to the settlement of 1,400 chests Congou at Tls. 3 to Tls. 15, and 200 chests Souchong at Tls. 14. Arrivals, nil. Comparative export of tea to Europe to date :—Season 1873-74, 54,292,763 lbs. ; 1872-73, 52,086,853 ; 1871-72, 47,506,534.

SILK.

YOKOHAMA.—There had been scarcely any business done, dealers having shown little disposition to reduce rates, and although in some instances a slight concession had been obtained, no actual decline had been established. Arrivals had been fairly good and stocks were further increased. Total of settlements to date 9,700 bales, against 1872-3 8,900, 1871-2 10,700, stock 2,100 bales.

SHANGHAI.—There had been only a small business transacted during the fortnight, and the tendency of prices had been downward ; but notwithstanding the continued discouraging tone of the home advices, the Chinese had refused to submit to much concession, the only decline to be noticed in value being Tls. 5 to 10 on the lower qualities of the staple. Only two or three parcels of best chops remained in stock, holders of which refused to accept lower rates. A renewal of inquiry had taken place for the United States, for which market about 300 bales had found buyers. Cock and Worm Chop No. 3 had been taken at Tls. 465 ; Blue Elephant at Tls. 380, and Tls. 365 had been offered and refused for Red Peacocks. Settlements for the fortnight, Chinas, 1,100 bales. Total settlements since 1st June, 1873, 48,700 bales ; against 1872, 50,900 bales ; 1871, 44,500 bales. Comparative unsold Stock on this market on the 15th January, 1874, 4,500 bales ; 1873, 2,000 bales ; 1872, 2,500 bales.

CANTON.—The demand for Europe continued small, only a few parcels being taken here and there, and these generally No. 4 Tsatlee Reels; fine Loongkongs had, however, been inquired for, but were very difficult to obtain. Rereels were somewhat more sought after, especially Lacklow, which was very scarce, such parcels as were on offer being of a very middling quality; for the finer grades rereeled Tsatlee was being substituted to some extent. Stock, 800 bales Tsatlee Reel, 150 Loongkong, very little Cumchook and Lacklow, and some 600 bales of common grades.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THREATENED OUTBREAK AGAINST FOREIGNERS AT TIENTSIN.

HONG KONG, FEB. 27.—It is reported that the Chinese Government has notified to the foreign Ministers at Peking that it cannot guarantee the lives of the foreign residents at Tientsin, in consequence of the inflammatory placards which are being circulated against them. The naval authorities at Hong Kong have been communicated with, and requested to despatch ships to the North for the protection of foreigners.

THE INSURRECTION IN JAPAN.

NAGASAKI, FEB. 27.—The leaders of the insurrection against the Japanese Government are the Daimios and the Samurai of the district, who clamour for war against Korea. The Government reinforcements have arrived on the scene of the outbreak, and fighting has ensued. The result is unknown, and it is difficult to obtain authentic accounts. Foreigners are safe.

NAGASAKI, FEB. 28.—The Governor has received no later official news from the seat of the insurrection, and alarming rumours are current.

THE WAR IN SUMATRA.

THE HAGUE, FEB. 23.—The Government has received an official despatch to-day from Atchin, dated 16th inst., announcing that Fort Ketagpandoeria was attacked and taken on the 15th. The success of the Dutch troops was complete, notwithstanding the determined resistance made by the enemy. The Dutch lost six killed and fifty-six wounded, comprising seven officers. The enemy's losses were considerable, and in killed alone were estimated at 200. It was hoped that this victory would secure the submission of the 25th district west of the Atchin river. The Second Chamber has unanimously passed a motion of M. Gratama, proposing a vote of thanks to the army and navy and the Commander of the Expedition.

THE Economist has the following on the affairs of Japan:—A rathe heavy fall in Japanese stocks, due to the news of a formidable insurrectionary outbreak in Japan, has occurred this week. The circumstance is one of which we may legitimately take advantage to enforce the warning against Japanese loans which we gave when they were first introduced. The little, we said, was known of Japan to justify participation in a loan by the multitude of quiet investors. The political character of the people, we pointed out, could not really be known till after long intercourse with them; and the fact that they had just gone through a succession of extraordinary revolutions was really a reason for distrust, although the momentary result in European eyes was satisfactory. Now there is an insurrection which threatens to upset the Government that has done as the Europeans like, and immediately the Japanese loans are in danger. No one can tell what the insurrectionary party, if it succeeds, will do with the European policy of its predecessors; how much, if any, will be recognised; nor can anyone tell what are the exact motives and aims of the rebels, or their probable resources and hopes of success. Yet this is the country to which people in England a year ago were almost eager to lend on account of some superficial appearances in its favour.

THE Pacific Mail steamer Japan, which arrived at San Francisco on the 13th ult. brought the following cargo:—For New York, 286 packages Tea from Hong Kong; 3,202 ditto Shanghai; 2,296 ditto Yokohama; 1,593 ditto Hiogo. For Montreal, 540 packages Tea from Yokohama. For Chicago, 1,470 packages Tea from Hiogo. For San Francisco, 4,118 packages Tea, also 335 packages sold principally for New York; total 13,505 packages Tea, and 335 packages sold.

A LETTER appears in The Times of Friday from Mr. Thomas S. Gissing R.N., one of the engineer officers of the Royal Navy lent by the British to the Japanese Government for the purpose of aiding in the development of the Japanese Navy, giving a description of the destruction by fire of the Imperial Sintoo Temple of Zojoji, at Shiba.

AT the last meeting of the Zoological Society Mr. Busk, the Vice-President, exhibited some skulls of the tiger and leopard from China, procured by Mr. R. Swinhoe, and showed that those from the northern and southern provinces did not appear to be specifically distinct.

Notice has appeared in the Gazette that preparations are now being made for the intended distribution of the amount awarded for salvage services rendered to the steam-ship Douglas, between May 3 and 18, 1872, by H.M.S. Dwarf.

AMONG the objects exhibited at last week's meeting of the Entomological Society was a collection of Cetoniidæ from the Philippine Islands, which had been described by Dr. Mohnike, the exhibitor being Mr. Higgins.

THE Raleigh, which left Colombo Sept. 1, passed St. Helena on the 9th Nov. and reached Scilly on the 9th ult. She has not since been heard of, and eighty guineas premium has been paid upon her at Lloyd's.

THE Gazette announces the appointment of Humphrey Ewing Crum Ewing, of Strathleven, in the county of Dumbarton, Esq., to be Her Majesty's Lieutenant in the county of Dumbarton.

MR. PIPER, of the Church Missionary Society, and Mrs. Piper left Liverpool on Tuesday last for Japan via San Francisco.

THE telegram through REUTER'S in regard to Tientsin is not confirmed by any private source, and we doubt its correctness.

The quotation to day for the Nine Per Cent. Japan Loan is 101-3 and the Seven Per Cent. 92-3.

THE ALARMING TELEGRAMS FROM JAPAN.

THE course of events has not been running smoothly in Japan of late. There has been for some time a restlessness and uneasiness among all classes of society. A large section of the upper classes, conscious of a power which the country never before possessed, are anxious to measure swords with some less formidably equipped neighbour, and the farmers and artisans are equally eager for some political convulsion which shall, for the time being at least, rid them of the burden of taxation which is now beginning to press heavily upon them. The relations, also, between the Government and the foreign Ministers has recently been the reverse of cordial, owing to a determination arrived at by the MIKADO'S advisers to withdraw the license which has hitherto been granted to foreigners of travelling in the interior, and to insist on a strict observance of the Treaty regulations, by which they are forbidden to wander beyond a defined limit in the neighbourhood of each port. And now, following close on the attempted assassination of the Prime Minister, IWAKURA, we are informed by telegram that a serious insurrection has broken out in the district of Fizen; that the situation at Nagasaki is considered critical; that the foreign residents have made preparations to leave in the men-of-war, and that the Ministry have tendered their resignations, which, however, have not been accepted.

There is undoubtedly an ugly look about these announcements, but we do not think they present as serious an aspect as is, it appears, generally supposed. It is important to notice that the outbreak spoken of is in a remote corner of the Empire, far from the capital and the recognised centres of political life, and although it is plain that the foreign residents at Nagasaki consider that town in danger of capture and pillage, there is really nothing to show that the rising is more than a local riot, produced, it may be, by some oppression practised on the inhabitants of the district, and which will subside when the exciting cause has been removed, as it did some six months ago. That foreigners at Nagasaki are in any danger is too ridiculous to discuss for a moment. It is by no means unlikely also that the resignation of IWAKURA has given rise to the report that the Ministry in a body had tendered their resignations. The worst feature in the case is the desire for war, which, according to the telegrams, is now generally evinced "by the people;" and in this we cannot but see the result of the large armaments which have been added to the land and sea forces before the people and their rulers were sufficiently advanced in civilisation to know how to use them with discretion. It is much to be hoped that if it be true that the MIKADO has refused to accept IWAKURA'S resignation he may receive on his return to power sufficient support to enable him to disregard the foolish clamour of the people and to teach them that fleets and armies are as useful in preserving the peace and dignity of empires as in waging unnecessary wars and in invading the territories of their neighbours. Like our friends, the Germans, the Japanese Government have enough on their hands to consolidate the vast changes which have been organised since the abolition of the powers of the Shiogoon, and the assumption of supreme power by the MIKADO. That this new order of things should have given rise to discontent in some quarters is not to be wondered at, and hence we may expect to hear of "risings" on the part of old chiefs. But we do not believe in any wide-spread and powerful organisation sufficient to menace the present Government.

ONE of the most important practical institutions which have been established in Japan, is the Imperial College of Engineering at Yedo, the regulations of which now lie before us, splendidly printed in Japanese and English, at Yedo. The objects which the Minister of Public Works had in view in founding this College was to educate Engineers for service in his Department, and not only is the chance of such appointments held out to students, but a practical and direct inducement is given them to study, by the promise that "each student on passing a satisfactory examination (at "the end of his course) will receive the diploma of "'Master of Engineering' (M.E.), and will be appointed "Engineer in the Board of Public Works." Admission to the College is to be obtained by competitive examination, for which only candidates between the ages of fifteen and eighteen, of sound constitution, and of good moral character will be eligible. The course of training is to extend over six years, and the curriculum of studies is well calculated to turn out thoroughly scientific and practical engineers. We believe the professors for this institution were selected by Mr. HUGH MATHESON, at the request of the Japanese Government.

IT seems that the powers that be, are seized with a periodical and unaccountable mania, for moving the various grades of Secretaries of Legation about the world without apparent reason. The amount of public money thrown away over their travelling expenses must be enormous, and we fail to perceive how the public service can be benefited by the changes. A few years ago a gentleman was transferred from Peking to the Hague, for a month or two, presumably for change of air, and then sent on to Constantinople. This curious system is now being extended to the Consular Service as well. The London Gazette contains several instances of this method of procedure. The Secretaries of Legation at Washington and Copenhagen exchange places, and so do the Consuls for the Eastern Coast of Sweden and the Island of Reunion. We trust that the new Foreign Secretary will at once institute a reform in this matter.

THE information brought by last mail, as to what Governor CLARKE had accomplished at Perak and Laroot, does not quite confirm the telegram announcing that a British Protectorate had been established; but there is reason to believe that he has succeeded in making a Treaty with the Sultan, which will prevent in future the outbreaks and reprisals which have hitherto been so vexatious. When we are in possession of the Treaty we shall be able to discuss its merits.

WE hear that the services of the foreign employés in the Foochow Arsenal are to be at once dispensed with, and their places taken by Chinese artificers. Some such step must come about in time, but it seems premature as yet; and though the source from which we hear the news is most reliable, we trust it is inaccurate.

LETTERS from Shanghai mention the release of Mr. G. W. CAINE, on the ground of dangerous illness. The appointment of Mr. W. F. MAYERS to be Secretary of the Municipal Council indicates the opinion held of the Consular Service. A valuable servant has been lost by the miserable cheeseparing policy of the late Government.

THE Hon. F. R. PLUNKETT, lately appointed first Secretary of the Legation at Yedo, has left London for Japan via New York and San Francisco. Mr. JOHN WALSHAM, the First Secretary for Peking, has not yet left.

MR. R. ROUTLEDGE, a nephew of the great bookseller, has been appointed Professor of Chemistry and Physics to the Japanese College at Yedo. Mr. ROUTLEDGE will proceed by an early mail.

THE French Court of Cassation has rejected the appeal of the Messageries Maritimes against the Suez Canal Company, thus confirming the decision of the Court of Appeal.

WE believe that H.E. SANO, the Japanese Minister at Vienna, will shortly return to Japan, and during his absence Mr. WATANABE will act as Chargé d'Affaires.

WE understand that the honour of knighthood has been conferred on Chief Justice SMALE, of Hong Kong.

Literature.

Notes on Japanese Art, by G. A. AUDSLEY, Architect, Liverpool. Printed for private circulation. 1874.

This work is a most valuable contribution to the literature of Oriental art. Mr. Audsley speaks modestly of his own powers, but he is evidently thoroughly at home in his subject, and an ardent lover of it. In matters of art he rightly considers the Japanese to be, in many respects, in advance of their neighbours, the Chinese, and their taste to be more correct and refined. The reason of this may be found in the fact that the Japanese artist is a devoted worshipper of nature, and loves to depict her works. Mr. Audsley speaks very decidedly on this point. "The Japanese," he says, "have for thousands of years worshipped at Nature's shrine, watching her every movement, and noting every change of mood and costume with a loving eye, until each detail of her marvellous handiwork and each expression of her changeful face are imprinted on their minds, to be transferred to every work they set their hands to do."

The Japanese artist has a keen appreciation of the humorous, and is strong in caricature; he is very skilful in the use of birds and flowers for ornamentation, but not so successful with human figures; in colouring his style is usually quiet and refined, and "in drawing and sketching from nature one observes a great amount of graphic power and freedom." The Japanese artist is particularly fond of representing trees, grasses, creepers, bouquets, and various kinds of birds, but "natural animals (being scarce in the country) are comparatively seldom depicted in their works of art." The dragon is frequently seen, and it may be noted that in Japan it has but three claws. With regard to inanimate objects, the favourite studies of a Japanese artist are the celebrated mountain Fusiyama and "rocks with waterfalls or waves of the sea breaking over them;" sunset and moonlight also are always well rendered, but clouds are never well drawn.

Mr. Audsley next proceeds to pass under review the departments into which he divides Japanese art, viz., enamels, lacquer work, porcelain, metal work, textile art, and carved works. The space at our command will not admit of our following him into details, but we would draw attention to his description of the method of making a plaque of Cloisonne enamel. "The process," he says, "is so difficult that the art has been abandoned in Europe for about six centuries, and only successfully revived within the last few years, by M. Christophile, of Paris," who, however, has again abandoned it. The mode of manufacturing lacquer work is also described as far as it is known in this part of the world. In a separate note, Mr. Audsley gives a useful hint to collectors respecting recent importations of enamels from Japan. "These," he says, "are stated to be of modern manufacture, and their coarse workmanship and purely modern design (in connection with which only traces of the ancient designs appear) clearly stamp them not only as modern productions, but as ware especially made for Europe. Ancient work cannot now be procured in Japan, but many inquiries have of late been made for it at Yokohama and Yedo, and these demands have, doubtless, started the ingenious artisans of the country to produce something of the kind required." Caveat emptor. A comparison of the two photographs of oval dishes at the commencement of the book will at once show the great difference between the genuine article and the modern imitation.

A considerable part of the volume under review is occupied by a Catalogue Raisonné of the Oriental Exhibition of the Liverpool Art Club; this catalogue comprises 1,101 objects, of each of which a brief description is given, and the names of the private exhibitors are attached, the principal contributor being Mr. James L. Bowes. The catalogue, which is a most valuable one, and bears unmistakable signs of the great care expended on it, is divided into nine sections, viz., Enamel, Persian Ware, Satsuma Faience, Kaga Ware, Lacquer Work, Porcelain, Ivory Carvings, Metal Work, and Miscellaneous; to the first six divisions, which comprise 1,028 objects, the bulk of the collection, explanatory notices are prefixed, giving a vast amount of information on the various subjects. We would call particular attention to the dissertations on enamel, lacquer work, and porcelain; in the last we are incidentally told that the very thin porcelain, called egg shell, was invented in China in the reign of Yung lo, one of the earlier Emperors of the Ming Dynasty. Under the head of Kaga ware we notice that Mr. Audsley makes a slight mistake in translating a Chinese character as seven instead of nine.

In conclusion, we cannot say too much in praise of the illustrations, twenty-four in number, with which this volume is embellished; we do not remember ever to have seen more beautifully executed photographs of works of art.

A pamphlet has been published at the office of the Observer Press, Colombo, upon the subject of the coffee enterprise and the necessity for railway extension in the coffee growing districts. It is to be wondered that, in the face of the rapid development of the resources of the island, and the importance of the coffee cultivation, the means of transit, especially in the Ouvah district, should be so lamentably deficient. We trust that before Governor Gregory's term of office expires some important scheme of railway extension will have been introduced in the island.

A letter appears (the first for some weeks) in The Times from the correspondent of that journal at Shanghai, in which the following subjects of news are noticed:—News from Peking has been received of an important victory gained over the Mahomedans in the north-west by the Viceroy of Kansuh. The city of Suh-chow has been captured. Alluding to the attempt to discredit Baron Ritchtofen's statement about the coal-fields of China the writer implies faith in the Baron's opinion as to the magnitude of the coal resources. There has been some excitement in Shanghai about the condition of the River Hwongpoo and a wharf which the China Navigation Company have been erecting off the French settlement. A vote was given at a meeting of residents to stop the work, but the permission of the Chinese authorities having been obtained it is rather a difficult matter to get that sanction cancelled. The Woosung Bar is of course noticed, and no dredging operations have been started.

The Export Merchant Shippers of London is a list which is of considerable value to the mercantile world. Arranged alphabetically the shippers names are given, together with their respective trading ports and the class of goods they customarily ship. Under the head of List of Goods and Merchandise the class of goods shipped by any particular merchant can be found, and this information alone must be very essential to the manufacturer. The knowledge afforded with reference to foreign and colonial traders is a special feature of this work. It is published by Dean and Son, of Fleet-street.

The lecture recently delivered at the Society of Arts by Sir Bartle Frere upon the Bengal Famine is now embodied in a work entitled the "Impending Bengal Famine and How it will be Met." The views of Sir Bartle upon a subject of this kind are of the greatest importance, for not only does he possess a thorough knowledge of the subject but he is at once clear and forcible. There is little reason to doubt that an effective system of drainage and a properly regulated means of communication are great preventatives of famine, and when we consider Sir Bartle's theory that famine is entirely preventible in India as elsewhere, we can but regret his absence from Bengal, where his sound judgment would have been of the greatest assistance in this dire time of need. Native management in times of famine is worthy of example, for last year, which was one of scarcity in Kandeish and Northern Deccan, the calamity was averted, not by Government aid, but by the tact and energy of the native population, who took such precautions that the famine was scarcely heard of in the Indian papers. The line of action to be taken in cases of famine is pointed out by Sir Bartle Frere, and in doing all that is possible for the relief of the starving District of Bengal, it will be a matter for congratulation should the Indian Government succeed in grappling with so desperate an evil without becoming the victims of jobbery.

In Art for March, published by Sampson Low, and Co., the first illustration is a copy of Decamps "Wood Cutter" from the Gallery of M. Durand Ruel in Paris. There is also an example of etching skill by E. Hedouin, the subject being "Ophelia," and a heliotype of Joseph Adams's picture "Raising the Cattle and Lifting the Cattle." A second notice of Holman Hunt's "Shadow of Death," some remarks on Landseer's works, and the usual supply of "Art Gossip," make up a very interesting number.

The A. B. C. Universal, Commercial, Electric Telegraph Code, is a work in which a telegraphic code is explained, which, on account of its simplicity, economy and secrecy, will doubtless be found of great use.

Messrs. Dean and Son announce for publication immediately after the assembling of Parliament, Debrett's House of Commons and the Judicial Bench, which will be edited by Robert H. Mair, LL.D.

HOLLAND.

ROTTERDAM, FEB. 25.

The question if we are to have a Minister of the Naval Department or not still remains unsolved. The Opposition papers think that it is impossible that one man can manage two departments, and they inquire sarcastically if there is not one officer to be found, who will accept the portfolio. I can easily imagine that Mr. V. D. Putte is quite convinced that he cannot bring the navy into a worse condition than it is, and perhaps he will leave the difficult task of reorganisation to his successors, it being quite certain that he will resign office as soon as a treaty of peace is concluded with the Government of Atchin. It may be that the Minister of the War Department will have the opportunity of introducing his Bill about our means of defence, but I shall be much surprised if his ministerial life lasts long enough to see his plans adopted and approved.

I hear that the Queen of England has addressed a letter to the Sultan of Atchin advising him to make peace with Holland. The vote of the Second Chamber, congratulating General van Swieten upon his success, has been telegraphed to Batavia.

The latest telegraphic news from Japan creates much anxiety here, notwithstanding that we are assured that the Dutch residents will find the necessary protection.

A rumour was current some days ago that the King is very seriously ill. It was happily proved to be false; and a satirical paper says that if the King was indisposed it could only have been caused by the disgusting squabble about the presentation to be made to him on the 12th of May. I have told you already that there are about a hundred different plans, and the latest idea is to offer his Majesty the Castle of Heerenberg, valued at about £16,000. The birthday of the King was celebrated on the 19th inst. in the usual way.

The Dutch Trading Company has made a concession to the owners of merchantmen conveying Government produce from Java to our harbours; henceforth it will be permitted to unload the vessel partly or entirely by means of lighters; whilst vessels bound for Rotterdam, Dordrecht, or Schiedam may unload at Flushing, or Middelburg. I have already told you that one of our principal shipowners has established his offices in the last named town. This is a bad sign for Rotterdam.

Affairs at the Bourse remain dull; but money is abundant, so that the Bank has lowered its rate of discount one-half per cent.

PRODUCE MARKETS.

COFFEE.—The market has been very fluctuating. There are but few buyers, and small parcels forced on the market have sold at lower prices. The value of good ordinary Java is now 68c.

TEA.—The cargo of China offered in public auction has not met with a good demand, and the greater part was bought in. On the 7th of March 7,370 chests Java will be brought under the hammer.

RAW SUGAR.—About 9,000 mats, partly floating, were sold at f.2¼ to f.2½ under November prices.

JAVA TOBACCO.—The transactions have included only about 2,000 mats of different marks. Particulars about the prices paid have not transpired.

RICE.—Business has been very limited; only 610 bags Java, ex Ridderkerk, having changed hands at f.10⅝.

SPICES.—A good demand has prevailed for Nutmegs, and prices have advanced, holders being disinclined to operate at the actual quotations. The demand has been principally for export. No. 1 is quoted 206c. to 208c.; No. 2, 196c. to 198c.; No. 3, 170c. to 171c. There was also more demand for Mace, but the transactions were of no importance. Cloves without business.

INDIGO.—About 100 chests Java were sold at firm prices. The market closes firm, especially for superior quality.

RATTANS.—Dull, and it is only at very low rates that buyers are nclined to operate.

GUM DAMAR.—The nominal quotation is 30c

BROWN V. THAMES AND MERSEY MARINE INSURANCE COMPANY.

This was an action on a policy of insurance effected on the iron steamship Knight Templar to recover for a total loss. It was commenced on the 19th ult. The plaintiffs were the members of the firm of Baird and Brown, merchants and shipowners at Glasgow. In 1871 they contracted with Mr. Laurie, of Glasgow, to build them an iron screw-steamer, the Paladin. In December, 1871, they entered into a contract with the same firm for the construction of a sister vessel to the Paladin—the Knight Templar. The Knight Templar was launched in 1872. Her cost was £22,500, and that of her outfit was £2,500. The insurance premiums paid upon her amounted to £2,000, and it was stated that at the time of her loss her total value, owing to the rise in the price of iron, exceeded £33,000. She was insured for £24,000 on hull, and £9,000 on machinery, for a twelvemonth, to commence on the 14th of January, 1873. She was an awning-decked vessel, her tonnage measurement was 1,379 tons, and she received the highest class at Lloyd's. The Knight Templar sailed from Glasgow for Cardiff on the 21st of January, 1873. On the 1st of February she left Cardiff for India with a cargo of coals. She encountered very heavy weather; indeed, one of the witnesses stated that the gale was the most severe one encountered on the coast since the loss of the Royal Charter. About eight o'clock on the morning of the 2nd of February she began to leak, and, as the water gained in spite of all the efforts of the crew, the ship was abandoned and was totally lost. The defence was that the ship was so overloaded as to be unseaworthy, and that therefore the loss was not by the perils insured against. It was also pleaded that the plaintiffs had misrepresented to the defendants that it was intended to navigate the vessel as an awning-decked vessel, with open ports and scuppers, and had concealed the fact that the ports and scuppers were closed in contravention of the rules of Lloyd's. The plaintiffs adduced a large body of evidence to prove that the ship was most carefully constructed, regardless of expense, until the jury interposed with an intimation that they were satisfied of the fact. A large number of experienced shipbuilders, engineers, and nautical experts were called to prove that the vessel was not overloaded or improperly navigated, and that it would have been improper to have navigated her with open ports and scuppers. It was admitted, however, that a lower load line would have been necessary had the ports and scuppers been open.

Lord Chief Justice Coleridge addressed the jury in a very careful and elaborate summing up, which occupied two hours and a half in delivery. His Lordship went carefully through the evidence as to the weather the vessel encountered, and finally asked the jury whether the plaintiffs knowingly overloaded the ship so as to render her unseaworthy and sent her to sea in that condition, and whether the loss was occasioned by such unseaworthiness; and also whether the plaintiffs made the alleged misrepresentations and concealment, and whether they were such as materially to increase the risk.

The jury answered all the questions in favour of the plaintiffs, for whom a verdict was accordingly entered.

COLLISION CASE.—THE "AJAX."

This was a cause of damage by collision. About one P.M. on the 8th of November last, the plaintiff's steamship Kelloe was lying at anchor in Bugby's Reach, in the River Thames, when Holt's steamship Ajax, from Shanghai to London, in tow of a tug, came into collision with the Kelloe, caused her chain to break, and obliged those on board to put her ashore to save her from sinking. For the defence it was alleged that the Ajax was being rounded, with her head to tide, to go into the Victoria Dock; and it was contended that if the Kelloe had paid out cable there would not have been a collision, and that if any one on board the Ajax was to blame it was the pilot, whom the defendants were compelled to take.

The Court was of opinion that the crew of the Ajax was to blame for the collision, and that, therefore, the owners were liable. Decree accordingly.

Monetary and Commercial.

The London manager of the Hong Kong and Shanghai Banking Corporation has received a telegram from the head office at Hong Kong informing him that at the half-yearly meeting just held there a dividend of 4 per cent. for the past six months was declared, and 26,000 dollars carried forward to new account, making, with the dividend of 6 per cent. for the previous six months, 10 per cent. for the year 1873.

The report of the London and San Francisco Bank (Limited) shows the profits for the year to have been £88,952, of which £36,000 was distributed in September as a dividend of 12s. per share. A like dividend is now recommended, making 24s., or 12 per cent. for the year, together with an appropriation of £10,000 to reserve.—The report of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company (Limited) recommends a dividend of £2 8s. per share, being at the rate of 20 per cent., making with the amount already paid 25 per cent. for the year.—The report of the British Land Company shows an available total of £10,571, and recommends a dividend of 3 per cent., against 4 per cent. in the previous year.—The report of the Liverpool and London and Globe Insurance Company shows the fire premiums in 1873 to have been £1,168,733, while the claims were £551,705, which, allowing for expenses, leaves £299,417. After providing £2,464,657 as the reserve for the life assurances and annuities, the actuarial valuation of that department exhibits a surplus of £84,251. A dividend of 10 per cent. is recommended. —The directors of the Commercial Union Assurance Company have resolved to recommend at the annual meeting a dividend of 10 per cent. (making, with the interim payment in Sept., 12½ per cent. for the year), and to appropriate £10,000 to reserve, leaving £26,961 to be carried forward.—The report of the Australian Meat Agency (Tallerman's) Company (Limited) recommends a dividend at the rate of 10 per cent. per annum.

The P. and O. Company announce, with reference to a circular letter addressed to their proprietors by the brokers of the "New South Wales Collieries Company (Limited)," recommending the shares in the latter undertaking as a secure and profitable investment, that the communication in question has been made without the sanction or knowledge of their board or any of its members.

The report of the Bank of Belgium and Holland (Limited) shows an available total of £36,021, and recommends a dividend of £6 10s. per share for the year 1873, leaving, after an appropriation of £2,000 to reserve (thus raised to £3,000), a balance of £1,521 to be carried forward.

The directors of the India-Rubber, Gutta-Percha, and Telegraph Works Company (Limited) report that the net result of the year's trading showed a credit balance of only £9,090 to be transferred to profit and loss account, which, with the amount (£32,500) brought forward from the year 1872, made a total of £41,590. The general business of the company had been fairly remunerative.

The project for a Light Atlantic Telegraph Cable has fallen through, a circular having been issued stating that "the number of shares applied for by the public not being sufficient to enable the directors to make arrangements for laying a cable during this year, they have resolved to make no allotment, but to return the deposit moneys in full to each applicant." The circular attributes the failure of the scheme to "the prejudiced attacks made by interested parties on this undertaking casting doubts on the minds of investors as to the practicability of laying and working a light cable."

The steamer Ionia takes out the following machinery, sent by Messrs. Wilson and Co. :—Two sets sugar mills with boilers complete for Sourabaya, one set ditto for Samarang, and two portable land engines and boilers for Batavia.

Bar silver has been sold at prices varying from 58½d. to 58 9-10d. per oz. standard, principally for India. The market has been cleared of Mexican dollars for shipment to China and the Straits. £120,000 arrived from New York to-day remain to be dealt with.

The bullion by the P. and O. steamer Mirzapore, from Southampton, Feb. 26, was in silver to Shanghai, £13,914; to Hong Kong, £81,450; total in silver £95,364.

The Nederland Company's steamer Konig der Nederlanden has sailed from Southampton, with £3,600 in specie for Batavia and £7,000 for Samarang.

TEA.

The market has been very quiet this week, and prices have given way to the extent of 2d. per lb. as regards common to fair Congous, which have been in abundant supply. The position of Tea for the next few months is sound, but it will require some management on the part of importers to maintain present rates, as dealers at the current range will only take supplies for immediate requirements; importers therefore must hold the stock, which will be worked down to a safe point before the new leaf can arrive. An important change has been brought about by the working of the Adulteration Act, the demand for Canton Scenteds now running exclusively on olive coloured kinds, and these rule at extreme rates, 1s. 8d. to 1s. 9d. for good medium Caper, while glazed kinds, owing to the strong prejudice, rule at a low standard; and it would be well if operators in Canton season 1874-5 discourage altogether the manufacture of glazed leaf, either Orange Pekoe or Caper, in which case the Adulteration Act will have done great good for the trade. The consumption of Scented Tea is as large as ever, and there is good prospect for pure quality. Green Tea has recovered its former position, and as regards figures is highly favourable; the heavy shipments of late to New York and Canada have reduced the stock, and the shipments to come forward are smaller than for many past years. Moyune kinds rule exceptionally high, but Pingsueys can be bought reasonable; medium quality ruling 3d. to 4d. per lb. under last year's prices, though the average quality of Teas are decidedly preferable, and free from the objectionable colouring matter. Japan leaf: The late imports have realised very unsatisfactory prices, coming at the time of a good export demand.

Messrs. Capel and Co.'s Circular says: The continued slackness of the export demand, with only a moderate inquiry for the Home Trade, has caused a dulness in our market, business being on a limited scale; and, although importers generally show great firmness, prices for some kinds have ruled in favour of buyers. In public sales 10,043 packages have been offered, of which 8,935 packages have been sold without reserve, the remainder, with reserved prices fixed, being withdrawn. The deliveries for the week amount to 2,936,000 lbs., against 3,298,000 lbs., last year.

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co. report on the Silk market as follows:—The public sales which commenced on the 25th ult. did not terminate till the 27th. The chief feature is the sale without reserve of a large quantity of Thrown Silk, at irregular rates. In Raws there is very little doing, and the market is very quiet, at unchanged prices. Deliveries do not improve, being since 1st ult. 2,237 China, 608 Japan.

COFFEE.—The supply at auction has been light, but the demand has been without improvement and prices have been very irregular. Plantation Ceylon has sold, triage at 104s. to 115s. 6d., small 120s. to 124s. 6d., low middling at 124s. 6d. to 127s., middling at 127s. 6d. to 128s. 6d., pea-berry at 123s. to 126s. 6d. Native Ceylon, small at 95s. to 98s., good ordinary to fine ordinary at 106s. 6d. to 108s. 6d., good bold pale at 107s. to 108s. 6d., pea-berry at 105s. 6d. to 106s. 6d. For arrival 100 tons Plantation Ceylon crops and 300 casks marks and ships declared have been sold, prices not reported.

COCOA-NUT OIL is not in much request. Cochin is quoted at £40; Ceylon, £35 10s. per ton.

HEMP.—Manila continues extremely quiet, and no business has been transacted during the week.

PEPPER.—Black: At the public sales there has been more disposition to meet the market, and a decline of fully ⅜d. per lb. has been accepted for Singapore and Batavia, and ⅛d. for Penang. Of 3,110 bags offered about 2,000 bags found buyers; 1,007 bags Singapore chiefly sold at 6⅝d. to 6¾d., 1,036 bags Batavia were forced off at 6⅛d. to 6¼d.; of 679 bags Penang 150 bags sold at 6⅝d. White: Only 105 bags Singapore have been offered by auction and sold more readily at steady rates, good bold at 9¼d. to 9⅜d.

RICE.—There has been an improved demand for floating cargoes, and a good business has been done at firmer rates. For arrival 300 tons Madras, February to April shipment, have been sold at 12s. 6d., 500 tons ditto ditto at 12s. 3d., and 200 tons ditto at 12s. 1½d., quay terms. And the following floating cargoes:—One of 1,800 tons new Necransie, spring shipment, at 11s., open charter; one of 1,000 tons new Rangoon, for London direct, at 11s. 3d.; one of 1,200 tons new Rangoon, United Kingdom direct, at 11s. 4½d.; one of 700 tons ditto, spring shipment, at 11s. 6d., open charter.

SPICES.—The market has exhibited no alteration.

SUGAR.—The market has been quiet, and with only a moderate inquiry sales have been small.

SAGO.—In auction 1,798 bags met a steady demand, and 1,250 bags sold at firm prices; ordinary discoloured small at 14s. 6d. to 15s.; fair to good fair small, 16s. 6d. to 17s.; fair medium at 18s.; fair to good large at 19s. to 19s. 6d.

TAPIOCA.—430 bags Singapore were all sold at steady rates; good greyish at 2⅛d.; bold greyish at 2⅛d. to 2¼d.; fine white, 2¼d. to 2⅜d.; 200 bags old Penang bought in at 2¼d. Pearl: 40 bags medium sold at 22s. 9d., being again rather dearer.

TIN is again lower, and the price of Straits seems at length to have reached a figure which must cause the closing of many Cornish mines. Quotations are, Straits on the spot £99 to £100, afloat £98 to £99; Banca £106, Billiton £104 per ton.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

Since the 20th ult. the market has continued quiet, and prices fairly steady, except in the low ordinary descriptions of Grey Shirtings, which have declined somewhat in value. Producers of the better makes still refuse to entertain business at any reduction on their quotations, and continue to find buyers on a moderate scale, which, with previous sales serve to keep production engaged for some time in advance.

HOLLOWAY'S PILLS

AND OINTMENT.—RHEUMATISM AND GOUT.—These purifying and soothing remedies deserve the earnest attention of all persons liable to gout, sciatica, or other painful affections of the muscles, nerves, or joints. The Ointment should be applied after the affected parts have been patiently fomented with warm water, when the unguent should be diligently rubbed upon the adjacent skin, unless the friction causes pain. Holloway's Pills should be simultaneously taken to diminish pain, reduce inflammation, and purify the blood. This treatment abates the violence and lessens the frequency of gout, rheumatism, and all spasmodic diseases which spring from hereditary predisposition, or from any accidental weakness of constitution. The Ointment checks the local malady, while the Pills restore vital power.

Summary of News from the Far East.

JAPAN.

YOKOHAMA.

Our advices from this port by the present mail extend to the 20th Jan.; the French mail from London Nov. 21 arrived out on the 11th Jan. The Japan Herald contains the following items of news:—

The new Custom House at Yokokama, the largest building of its kind in Japan, has been opened. The original cost was to have been $75,000, including a tower ninety feet in height. From causes of which the Japanese are doubtless cognisant, the cost finally amounted to $100,000, without the tower before mentioned; and the completion was delayed some ten months longer than originally agreed upon. The structure stands on an extensive open piece of ground, and is surrounded by a substantial wall. There are two principal gates, one at the front and one at the back, both of tasteful design, and the approaches, as well as the entrance, are lighted with gas. The length of the edifice, including the two wings, is 150ft.; width, 42ft. The wings are 45ft. square each. The external staircase in the front is 22ft. square, and 28ft. high. There is also a construction of similar dimensions at the back of the building. The lower story, or basement, is built of red granite, the upper portions of Idziu-madara stone, and the pilasters and facings of green stone. The basement windows are barred, and the lower parts of the upper windows are tastefully decorated with iron fretwork. The top of the staircase, as it now stands, is surrounded with an iron railing, as is also the construction in a line with it at the back. The whole is surmounted by a good bold cornice, above which again figures what is intended to be a fire-wall. This is intersected at stated distances by panels with circular heads, intended to represent continuations of the columns running up the sides of the building through the cornice.

The Government has seen fit to remove Oye Taku from his present post of Gon no Kami at Yokohama to the Kobusho at Tokio, a position where he will have less opportunities of doing mischief than here. Oye Taku's career in Yokohama has been principally distinguished by the issue of proclamations, several of which, being illegal, we have had to comment on in terms justified by the occasion; our strictures were necessary and salutary. The proclamations to which we allude Oye Taku was directed by the superior authorities at Tokio to withdraw. His successor in office, we are informed, is to be Nakashima Nobuyuki, the present Commissioner of Customs, who, warned by the errors committed by his predecessor will, it is to be hoped, pursue a course more conducive to the success of his administration, and which will necessitate no unfavourable criticism from the press.

The Ministry of the Interior has just been organised. It is divided into several departments, viz:—Department of the Post-office, Department of Agriculture, Trade and Industry, Department of Census, Department of Police, Department of Public Roads and Lands, Department of Waterworks and Buildings.

A Government proclamation has been published, imposing a tax on the income of Kuazoku (ex-Daimios), and the salaries of officers. We learn its rates are as follows:—The tax upon the incomes (except upon private properties) of ex-Daimios is to be thirty per cent.; on the salaries of officers five per cent. Officers who get less than $100 per month are to be exempt from the new impost.

A Japanese correspondent writes us that the rice crop in the principal rice-growing districts is very much below the average of the past three years, the crops during which time were very good. Notwithstanding the falling off this season, there is plenty of rice stored in Japan, the surplus of former years, to feed the population, and to permit a portion of this season's crop to be exported.

The troubles in the provinces of Satsuma and Higo are quite settled. Several of the leaders of the rebels have been imprisoned.

The foreign Ministers and their families are invited to a reception by the Mikado, which will take place on the 20th Jan., at Hamagoten.

A Government mail line has been established between Yedo and Lew-Kew (or Lew-Chew). A steamer will run from this month henceforward.

The Herald gives the following account of the destruction of the great Temple of Shiba:—

At one o'clock of the morning of the 1st of January an alarm of fire was given by the bells of the Shiba quarter, and, in less than half an hour, repeated in every part of Yedo. No such mass of flame had been witnessed since the burning of the Monzeki temple, in April, 1872, and the effect was naturally intensified by the darkness of the night. Numbers of foreigners, as well as a multitude of citizens, speedily gathered upon the scene, and watched the gradual destruction of the largest, and most imposing in appearance, of the temples of Zozo. It was soon apparent, however, that no danger of a general conflagration need be anticipated. The surrounding shrines and temples were at no time imperilled, and still less the residences of the numerous foreign employés of the Government who occupy contiguous buildings. Yedo has the most easily awakened populace in the world, and in less than a quarter of an hour after the first bell had sounded, all the avenues leading to the great gate were blockaded. The police, arriving soon after, cleared the space in front of the temple, and admitted none beyond the two-storied porch excepting officers, firemen, and such foreigners as were attracted to the spot. For the firemen there was little work to do, and it is a question whether, on this occasion, they might not as well have stayed at home. The temple was doomed before they were called upon, and except to make a show of resistance by arraying themselves with their fantastic standard in front of, and, at times, inside the consuming edifice, there was no opportunity for the display of their energy and courage. By three o'clock, the temple, excepting a few of the thick columns that had supported the roof, was a pile of embers. The burning belfry then attracted attention. The bell itself had become red hot, and apparently had cracked, although it was impossible to be certain on that point. A little later it fell from its timbers, and remained standing nearly upright upon the ground. Since the morning of the fire, the square in front of Zozoji has been enclosed with high fences, and no person is allowed to visit the ruins.

The Japan Mail gives the following items:—

The Christmas and New Year's holidays have transferred the attention of the residents from business to pleasure. The weather at the close of the old year was bright and lovely, but New Year's Day brought a change to snow and biting wind, which made the usual congratulatory visiting a severe test of resolution. In consequence of the holidays business has been greatly restricted. Stocks of imports, as well as shipments hither, are heavy, and the year opens with no very bright commercial prospects.

The foreign representatives paid their respects to the Mikado on New Year's day, and the customary congratulatory addresses were made. We are informed that the addresses have given serious offence in high quarters.

A patriotic party, pledged to progress, but desirous of cancelling all financial obligations to foreigners, is said to be agitating for the repayment of the foreign loans as soon as possible. The interest in current events awakened by the native newspapers is said to be largely on the increase, and meetings of intelligent young men—more especially of such as have been abroad—for purposes of discussion, are said to be becoming more general.

J. R. Lucas, master of the Vanguard, from London, has been fined $60 for breaking the seals put upon his hatches by the Custom-house authorities, whose dilatoriness in visiting the vessel was alleged as his excuse.

Professor Summers has announced his intention of continuing here the publication of the Phœnix, a serial devoted to Oriental subjects, hitherto published in London.

PEKING.

On the 5th Jan. Prince Kung, accompanied by Shin Kwei-fun, President of the Board of War, Changlun, President of the Board of Works, and Chunghow, Vice-President of the Board of War, and also all chiefs of the Tsungli Yamun, called upon the Foreign Ministers at their residences, to congratulate them on the New Year, commencing with the Peruvian Legation; after that going to the French, and so on to all the others. The Russian New Year not having yet come the officials did not visit the Russian Legation, but will do so on the 12th Jan., or later. On the 6th Wanseang, Minister of State, Paoukuen, President of the Board of Magistracy, and Chinglin, Vice-President of the Lefanyuen and Lieut.-General of the Nine Gates of Peking—all three officials being also chiefs of the Tsungli Yamun—called upon the Foreign Ministers to congratulate them on the new year, beginning with the Peruvian Legation, as the Prince had done on the preceding day.

In the Gazette of the 5th January there is a decree stating that although his Majesty had offered up his prayers for snow on the 30th and 31st December, yet the quantity of snow which had since fallen was inadequate for the wants of the country; his Majesty, therefore, had resolved to again offer up prayers for more snow; and would consequently on the 7th repair to the Takam-teen (temple) for that purpose. His Majesty had also commanded Prince Tun (uncle of the present Emperor) to pray for snow at the Sze-ying-kwang; Prince Kung to pray at the Chaou-keen-meaou; Prince Chun to pray at the Seuen-jin meaou; and Prince Fuh to pray at the Ningho-meaou. All these temples are situated within the Yellow or Imperial city, which neither foreigners nor the Chinese people are allowed to enter, so it is impossible to give any description of what took place.

In the Peking Gazette of 1st Jan. there is a memorial from Le Hung-chang, Viceroy of the province of Chihli, drawn up in reply to observations made by a high functionary of the Ningko-heosze, named Sung, in a memorial to the Emperor respecting the draining of the inundated districts of the Tientsin prefectures, &c. Sung, in his memorial to his Majesty on the subject, had proposed that the moneys which had been appropriated by the Central Government for the support of the distressed people should be employed instead in paying for manual labour rendered by the able-bodied men of the districts in making fresh channels for the draining of the inundated regions, and in this manner the population would at the same time be supported. The Viceroy replies that he has a plan of his own which he would put into operation next spring, and which will save the region from inundations in future; but he at the same time remarks that it must be borne in mind at Peking that the funds at his disposal for the purpose are very limited. He does not consider, further, that the observations of Sung are of any importance in carrying out the work.

In the same Gazette there is another memorial from Le Hung-chang, in which he informs the Emperor that Chin-kin, the Customs Taoutai at Tientsin, had presented "The Distressed Fund" established for the support of the suffering population of Chihli with the sum of Tls. 7,000; and he has, therefore, to pray that his Majesty will be pleased to bestow a peacock's feather on the donor, as a mark of special favour, for his charitable gift.

SHANGHAI.

The present mail brings advices from this port to the 23rd Jan.; the French mail from London Dec. 5 arrived out on the 22nd January. The following items of news are from the North China Herald:—

A meeting of subscribers to Trinity Church was held on the 16th Jan. The accounts show a balance in hand of Tls.431. The revenue was greater than the preceding year by Tls.500, but sundry expenses had to be incurred for repairs, &c., which reduced the balance. The trustees were instructed to ask the firms interested in the Parsonage Loan to cancel their debt. Only two answers have been received to the trustees' advertisement for an assistant chaplain, from which it is inferred that a larger salary than the £600 offered may have to be given. One of the applicants is Mr. Kauffman, whom many of our readers will remember as Mr. Syle's predecessor. A suggestion for the removal of the Main Guard seemed to find favour, but we have some idea that the Municipal Council, as representing the Volunteer Corps, is interested in that building, and might object to its demolition. The compound would of course look better entirely open; but from the standpoint taken, we should say the shops on the west front were quite as objectionable occupants of the land. The argument of desecration is too absurd.

Mr. Samuel Brown has instituted an action against the Union Steam Navigation Company, in which he is a shareholder, seeking its dissolution, and compensation to himself for loss sustained through the alleged illegal transformation of the company effected at a meeting on the 31st March, 1873, when a previous resolution for winding up the company was rescinded, and it was resolved to continue its operations on the coast instead of the Yangtsze. The defendants have entered a demurrer to the suit, praying, on grounds stated, that the petition be dismissed without an answer being required. This demurrer was argued at length on the 16th January, before the chief judge, who reserved his decision.

The Yang Yeh-lin case has inspired the Chehsien with a proclamation against theatre-going, which we print below. That the acting at Chinese theatres is demoralising is beyond question; but that Yang individually was especially responsible is nonsense. His name is a convenient peg on which to hang the lecture, and the lecture is a convenient opportunity for blackening him.

"Whereas the Litterati of Shanghai, Cheng Kwei-yin and others, have petitioned, setting forth that on the Foreign Settlements the numerous theatres encourage dissipation and lead to good people being contaminated by contact with the bad. That in the case of the actor Yang Yeh-lin, his examination has brought to light proofs of a life of immorality. That by the obscenity of his acting he has led astray wives and daughters of respectable families. They, therefore, pray that Yang Yeh-lin be severely dealt with, and that a proclamation be issued ordering all heads of families to control their female inmates and not allow them to enter the theatres. On receipt of this petition, it becomes the duty of me, the Chehsien, to request that the Mixed Court magistrate issues a prohibitory notice to the above effect; and be it hereby known to all people of this town, that the heads of families are ordered to restrict their women and prohibit them from attending the theatres, in order that the morality of the place be not injured. Let each one tremblingly obey."

It is questionable how far this prohibition will have effect. The annual denunciations of the Taoutai against women going publicly to worship are quite futile; but they are recognised as platitudes, while it seems to be thought that the Cheh-sien means this; and as he has succeeded in inspiring considerable awe, his order may have effect. The Taoutai has struck the evil much nearer the root in prohibiting obscene plays.

Apropos of Yang Yeh-lin, we hear that his bride has since declared in court that her father was cognisant of the marriage. Yang's friends declared this at the time, and if true it must put the magistrate in rather an awkward position. For what has he inflicted all this brutal punishment on the man?—for marrying a girl with her parents' consent? Both Yang and his wife are still in gaol in the city, but we hear the intention to banish him has been abandoned. It is said, indeed that the Taoutai views with disfavour the severity of the punishment already inflicted. We are glad to see that the Shunpao contains a letter from a Cantonese literate repudiating sympathy in the proceedings.

A rather interesting case of theft has been brought before the Mixed Court. A lady had dropped a valuable bracelet in her brougham, while driving. She did not at the time notice the loss; but the mafoo and the water-coolie did, and quickly turned the treasure to account, though of course they were innocent when questioned. The police were communicated with, and succeeded in tracing the missing article. A sapphire and fifteen out of twenty diamonds which constituted the setting have been recovered, and the man who bought the gold has been ordered to pay its value. Chên expressed much surprise at a lady wearing such a valuable ornament while driving, and not missing it when she dropped it. But the ways of foreigners were peculiar!

A telegram has been received at the P.M.S. Co.'s office here, to the effect that the Relief, the steamer due in Shanghai on the 21st Jan., had been lost off the island of Hirado, near Spex Straits. The date is not given, but the steamer was due in Nagasaki on the 18th, and it is probable that the accident occurred the previous day. The passengers, mails, and $60,000 treasure were saved, and transferred to the Golden Age, which would pass about the same time for Hiogo, but which returned with this freight and the news to Nagasaki. A subsequent telegram reports that the general cargo of the Relief is safe, and would be sent for. No further particulars are given.

The seat-letting of the New Lyceum Theatre has, so far, been attended with results exceeding the expectations of the most sanguine. All the boxes have been taken at their upset value of Tls. 50 each, while close on three hundred of the stalls, or nearly three-fourths of the whole, have been let. A revenue of Tls. 3,000 is thus already secured, and as many applications may yet be expected for season tickets, and a considerable revenue be anticipated also from the "casual ward" of the ample gallery, the prospects of the theatre seem promising enough to make its debenture stock a good investment.

A correspondent suggests that an aviary would be an interesting addition to the public garden; the wire cages for the waterfowl might project into the river, which is very shallow and little used off the garden front. No doubt a valuable collection might soon be made, if anyone would undertake the trouble of management. But we have heard the same idea mooted in connection with the recreation-ground in the interior of the race-course. Some effort at a zoological collection might accompany the conversion of that waste into a park.

The case of the Municipal Council v. Kate Yessop or Jessop, being an appeal from the decision of the Law Secretary in December last, by which the defendant was convicted of supplying liquor and keeping a house of entertainment without having obtained the necessary license, came before Sir E. Hornby on the 16th Jan., when his lordship upheld the decision of the magistrate. Judgment has been given in the U. S. Consular Court in the case Moller Maitland and Co. v. Jenkins, in favour of the petitioners.

The junk sunk at the entrance to Woosung has been blown up by the Kua-Hsing. It was rice-laden, and the owners saved a considerable portion of the cargo, which was, of course, much damaged. We hear that the Kua-Hsing has now gone up the Yangtsze, and will place a red buoy on the starboard side of the channel at the Dove's-nest.

We hear it has been decided to send No. 5 frigate, now lying at the Arsenal embarking guns and stores, on a trial trip to Poo-too next month. The vessel will be entirely in charge of Chinese.

A curious incident was remarked on the 21st January on the French Bund. The morning was perfectly calm, when suddenly a thin column of dust, from twenty to thirty feet high, was raised by an aerial current, and, starting from Kin-lee-yuen, was whirled along the whole length of the Bund.

We hear that the approach of the New Year settling time is regarded with considerable apprehensiveness in Chinese commercial circles, and that the native banks are keeping a sharp eye on some of their clients. A man bolted the other day, leaving liabilities to the extent of Tls. 7,000, for which his security is held answerable. The bank interested at once sent and seized the securer, lest he should emulate the example of the secured; and as he was not prepared to give security that he would not attempt to evade his responsibilities, he was by order of the Mixed Court Magistrate held in durance till he should do this. It is feared that this case will be followed by many others of a similar nature.

We hear the Ningpo Guilds are thinking of having a line of telegraph erected from the city to the Fire Station in the Foreign Settlement—a notable fact if true. They have applied to Major Watson, of the Anglo-Chinese Force, who is an enthusiastic amateur in such matters, to carry out the idea. Very probably the visit of the H. C. Orsted, and Mr. Dreyer's explanations to the Taoutai and his suite, had something to do with the project; though for that matter hundreds of Ningpo men going backwards and forwards to Shanghai must be aware of the Shanghai system of telegraphy, and may have carried down the suggestion.

We have to welcome back the Evening Gazette, which reappeared on the 15th Jan., after four-and-a-half months of intermission, caused by the burning of Ching-foong printing-office.

A fire has occurred in a Chinese brothel at the back of Smith's market (near the Yang-king-pang). Five houses were burnt. The property was fully insured.

FOOCHOW.

The following items are from the Foochow Herald:—

Snow was seen on Kushan and the surrounding hills on the 20th Jan.

The second meeting of creditors in the estate of J. S. Lamont, a bankrupt took place on Tuesday, the 19th Jan., at the Vice-Consulate, before George Phillips, Esq., H.B.M. Vice-Consul. The several claims (with the exception of Mr. Forster's, withdrawn) against the bankrupt's estate, put in to the present date, were brought forward and duly passed by the body of creditors; and the trustee of the estate, Mr. Phillips, announced his intention of disallowing any claim coming in after the 28th February, after which date he should proceed to declare a dividend. The Court commented very strongly on the reckless prodigality, nearly amounting to criminality, of the bankrupt's expenditure, and sharply reprimanded him for the false statements he had everywhere made, to the effect that his employer, Mr. Forster, had not paid him his salary for the last three months that he was in his service.

A meeting took place at Messrs. Gilman and Co.'s on the 17th January, with reference to the supply of ice, and the committee appointed at a former meeting suggested that a certain number of gentlemen be appointed to make arrangements for obtaining machinery from England—those interested in the supply duly guaranteeing the cost of the same; and that when arrangements have been completed and the full cost ascertained, a company be formed and the shares allotted to the guarantors, pro rata, according to the amount each shall have guaranteed. So far as can be judged, the whole cost of new machinery, including a soda water apparatus, will not exceed $7,000, and the committee believe that the services of a competent engineer can be obtained for a salary of $1,800 per annum. They are of opinion that a fair return on the capital invested will be obtainable, without raising the price of ice beyond what has hitherto been charged, viz., five cents. per lb.

HONG KONG.

Our advices by the present mail extend to the 29th Jan.; the P. and O. mail from London Dec. 12 arrived out on the 24th Jan. The Hong Kong Daily Press gives the following account of the rejoicings which took place in honour of the marriage of the Duke of Edinburgh :—

From the harbour bunting waved in all directions, the different vessels hoisting the colours simultaneously at eight in the morning. H.M.S. Princess Charlotte flew at the main-mast head, side by side, facing forward, the Russian and British standards, and at each mast head were the usual decorations. The gunboats Kestrel and Opossum had their flags in full display, and ornamental crowns were hung between the masts. The Russian corvette Ascold, and all the English war vessels, were profuse in exhibition of colours, the flags in several of the instances being not inappropriately joined. The U.S. ships Iroquois and Monocacy were not behind; and the Japanese corvette was decorated extensively, and presented all the appearance of a European war vessel. The P. and O. boats, the Pacific Mail, the Police Chop, as well as many of the other vessels in harbour, joined in the general exhibition; and flags were flying during the day from the principal business houses and many private residences in the colony. On the flag staff in the Government Naval-yard was a large garland, with the British and Russian Standards hoisted above at equal height, emblematic of the union, and above were imitations of the crowns of both countries. At noon, royal salutes were fired simultaneously from the battery on shore, the Princess Charlotte, the Russian frigate Ascold, the Monocacy, and the Japanese man-of-war. In the afternoon a review of the troops took place on the Parade Ground, which was witnessed by a large concourse of people. Line was then formed on the left, and a feu-de-joie was fired in honour of the marriage, the band meantime playing the National Anthem. This was followed by three ringing cheers from the ranks, led off by his Excellency. The men were then formed into square, and faced inwards, when the Governor briefly addressed them. The men were then again wheeled into line, formed fours, and left the field. All the public offices were closed for the day, and several mercantile and other establishments suspended business. In the evening a banquet was given by Major-General Whitfield at Headquarter House, in honour of the occasion, and rejoicings also took place at several other official residences in the colony. After dark, illuminations were exhibited at the Russian Consulate, and other places. In connection with the celebration a reception is to take place at Government House on the 2nd Feb.

The Gazette notifies that the Hon. C. C. Smith and Messrs. Price and Thomsett have been appointed by H.E. the Governor as a committee to enquire into the advisability of granting permission to the P. & O. Company to erect a pier opposite Marine lots No. 71, 71a, 72 and 72a, and that any persons having objections are to give notice to the Surveyor-General before the 28th.

The only case before the sitting magistrate (Mr. May) was a somewhat important gambling case, brought forward by Inspector Grey, who charged eleven men with the offence. The man who gave the information under which the warrant was granted, and who was in the room, was produced as Queen's evidence. The first and second defendants were masters of the game, and the other defendants being caught in the act, they were sentenced as follows:—The first and second defendants fined $200 each, in default, six months' imprisonment with hard labour; he others fined $50 each, in default, three months' imprisonment.

The Princess Charlotte being removed to near the Praya, it may be suggested to the naval authorities that it would be well to reduce the saluting to the minimum compatible with naval etiquette, as it is unfortunately attended with the smashing of a considerable number of windows, and consequently causes no little expense and inconvenience.

We are glad to hear that the difficulty with regard to the Marie Louise, in Manila, has been settled to some extent by the supercargo, who was detained, having managed to get away in a steamer which was leaving. This will probably obviate any difficulty which might arise from his detention, and the other matters will be merely a question of compensation.

At the recent meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, Mr. Cameron stated that the new American trade dollar had not yet been adopted at Foochow, but that doubtless this would be the case shortly. We observe that the Foochow Herald of the 22nd states that a proclamation has now been issued by the Viceroy, declaring that coin a legal tender.

THE HONG KONG HOTEL COMPANY (LIMITED).

Report of the directors presented at the ordinary meeting of shareholders, 29th January:—

"The profit and loss account shows that the net profit for the period under review amounts to $7,354.77, which, with the balance of $1,376.76 brought forward from the previous half-year, leaves a sum of $8,731.53 for disposal, and the directors recommend the payment of a dividend of $2 per share, making 5 per cent. on the par value of the shares for the past year; this will absorb a sum of $3,716, and they further recommend that the sum of $5,000 be carried to depreciation account, leaving a balance of $15.53 to be carried forward.

"It is gratifying to the Board to be able to announce that, after long negotiations, they have succeeded in concluding a fresh lease with Messrs. Nowrojee and Hinkee, at a monthly rental of $1,900 for the term of five years, and from the energy and attention shown by the management, the Board are sanguine that the establishment will fully retain the high character it has hitherto enjoyed. Although the rent to be received is somewhat less than last year, the directors were unanimously of opinion that it was to the interest of the proprietary to accept the terms offered, as by so doing there is every prospect of paying an annual dividend of $5 per cent., and at the same time materially reducing the company's debt.

"According to section 82 of the Articles of Association, two of the directors, Messrs. E. R. Belilios and A. André, retire, but are eligible for re-election.

"Messrs. H. Foss and H. C. Erdmann, retiring auditors, offer themselves for re-election, and are recommended by the Board accordingly. "E. R. BELILIOS, Chairman."

An extraordinary general meeting of the Canton Insurance Company was held at the offices of the company on the 26th of January. There were present—Hon. J. Whittall (presiding), Messrs. T. Pyke, S. D. Sassoon, H. Loucock, J. Greig, E. R. Belilios, D. Welsh, N. I. Ede, Murray, and Pye. Two resolutions were proposed and carried, the first of which was that a reserve fund should be established, and the second being to the effect that the offer from the general agents to place the required amount of $250,000, out of their own funds, at once, with one of the banks, to be used to all intents and purposes as if the reserve fund already formed, be accepted. A vote of thanks to Messrs. Jardine, Matheson and Co. closed the proceedings.

MANILA.

The correspondent of the Daily Press writes :—We learn from a correspondent that the screw-steamer Lap-tek arrived on the 13th, bringing winning lottery tickets from China to the value of $61,000 for the month of December. Three hundred and seventy Chinese passengers were brought over, all, doubtless, eager to make their fortunes. In this place their peaceful and industrious habits insure them at all times constant employment; this, with the full protection they enjoy, induces large numbers to settle here for life, as they are at least freed from the tyranny of mandarin squeezes.

The Straits Times brought by the last French mail was forbidden circulation, as it contained matter not fit to place in the hands of any intending insurgents to read.

A party of five had some very excellent sports during a week spent on the mountain—110 deer, eight wild buffaloes, and three wild pigs, were brought down. For snipe and small birds the season is getting well advanced. Coffee is steadily advancing, the present price being $26. The crops are very inferior and scarce. Cigars continue high, and not of good value; cheroots are dear, but they are of better quality.

SAIGON.

We notice that Mr. Caswell, H.B.M.'s Consul at Saigon, is a passenger by the present French mail to Marseilles; and in L'Independant we find the following letter of farewell addressed to him by the Singapore, Chinese, and other British residents at the French Colony :—

To James George Caswell, Esq., H.B.M.'s Consul, Saigon.

SIR,—We, the undersigned, the British subjects, having been notified that you are shortly to leave this colony for England, desire to express to you our high appreciation of your character and to give testimony to your general and courteous bearing in all matters of Consular duty. We have always found you willing to listen to the most trivial matters as well as to those of importance. It is not necessary for us to dilate at length on the manner in which you have represented our beloved Queen in this distant Colony, but permit us to say that you have done honour to the high position, and we sincerely hope that you may again return here and resume the position which you are now about to vacate, and you may count on a warm welcome.

In conclusion, we one and all wish you a safe and prosperous passage home, a happy meeting with your family, and God's blessing on all dear to you.

We remain, Sir, your most obedient servants,

(Signed by) TANKENG SENG AND BROTHERS,
And the British subjects of Saigon.

on Malacca, and that H.E. the Governor, accompanied by the Attorney-General, intends leaving on a visit to Rumbow, Salangore, and Langat, with a view to settling the disturbances that have so long paralysed trade in those districts.

Messrs. Buyers and Robb launched from their shipyard at Teluk Ayer a handsome little steamer, built for his Highness the Rajah of Sarawak. Her dimensions are—Length over all, 78ft.; extreme breadth, 10ft. 9in.; depth (moulded), 7ft. 6in. Her engines are of 24-horse power, constructed by Hall, Russell, and Co., of Aberdeen. The little vessel was not named; it had been originally intended to name her after one of his Highness the Rajah's children, but owing to his late bereavement the idea was abandoned, and a new name has not yet been fixed. A considerable number of the residents assembled at the yard to witness the launch, which was very successful, and the company afterwards repaired to one of the buildings on the premises to drink success to the new craft and to her enterprising builders. Besides other vessels, this firm have a much larger steamer in course of construction for the Maharajah of Johore, which will probably be ready for launching in about six months.

A Chinese workman employed in the Johore Arsenal was killed a few days ago, whilst engaged in oiling the machinery of the saw mills; he was a new hand, and ignorantly ventured too near a belt, which caught his badjoo and drew him in. Although the mills have been running for about twelve years, this is only the second fatal accident that has happened there.

A serious case of petty piracy and murder is reported from the Carimons. A boat containing a quantity of produce, with a crew of six men, was attacked by two Malay boats, and two of the crew murdered and the cargo carried off. The remainder of the crew escaped, and are now, we hear, at Carimons, awaiting a passage to Singapore. It is considered probable the pirates will seek to dispose of their booty at Johore, and in that event they will very likely be apprehended. There is also a report that two or three days ago a boat laden with produce from Johore was attacked near Changhie, but the assailants were beaten off.

We heartily welcome the penny postage on correspondence exchanged throughout the Settlements, announced in the postal notice which appears in another column of this paper, and we feel that whilst thanks are due to Sir Andrew Clarke for having conceded the reduction, the community are indebted to Mr. Trotter for having persistently urged the introduction of lower local rates of postage. Eighteen months ago it cost twelve cents to send a letter to Penang by P. and O. mail steamer, and six cents by a private steamer. Now, a letter by the former means is conveyed for six cents, and by the latter for two cents; and as so many steamers now run between the Settlements, doubtless the contract rate will in time be made to assimilate the private rate. We trust our Postmaster-General will not rest until he has secured for us a universal rate of six or eight cents, with free delivery on letters exchanged between these Settlements and India, China, Java, the Philippines, and other places in the East. We do not ask for such a reduction as would impoverish the postal department and make it a burden to the colony, but what we should like would be, to be able to prepay our correspondence to its destination, which is still impossible in the case of letters addressed to some of the places enumerated above.

We don't quite sympathise with the severe sense of justice assumed by the Penang Gazette of the 29th January in its observations regarding the action of the executive in commuting the sentence of death passed upon the four prisoners convicted of killing a policeman and blowing up the house of one of the adherents of the Muntri of Laroot at Penang. No doubt the offence was a great one, and that in passing the sentence of death a just vindication of our law and of our regard for life and property was displayed. At the same time, four lives for one life is a stern exaction, independent of any other reasons whatsoever. As we understand the case, however, it is one of those which had its origin in the disputes lately raging in Perak and Laroot, and as we have just succeeded in establishing peace and goodwill there, we are of opinion the Executive have, with regard to this commutation of sentence, done at least a politic act under the circumstances. We must bear in mind, too, that penal servitude for life is not a very great escape from the capital sentence.

IMPORTS.

TIENTSIN.—The latest advices report the market dull and lower rates current.

HANKOW.—The market had not improved; good Mexicans 7lbs. T-Cloths was the only article for which there was any demand.

SHANGHAI.—A fair amount of business had been done since last mail. Grey Shirtings: All weights had been more or less in demand, but interest had centred principally in the 6 lbs. and 8¼ lbs. makes; sales of the former 17,000, and of the latter 30,000 pieces, but the prices of both cloths showed a decline of 1 to 3 cands. per piece, which, however, has been caused, and is more than counterbalanced, by the advance in exchange. Value of Red Pheasants 6 lbs. Tls. 1.38 per piece, and best 8¼ lbs. Dewhurst's Eagles Tls. 2.03, less half per cent. Dewhurst's goods of all grades, however, were scarce, and so commanded fuller rates than medium to common Chops, which were in more plentiful supply. White Shirtings: 64 Reeds continued in fair demand, and small sales of 72 Reeds had also taken place; total settlements 7,000 pieces. T-Cloths: 6 lbs. common wanted for Hong Kong, foreigners being the chief buyers; sales estimated at nearly 15,000 pieces at Tls. 1.03 to 1.05 per piece. Of 7 lbs. Mexican was still the only quality saleable. Dewhurst's M.T. quoted Tls. 1.50, and very good Tls. 1.57 to 1.60 per piece. Drills: 7,000 pieces, fine 15 lbs. English Drills sold at Tls. 2.35. Jeans: Fair enquiry experienced for good, resulting in the settlement of about 6,000 pieces at, in some instances, rather better rates. Tls. 1.91 paid for good quality of English. Fancy Cottons: Business summed up as follows:—500 pieces White Spots at Tls. 2.07½, 1,000 pieces Gentian Shirtings at Tls. 2.50, 500 pieces Dyed Brocades at Tls. 2.55, 320 pieces Printed Drills at Tls. 4.75, 1,000 pieces 2¾ lbs. 32 in. Turkey Red Shirtings at Tls. 1.90. Woollens: Demand for C.P.H. Scarlet Long Ells suddenly revived; Tls. 7.40 refused. Other descriptions not improved to this extent, but holders firmer, and Tls. 7.25 demanded for H.H. cloth. Business in the other kinds of Woollen manufactures call for no particular comment. Business in Metals and Coals unimportant.

FOOCHOW.—The following sales had been effected during the week, viz:—Grey Shirtings, 8¼ lbs. 4,400 pieces at $2.75 per piece; 7 lbs. 1,750 pieces at $2.62½ to $2.72½ per piece; 7 lbs. T-Cloths, 2,000 pieces at $1.95 per piece. Lead: 1,490 pigs, at $8.50 to $8.75 per picul.

SAIGON.—With the exception of T-Cloths which had been more sought after, and consequently commanded better prices; the market had shown no change, stocks being still too heavy to allow of any improvement occurring for the immediate future. Quotations: Grey Shirtings 8¼lbs., $2.48 to 2.50 per piece; 7 lb., $2.10 to 2.12½; T-Cloth 6 lb., $1.60 to 1.62½; 5lb., $1.35; 4lb., $1.12½ to 1.15; White Irishes, $1.60 to 1.62½.

BANGKOK: The market for Piece Goods was quiet, and with the exception of 8¼ lb. Shirtings, White Figured Shirtings and American Drills, for which a good enquiry existed, there was little business doing.

TEA.

SHANGHAI.—Black: There had been neither settlements nor arrivals. Green: a few chops of common Moyune had been settled rather under last mail's quotations, but the better parcels were still held firmly. The low prices ruling for Pingsueys, seemed to have induced buyers to operate in these kinds both for England and America, and the stock was considerably reduced. Settlements: Fychows, Moyunes, &c., at Tls. 31 to Tls. 37, 11,500 half-chests; Pingsueys, at Tls. 17 to Tls. 35½, 4,780 half-chests; Shanghai packed, at Tls. 25½ to Tls. 29, 2,000 half-chests; total, settlements 9,212 half-chests, stock 18,280 half-chests. Export to Great Britain to date (lost cargoes included):—

Miscellaneous.

THE PACIFIC RAILWAYS AND THE PACIFIC MAIL COMPANY.

The San Francisco correspondent of The Times writes as follows:—Under its present management the Union Pacific Railroad has reduced its running expenses and has increased its business over the road, its earnings in eleven months being $9,507,271, which shows a gain over the previous year of $1,372,516. The working expenses were $4,725,733, against $5,448,744 on the lighter business of the previous year, leaving the net gain on the income of the road $1,095,527. The Central Pacific Railroad has cost, including equipment, $139,746,311 14c. The returns of the company for 1872 show that the gross earnings in currency were $12,734,729 88c., the net earnings $7,207,284 63c. In 1873 the gross earnings were $13,871,089 82c.; the net earnings $8,381,649 67c., or $4,767,292, as a surplus above interest on bonds, which amount to about $3,194,870 in gold. This is equivalent to 8 per cent. per annum on the capital stock of the company. In consequence of the Government having refused payment of the subsidy to the semi-monthly line unless the service be performed in iron ships according to law, the Pacific Mail Steam Company now despatch only one vessel a month to China, and this state of affairs will continue till April or May. By that time it is expected that the large steamers building for the company, one of which—the Colima—has already arrived, will be ready, and then the semi-monthly service will be resumed. As the company has severed its connection with the Trans-Continental Railroad Companies, freight from China and Japan will be forwarded by the Isthmus route at considerably reduced rates. This arrangement makes San Francisco simply a way port for coaling and landing passengers. Fortunately, at this juncture the China Trans-Pacific Steamship Company (Limited), a British company, will have a powerful line of steamers in operation on the China route. The first vessel of this line, the Vasco de Gama, is expected to arrive from Yokohama. After discharging her cargo, of which 9,000 packages of tea go overland, she will immediately prepare for her return voyage. It is thought unlikely that even if the Pacific Mail Steamship Company reduced their through rates considerably, they will continue to control the carrying of teas as they hitherto have done. The fact that by the Panama route the cargoes will be exposed to the sea air for at least sixty days, and have to undergo three or four different handlings, will induce shippers in China and Japan to send them by the shorter route, by way of San Francisco and overland.

THE AMERICAN DOLLAR IN CHINA.

The demand for the new American trade dollar for export to China continues to increase, 227,000 dols. of that coin having been shipped from San Francisco from the 1st to the 16th ult., against the coinage at the mint in that city during the same time of 167,000 dols., the demand being in excess of the supply. The successful introduction of this coin into China is, according to the New York Herald, working important changes. San Francisco merchants and bankers have instructed their correspondents in Mexico to send them gold instead of Mexican dollars as heretofore. Within a few days a deposit of gold leaf, made in Hong Kong, weighing 1,200 oz., was made at the San Francisco Mint, and indicates the displacement of English and American gold coins now in China by the trade dollar. The Director of the Mint at Washington is of opinion that if the appropriations were sufficient to run the mints to their full capacity, without which the existing demand cannot be met, and the gold coinage charge abrogated, the bullion and coinage operations of the United States, which have been very largely increased during the past ten months, would be still further and permanently augmented, and would be followed by many advantages to the public interests.

PERAK AND LAROOT.—The Morning Post has a complimentary notice of the Treaty concluded by Sir Andrew Clarke, written evidently by some one well acquainted with the subject, one who has been on the "inside track." The writer, after alluding to negotiations between Sir Andrew Clarke and the natives, says:—"In consequence of these negotiations Sir Andrew Clarke summoned the chiefs of Perak to meet him on the 14th of January, and on the next day a treaty was signed, by virtue of which the Raja Muda was declared the rightful sovereign of Perak, and a cession to the British was made of all the country between the river Bruas and Perak, five miles inland from the sea." Thus the settlement of a most troublesome business has been satisfactorily concluded. We have acquired a valuable addition of territory on the mainland, the hordes of pirates have been brought from a state of confusion into an orderly condition, and the attainment of these objects cannot but be most beneficial to the Straits Settlements.

THE Financial Reformer pays the following tribute to Mr. James White, the late member for Brighton:—"One of the ablest financiers the House ever had, and the hardest of workers. This all allow. Tories, Whigs, and Radicals acknowledge this, and express their sorrow that his place will know him no more for a time; but he is more than a mere financier, as all who have the honour of his friendship know. He has, by reading and extensive travelling, accumulated vast stores of knowledge, which his singularly retentive memory makes promptly available when required; an acute, clear, honest thinker, too, and a wise sagacious statesman; moreover, thoroughly independent, but never factious. We think that, next to Mr. Gladstone, Mr. White would be the best possible Chancellor of the Exchequer, exerting all his energies to make freedom of trade a reality."

Two volumes of anti-Chinese petitions, signed by 22,211 of the inhabitants of California, have been forwarded to Congress with the view of obtaining a modification of the Treaty with China, so as to prevent the immigration of Chinese. The Bill on the Chinese question now before Congress provides for the appointment by the President and confirmation by the Senate of three Commissioners, whose duty it will be to collect and report all the available information relative to the Chinese in the United States, and the effect of their presence on the white labour of the country. Authoritative data thus obtained will, it is believed, facilitate the means of securing such Federal action as may be found necessary.

MUCH interest was excited at a recent meeting of the Geographical Society, St. Petersburg, by the question of the establishment of a new route in Central Asia for trading purposes, which was to pass from the banks of the Yan-Usa-Tsian to Irtysch by, way of Chamah Khamil. The Society has submitted to General Kauffman the plans of three geographical expeditions in Central Asia that are about to be organised. These expeditions are to embrace the eastern part of the Celestial Mountains, the southern ramifications of the Tian-Shan and the Tsun-Lin, the valleys of the Lower Oxus and the shores of Lake Aral and the Caspian Sea.

THE STRAITS IMMIGRATION ACT.

A LITTLE more than three months ago we had occasion to comment upon the future of Saigon, and upon the recommendations of the Chamber of Commerce in that colony for remedying its present unthriving state. Amongst the most valuable of these was the proposal to encourage "Chinese cheap labour," by abolishing an impost, which had, up to that time, been levied upon the newly-arrived coolie. Such a measure is indeed the necessary corollary of the position which we have always ourselves upheld, that a well-supplied labour market is essential to the prosperity of European dependencies in the tropics. Governor ORD, shortly before he quitted office, passed an ordinance "to make better provision by law for the protection of Chinese immigrants," to our mind one of the most mischievous among the many mischievous edicts which that "ex-Governor and Commander-in-Chief" has left behind him. Singapore itself is doubtless an entrepot as important as any in the world; a port of call and a point of departure for thousands of richly-laden ships. These attributes belong to the settlement independently of the influences introduced by a resident Chinese population; but for her local, commercial, and industrial interests, for the cultivation of the island, and for the development of the revenue through its agricultural resources, the presence of the patient-toiling Chinaman is indispensable. The same applies with even greater force to Penang, Province Wellesley, and Malacca, and, indeed, it is not going too far to say that it is their Chinese population who have made the Straits Settlements what they now are.

Let us turn for a moment to the provisions of this Immigration Enactment. We gather from it that if a steamer on her way from China to Calcutta, and having on board over twenty coolies bound for Singapore, call at that port to coal and land her passengers, she cannot get away until she has complied with divers regulations, which promise to detain her for three days at the very least. Surely the officials employed at Singapore can devise some plan for protecting these coolies when they have got them ashore, without requiring the detention of the steamer. If not—why, then the steamers will have to charge higher rates for the Chinese passengers to the Straits, in order to cover the possible losses involved by the delay and liability. We are well within the mark when we hold out a prospect of a three days' detention. Thus, suppose a steamer to touch for coal at Tanjong Pagar on Saturday, at 5 P.M. The Registrar shall "forthwith" board her, but "forthwith," in this case, means on Monday morning. Next, the coolies have to be mustered, and one among their number is, perhaps, found to be "sick or infirm." The master will thereupon have to provide for the removal of the sick coolie from the colony, or else to deposit a sum of money for his maintenance; besides various other cumbersome and tedious formalities. Even with a clean bill of health, and under the most favourable circumstances, it must unavoidably delay for a few hours the departure of every steamer which may call at a Straits port with two dozen coolies on board. We all know what the pecuniary value of hours may be where steamers are concerned, especially if the markets are falling at her port of destination, or if starting early means saving a tide. We have already said enough to prove that this measure will operate most detrimentally upon our shipping interests, but we will here add one word of criticism on a point of detail before we turn to a fresh aspect of the subject. A ship in the Act is defined to be every kind of vessel not exclusively propelled by oars. Now the real mischief to be apprehended from an ill-regulated coolie-traffic would arise, not in the case of a steamer with Chinese on board—though that is the class of vessel which is by this ordinance put to the greatest inconvenience—but if there is any evil to be provided against, it is that which might happen through some ill-manned, ill-found, unseaworthy sailing craft, with coolies packed like dunnage in every available space. Well, an "immigrant ship" of this sort might naturally like to disembark her Chinese freight, and yet keep clear of the supervision of the Registrar, and for all we can see in the ordinance to the contrary she will attain her object by anchoring just outside the limits of the port, and sending the Chinamen ashore in "vessels exclusively propelled by oars," or, as we should say, "boats." To pass statutes which annoy and injure the guiltless, but which offenders can with impunity evade, is to bring all legislation into contempt, and for this reason, as well as for many others, we trust that the ordinance may at once be repealed. The Registrar, as we understand it, is a new and separate functionary, with a staff of assistants and, of course, an office, under his charge. All this means fresh expenditure and additional Government patronage. Needless taxation and an overstocked Civil Service are things not only in themselves injurious, but they tend constantly to promote increased waste. The definition of an immigrant is most indefinite. What is "skilled labour" and what "unskilled" in the eyes of the law? Women can hardly be said to come to the colony to work as unskilled labourers, and are, therefore, outside the definition. Yet surely the introduction of Chinese females requires at least as much supervision as the importation of coolies.

The fact is, that, while fully aware that the true interests of the Straits demand an unrestricted Chinese immigration, we have yet to learn why in such well-organised colonies as these, with effective police, and cheap courts of justice, any class legislation to protect the Chinese coolie, while it leaves the Madrasses and the Malays to take care of themselves, is necessary? To limit freedom of contract by annulling every agreement made for more than two years is a very strong proceeding indeed; and if there is anything peculiar in the case of the Chinese immigrant which renders it necessary to guard him from hardship and ill-usage. this end may be best attained, not by measures which hamper shipping interests and check agricultural enterprise, but rather by impressing upon the Chinese community, especially its wealthier members, that in our magisterial courts justice is rendered and redress given without partiality to men of every rank, nationality, or creed. We trust, therefore, that Lord CARNARVON will see the necessity of taking immediate steps to repeal this most unwise and injurious act.

SIAMESE FINANCE.

WE alluded in a former issue to certain administrative changes which the King of SIAM had determined to introduce into his Revenue Department, and we have now before us the new Edict in which His Siamese Majesty "announces the Royal will concerning the revenue col-"lected from farms and taxes that belong to the Treasury, "and which are to be the future sources for the mainte-"nance of the kingdom." The reforms thus adopted may be briefly summed up as follows:—A central Finance-office, with a properly salaried staff of competent accountants, is established, and there the Government books are to be kept on a methodical system. The hours of business are from ten A.M. to four P.M., and those in charge of the department are to be in attendance during that time. No money is to be received, and no accounts are to be settled, except in this new public office. When a farmer has been allowed the privilege of collecting a tax he is to find two sureties that he will duly pay in the sum which he undertakes to hand over. He is also to deposit one-fourth of the total amount in advance, and the rest is to be contributed monthly in equal portions until the whole shall have been discharged. When the time approaches for letting a Government farm, or tax, public notice of the day for disposing of it is to be given a month beforehand; tenders may meanwhile be received, and if, when the appointed day arrives no one appears to make a better offer, the highest of the tenders is to be accepted. Seven days after the agreement has been concluded the new collector is to be supplied with his warrant of appointment, and with sealed documents to the authorities of the provinces. The fees received for affixing the official seals, for testing the money and for the certificates, must be collected at the office and carefully kept; and his Majesty will order it to be equally divided among the officers of the Treasury at the proper time. All officers are forbidden to exact any sum beyond these fees, and even these they cannot appropriate for themselves. Other details follow: these contain elaborate regulations as to what is to be the mode of procedure where a farmer of the revenue may make default, where he resigns his farm before his year of office has expired, where he may have sub-let parts of his privileges to deputy collectors and so forth. Among other rules we find it ordered that no Treasury official when he is disposing of a farm is "to interfere with the proposers in- "sinuating that they belong to this or that party. It some- "times happens that the officers wish to give the collect- "ing to favourites, even though others have offered more "than those favourites, and therefore ask that the higher "bidder waive his proposals; such an intimation might "intimidate the proposer, and therefore such favouritism "is hereby forbidden. Should any officer be guilty of such "acts he shall be treated as a violator of the Royal edict and "law." Payments are in future to be made always in money, and never in goods. General directors are to have control over each source of revenue, and are to aid the collector or farmer under him in getting speedy settlements of whatever actions may be forced upon them in the discharge of their duties. Lastly, His Majesty impresses upon all the officials the necessity for diligence and honesty in carrying these laws into effect. "The revenue," he says, "is for the "benefit of the State, and not for the benefit of any parti- "cular individual," and these new regulations are intended "to cut off the possibility of the personal emoluments of "the officers."

We think that most of our readers will agree with us in approving this reform in the finances of Siam. It does not deal with the nature of the taxes to be imposed, with the kinds of commodities or transactions on which a duty should be levied—and this is to be regretted, for the fiscal burdens of the Siamese people are in most instances oppressive and unskilful—but so far as they go the changes are a remarkable step in advance, and if faithfully carried out are sure to promote economy as well as strengthen the resources of the kingdom. There is, we think, one point in the new Edict which requires to be reconsidered; we refer to the provision which enacts that if, at the expiration of the financial year, the previous collector is continued in his office and duties he must not be required to pay new fees for his warrant of appointment, nor for the documents introducing him to the authorities of the places where he is to collect. It seems to us that on a fresh appointment (and these appointments are yearly) a fresh warrant, &c., is required, and the regulation fees ought to be, therefore, paid; and, if they are not excessive, it can be no hardship to make the collector pay them on the renewal of his office. If the fees are heavy, we know that they are ultimately to be divided among the Treasury officials, and the latter would, therefore, have a very strong (though perhaps a very injudicious) incentive to favour frequent changes of office. The general design of the Siamese Ministers in drawing this carefully-prepared financial scheme may easily be gathered from the extracts which we have here supplied, and from what a good many of us know already respecting the history of Siam in the past. The way to get hold of a nice fruitful branch of the Revenue Department was by backstairs influence in the Palace, by spending perhaps $1,000 or $2,000 in a present of French jewellery to one of the most influential among the King's wives. Having got your tax the next thing to do was to stick to it, and this end might be attained in several ways. One would be to keep in with your patron by the same method of ingratiation. Or another and more profitable plan was to make default steadily in your payments, appropriating thus all the gains to your own family, and leaving the Siamese in the predicament that if they robbed you of your main source of income by taking the farm out of your hands they would lose all chance for ever of recovering the arrears. One other device deserves to be quoted. Formerly by law in Siam the new opium farmer was bound to take over his predecessor's stock at a fixed price, which was a high one. Accordingly, as the term of his office expired, the holder once sent down to Singapore and bought up such a stock of the drug that no successor could be found to replace him, as no one had the capital ready to purchase his existing supply. Now let us hope that all these shifts and subterfuges will cease. There is no question affecting taxes of more importance than how to collect them with the smallest expense, for if this end is secured not only do the largest possible amounts find their way into the Treasury, but the articles taxed become, of course, most cheap, and therefore most in demand, when economy permits the financier to make his duties light. Squeezing and corruption involve waste of the national resources, and a consequent increase of imports; and increased imports act in their turn as a check upon the development of trade. We are glad to see unmistakable signs that the Siamese at last are awakening to such points as these.

WITH reference to the alarming telegram through REUTER'S Hong Kong agency—which appeared in our last issue—as to the safety of foreigners at Tientsin, we are glad to say that no such information has reached the Foreign-office, the Admiralty, or merchants connected with the trade. We are of opinion that the rumour was not well founded, and the friends of residents there need be under no apprehension for their safety. The last accounts from Admiral SHADWELL are from Singapore, and his return to Hong Kong would probably be about the middle of March, as it was intended to call at Labuan, Manila, and other ports en route. The flag ship Iron Duke, and vessels ordered home, would leave Hong Kong on the turn of the monsoon in October.

THE appointment announced in our last issue of Mr. MAYERS as Secretary to the Shanghai Municipal Council is not without interest and significance. Mr. MAYERS has long been known as the most accomplished scholar and litterateur in the Consular Service; he has earned a great reputation as a student of Chinese literature, and has gained golden opinions as an energetic Consular officer. We can only assume that Mr. MAYERS resigns his post with a feeling of disgust at the miserable condition to which the service has been brought by the late Government. Our readers may remember that the salary attached to his post of Chinese Secretary was cut down to £800 per annum.

H.E. SANO, the Japanese Minister to Austria and Italy, has been received by King VICTOR EMMANUEL, and presented his letters of recall. KAVASSE, his successor, has also had an audience, to hand his credentials to his Majesty. H.E. SANO had an audience of the POPE on the 5th inst., before quitting Rome. His Holiness recommended to him the interests of the Catholics in Japan. The successor to Baron VON CALICE, as Austrian Minister to China and Japan, has not yet been decided on.

WE understand that the question of the form of Govership of Penang has not yet been settled. A large number of the residents advocate a withdrawal from Singapore, and direct relations with the Home Government. The most important part of the subject is the Governor himself. Any alteration on present and late arrangements would require a new man at the helm. The inhabitants of Penang are not satisfied with Col. ANSON.

THE late news from Japan mentions the probable removal of the Marines now stationed at Yokohama. We understand that in consequence of information received, it has been decided by Government not to remove them at present, and instructions to that effect have been sent out.

CAPTAIN LORD GILFORD, who has been appointed a Lord of the Admiralty, was engaged in the last China War, in which he was severely wounded. Lady GILFORD is a daughter of Sir ARTHUR KENNEDY, the Governor of Hong Kong.

Literature.

In the March number of the Cornhill Magazine the writer of a paper entitled "Feng-Shui" throws some light upon Chinese superstition, and endeavours to account for the persistent opposition to progress which China has shown. Speaking of the Emperor's non-acceptance of the short line of railway offered him by a committee of Englishmen, the writer says, "What is the obstacle to China's imitating her progressive neighbour Japan by the adoption of railways?" It is Feng-Shui. Not Feng-Shui alone, perhaps. The bigoted Toryism of China is doubtless haunted by a hundred fears; fear of interference with the present carrying trade; fear of loss of prestige; reluctance to admit foreign surveyors and engineers into the interior of the country, and so forth. These objections, however, are mostly ill-suited for presentation at the foreign Legations. When the mandarins fall back upon a line of defence which Western logic cannot hope to penetrate, it is Feng-Shui." What, then, the writer asks, is this Feng-Shui which decides affairs of state for one-third of the earth's population? The mere translation "Wind and Water" gives no clue to the understanding of the custom. It is an ancient and absurd superstition of the people, the origin and nature of which not even the Chinese themselves can explain, but which involves the belief that the lot of the living is determined by the spirits of the dead, and their good will or malignancy depends mainly upon the situation of the tomb; and, moreover, that human prosperity and adversity, even virtue and vice, are mysteriously influenced by a sort of electricity of nature, which is attracted or repelled by the conflagration of the hills and the erection of lofty buildings. An instance is cited of the perils attached to antagonism to Feng-Shui. Governor Amaral, of Macao, signalised his tenure of office by cutting out new roads, utterly regardless of the interests of the numerous descendants of those buried in the tombs among which his roads passed. This cost him his life. He was waylaid and beheaded on one of his own new roads.

The Geographical Review, Ocean Highways for March opens with a paper on Dr. Livingstone and the Cameron Relief Expedition. An interesting memoir of Lieutenant Francis Garnier appears, in which a brief narrative of the French expedition up the Camboja River is given. There is also a chapter on the British Indian Steam Navigation Company (Limited), with a useful map, showing the routes taken by the company's steamers.

We have received from Messrs. Weeks and Co. a song, entitled "The Word and the Look," the melody of which seems pretty. The same publishers have also forwarded the Russian national anthem, arranged for the piano, by Boyton Smith. This air is likely to become very popular.

A letter descriptive of Life in Yedo, from Professor Summers, of the College there, appears in this month's Leisure Hour.

(PALL MALL GAZETTE.)

Of late years we have heard so much of "Chinese cheap labour" from various parts of the world that it is somewhat difficult to realise the fact that not more than 200,000 Chinamen are working in foreign countries at the present time. Even this number is quite an outside estimate. America and Australia have so far been the favourite resorts for Chinese emigrants. Allowing 130,000 for the former country and 30,000 for the latter, 40,000 are left for Peru, the Sandwich Islands, and other places; evidently a more than sufficient margin. Yet the anxiety and alarm shown have been altogether out of proportion to these figures. We cannot help thinking that this is one of those cases—more common, perhaps, than is readily admitted—in which imagination plays a considerable part. Irishmen have emigrated, and are still emigrating, in far larger numbers than the Chinese, and they are more troublesome to deal with in the countries in which they settle. Nevertheless, the Irishman is looked upon as a necessary evil in new lands, and tolerated accordingly. The Chinaman, however, is always regarded as an intruder. The Americans were fain to admit that the Chinese came out grandly in the construction of the Pacific Railway. But that has nowise abated the sullen hostility with which they are regarded in California, and it needs but little to stir up this enmity to take a much more active shape than that of mere petitions to Congress. We, too, insist upon forcing ourselves and our commerce upon the Chinese, but the most peaceful invasion on their side would, we take it, be resented by our trade unionists in very practical fashion.

And yet it seems a pity that this emigration, small as it is, should be checked. A Chinaman is qualified to do much that cannot be so well or so cheaply done by the white man. He can work, and work well, in a great variety of climates. A German, so the saying runs, will dine off a bone which an Englishman man has picked. A Chinaman will fare sumptiously after both the Europeans have done their worst. It may perhaps be an exaggeration to couple the Chinese with the French as the best cooks in the world. But those who have most experience of their powers rate them highly, and in the capacity for making much out of little they are in no way inferior to the great leaders of European gastronomy. Who would not have charitable feelings towards the man who in a dry and thirsty land can for a consideration furnish you with the crispest of lettuces on a hot summer's day? Give a Chinaman a bit of land, and if anything can be done with it at all he will turn it into a market-garden. His capacity for getting to places where his labour may be wanted, when once he has begun to roam, is remarkable. In 1869, when Fiji was not so well known as it is now, a labour vessel chanced to call at one of the remotest plantations. A Chinaman at once stepped ashore, and, walking to the planter s house, inquired if any hands would be wanted next season, as by that time he and 300 more then at work in Taheiti (!) would be ready to take a fresh engagement. He had come to Fiji, so both he and the skipper averred, for that particular purpose. All of them being educated to a fair point, there is nothing to keep them back. And it is noteworthy that, passionately addicted as they are to opium—and one of the best freights for the up-country coaches is the opium case—they rarely take to it abroad to excess until they have made their "pile." Some of the richest and most influential importers in Melbourne, San Francisco, and Honolulu came out as common labourers, with their great round hats and coarse clothing. In short, for steady, dogged, persistent labour, under proper direction, Chinamen are almost unequalled. It may be observed that one of the difficulties in dealing with Chinamen both in Taheiti and in the Sandwich Islands, where they are much employed, arises from the fact that some of those who emigrate are skilled workmen, and are consequently much disinclined to devote their time to field labour unless they are offered special inducements. This the planter too often does not understand, and attributes their hesitation to laziness or determination to break their contract.

There are such vast tracts distributed over the earth's surface which the Chinese could and would cultivate to advantage, but which are now quite useless, that it is impossible not to hope that ere long arrangements will be made to afford the security to their emigrants which is now lacking. If their numbers were increased a hundredfold, they would not suffice for the development of the idle wealth of South America, Jamaica, and the Southern States. And so far as can be seen, they are the only people who could be induced to undertake the work on a large scale. At present, however, all the steps which are being taken tend to their discouragement.

Naval and Military.

The subjoined remarks are from the Naval and Military Gazette:—A paragraph, copied from an Indian paper, has been going the rounds of the Press, most unjustly reflecting on the conduct of the captain of H.M.S. Thetis, and accusing this officer of inhumanity and cruelty in connection with the capture of some supposed slave dhows by the Thetis some months since, in the Red Sea, on her passage to China. In justice to the officer so accused, and the distinguished service to which he has the honour to belong, we beg to state that the circumstances connected with the capture referred to have been grossly—were the charges not of so grave a character we should say ridiculously—exaggerated; and no more convincing proof of this need be offered than the fact that the inquiry ordered into the circumstances of the capture upon which these charges are based has terminated, and Captain Le Hunte Ward still commands H.M.S. Thetis, which he would not have been permitted to do for a single hour had they been true. An error of judgment may have been committed, and that the captures were illegal the circumstance of an indemnity having been paid is sufficient proof, but there is a vast difference between an illegal capture and inhumanity and cruelty to the captured.

GERMANY.

—o—

HAMBURG, MARCH 3.

This is the season of the year when the directors of banks, railway and other public companies have to go through the ordeal of appearing before their shareholders and giving an account of their stewardship. Our two oldest private banking companies—the Norddeutsche Bank and the Vereins Bank—have come out of the fire unscathed, as was to be expected from institutions proverbially managed with such caution and capacity; whilst the dividends they have declared for last year—10½ per cent. each—are considered satisfactory. The accounts were, therefore, passed without any difficulty or opposition, and the directors and auditors re-elected. But the other banks, the creations of modern times, when two or three years ago it was the rage to turn everything into a joint-stock company—most of them ephemeral bubbles that burst when the great crash at Vienna and New York occurred—are not in so enviable a state of security. The International and one or two others have lost so much by their speculations on the Stock Exchange that they have resolved to liquidate and divide the remaining capital among the shareholders in proportion to their holdings. The complicated state of the affairs of the Anglo-Deutsche Bank have for the last month or two been the subject of much conversation on 'Change, and innumerable attacks, replies, and recriminations in the columns of the local press. Many and frequent meetings of shareholders have been held to denounce the conduct of the directors, who, by their unwarrantable recklessness and ignorance, have plunged the bank into the slough from which it will be almost impossible to extricate it, certainly not without severe sacrifices and a judicious reorganisation on a better footing, and with change of personnel. The shares of this bank are in so many hands that the great saloon in the Exchange was not able to afford adequate accommodation for these meetings, which were not officially convened by the directors, but by some of the largest and most influential shareholders, who had constituted themselves into a committee to demand the information as to the state of affairs that the directors denied them. They therefore adjourned the meeting to the most capacious concert room in this city, where the other meetings were also subsequently held. Under these unpleasant circumstances things were brought to a crisis on Saturday last, when the directors themselves convened a general meeting, and came forward with two principal proposals, one of which was to reduce the capital from ten million thalers to seven millions, and the other to give them decharge or relief from personal liability. The meeting was presided over by Senator Eiffe, the chairman of the board of directors, who answered all the questions put to him, and gave the needful information required. A stormy debate ensued, the result being that both the proposals were declined by a considerable majority. There were no less than 7,584 persons, of whom 3,387 supported the directors' motion, and 4,197 voted against it. The chairman then withdrew some other minor proposals, and adjourned the meeting till the 21st of April.

The Chamber of Commerce gives notice of the Exhibition of foreign produce to be held this year at Kioto, and offers to those who have no connection in Japan and wish to become exhibitors to undertake to send out their articles to the consignment of respectable German houses in that country. Considering that the Exhibition was to be opened on the 1st inst., and will close on the 6th June next, it seems rather absurd to make the announcement at all, as putting out of the question the time required for preparing the articles for the Exhibition, their arrival in Japan must of necessity be post festum and too late for the object in view.

Dr. Banks, one of the late members of the German Parliament for Hamburg, who stood again for this city at the late election, but was left in a minority by an intrigue of the Liberal party, as mentioned in a previous letter, has obtained his revenge and the signal honour of re-entering Parliament as one of the members for Berlin by a triumphant absolute majority.

ROTTERDAM, MARCH 4.

Volo non valeo, I am willing but unable, are the words which the Minister of the Finances might have used the day before yesterday, when he felt himself compelled to withdraw the Bill to alter our monetary standard. For several months past the public has been entertained by the newspapers with articles about the question which was to be preferred, the golden or the silver standard, and for several days our M.P.s have shown their insatiable desire for talking. Per fas et nefas, the debate upon this intricate economical question was continued, and, as Professor Vissering has said, no one cared if he was talking nonsense or not; the object of all was to talk. I may summarise the debate by stating that the following were its chief propositions:—1st, that it is not advisable to delay the alteration of the monetary system; 2nd, that it is necessary to abolish our silver standard and introduce a golden one; 3rd, that it would be better to introduce the double standard; 4th, that if our system is given up we ought to adopt the system of one of our neighbouring Powers; 5th, that there should be a connection between the regulation of our monetary system and that in Java; 6th, will the alterations proposed by the Minister pay the enormous cost which would result from this reform? These were the main points of the debate, and every member had his own hobby-horse to ride. One preferred to maintain the silver standard, another thought the double one the best, a third was of opinion that the golden standard ought to be introduced, but together with the francs system, a fourth demonstrated that the English sovereign would be our best standard coin, a fifth declared in favour of the mark, a sixth would have paper money, a seventh would not vote for the Bill if the Minister did not promise to propose a new regulation of the monetary system in Java. Every one had his individual opinion, and the public interest was thus utterly ignored, inasmuch as no member was inclined to make the least concession—the sovereign, or I vote against the Bill; the mark, or my name will be seen amongst the noes; a Bill for Java, or I and my followers will take care that your proposal shall miscarry; so went the Parliamentary business on. Notwithstanding that the Ministers of the Colonial and Financial Departments defended the measure with great eloquence, it was, of course, impossible to satisfy every one, or even to obtain the smallest majority. Perhaps the Bill might have been saved, at least for a time, if the Chamber had agreed to an amendment of Mr. Kappeyne van de Cappello—who maintained his reputation as l'enfant terrible of the Liberal party—viz., not to continue the debate till the Ministry should have laid before the members the promised Monetary Bill for Java. The discussion, however, went on, and the day before yesterday the Chamber, by forty against twenty-nine votes, rejected the Bill. More national time has thus been wasted, only to prove that united action has become impossible in the ranks of our Liberal party. Each section of the party claims everything and yields nothing, and as soon as the Government shows the least inclination for Parliamentary activity the Radicals revolt. Indeed, it seem that a rancorous jealousy and an open defiance prevails between the two sections of the Liberal party. Nothing can be done in this condition of affairs, and the end must be that the party will break up.

Mr. Nierstrasz broke in upon the debate with an interpellation about the Administration of the Naval Department. He protested against the Ministry continuing incomplete, and expressed his opinion that the interests of the colonies and of the navy will greatly suffer if one person remained at the head of both offices. The Minister of the Department of Justice replied that the Ministry thought it advisable that the portfolio of the Naval Department should remain in the hands of the Minister of the Colonies as long as the war with Atchin lasted; therefore, no steps had been taken to find a new Naval Minister. In the meanwhile he could state that it was not the intention to unite both the departments permanently under one Minister. The Opposition was anything but content with this answer, and the interpellator asserted his conviction that the non-appointment of a new Minister resulted from the weakness and impotence of the Government. Mr. Fransen van de Putte, however, re-asserted that it was desirable for a time to unite both the departments, and that the service would not suffer thereby, whereupon the matter dropped.

The election in the district of Gouda ended in a victory for the Anti-revolutionists. Mr. M. Bichon van Ysselmonde received 1,645 votes, defeating Mr. Verniers van der Laeff, the Liberal Candidate, who only obtained 1,013 votes. The Clerical element in the Chamber is thus reinforced.

I regret to record that the statement in the Handelsblad that a number of captains and lieutenants had been ordered to Java is contradicted. In the meanwhile it remains a question how the Government in Java will provide for the great deficiency of officers in our forces in Atchin, if none are to be sent out from here.

The festival on the 12th May seems likely to be a sort of national mania—our shops are fitted up with orange colours, and already people are wearing cockades. Everything is being dyed orange colour. Up to this moment there is no fixed plan for the national presentation, and it must be disgusting in the highest degree for the King to read daily in the papers about the squabbling which is going on about the several plans. It seems as if the journalists are trying all they can to induce the King to refuse any present which may be offered him. I hear that the Dutchmen residing in your metropolis and in New York have made their plans to celebrate the festival.

The Vaderlandsche Letteroefeningen, a periodical of high standing, contains an article, by Mr. J. K. W. Quarles van Ufford, about Atchin. The author says that he is surprised that the Ministers still object to communicate to Parliament the true reason for our declaration of war. He himself knows the whole of the particulars, and has them from an authentic source. He, however, declines to publish what he knows, but only says that he is convinced that the Government here as well as in Java, were quite in the right de précipiter l'affaire. The leading Opposition paper concludes from this article that there are still particulars to communicate, notwithstanding that the Minister has assured us that there are none except those which he has already published.

Mr. Cornelis Diependaal has declined to accept the Archbishopric to which he was elected by the Old Catholic Episcopal clergy at Utrecht, in place of the late Archbishop Loos. He makes objections because he cannot leave his small community at the Helder, but endeavours are being made to persuade him to alter his decision.

From the different rural districts I hear that the manufacturers of sugar from beetroot have done so bad of late that they decline to continue the manufacture while the prices of the produce remain so low, and those of the roots so enormously high. Several establishments are already closed.

I regret to record the death of Mr. J. H. C. Van Steeden, late minister of the Protestant community at Batavia.

The King has approved of Mr. F. I. Erdmann as Consul for the German Empire at Samarang.

Great dulness has prevailed since my last in the Colonial Produce market, notwithstanding a steady demand for consumption and export. A very easy money market has in general a good influence upon trade, and stocks being small of most of the leading articles, a revival in activity is probable.

ROTTERDAM, MARCH 5.

The Second Chamber have agreed to the proposal of several members to open an inquiry into the cause of the decline in our shipping trade. According to official statistics, published by the Staats Courant of to-day, our fleet numbered on the 1st of January 1,805 vessels, measuring 262,110 lasts (a last being about two tons), against 1,856 vessels, with a tonnage of 261,184 lasts, on the 1st of January, 1873. To-morrow the Chamber will open a debate upon the Bill to provide the country with means of defence.

The rejection of the Bill to introduce the golden standard in our monetary system has made a very bad impression. Rumours are current of the resignation of the Cabinet.

Monetary and Commercial.

Early in the week Japanese Bonds experienced a fresh fall to he extent of 2 to 3 per cent., and the Seven per Cents. were at one time quoted as low as 90, and the Nine per Cents. at 100. The telegrams announcing the suppression of the insurrection have since brought about an improvement, and the Nine per Cents. Loan closed at 103 to 105, the Seven per Cents. at 94 to 96.

A meeting of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance Company was held on the 3rd inst., Sir Daniel Gooch presiding :—

The Chairman, in moving the adoption of the report, said it showed that there had been such a successful working as enabled the directors to recommend a dividend of 44s. per share, in addition to the interim 12s. paid in June, and this free of income tax. The accounts showed a balance of profit for the year of £118,694, and when the balance left over from the last year was added—£12,715—there was £131,409 divisible. Of this £22,410 had been appropriated for the interim dividend, which was equal to 5 per cent. on the capital of the company, and there was now £108,999, which would give 20 per cent., making a total of 25 per cent. for the year, leaving a balance over of £19,359. The company had laid in the year 4,701 nautical miles of cable, and the expedition ship would be engaged in laying the Brazilian cable, and had also made arrangements for laying a cable across the Atlantic ; and this, it was hoped, would be done this year. Then the company had obtained the concession for laying a cable in the Black Sea. The cable had been manufactured, and it would be laid in the spring. It would be necessary for the company to lay it, and then pass it over to responsible parties, who would form another company. Lord A. Paget seconded the motion for the adoption of the report, which was carried nem. con.

Mr. Nicoll referred in terms of high praise to the services rendered by Admiral Osborn as managing director, a post he had now retired from, and Mr. Nicoll moved that a present of £5,000 should be made to the Admiral on his retirement. Objection was raised to the largeness of the sum, and in answer to questions it was stated the Admiral had had £3,000 a year in his position as managing director, and his fees as director as well, but no commission. The Chairman spoke in the highest terms of the services rendered by Admiral Osborn to the company. Mr. Pender, M.P., supported the motion, and attributed to the Admiral's services the high position the company held. The motion was, however, lost on being put to the show of hands. Mr. Abbott and Mr. Ford urged the proprietors not to display parsimony towards the staff of the company, and they, with Sir J. Anderson, urged that a money recognition of the staff's services to the extent of £2,000 between them, with a vote of thanks, should be given. In the result the vote of thanks was carried, but the part of the resolution in regard to the money was dropped.

At a general meeting of the shareholders of the Anglo-German Bank at Hamburg, on the 28th ult., the approval of the balance-sheet submitted was rejected by 4,197 votes against 3,317, whereupon another meeting was fixed for the 21st of April.

At the meeting of the German Bank of London (Limited) a dividend of 6s. per share was declared, making, with the previous payment of like amount in September, 6 per cent. for the year 1873, and leaving £1,121 to be carried forward.

The receipts of the Eastern Extension Australasia and China Telegraph Company (Limited) for the month of February amounted to £17,706, against £18,085, the receipts in the corresponding period of 1873 of the four separate lines. The traffic receipts of the Great Northern Telegraph Company during February amounted, on the European lines, to f.173,235, against f.109,415 in 1873 ; and on the China and Japan lines to f.114,859, against f.79,680 in 1873.

The Insurance Companies and Underwriters at Lloyd's have agreed to a rise of 5s. on tea risks per steamers via Suez Canal.

Tenders for £500,000 in bills on India were received on the 4th inst. at the Bank of England. The amounts allotted were—to Calcutta, £495,200 ; and Bombay, £4,800. Tenders on Calcutta and Bombay at 1s. 10½d. will receive about 32 per cent. A further diminution in the demand for the means of remittance to the East is apparent.

Quietness has been the predominant feature in the Manchester Market, business to a limited extent being carried on without any material alteration in the quotations of either Yarns or Goods.

Bar Silver has been sold at 58¼d. per oz. standard, chiefly for the Continent, a reduction in price of ¼d. per oz. Mexican dollars to the value of about £340,000 have been sold at 56¾d. per oz., showing a decline of ¼d. per oz. They were taken partly for China and partly for refining purpose. The Market is now cleared of this coin.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

A decided and almost general dulness has prevailed in the produce markets, and the reductions established in the value of several articles are unusually important.

TEA.

Messrs. Shepard, Harrison and Rehden's Circular says :—The market has been quiet, and owing to increased supplies of the lower grades of Congou they have ruled in favour of buyers, say to the extent of ½d. to 1d. per lb., otherwise there is no change of importance to advise. The stock 1st inst. stood at 95,000,000 lbs., and with but 5,000,000 lbs. afloat, supply for the next five or six months will gradually decrease, so the position looks favourable for at least a maintenance of the present range of prices. The export trade to the Continent amounts to a bagatelle, but for New York and Canada considerable orders have been executed. Deliveries as follows :—

	lbs.	lbs.
Home Consumption for London from 1st January to 28th February ...	15,819,000	16,610,000
Export do. do.	3,800,000	4,450,000
Sent Coastwise do. do.	6,340,000	6,309,000
Total delivered	25,959,000	27,369,000

Messrs. Capel and Co.'s Circular says :—Our market during the early part of the month was very firm, with a moderate amount of business doing, somewhat however checked by the progress of the General Election, but latterly the demand, both from the home trade and exporters, has been very limited, and with but little business doing and heavy arrivals ; prices for common to medium kinds of Congou have given way about ½d. per lb. The deliveries for the month show a decrease of 2,000,000 lbs., compared with last year, about half being in exports and half in duty payments, this latter doubtless owing to the trade waiting to see whether anything will be done with the duty, and will most likely be recovered after the Budget is made known.

SILK.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co. report as follows :—Everything has been very quiet, but there has been somewhat more inquiry for China Silk, with a decidedly better feeling during the last two or three days, and more actual business at the full quotations. Canton Silk is rather more inquired for, buyers seeming to be impressed with the favourable position of this Silk as regards stocks and present prices. Japan Silk, of the fine sizes and best quality, is scarce and saleable, but common descriptions are neglected. Stocks are in the aggregate 4,000 bales less than at this time last year, and as the further supplies to arrive for the remainder of the season are known to be very small, and less than in the corresponding period of last year, it is difficult not to believe that the market has seen its lowest point. Deliveries last month were only small—say, 2,400 Chinas, 585 Cantons, 639 Japans, and 297 Bengals. Total, 3,921 bales, and from 1st to 4th inst., 447, 118, 64, and 59 respectively. Total, 688 bales.

COFFEE.

Only a small portion of Plantation Ceylon have been offered by auction, but there has been little demand, and prices have shown unusual irregularity, speculators supporting desirable parcels, and they did not decline more than 2s. 6d., while small lots and ordinary were 3s. to 4s. lower. A good part of this decline was recovered Thursday, when more competition prevailed, but prices are still 1s. 6d. to 2s. lower than a fortnight ago. Native has been neglected, but after declining to 106s. for good ordinary a recovery to 108s. has taken place. Closing prices are—Plantation triage 104s. to 115s., small 122s. to 125s., low middling 125s. to 127s. 6d., middling 128s. to 129s. 6d., good middling colourу 131s., pea-berry 122s. to 124s. ; Native, small 95s. to 98s., good ordinary to fine ordinary 106s. 6d. to 108s. 6d., good bold pale 107s. to 108s. 6d., pea-berry 105s. 6d. to 106s. 6d. For arrival the sales of Plantation crops amount to about 1,700 tons, commencing at 125s. and closing at 128s. to 129s., 50 tons Native Ceylon at 107s., and 300 tons ditto for July and (or) August delivery, basis good ordinary at 100s. No sales are reported of other East Indian descriptions.

SUGAR.

The market has continued in a dull state, and in consequence of the superabundance of almost all descriptions prices have again favoured the purchaser. Clayed Manila has been inquired for at the previous reduction, and a moderate business has resulted. Unclayed has been neglected. Crystallised Egyptian has been sold at firmer rates, but syrups are without improvement. Other refining kinds have sold steadily. Floating cargoes of Java have been sold at a further decline of 6d. per cwt. Penang continues dull of sale, and sales of Native kind in baskets have been made at 16s. 3d., being 3d. lower ; 3,275 bags ditto in auction partly sold at 17s. 3d. to 17s. 6d. In Manila the sales have been : 11,000 bags fair clayed at 19s., and 12,000 bags good ditto at 20s. 6d. Two floating cargoes of Java have sold for the United Kingdom, viz. : The Erasmo 3,364 baskets Java, No. 13, at 26s., and the Mary, 1,490 baskets Java, No. 14½ to 15, at 26s. 6d.

The truest philosophical spirit of inquiry led to the discovery of this priceless medicine, and the most unselfish labour and expense have been incurred in bringing so great a boon to the knowledge and within the reach of the afflicted throughout the world. Every invalid who can read will understand the plain directions in his own language which are folded round the Pills, which should be taken in the doses and at the times distinctly specified therein. while great attention should be paid to diet and many minor matters, all of which, however, are important, inasmuch as they augment the curative powers of the Pills, prevent them from disagreeing with the most delicate, and spare time and suffering.

Summary of News from the Far East.

CHINA.

SHANGHAI.

Dates by this mail extend to 30th Jan. The outward mail of 12th Dec. arrived on 29th Jan. The following items are from the North China Herald:—

The supplementary election of Councillors for the French Municipality took place on the 27th. Of the 205 electors on the rolls, 86 voted, with the following results:—French members, M. Maignan, 60; M. Charrier, 48; Foreign member, M. Juvet, 36. M. Maignan, however, declined to accept office, on the grounds, first, that he had declined candidature, and next, that the majority of the electors having abstained from voting at the elections of the 5th and 23rd January, the Council, in consequence of the small number of votes by which it has been placed in power, appears hardly to possess sufficient moral weight to settle, in the name of the community, the delicate question which will come before it for solution. The election, then, under the terms of the Consul-General's notification, fell on M. Teillot, who had twenty-seven votes, but he also declined on similar grounds; and as his declination was followed by that of the three gentlemen, Messrs. Morel, David, and Brossard, who stood next in order, the vacant seat devolves upon M. Chagneau, for whom four votes were recorded at the elections on the 23rd instant. We understand M. Chagneau has accepted office.

The S. V. C. Artillery and the Rifles have beeen drilling in the Municipal Compound, with a view we presume to the annual target practice at Woosung.

We are glad to hear that these exercises are the preludes to a sham fight between the S. V. C. and a naval brigade from H.M.S. Cadmus. The muster is called early in order to enable the sailors to get back in good time to their ship; but it is desirable also on account of the shortness of the days, and we hope the occasion will be regarded very much as a half-holiday as it has been formerly.

A royal salute, in honour of the marriage of H.R.H. the Duke of Edinburgh to the Grand Duchess Marie of Russia, was fired by H.M.S. Cadmus, which had dressed ship in style befitting the occasion. The U.S.S. Lackawanna and H.M. gunboat Dwarf were also dressed, and the British Consular flagstaff was garlanded with bunting. Reuter's telegram announcing the happy event for the 23rd inst. was received late on Saturday, so that the ceremony of saluting had to be deferred till Monday.

The New Lyceum Theatre was opened on Tuesday night by the performance of "Masks and Faces." A number of members of the Philharmonic Society formed the orchestra, and gave much pleasure to the audience by the opening and interim performances.

The annual meeting of the congregation of Union Chapel was held on the 21st inst., Dr. Johnston presiding. The report for 1873 was taken as read, and adopted, and also the report of the Female Mission, which work was discontinued in the middle of November last, in consequence of the resignation of Miss Maclean. The former report showed an income for the year of Tls. 3,005.53, and a balance after expenditure, on 31st Dec., of Tls. 170.37. The committee had supplemented the salary of the pastor, the Rev. Mr. Thomas, and recommended that the increase be made permanent. It is noticed that the attendance at the various services has increased. The following gentlemen were elected as the committee for the present year: Messrs. Buchanan, Chrystall, Crawford, Mitchell, T. Olyphant, Twombly, Wylie, Dr. Johnston and Winn.

The Customs Returns of Trade at Shanghai for the fourth quarter of 1873 show that the import of Grey Shirtings varied only 50,000 pieces from that of the corresponding quarter; but T-Cloths figure only for 348,000 pieces, against 1,127,000, and Drills (of all kinds) for 240,000, against 340,000 pieces, American however showing an increase. Nearly all other kinds of Piece Goods show a falling off. Woollens figure for 128,000, against 152,000 pieces; Camlets, Spanish Stripes, and Long Ells showing an increase, and figured Lustres a notable decrease—from 64,000 to 39,000 pieces. Only 451 vessels entered port during the period, against 520 in 1872, and 491 cleared, against 527. The revenue shows an increase of Tls. 115,000, due principally to the opium and export trade.

In the suit S. Brown v. the U.S.N. Company judgment was yesterday delivered by the Chief Judge in favour of the defendants, on their demurrer to the petition.

The annual meeting of Landrenters was held at Chinkiang on the 19th. The accounts showed an expenditure of Tls. 1,555, against an income of Tls. 1,524; and an expenditure of Tls. 1,200 was sanctioned for the current year. This amount is to be raised by a land tax of Tls. 10 a lot, and a tax of 3 per cent. on rentals. Messrs. Bean, Starkey, and Williamson were elected a municipal council for the ensuing year.

Hankow advices report business in imports very dull, owing to scarcity of money and the presence of new year's settling time. A better demand has caused an advance in Cotton. In Tea no business is reported: total export of season 852,928 lbs. in excess of 1872-73.

We understand that a voluminous history of the Taiping and Nienfei rebellions, together with a work on chemistry, by Professor Billequin, will shortly be issued from the printing-office at the Peking College.

HONG KONG.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 5th Feb.; the outward P. and O. mail of Dec. 26 arrived out Feb. 4.

The P. and O. steamer Avoca, Capt. Andrews, which brought the present mail from Hong Kong, will come to Southampton, via Suez Canal, with the following cargo:—For London, 438 bales and 18 cases Silk and 86 bales Waste Silk, 47 packages and 589 half-chests Tea; for Boston, 465 half-chests and 1,238 boxes Tea; for Continent, 894 bales Silk; for New York, 124 bales Silk.

We take the following from the China Mail:—

The first Japanese man-of-war which has visited Hong Kong anchored in the harbour on the 22nd January, and saluted the British flag, as well as those of other nationalities flying in the man-of-war anchorage. She is called the Kusugakan, and is of 1,000 tons burthen.

We learn that the hill coming down from the Queen's road, facing the monument near the Race Course, is to be cut away and levelled. This improvement will prove an attraction during the summer evenings, for the road here, after passing the native portion, is exceedingly pretty. It would be well if some way of getting to it, instead of having to pass among the Chinese houses, could be devised.

The Gazette notifies that Mr. M. S. Tonnochy is appointed acting Coroner, and Mr. E. J. R. Willcocks acting Sheriff.

It is also notified that Ordinance No. 11 of 1873, extending the provisions of the Home Act relating to the Law of Property in relation to Covenants and Condition Leases to this colony, and No. 15 of 1873, regulating and defining the practice of barristers and attorneys in the Supreme Court, have received Her Majesty's approval.

We have received, from an authentic source, news that affairs in Tonquin or Annam have been satisfactorily settled, and that the treaty between France and that Power will very shortly be signed. As a very large number of our readers are probably unaware of the events which led to the state of affairs culminating in the murder of Lieutenant Garnier, a slight sketch of the policy which France has of late pursued in that quarter may not prove uninteresting. A drama involving no slight consequences, both to Annam and to European progress in this quarter of the world, is now being played out on a stage small indeed when compared to the vast empire on its Northern boundaries, but still rivalling in importance many European States. Thirty years ago its population was estimated at fifteen millions, and it has probably increased since that date. Abounding in the precious metals, as well as copper and iron, and not ill-favoured as regards vegetable productions, Tonquin (which, strictly speaking, is the northern half of the Annamese territory) is a by no means despicable prize to any country strong enough to either annex it or establish a protectorate over it. That France, having established at Saigon a military point d'appui, should cast her eyes towards Tonquin with somewhat longing glances was not to be wondered at. Events have favoured her wishes to a probably unexpected extent.

The Overland China Mail gives a full report of the adjourned meeting of the Chamber of Commerce, for the purpose of taking into consideration the proposed recognition of the American trade dollar and the Japanese yen as lawful money, which took place on February 2nd. After some discussion, an amendment was proposed by the Hon. Mr. Whittal to the effect that "In view of the uncertainty at present existing of any inducement to import either the American trade dollar or Japanese silver yen, any more than any other coin: Resolved, that H. E. the Governor be respectfully requested to communicate with the home authorities of the Mint, and endeavour to come to some arrangement for the coinage of a suitable dollar for the Colony, on similar terms to those now offered by the Washington Government (San Francisco Mint), before taking any steps to legalise the two currencies above referred to," was put to the meeting, and carried.

A meeting of the shareholders of the Hong Kong Hotel Company was held on the 29th of January. There were present:—Messrs. E. R. Belilios (chairman), Andre, Chater, Burrows, Heinemann, Cohen, Foss, G. Sharp, Baker and Sherwood. A dividend of $2 per share, making $5 per cent. on the par value of the shares, having been declared, the report (a copy of which we have already given) was adopted.

The Hong Kong Times says:—The Peruvian ship Luisa Canevaro has sailed from Macao with seven hundred and fifty-six coolies for Peru. The Governor has issued a notification requiring all coolie-brokers, without other means of subsistence, to leave Macao within three days after 27th of March next, the day fixed for the entire abolition of the coolie trade. Those wishing to reside in Macao will be called upon to produce sureties for their good behaviour. The last number of the Independente has four full columns devoted to a lamentation in memory of the defunct coolie trade, interspersed by some vile abuse against English philanthropy. Captain Scarnichia, harbour master, now acting as superintendent of emigration pro tem., has, during the past month, released two hundred and five coolies who had been decoyed to the barracoons, and who steadfastly declared their unwillingness to leave "the flowery land." Two of the crew of the snake-boat which came into collision with the Principe Carlos launch, resulting in the loss of three lives, have been apprehended. It is affirmed that the identity of the scoundrels has been proved beyond a shadow of a doubt, and that the authorities are going to pedro-paulo them, which, in this holy city, means to cowhide them until every ounce of flesh is removed from their buttocks. This is to take place in a populous quarter of the Chinese town, to afford to native sightseers a gratis spectacle. Dr. Magalhaens, who had been deported to Timor some time ago in consequence of an article he published in the Oriente, has again been in trouble, but this time with the new Governor of Timor.

The eighth ordinary meeting of the China Traders' Insurance Company is to take place on 6th Feb. The accounts for the twelve months, terminating October 31st. show a balance of $120,000, and the directors recommend a dividend of $200 a share, and that $80,000 be divided among contributors. As illustrative of the injury which is done to the trade of Hong Kong by the Chinese revenue cruisers, which prowl about the entrance to the harbour, the following incident, which is but a sample of many others of the same character, is interesting. It appears that a junk left Tamsui, Formosa, on the 16th of Jan. last, bound for Hong Kong, with a miscellaneous cargo. Previous to leaving, the lekim and other taxes were paid, and for these the master of the junk held receipts, and he had also paid the dues and obtained the usual clearance papers from the proper authorities. As there is no regular Custom House at Tamsui, however, he was unable to obtain any grand chop—but he left in the usual way that junks clear from the place, and proceeded on his voyage. On arriving at the Lyee-moon Pass, on the 19th January, and when actually within 120 yards of Hong Kong, the vessel was stopped and overhauled by a Chinese custom's cruiser, and the custom's officer said that, as the vessel had no grand chop she should be seized. He at once proceeded to put his threat into execution, taking the junk to the Chinese side of the Pass, and three days afterwards conducted her, with three other junks seized in the same manner, to Canton. The above facts are fully authenticated, and it is stated that within the past month no less than fifteen junks have been seized almost within the precincts of the harbour, and taken off to Canton. The junks are, in the large majority of cases, confiscated, and where this is not the case they are only released upon the payment of a large sum as ransom.

The Heartsease left here on the 18th ult., taking with her two tongkangs (cargo boats), six small sampans, a gang of coolies, and Mr. Walters to Lingga, with the intention of taking out from the Silantik coal field 300 to 400 tons of coal for shipment direct to the Singapore market. The coal, when grassed, will be run down the Sungei Silantik in small sampans carrying one to two tons each, put on board the tongkangs to carry fifteen to twenty tons, and conveyed by them down the Lingga stream to Lingga, there housed in sheds to await arrival of ship from Singapore. We hear this is a joint account operation of the Sarawak Government and the Borneo Company (Limited), the result of which we will watch with much interest.

Report says that there is a company being formed for working the Lingga coal; the promoters and principal shareholders being the Borneo Company Limited.

The acting resident, Capt. Rodway, went in the Heartsease to see with his own eyes the lay of the country and to concert with the resident of the district and Mr. Walters what further assistance can be rendered to get this trial cargo out with despatch, and as little breakage as possible.

SINGAPORE.

The advices by the present mail extend to the 12th Feb.; the outward P. and O. mail of 9th Jan. arrived on the 10th Feb. The following items are from the Straits Times:—

Since the fall of the Kraton the military operations in Atchin have been suspended on both sides; but the cholera has been steadily at work in both camps, carrying off many victims; among the Atchinese their most spirited leader is said to have fallen a victim to this disease, and it would appear from the latest Dutch official telegram that even the Sultan himself has succumbed to it, a child of nine years having been elected in his stead with four regents. The military position of the Atchinese is, according to the Dutch despatch, exceedingly unfavourable to a prolonged resistance, some of their powerful chiefs having withdrawn themselves and their forces from the opposing army, and it is said the end of the war is near at hand.

The approach of the Chinese New Year has, as usual, been preceded by the nightly beating of gongs, firing of crackers, and the multiplication of street wayangs in the Chinese part of the town during the past fortnight. The New Year falls on Tuesday next, the 17th instant, and the festivities will extend over fifteen days, during which time the mercantile business of the port will be nearly at a standstill, and the noise of gongs and roar of fire-crackers will be increased a thousand-fold. Experience has taught, however, that permitting the Chinese to enjoy themselves in their peculiar manner, with as little restraint as it is practicable to put upon them, has in the long run a beneficial effect, they thereby relieving themselves of an exuberance of spirits that might otherwise find less wholesome means of vent. It is noteworthy that all clans and tribes, at other times uncompromisingly hostile to and jealous of one another, invariably, as by common consent, bury their animosities during the observance of any general national or religious festival, but especially during their New Year rejoicings.

The great success of the autumn meeting, and the number of good horses in the Settlement, has given an impetus to the sporting proclivities of our community, and at a recent meeting of the Sporting Club it was decided to hold a spring meeting in April next. Some excellent racing may be anticipated if riders are forthcoming. It was proposed at first to debar professional jockies altegether, but on further consideration it has been determined to admit them under penalty of seven pounds extra weight; but even this will, we fear, fail to secure the necessary number of riders, professional jockies not being very numerous here. We trust, however, that the racing will be equal to if not better than at the last meeting.

The Eastern and Australian Mail Company's steamer Sunfoo returned to Singapore on the 30th Jan., thus having completed her first voyage over the new mail route via Torres Straits. She was unable, however, to start in time to carry the mail, having touched a rock in Bowen, Queensland harbour, while in charge of a pilot, whereby she sustained damage to her plates, obliging her to dock here for repair. The mails were, consequently, sent to Batavia, thence to be forwarded by the steamer Bentan to their destination. The Sunfoo will carry down the mail, due here about the 11th March. [Since reported lost.—ED. L. & C. T.]

The price of coal is now so extravagant, it is gratifying to learn that there is an early prospect of a plentiful supply of good coal coming from Labuan. No. 1 seam (six feet ten inches thick), which is 474 feet from the surface, has been penetrated, and it is the intention of the energetic manager of the mine to persevere with the sinking of the shaft until No. 4 seam (eleven feet thick) is reached, when there will be inexhaustible supplies of excellent and cheap fuel. Samples of coal from No. 1 seam can now be seen at the office of the agents, Messrs. Hamilton, Gray and Co.

TREATY WITH PERAK AND LAROOT.

Whereas a state of anarchy exists in the kingdom of Perak, owing to the want of settled government in that country, and no efficient power exists for the protection of the people and for securing to them the fruits of their industry; and,

Whereas, large numbers of Chinese are employed and large sums of money invested in tin mining in Perak by British subjects and others residing in Her Majesty's possessions, and the said mines and property are not adequately protected, and piracy, murder and arson are rife in the said country, whereby British trade and interests greatly suffer, and the peace and good order of the neighbouring British settlements are sometimes menaced; and,

Whereas certain chiefs for the time being of the said Kingdom of Perak have stated their inability to cope with their present difficulties, and together with those interested in the industry of the country have requested assistance, and,

Whereas, Her Majesty's Government is bound by Treaty Stipulations to protect the said Kingdom, and to assist its rulers, now,

His Excellency Sir Andrew Clarke, K.C.M.G., C.B., Governor of the Colony of the Straits Settlements, in compliance with the said request, and with a view of assisting the said rulers and of effecting a permanent settlement of affairs in Perak, has proposed the following articles of arrangement as mutually beneficial to the Independent Rulers of Perak, their subjects, the subjects of Her Majesty, and others residing in or trading with Perak, that is to say:—

I. First.—That the Rajah Muda Abdullah be recognised as the Sultan of Perak.

II. Second.—That the Rajah Bandahara Ismail, now Acting Sultan, be allowed to retain the title of Sultan Muda with a pension and a certain small territory assigned to him.

III. Third.—That all the other nominations of great officers made at the time the Rajah Bandahara Ismail received the regalia be confirmed.

IV. Fourth.—That the power given to the Orang Kayah Muntri over Larut by the late Sultan be confirmed.

V. Fifth.—That all revenues be collected and all appointments made in the name of the Sultan.

VI. Sixth.—That the Sultan receive and provide a suitable residence for a British officer to be called Resident, who shall be accredited to his Court, and whose advice must be asked and acted upon on all questions other than those touching Malay religion and custom.

VII. Seventh.—That the Governor of Larut shall have attached to him as Assistant Resident a British officer acting under the Resident of Perak, with similar power, and subordinate only to the said Resident.

VIII. Eighth.—That the cost of these Residents with their establishments be determined by the Government of the Straits Settlements, and be a first charge on the revenues of Perak.

IX. Ninth.—That a Civil list regulating the income to be received by the Sultan, by the Bandahara, by the Muntri, and by other officers be the next charge on the said revenues.

X. Tenth.—That the collection and control of all revenues and the general administration of the country be regulated under the advice of these Residents.

XI. Eleventh.—That the Treaty under which the Pulo Dinding and the islands of Pangkor were ceded to Great Britain having been misunderstood, and it being desirable to re-adjust the same, so as to carry into effect the intention of the framers thereof, it is hereby declared that the boundaries of the said territory so ceded shall be rectified as follows, that is to say:—

From Bukit Sigari, as laid down in Chart Sheet No. I. Straits of Malacca, a tracing of which is annexed, marked A, in a straight line to the sea, thence along the sea coast to the South, to Pulo Katta on the West, and from Pulo Katta a line running North-East about five miles, and thence North to Bukit Sigari.

XII. Twelfth.—That the southern watershed of the Krean river, that is to say, the portion of land draining into that river from the South, be declared British territory, as a rectification of the southern boundary of Province Wellesley. Such boundary to be marked out by Commissioners; one named by the Government of the Straits Settlements, and the other by the Sultan of Perak.

XIII. Thirteenth.—That on the cessation of the present disturbances in Perak and the re-establishment of peace and amity among the contending factions in that country, immediate measures under the control and supervision of one or more British officers shall be taken for restoring as far as practicable the occupation of the mines, and the possession of machinery, &c., as held previous to the commencement of these disturbances, and for the payment of compensation for damages; the decision of such officer or officers shall be final in such case.

XIV. Fourteenth.—The Muntri of Larut engages to acknowledge as a debt due by him to the Government of the Straits Settlements the charges and expenses incurred by this intervention, as well as the charges and expenses to which the colony of the Straits Settlements and Great Britain have been put or may be put by their efforts to secure the tranquillity of Perak and the safety of trade.

The above Articles having been severally read and explained to the undersigned, who, having understood the same, have severally agreed to and accepted them as binding on them and their heirs and successors.

This done and concluded at Pulo Pangkor in the British Possessions, this twentieth day of January, in the year of the Christian Era, one thousand eight hundred and seventy-four.

Executed before me,

ANDREW CLARKE, Governor-in-Chief, and Vice-Admiral of the Straits Settlements.

20th January, 1874.

PENANG.

The Penang Gazette gives the following items :—

The Alma estate, which is situated about fourteen miles from Penang, and which is the property of the Penang Plantations Company (Limited), has decidedly gained a name in the province as having been the first estate on which tea has been planted and successfully cultivated. We believe that it is the intention of the Penang Plantations Company, if possible, to obtain a grant of land on Bukit Martajam, which they purpose planting with Vanilla.

While allowing that every necessity exists for Mr. Swettenham's absence on a most important mission in Perak, we cannot excuse the local Government for having left the Land-office for a period of nearly one month without any officer being put in charge of it, to the great detriment of public interests. Surely Mr. Kynnersley or some other officer might have acted for Mr. Swettenham during his absence.

The presence of the fleet here not only gave our harbour a more than usually animated appearance, but also afforded the inhabitants a gay time of it. Dinners were the order of the day, and a cricket match took the best part of two days. Over and above these, the officers of H.M.S. Iron Duke gave an entertainment on Monday evening last, consisting of "Christy's Minstrels," under the able leadership of Lieutenant Carpenter, proceedings being wound up with a dance. The evening was a most enjoyable one, everybody being well pleased with the treat provided for them, the playing of the band of the ship being simply charming.

H.M.S. Iron Duke, with Sir Charles Shadwell on board, and accompanied by the Thalia, Midge, Frolic, Avon and Salamis, steamed away from Penang at 10 A.M. to-day, en route to Malacca, where the Admiral purposes spending a day and then proceeds to Lankat, Salengore and Rembow, to meet Sir Andrew Clarke, whose object in visiting these places is, we understand, to put them on the same footing as Perak—The pirates down the Salengore coast have lately been committing great depredations, and actually attacked the North Sands Light-ship, seriously wounding one of the light-house keepers before they were driven off. It is high time that some of these Malayan chiefs were taught a lesson ; but it is no wonder that they have become bold and reckless in their attacks on British vessels as they were accorded a wonderful immunity by Sir Harry Ord's policy of non-intervention.

We regret to learn that business letters directed to merchants in Penang from the squadron at Atchin have been subjected to most unwarrantable detention on the part of some person or persons connected with the Dutch here. We have the assurance of the Vice-Consul, and we have every confidence in his statement, that he sends the mail bags to the Post-office the instant he recieves them, but it has happened that letters have been found in the post box days after the arrival of any steamers from Atchin. Whoever may be to blame for this scandalous conduct we cannot positively say, but in the face of the statement made by the Dutch Minister that steps had been taken to prevent news being transmitted from Penang, prior to the despatch of official news to the Hague, it is but natural to suppose that the originator of this idea must have something to do with the detention of letters addressed to Penang.

IMPORTS.

SHANGHAI.—Owing to the approach of the New Year there is nothing to report.

HONG KONG.—Messrs. Olyphant and Co.'s Circular gives the following :—Cotton Yarns : Increased sales of Bombay Yarns have been made, and prices are now firm and unaltered. The good qualities of Nos. 16 to 24 English are in demand at a rise of 50 cents, but the lower grades are neglected and cheaper : Nos. 28 to 32 are not wanted, and show a fall of $2.50 per bale; Nos. 38 to 42 are slightly saleable for the Canton Market, but find no buyers for Tonquin, as shipments in that direction have stopped, owing to native troubles there. Piece Goods.—The transactions of the past fortnight have been very much under those of the preceding interval, and as dealers are now fairly well supplied with the principal articles the market is quiet. 7lb. Grey Shirtings are less asked for, and 8.4 goods can be bought at slightly lower figures. All qualities of White Shirtings are scarce, and are saleable at a rise of 5 cents per piece. Common 6 and 7 lb. T-Cloths are neglected, but Mexicans are in some favour. 8 lbs. are scarce, and are saleable at a rise of 2½ cents. Drills, Sheetings, and Jeans are still dull of sale. Turkey Reds are saleable in small lots : nothing has been done in Chintzes. Woollens.—The advance last quoted in Long Ells has not been maintained, and a decline of 30 cents per piece is now noticeable. Scarlet and Assorted Spanish Stripes are 1 cent per yard lower, and German kinds are neglected. Camlets also show a decline, and are only being bought to meet immediate wants of dealers. Black Lastings are fairly saleable, but other colours are not wanted. Blankets have received more attention. Metals.—Dealers are now operating sparingly, and all kinds of Iron remain about as last quoted. The supply of Steel is plentiful, and present quotation is considered nominal. Tin Plates are difficult of sale. Tin is in good demand for the Northern markets, and an advance of 50 cents is quoted. Lead is weaker in value and is only saleable in retail parcels. Quicksilver is firmly held at a further advance of $4 to 5.00 per picul. Coals.—The arrivals have been 8,351 tons, comprising 6,332 tons of Australian, 719 tons of Cardiff, 900 tons of Formosa and 400 tons of Japan. The sales have been 1,133 tons of Australian at $9.50 per ton ex ship. Enquiry has been slack and no business has been done in Cardiff or English kinds ; Australian is in full supply and is freely offered, but as purchasers cannot now be found prices are nominal. Rice : The market has been steady throughout the past fortnight, and late arrivals of new grain have been sold at an advance of 5 cents per picul, at which rise quotations are now firm.

SHANGHAI.—Owing to the approach of the New Year there is nothing to report.

CANTON.—Messrs. Olyphant and Co.'s Circular gives the following from Canton :—Tea : The settlements given below are reported to have been made by one buyer, and show no material change in price ; a portion of them are probably intended for the Continent. Buyers generally abstain from making any offer whatever, and the tone of the market remains as last advised. The following represents the settlements for the fortnight :—Congou, 570 boxes, at Tls. 15 to 18 per picul ; ditto, 80 half-chests, at Tls. 15 to 18 ; Caper, 4,100 boxes, at Tls., 14.50 to 16 ; Imperial, 300 boxes, at Tls. 17 to 18. Raw Silk : There has been very little inquiry for Europe during the past fortnight. Advices from London report prices there as being if anything more depressed, while holders here evince no desire to make any concession in values sufficient to induce purchasers to operate beyond a limited extent. Fine Silks of all descriptions are scarce, and it would seem as if very little more desirable grades can be expected from the country before next season. Loong Kongs have continued to be asked for, and a small parcel of extra is reported settled at $465 per picul. Re-reeled Lacklow has been in fair demand, but the stock of this sort is exhausted. Kotengon and Tsatlee have been taken to supply the place of the other at full values. Settlements for the fortnight are reported at 150 to 200 bales. Cassia : 2,000 piculs are reported settled by one buyer for shipment in equal quantities to the United States and the Continent. The stock on offer is 5,500 piculs, for which $13.25 to 13.35 is asked for mats, and $13.65 to 13.70 for boxes per picul. Cassia Buds : No purchases have been made; stock 300 piculs quoted at $23.50 to 23.75 per picul. Cassia Oil : No stock. Aniseed Star : $23.50 to 24.50 per picul ; stock 50 piculs. Rhubarb : $18 to 35 per picul, nominal ; stock 250 piculs. Galangal Root : $2.30 to 2.40 per picul ; no sales ; stock 200 piculs. China Root : $3.80 to 3.90 per picul ; no sales ; stock 200 piculs. China Galle : $12 to 12.25 per picul ; sales 25 piculs ; stock 70 piculs. Turmeric : $5.25 to 5.50 per picul ; no sales ; stock 200 piculs. Cantharides : No stock. Musk : $150 to 160 per catty ; no sales ; stock 20 catties. Preserves : No change in prices and no business reported. Fire Crackers : Prices remain the same without any business doing for export. Matting : We hear of no purchases or contracts having been made on foreign account ; native buyers are said to have taken for export about 2,000 rolls of assorted qualities at rather full prices. The stocks of straw, both manufactured and in the raw state, are currently reported to be very moderate, to which we attribute the firmness of holders both here and in the country. At this, the stock of ready made cargo is below the average of this season of the year. Tin has been very dull during the fortnight, total transactions reported amounting only to about 1,982 piculs, of which the half is for China market ; prices have ranged between $31.75 and $31.50 for Funghing Chop and $30⅝ to $30 for ordinary. Stocks are now about 5,000 piculs, but few of our dealers are willing to sell at $30, at which last transaction was completed ; there is no demand for America at present. Gambier has been in active demand, but dealers, owing to the approach of the Chinese holidays, are not inclined to enter into large transactions ; contracts reported amount to about 650 tons at $5.15 to 5.25 ; price closes easier and a reduction of 2½ cents might be obtained from highest point. Black Pepper is very dull, and the purchases during the fortnight comprise only about 1,400 piculs at $14.90 to 14.75 ; at close dealers would probably accept at $14⅝. White Pepper : Large supplies have come in ; we hear of about 3,000 piculs being settled during the fortnight at from $18.50 to 16.25, closing quotation for good Singapore is $17½. Bontyne Coffee : Arrivals of about 1,400 piculs, different sorts, of which 600 piculs have been settled at $27⅜ to 29½ ; stock remaining is 800 piculs Bontyne held for $29½, which so far buyers declined to pay. Pearl Sago : Small has been contracted for at $3.22½ to 3.17½ ; large and medium at $3.45 to 3.60. Tapioca is scarce and wanted at $4¾ to $5, according to quality. India Rubber : Small arrivals and sales at $49. Borneo Rubber : Supplies have been very small, and all has been taken for England at $36½ to 37. Gum Dammar : Last purchase was at $10 ; no demand at present. Cutch : In consequence of high prices in Rangoon one of our dealers has bought up 2,500 boxes at $4½, and the balance of stock, about 3,000 boxes, is held for an advance. Buffalo Hides : Macassar kind have been taken at $11½ to 12 ; we hear of no transactions in Singapore quality, but No. 1 and 2 Siam have been purchased at $9¾ and 8¼ ; stocks small. Cow Hides are much wanted, and as high as $21 has been paid for picked lots of China kind. Cassia Lignea in no demand whatever. Rattans are much wanted, and prices are firmer ; supplies of good quality very small. Nutmegs : No arrivals. Mace : A trifling transaction at $102. Rice is rather firmer, in consequence of a falling off in arrivals ; we quote Rangoon, cargo, $1.55 ; Saigon, new grain, $1.67½ ; Siam, clean cargo, $1.72½.

THE Secretary of the Zoological Society read a report on the additions made to the society's menagerie during February, and called special attention to a Malayan Hornbin (Buceros Malayanus), new to the society's collection ; a Python, presented by Mr. C. J. Noble, of Hong Kong ; and a young male of an undescribed species of deer from Northern China.

LATEST TELEGRAMS.

THE ATCHIN WAR.

THE HAGUE, MARCH 9.—The Government has received the following despatch from General van Swieten, dated Atchin, 5th inst.:—"The Imaums of Lepong and Loong, on the Western Coast, have recognised the sovereignty of the Netherlands. Our establishment in the Kraton promises to be of a durable character."

PENANG, MARCH 8.—According to intelligence received here through Atchinese sources, the Atchinese have several forts inland strongly defended with guns and supplies brought from the Kraton. The Atchinese declare that they have no intention of yielding, and announce their intention of prolonging the struggle, so that the cholera and sickness may decimate the Dutch forces. They continue to affirm that the Treaty of 1857, on which the Dutch base their claims, is a fabrication, and challenge an investigation. They consider that England has broken faith with them.

PENANG, MARCH 14.—General Van Swieten is endeavouring to distribute proclamations among the petty rajahs along the coast, announcing the surrender of Atchin, demanding their submission, and stating that the Dutch will protect trade and respect their religion. The rajahs universally refuse to submit, and continue their armed resistance. The report of Panglimapolim's death is unfounded. He is constructing strong fortifications near the Kraton. The Atchinese are stated to be concentrating for a grand attack on the Dutch positions.

THE INSURRECTION IN JAPAN.

The following telegram has been received from the Oriental Bank, Yokohama, to the Oriental Bank, London, dated the 4th of March, and received on the 12th of March:—"We are requested by the Japanese Government to state that political disturbances were confined to one province, and that all offenders have surrendered. Japanese Government say you may publish this."

NAGASAKI, MARCH 13.—The Government telegraph lines which were destroyed during the late disturbances have been restored, and are now working.

NEW CABLE TO SINGAPORE.

SYDNEY, MARCH 14.—A coalition between New South Wales, Queensland, and New Zealand is contemplated, for the construction of another submarine cable to Singapore.

Naval and Military.

Lieutenant-Colonel Barlow has been appointed to the command of the 1st battalion of the 10th Regiment stationed at Singapore, vacant by the retirement of Colonel Norman. He will proceed to Singapore by next mail.

The Hart, composite gunvessel, 4 guns, 584 (464) tons, 608 (120) horse-power, Commander T. H. Royse, is fitting for the China Station at Malta, and will be ready for sea about the middle of April.

A return has just been published, showing the vessels for the Royal navy building, or ordered to be built, in 1873, with their dimensions, cost, &c. We select the details of those which have been sent to the China station:—Modeste, 14 guns, 1,890 tons, 350-horse power; built at Devonport; estimated cost of engines, £21,750; estimated expenditure on hull, to 31st March, 1874, £62,144. Kestrel, 4 guns, 592 tons, 100-horse power, built at Chatham: estimated cost of engines, £6,500; estimated expenditure on hull up to the 31st of March, 1873, £16,401. Frolic, a vessel of the same class, also built at Chatham, the engines costing the same, and the hull £16,506. The Mosquito, 4 guns, 408 tons, 60-horse power, built at Pembroke, but completed at Devonport; estimated cost of engines, £3,780; cost of hull, £9,959. Thetis, 14 guns, 1,855 tons, 350-horse power, built at Devonport, and recently on the China station, but now removed to the East Indies; estimated cost of engines, £20,680; estimated cost of hull, £43,940. In these amounts the incidental and establishment charges are not included.

The Gazette announces the following appointments to the 80th Regiment, now stationed at Hong Kong:—Otway Mayne, gent., to be sub.-lieut., vice Makellar, transferred to the 25th Foot; Arthur Wellesley Hast to be sub.-lieut.; in succession to Lieut. Gillman, retired; Archibald Borthwick Horsbrugh, gent., to be sub.-lieut., vice Webster, transferred to the 20th Foot; Christopher Douglas Fisher Hamilton, gent., to be sub.-lieut., vice Robbins, transferred to the 91st Foot.

Commodore Commerell has arrived at Portsmouth, having quite recovered from the severe wound he received on the Prah, and is able to undertake any home duties for a time that the Admiralty may intrust to him. He has been appointed a naval aide-de-camp to the Queen, and it is expected that he will succeed Capt. Lord Gilford in the command of the Portsmouth Steam Reserve.

The Aracan, which sunk in the English Channel on the 8th inst., after collision with the Syria, had on board a considerable quantity of Government stores for Hong Kong, which she shipped from the Royal Arsenal, Woolwich, last week. The cargo was a valuable one, and included almost every description of warlike stores.

THE following appointments have been made at the Admiralty:—Capt. C. L. Waddilove, of the Blaek Prince, to the Asia, v. Capt. Lord Gilford, appointed a Lord of the Admiralty; Capt. F. W. Sullivan, C.B., to the Black Prince, v. Waddilove; Capt. Richard Carter, to the Spartan, v. Capt. Hudson, retired.

Among the deaths recorded in connection with the Ashantee Expedition is that of a member of the Control Department, Assistant Commissary W. Burke, who served as Assistant Commissary in China from 1870 up to 1872.

MARINE INSURANCE.

A letter appears in the City Article of The Times signed "M. A.," in which the writer, commenting upon the ruinous terms upon which Marine insurance has been carried on, says:—Mr. Jeula has recently given in The Times the statistical view of Lloyd's Loss Book, and, with your permission, I should be glad now to confirm the results which he has arrived at by a review of the year 1872, as presented in the reports just issued of the fifteen Marine Insurance Companies which publish accounts. As I have no desire to compare the companies with one another, but as I nevertheless wish to show how the loss has been distributed, I indicate the several offices by letters of the alphabet.

"A has lost in 1872, after paying expenses, £40,000, B has lost £46,000, C has lost £47,500, D has lost £59,000, E has lost £26,500, F has lost £46,000, G has lost £110,500, H has lost £66,000, I has lost £43,500, K has lost £40,500, L has lost £67,000, M has lost £17,500, N has lost £39,500, O has lost £71,000, P has lost £7,500, making an aggregate loss to fifteen companies of £728,000, and in no case can I find that any one company has made a profit.

"As this loss has arisen on a premium income of £2,488,000, it follows that rates of premium ought to have been 29¼ per cent. higher before the Marine Insurance Companies could have escaped loss. The aggregate paid-up capital of these fifteen companies is £2,092,454, and as 10 per cent. profit on the capital is a very moderate one for such a business as underwriting, before such a dividend could have been earned premiums for 1872 ought to have been no less than 37½ per cent. higher than they were. In other words, if the rate for every kind of risk was raised in the same proportion a premium of £7 7s. per cent., insuring a steamer for 12 months, to earn a dividend to the companies of 10 per cent. in the year 1872, ought to have been £10 10s. 2d. per cent., and a premium of 20s. per cent. on goods by a canal steamer ought to have been 27s. 6d. per cent. The fact is that when the Suez Canal opened there did not exist that competition for quick voyages which is now tempting so many steamships to cut corners and wrecking them on well-known reefs.

"When the Red Sea first became a highway for our Eastern trade captains feared its dangers, and escaped them. They now seem to think they know the way so well that less care is taken, with most serious results; and it must be remembered that the loss of a fine steamer from India or China, value (with its freight and cargo) some £350,000, represents a loss to the fifteen companies I refer to of, probably, from £120,000 to £150,000.

"Let underwriters, therefore, remember that premiums were too low in 1872 by 37½ per cent. Let them fairly estimate the value of these and other influences as they may be favourable or unfavourable for the future, and then let them say whether present rates are in accordance with present prospects."

ON the 11th instant the Prince of Wales held a levee at St. James's Palace, on behalf of the Queen. The Duke of Edinburgh, Prince Arthur, the Duke of Cambridge, Prince Christian, Prince Edward of Saxe-Weimar, the Duke of Teck, the Nawab Nazim of Bengal, and Prince Soliman of Kudr Bahadoor were present. The presentations, which were numerous, included, Captain J. E. Commerell, on return from Foreign Service and appointment as A.D.C., by the First Lord of the Admiralty. Captain Charles Fellowes, Superintendent of Chatham Dockyard, by the First Lord of the Admiralty, and Mr. Robert K. Douglas, Assistant Librarian at the British Museum, and Professor of Chinese at King's College, by the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs. The Japanese Charge d' Affaires attended the Diplomatic Circle.

THE Zoological Society of London have just made an important addition to their collection in the shape of a Javan rhinoceros (Rhinoceros soondaicus), which was received from Java on the 7th inst., and is the first animal of the species ever brought alive to Europe. There were already representatives of three species of these huge animals in the Society's gardens. This makes a fourth, and renders the series nearly complete, only two other rhinoceroses being certainly known to exist. The Javan rhinoceros occupies the "stall" in the new elephant house, become vacant by the decease of the old Indian female rhinoceros.

COUNT EDMUND BETHLEN has presented the Trieste Chamber of Commerce with a valuable collection, including an interesting report of his travels in Burmah. This enterprising traveller adopted the merchant service for his profession, and he undertook for the Trieste Chamber of Commerce a special mission to Burmah. He visited most of the important places there, and at Mandalay was presented to the Burmese Sovereign. His work on the Celestial Empire will shortly be published.

AT the Entomological Society Mr. M'Lachlan exhibited two male examples of an Orthopterous insect, belonging to the family Locustidæ. They were said to be sold in the streets of Shanghai, confined in ornamental wicker cages, and bought for the sound they produced.

WE regret to state that Sir Albert Sassoon met with an accident on the day of the procession, and sustained a slight fracture of the arm, but is progressing satisfactorily.

THE French Geographical Society has voted 3,000 francs to the family of the late Lieutenant Garnier, in recognition of his services.

WE notice among the newly elected members of the Geographical Society Dr. G. K. Barton, of Shanghai.

CONSECRATION OF THE BISHOP OF VICTORIA.

It is now nearly three years since the Right Rev. C. R. Alford, D.D., the second Bishop of Victoria, returned from Hong Kong to resign his charge of the diocese. Since that time considerable change has taken place in the limits of its jurisdiction, by the appointment of Bishop Russell to the episcopal supervision of North China. The status of the new bishop has also undergone an important change, no "letters patent" having been granted to the new Bishop of Victoria, whose consecration took place yesterday at the parish church of St. Mary, Lambeth, in the presence of a large congregation. At half-past ten o'clock the churchwardens and other parish officials assembled at the vestry, and proceeded with the choir and a large body of the neighbouring clergy, including the Rev. J. F. Lingham, the rector, and the Rev. J. H. Titcomb, rural dean, to the library of Lambeth Palace, where a procession was formed, which entered the church in the following order :—

Verger.
Overseers.
Churchwardens.
Choristers.
Clergy.
Proctor and Registrar.
The Right Rev. Bishop Ryan, D.D., late Bishop of Mauritius.
The Rev. J. S. Ullerton, Suffragan Bishop Elect of Guildford.
The Rev. J. S. Burdon, D.D., Bishop Elect of Victoria.
Vicar-General.
Bishop Alford, D.D.
The Bishops of Winchester and Rochester.
Archbishop's Verger.
Apparitor-General and Secretary.
Bishop of London, acting for the Archbishop of Canterbury.

Morning prayer having been said at nine o'clock, the Bishop of London commenced the service for Holy Communion. The epistle (Acts xx. 17) was read by the Bishop of Rochester, and the gospel (St. John, xx. 19), by the Bishop of Winchester, who wore the order of Prelate of the Garter. The Bishops Elect, having places reserved for them on the north side of the chancel, were in black gowns, and each wore his doctor's hood. After the Nicene Creed the Right Rev. Bishop Ryan ascended the pulpit and preached the sermon, taking for his text 2 Chron. xiv. 11, "Help us O Lord our God ; we rest on thee, and in thy name we go against this multitude." After a rapid sketch of the vast opening for missionary enterprise in all parts of the world, as testified to by living authorities and those who had so lately been removed from us, mentioning amongst others the indefatigable traveller, Dr. Livingstone, the preacher alluded to the undoubted success of our missions during the last few years of increased zeal and activity. In 1836 we sent our first missionary to the confines of China, now one missionary alone reports 500 candidates for baptism. After paying a well-deserved tribute to Dr. Burdon, who returns to China to make use of his twenty-six years' experience as a missionary there, during which he had translated the Old and New Testaments and the Prayer Book into the Mandarin dialect, the Bishop referred to the no less laborious and promising sphere to which Archdeacon Utterton had been called, to the great joy of not only the good Bishop whose labours were so suddenly terminated on the Surrey hills last summer, but also that aged prelate who, though absent in body, was indeed present in spirit, ever taking the warmest interest in everything which appertained to the spiritual welfare of the diocese in which he laboured for so many years, and during whose episcopate 176 new churches had been added to his charge.

The sermon, which lasted thirty-five minutes, having ended, the Bishops Elect retired to the vestry to assume their rochets. At the conclusion of the hymn they returned, and were presented to the Bishop of London, acting for the Archbishop, who was seated in his chair in front of the altar. Dr. Burdon was presented by Bishops Alford and Ryan, and Dr. Utterton by the Bishops of Winchester and Rochester. The Letters Patent for the Bishop Suffragan of Guildford, and the Royal License for the Bishop of Victoria having been read, the oath of obedience to the Metropolitical Church of Canterbury was administered to each of the new Bishops, after which the Litany was read by the Rector.

The Bishops Elect then retired to assume the full Episcopal habit, while the congregation sang Mr. Stone's well known hymn, "The Church's one foundation." The Bishops Elect now kneeling at the rails, with the Bishop of London and the assistant Bishops standing round them the "Veni Creator" was sung by the choir, who were in the west gallery in front of the organ, after which the act of consecration took place, all the five Bishops taking part in the imposition of hands.

The Bishop of Winchester read the offertory sentences, while the offertory for the Church of England Scripture Readers' Society was being collected from the congregation, each of the Bishops and officiating clergy presenting their devotions singly, kneeling before the Holy Table. A large number of the congregation, chiefly personal friends of the two Bishops just consecrated, remained to join in Holy Communion.

The benediction having been pronounced by the Bishop of London, the procession was re-formed, and conducted by the officials to Lambeth Palace. Thus were added to the Episcopate two more Bishops, whose past lives are the best guarantee for their future usefulness among the widely different but equally needy flocks to which they have been called.

THE CHINA TRANS-PACIFIC STEAM COMPANY.

The screw steamer Vancouver, Capt. Shaw—who has been for many years engaged in steamers in China and Japan—is the second of the fleet of the China Trans-Pacific Steam Company, for model and finish she will compare with any steamer afloat, and for special convenience for the service for which she is intended, is certainly superior to anything in the trade. The Vancouver has been specially built for the line by Messrs. Henderson, Coulbourn, and Co., on Clyde. Her leading dimensions are—length, 350 feet ; beam, 37 ; depth, 32 ; barque-rigged ; tonnage, 2,600 tons ; four decks. The engines, which are 500-horse power, nominal, are fitted on the compound principle, with ample boilers, and every known improvement. The fuel consumption averages thirty tons per diem, and she will be capable of sustaining an average speed of 260 miles per diem, accomplishing the passage from Yokohama to San Francisco in sixteen to seventeen days.

The saloon accommodation is intended for eighty first-class passengers, and the fittings are handsome and comfortable. Each cabin has a fine large port, and the furniture is well arranged. The ladies berths are complete, with baths attached. On the upper deck is a special ladies' saloon and a gentlemans' smoking room. At the head of the companion, or staircase, to the saloon is a nicely-furnished cabin as a lounge-room, an immense comfort in rainy weather. The saloon and all apartments are fitted with heating apparatus for cold weather. The captain's and officers' cabins are on deck, and a well-protected wheel-house, which adjoins the captain's cabin. The two lower decks are fitted with movable bunks for about 900 Chinese passengers, and everything necessary for their comfort. There is also a special galley for their use, fitted with immense rice pans.

The pioneer vessel of the company, the Vasco de Gama, is now on her second trip across the Pacific, and a third vessel will shortly follow the Vancouver, and maintain a regular monthly service between Hong Kong, Yokohama, and San Francisco. A connection will be formed with steamers running between Shanghai and Yokohama, and in a few months we may expect correspondence by this route in thirty-six days from Shanghai, and thirty-three from Yokohama. The working of the company up to the present has been conducted, and the capital subscribed, as a private enterprise. The managing director in London is Mr. E. M. de Bussche, and the managing agents in Japan, Messrs. Hudson, Malcolm, and Co. ; the London firm of this house, we believe, first put the concern on foot. The Hong Kong and Shanghai agents are Messrs. Russell and Co., and in San Francisco, Messrs. Macondray and Co.

ROTTERDAM, MARCH 11.

It is with much regret I hear that the King has again been ill ; he suffers, it is said, from a severe cold. The Amsterdamsche Courant has stated that his Majesty declines to accept a present on the 12th of May. He wishes that the money which is subscribed for the purpose should be expended on behalf of a charitable institution.

The tone which has prevailed for some time past in the Batavia papers has created a good deal of indignation here. Mr. Busken Huet, who was sent to Java to raise the moral level of the press, has sacrificed his reputation as a litterateur, as well as Mr. Van Daalen, the editor of the Java Bode. As matters stand now, it seems not at all improbable that these gentlemen will take to the pistol, instead of the pen. They are abusing each other most heartily.

Rumours are current that Mr. Van Delden wished to resign office now that his Monetary Bill has been outvoted. The Premier, however, is of opinion that if the Minister of the Financial Department puts his portfolio at the disposal of the King, the whole Cabinet must ask for their dismissal. Thereupon Mr. Van Delden has decided to remain in office.

On the 17th inst. the monument in memory of the late King William II., which will be erected at Tilburg, will be inaugurated. The King will attend the ceremony.

The Minister of the War Department has taken measures to promote voluntary military service. He offers very acceptable conditions to those who are able to pass a certain examination, and to any who wish to enrol themselves either for six years or for one year, a premium will be paid.

I regret to record the death of Mr. G. L. J. Van der Hucht, ex M.P., and of Mr. J. B. Bots, who was for twenty-six years a Member of the Second Chamber.

I hear that Mr. E. P. de Monchy has asked for his dismissal as President of the Dutch Trading Company.

The King has conferred the knighthood of the Military William Order 4th class on First Lieutenant P. Vinkhuizen, serving in Achin.

The papers state that the sum required for building a seminary at Batavia amounts to about 300,000 guilders, and that two-thirds of this amount is subscribed.

From Amsterdam I hear of the successful launch of the screw steamer Banjermassing, which has been built for the East Indian service.

THE WAR IN ATCHIN.

AMONG the most recent telegrams from the Straits we read that the Atchinese have several forts inland, strongly defended with guns and supplies brought from the Kraton; that they have no intention of yielding, but mean, on the contrary, to prolong the struggle, in the hope that sickness among the Dutch troops may aid them in their resistance. They still maintain, also, that the Treaty of 1857, on which the Dutch base their claims, is a forgery, and they look upon England as having broken faith with them. As to the Hollanders, they on their side appear to be equally stubborn. They propose—as their newspapers inform us—"once and for all, to put an end to Atchin as a separate Power," not, that is, to satisfy themselves with exacting the costs of the war from the SULTAN'S Treasuries, and concluding a treaty to carry out their original demands, which were confined to the repression of certain abuses, and the right to erect a lighthouse here and there. These concessions would no longer content them; what they have now determined on is to subjugate the whole of Atchin, and reduce its sovereign to the position of one of the petty chieftains in Java. Such being the views of the Dutch, we find them taking the steps proper to attain their ends; they are, in fact, organising a regular military establishment at Kraton, and by making that their military centre they will be able gradually to exterminate their foe, and reduce the whole territory, province by province, into complete submission. To accomplish this will of course involve much loss of time, much expenditure of money, and much waste of energy. These are endurable evils, and even if it is not very cheering to learn that the Atchinese have burnt all their pepper plantations, and that in consequence the price of this article has already risen, and will probably rise much higher, yet, so far as these points are concerned, we can console ourselves with the reflection that, though the long-suffering Hollanders may gain a trifle by the dearness of pepper, yet the time, the trouble, and the money thrown away will be an outlay entirely their own. Englishmen, however—and we may say men of intelligence all over the world—will be far more inclined to deplore the bloodshed, the miseries, and the sickness which this protracted little war is entailing. The delays and difficulties which the Dutch encounter make it probable—if not certain—that they will not get their campaign concluded before the change of the monsoon. And thus the war will have to go on till the early part of 1875. Of course we none of us know—we probably never shall—the actual loss of life which has occurred among the ranks of the Dutch.

The critical position of Holland as a dominant Power in the East Indian Archipelago, holding the Malay races in subjection by the power of the sword, renders it of paramount importance to her to keep the lustre of her prestige as unsullied as may be. Hence all true versions of the casualties they suffer, of their occasional failures, their not unfrequent repulses, are carefully suppressed, and the futility of the enemy's resistance is brought out with a prominence which contrasts strangely with the tardiness of the Dutch advance. But we do here and there get a glimpse of the truth, for there is at any rate one "special correspondent," not exactly "on the spot"—we presume he is not allowed to proceed there—but writing sometimes from Batavia and sometimes from Padang. It is really sickening to read in his story the details of the despairing resistance offered by these unhappy and unenlightened Mahommedans. In vain they struggle devotedly to defend their country and their homes against what they believe to be an unrightous invasion. They muster gallantly to face the modern artillery and arms of precision, and of course are mowed down often like flocks of helpless sheep. Girls of sixteen and children four years old are found among the bodies of the slain. What, then, has this doomed race done to merit carnage so horrifying as this? Are they blood-drinking cannibals like the men of Dahomey? Are they a perjured tribe who have wantonly violated the most solemn obligations as did the Lava-bed Modocs? Not at all. They are a reasonably civilised people, growers of rice and pepper, who have enjoyed peaceable and orderly government under their own sovereign for fifty years past at the least. The Dutch simply saw the land that it is fair,—AHAB has coveted the vineyard of NABOTH—and, côute qui côute, on any pretence or none, has set himself to the accomplishment of his end. This is really no exaggerated statement.

We ourselves in 1819—or thereabouts—made a treaty of amity and commerce with Atchin, by which its independence was secured; in 1824 we made our famous Treaty with the Dutch, to whom we surrendered our possessions in Sumatra at Yenevolen and elsewhere, undertaking with the Dutch to abrogate our existing treaties with native potentates in that island. At the same time, in the note appended to the Treaty of 1824, our plenipotentiaries expressly declared that it was understood that the independence of Atchin was to be respected, to which the Dutch conveyed an evasive reply. But we never did fulfil our obligation to the Dutch. We never abrogated our Treaty with Atchin. We dropped it, and allowed it to become obsolete. In the eyes of the Sultan and his people, however, that English Treaty is still in force, and he is quite right in his view; for while we have never notified him of its abrogation, we have also steadily, up to November 2, 1871, resisted the efforts of the Dutch to attack Atchin. On the date last named we signed a new Convention (entered into a treacherous compact, the Atchinese would say), by which we "desist from all objec- "tions against the extension of the Dutch dominion in "any part of Sumatra." These words prove the correctness of our preceding explanation of the British position towards Atchin; and we may add that the contract was concluded without a reference to the SULTAN! This is what the authorities at Atchin have in their minds when they declare "that England has broken faith with them." The Dutch complained of piracy and outrages on the Atchinese coasts, and asked to put lighthouses in some places there. The SULTAN did not want the lighthouses, and knew nothing of the crimes, but he gave Holland full leave to cruise in his waters, and punish the guilty parties. The answer was not a satisfactory one, but it more than fulfils the requirements of strict International Law; and petty disputes of this kind can be set right by diplomacy with a few weeks' correspondence and trouble. They do not amount to a casus belli. If they did we should now see England putting men, women, and children in Laroot to the sword, and there would have been war with China once a fortnight for the last ten years. It is idle to discuss the point. The Dutch wanted Atchin, as NICHOLAS wanted Constantinople, and these were the pleas. Had they really sought nothing more than redress for grievances, they would have probably got it. We sincerely hope that Lord DERBY may see his way to some sort of mediation to stay the sickening slaughter.

REVISION OF THE TREATIES.

SOME seven months have now elapsed since the Japanese Embassy to the European Powers arrived back in their own country, and it is a matter of surprise to all who have interests in Japan that we have received no definite advices of negotiations for the revision of our Treaty between Sir HARRY PARKES and the Japanese Government. We have heard, it is true, that, soon after the return of the Embassy, an effort was made to obtain a promise from the Japanese Government that the whole Empire should be thrown unreservedly open to foreigners; this, however, was met by a request for the abrogation of the ex-territoriality clauses in the Treaties. Being told that this could not be conceded under any circumstances, the Japanese proceeded to withdraw certain liberties, which they had of their own free will granted to foreigners, and demanded that, in accordance with the strict letter of the Eastern Treaties, they should not be allowed to travel beyond certain prescribed limits in the vicinity of the various Treaty ports. On this point the German Minister has taken somewhat novel ground, and set his colleagues a good example, which we hope they will not be slow to follow, and that thus the irritating and obnoxious action on the part of the Japanese Government may be speedily modified. Herr von BRANDT maintains that the Japanese have themselves violated the clause in the old Treaties which they now seek to revive and enforce, by introducing foreigners into the interior for the instruction of their youth, the development of their mineral resources, &c., and on this ground he proposes to resist the attempt to exclude his countrymen from free circulation in the interior, whether for pleasure or purposes of trade. Considering the rapid strides which the Japanese have of late years made in the paths of progress and civilisation, it is disappointing to see them thus clinging to a relic of their old policy of isolation; and in view of the intelligence displayed by them in various matters of administrative reform, &c., it is astounding that they should for a moment think of reviving a doctrine which they had tacitly and voluntarily given up. From what has now transpired it is quite clear that, unless this objectionable clause be at once withdrawn in a new Treaty (which surely ought by this time to be ripe for signature), it will be the cause of endless difficulties and constant irritation between foreigners and the Japanese authorities.

The state of matters in China is equally unsatisfactory, or rather, looking to the magnitude of the interests involved, it is much more disappointing. After a great flourish of trumpets, after collecting numerous and elaborate reports from Her MAJESTY'S Consuls, from the Chambers of Commerce, and from the leading mercantile houses, Sir RUTHERFORD ALCOCK in 1869 concluded a Convention with the Chinese Government for the revision of the Treaty. This Convention, as is well known, Her MAJESTY was induced to refuse to ratify by the advice of her responsible Ministers, which advice was given in consequence of the urgent representations made to the late Lord CLARENDON by a large and influential deputation of merchants and others interested in China; and since then, as far as we are aware, absolutely nothing has been done in the matter. For a long while, whenever the subject was raised, the official answer was, "Wait till the Audience question is set-"tled, and then we will procure a revision of the Treaty "on better terms;" and the mercantile community, seeing that there was some show of reason in the reply, and not wishing to hamper the free action of Her MAJESTY'S Envoy, agreed to wait. The attention of all became concentrated upon the Audience question, the solution of which difficulty was to be the sovereign panacea for all the ills and injustice we had had to put up with at the hands of the Chinese Government. The Audience question, as is sufficiently notorious, was settled by the EMPEROR publicly receiving the Diplomatic Corps on the 29th of last June; but still we hear nothing of the revision of the Treaty. For aught we know to the contrary, the past eight or nine months have been spent in simply doing nothing, and this policy of inaction and stagnation is intolerable. This country maintains, at a heavy cost to the taxpayer, a large diplomatic staff at Peking, and it has a right to expect that it shall do something. We would urge the great importance of these Treaties on the attention of our new Foreign Minister, Lord DERBY, and, considering the time already lost, it is not asking too much to demand that the subject should have his Lordship's immediate consideration.

A TELEGRAM from Constantinople states that the Porte has again given positive instructions to the Khedive to inform the Suez Canal Company that, while they may either accept or decline the temporary surtax in their favour, proposed by the International Tonnage Commission, yet they must abide by the rules determining the net tonnage of ships upon which tolls are levied.

CHEN-LAN-PIN, one of the Commissioners appointed by the Chinese Government to inquire into the condition of Chinese labourers, has been present at a reception given by President GRANT at Washington.

MR. J. G. CASWELL having returned by last mail, we understand that the duties of British Consul at Saigon will, until further notice, be discharged by Mr. C. F. TREMLETT, partner in Messrs. W. G. HALE and Co.

A RUMOUR has been current in the City that it was the intention of Her MAJESTY'S Government to take steps to mediate between the Dutch and the Sultan of ATCHIN. There is, however, no truth in it.

WE regret to state that some delay has been found necessary in ratifying the Perak Treaty, owing to information required by the Colonial-office not having yet been received from Sir ANDREW CLARKE.

THE TREATY WITH PERAK.

The following, which appeared in The Times of the 11th, describes our position and the action taken by Sir Andrew Clarke which ended in the Treaty of Perak. We trust that it will soon receive ratification, and be published for general information:—

The lower extremity of the Malay peninsula, which forms the eastern shore of the Straits of Malacca, and extends for more than 300 miles from opposite the island of Penang to that of Singapore, is divided into several independent little principalities, under Malay sultans, rajahs, and other chiefs. The northernmost of these is Perak, whose northern district, called Larut, adjoins our Province Wellesley. The Sultan of Perak died nearly three years ago, and Abdullah, the Rajah Mudah, was, beyond all question, entitled by Malay law and usage to succeed him. By some intrigue, however, among the Malay chiefs, his title was ignored, and the Governor of Larut, or Orang Kayah Muntir, as he is styled, seems to have recognised another chief, the Rajah Bindaharah, as Sultan, and civil war between him and the Rajah Mudah was the consequence. If it had been confined to these Perak Malays it would have been of no material importance to us; but Larut is full of tin, which has for many years attracted Chinese miners and Chinese capital from Penang, and both miners and capitalists, who had a quarrel among themselves of some years' standing, were quickly involved in the Perak war of succession. One tribe of them espoused the cause of the Rajah Mudah, another that of the Muntir Captain Speedy, formerly at the head of the Penang police, took service under the latter, and raised for him a body of some 300 Sepoys in India. Junks were fitted out in Penang, and men and arms were despatched from it to the scene of war. It is even said that the wounded were brought back to our Settlement and treated in the Government hospitals. Thus, not only was Perak in a blaze, but the fire threatened to break out at any moment on our own soil among the inflammable materials collected on it. The war had become rather a struggle between two factions of Penang Chinamen than one between two Malay chieftains, and the former actually threatened to fight it out in the streets of Penang, instead of going to the rivers and jungles of the mainland for the purpose.

Our Colonial authorities at first maintained a strict neutrality, and to enforce it, the Governor, Sir H. Ord, prohibited all exportation of military stores to Perak, as he had power to do, under a local enactment. But in the course of last year he announced that he recognised the Muntir as the ruler of Larut, and he modified his prohibition by making an exception in the Muntir's favour. This measure, of questionable legality, had not the effect apparently expected from it; on the contrary, it made matters worse, for it called in the aid of smuggling and piracy to redress the balance which it had disturbed. The Chinese allies of the Rajah Mudah found little difficulty in sending to Perak the means of maintaining the contest. Large boats, manned with sixty rowers and twenty-five riflemen, made their appearance in the Perak waters, and carried terror along the coast. They did not even shrink from firing on the boats of Her Majesty's ships Midge and Thalia; for it was another result of opening our markets to the Muntir, while shutting them to the other side, that the latter regarded the English as allies of their enemy, and their visits up their rivers and creeks as threatening and hostile.

Such was the state of things when Sir A. Clarke arrived in the Straits of Malacca last November and he seems to have lost no time in forming a simple but effectual plan for putting an end to a nuisance and danger which not only affected the trade but threatened the peace of our colony. Proceeding to the little island of Pangkor (or Dinding, as the Dutch used to call it) off the coast of Perak, he assembled the Rajah Mudah, the Muntir, and several of the principal chiefs of the country, as well as some of the leading Chinamen who were concerned in the war, and proposed an arrangement, which was accepted. The Rajah Mudah was acknowledged the rightful Sovereign of Perak; the Muntir was confirmed in his governorship of Larut, but he was charged with the cost of our intervention; and in order to guard against a relapse into anarchy, both the Rajah and the Muntir engaged to receive and maintain at their expense a British Resident and an Assistant Resident, with suitable establishments, under whose advice they engaged to act in all matters of Government and finance.

This introduction of the seeds of civilised government into the Malay peninsula seems destined to change the faces of that country. Endowed with a fertile soil and inexhaustible mineral wealth, chiefly tin, it has remained to the present time little else than an immense primeval forest, the undisturbed abode of the tiger, the elephant, the rhinoceros, and the tapir. Little villages of Malays are thinly scattered along its shores and on the banks of its rivers; but the bounty of nature has been thrown away on them. Where there is no protection there can be no industry; and there is little or none here. The only idea of government which a Malay has is much the same as that which once prevailed in Europe. He builds a stockade on the river side, and levies black mail on the passing traffic. The Chinese hawker and miner is suffered to make his way through his wild forests and mountains, for the same purpose as that for which the knight of old tolerated the trader. Our policy as regards its petty princes has hitherto been one of non-interference, or, occasionally, of interference of a kind which did more harm than good, bringing no benefit to them, and reflecting no credit on us. There is every reason to expect, however, that now, as soon as the reasonable security for person and property is established in Larut and Perak, there will be a considerable influx of population and capital into the country; and an excise on opium will afford an ample revenue for maintaining the necessary establishments for preserving order and punishing crime. Not only Chinese traders, shopkeepers, and labourers will flock into the country in increased numbers, but even the Malay fishermen and peasants will come from other States to settle where they feel they are safe from the oppression of their chiefs as well as from the attacks of the burglar and pirate. In no part of the East have they congregated more thickly than in the Straits Settlements ever since these have been under our flag. The success of Sir A. Clarke's experiment, however, will depend materially on the personal character of the Resident who is to represent British power and to exercise British influence. If he is liked and respected by the Malays he will lead them easily as the Brookes have done in Borneo. But to be liked and respected he must understand them, their language, character, and habits; he must be patient, cool, and firm, and he must be sober, truthful and incorruptible.

The engagement entered into by the Perak chiefs comprise a cession of a strip of their territory adjoining Province Wellesley and another on the mainland opposite to Pangkor. The object of the former is apparently to protect our southern frontier from the smugglers and robbers who have long given the Penang police trouble on that side. The advantage of the latter cession is not so obvious. The island of Pangkor is a barren rock on which the Dutch once had a fort for the purpose of levying dues on all the traffic that entered or left Perak by the River Dinding, and our title to it would be questionable if it were worth questioning. The mainland opposite, which is now ceded, is well suited for sugar growing, and is said to be also rich in tin. It will, however, be necessary to provide the requisite establishments for governing the place; and Sir A. Clarke has probably seen his way to making it self-supporting. He will before long find it necessary to turn his attention to the affairs of Salangore, Sungie-ujong, and Rambau, which are in a very unsatisfactory state, and the manner in which he has dealt with the Perak question justifies every confidence in his judgment. Let us hope that from his arrival in the Straits the Peninsula will date a new era of development and civilisation.

(To the Editor of the London and China Telegraph,)

SIR,—In a letter in The Times of yesterday, signed "Malacca," a doubt is expressed as to the legality of Sir H. Ord's one-sided prohibition of the exportation of arms to Perak. It is singular that this question should never have occurred to the merchants of the Colony. It was a favourite practice of the late Governor thus to favour one native chief and to injure another; but I think it was clearly as illegal as it was obviously contrary to the spirit and object of the very law under which he assumed the power of so acting.

The Act 13 of 1867 empowered the Governor to prohibit the exportation of military stores and provisions to any country; allowing only one exception, viz., such a supply as is necessary for the protection of a vessel going to the country. The object of the Act was plainly to enforce the duty of strict neutrality on the merchants and traders of the Colony. For this important purpose only was he empowered to interfere with their trade. But when the Governor took upon himself to prohibit the export of arms and ammunition to one of two parties in a civil war, and to allow it in favour of the other, he took upon himself to interfere with the freedom of trade for a totally different purpose, and a purpose directly the reverse of that which alone justified his interference. Suppose an Act had authorised our Government during the American civil war to prohibit the exportation of arms to America, what should we have thought of a proclamation prohibiting the exportation except for the use and on the demand of the President of the Confederate States? Yet Sir H. Ord did not hesitate to exercise the power in question in this way more than once.—Yours, &c.,

THE DESTRUCTION OF THE SUMMER PALACE AT PEKING.

Four letters appear in The Times of the 11th about the bu ing of the Summer P lace at Peking. A correspondent signing himself "D." says :—

The evidence of Count Palikao, or as he was called in 1860, General Montauban, on the plundering of the Summer Palace, as reported by your Paris correspondent, needs, I think, some explanation. In saying that the Palace was not sacked, General Montauban merely repeats the assertions he made at the time to General Sir Hope Grant and others. But what were the facts? On the 6th of October, while the English army, with the French on their right, were marching along the east face of the city of Peking, our allies, without the knowledge of our General, executed a flank movement in our rear and marched straight to the Summer Palace, which is situated six miles in a north-westerly direction from the city. So secretly was this movement executed that Sir Hope Grant, not being able to find them, on the following morning fired a salute of 21 guns to acquaint them with our position, and receiving no answer, despatched Colonel—now Sir Garnet—Wolseley with an escort of Sowars to discover their position.

Wolseley soon found them in possession of the Palace, and thither shortly afterwards Lord Elgin and Sir Hope Grant, accompanied by their staffs, went to visit the French General and to inspect the deserted abode of the Son of Heaven. On their arrival General Montauban begged that Sir Hope Grant would not bring a large party into the Palace, as none of the French officers had been permitted to enter, and further assured him that nothing had been touched. On this point, writes an eye-witness—the Rev. R. M'Ghee, chaplain to the forces—"another curious fact is that while General Montauban assured Sir Hope Grant that 'nothing had been touched' (which of course he believed to be the case), any number of richly-jewelled watches were to be bought at that moment in the French camp, while the soldiers' tents and the ground around them were a perfect blaze of silk and embroidery." And again, the same writer says that while the officers on Sir Hope Grant's staff were, at the request of General Montauban, left outside the Imperial buildings, "they were accosted by French officers passing and repassing them, thus—'Mais pourquoi n'entrez vous pas, Messieurs? Ce n'est pas defendu d'entrer, mais regardez,' and diving into the capacious pockets of his overalls, he would produce a bar or plate of gold." And if any further evidence as to the looting was required, is it not furnished by the presence of the pearl necklaces, jade ornaments, jewellery, silks, and satins, all bearing the unmistakable marks of former Imperial ownership which are to be found at the present day in France and in England?

General Montauban's account of the formation of the Prize Commission and of the burning of the Palace, as reported by your correspondent, is substantially correct. Concerning the latter act of justice Lord Elgin in a despatch to Prince Kung, after speaking of the treachery of the Chinese Government in seizing Parkes, Loch, and others while under a flag of truce, and of the barbarities, ending in some cases in death, to which the prisoners were subjected, says :—"Until this foul deed shall have been expiated, peace between Great Britain and the existing Dynasty of China is impossible. The following, therefore, are the conditions :—What remains of the Palace of Yuen-ming-yuen, which appears to be the place at which several of the British captives were subjected to the grossest indignities, will be immediately levelled with the ground." On the 17th of October the remains of the prisoners whose bodies had been given up, including that of Mr. Bowlby, The Times correspondent, were buried in the Russian Cemetery, and on the 18th the 1st Division of the English Army began the work of destruction. By the afternoon of the next day little remained to mark the former splendours of Yuen-ming-yuen.

H. B. L. writes as follows :—I observe in your Paris letter that Gen. Montauban is reported to have stated, when giving evidence with reference to the presentation by the French Army of certain valuables found in the Emperor of China's Summer Palace to the Emperor Napoleon, that a mixed Commission was appointed to divide the booty taken in the Palace equally between the English and French Armies, that "there was nothing in the nature of indiscriminate pillage," and "that everything was done regularly in conformity with the instructions in force." The facts, I believe, are shortly these :—The Summer Palace, as well as the Treasury where the ingots referred to by General Montauban were found, had been in the possession of the French Army some hours before any steps were taken for securing to the English Army any share in the captured property, and it was only when one of the English Prize Commissioners, seeing the French soldiers in full possession of the Treasury, insisted upon a fair division of the treasure, that any measures were adopted by the French for guarding it from further pillage by their soldiers. As regards the other valuables taken by the French upon their first capture of the Palace, I am not aware that any division was ever made. The Palace was not burnt for several days after its capture, and was destroyed, not to avenge the death of Mr. Bowlby, The Times correspondent, as is apparently implied by General Montauban, deeply as that gentleman's death was lamented, but as a punishment, inflicted upon the Emperor of China for an act of treachery to a flag of truce perpetrated by his Government, if not by his direct instructions, and the subsequent murder of some, and the ill-treatment of the remainder, of those who had been captured while under its protection. General Montauban, as reported some days ago, appears to have stated that the English at one time also proposed to destroy the Emperor's Winter Palace, which is situate in the centre of Peking. I believe I may positively state no such act was ever even contemplated by Lord Elgin.

T. E. K. writes—I spent several hours in the Summer Palace on the morning of the 7th or 8th of October, 1860 (I forget the precise day, but I know it was on a Monday), and I saw hundreds of French officers and soldiers, not only busily employed in plundering its contents, but also in wantonly destroying valuable clocks and mirrors. Many of my brother officers could substantiate my assertion. For several weeks afterwards our camp used to be visited by French soldiers, offering watches and other articles of value for sale.

Mr Arthur Arnold writes as follows,—According to your own correspondent, Count Palikao "distinctly asserts that nothing was touched in the Emperor's Palace when the English arrived." An eye-witness (I enclose his name for your satisfaction) told me in 1864 that the very persons who first entered with General Montauban did not come out empty-handed. It is, however, possible that their pocketing of jewels, &c., was unobserved by the General.

Major-General Foley writes to The Times as follows :—"I cannot agree that the Palace was not sacked. It is true that General de Montauban gave orders that nothing should be touched until the arrival of Sir Hope Grant, but I saw a woeful difference in the appearance of the wondrously magnificent collections which met the eye upon the first entrance into the Palace at 6 A.M. on the 7th of October of General de Montauban, his Staff, and myself, and that which presented itself upon our return to the Palace after breakfast, about 11.30 A.M. Sir H. Grant arrived about 1 P.M., and it was then agreed that a mixed Commission should decide what was best worth carrying away, and divide the selection between the English and French forces. The looting continued on Monday and Tuesday of the things now set apart by the Commissioners. On the afternoon of the 8th an orderly officer informed

General de Montauban, with whom I was riding, that the Imperial Treasury had been discovered. Upon arriving at the spot we found the French had been in possession some time, and had secured the most precious articles. General de Montauban immediately acceded to my request that the place might be cleared of people and a guard put over the entrance until I had communicated with Sir Hope Grant. On the 15th General Montauban refused to assist in burning the remaining Palaces, on the score that it was a useless revenge; they were consequently burnt by a division of the English force. I can confirm General de Montauban's statement that the band of Chinese which followed the Army looted immensely, we being unable to prevent them, from their superior knowledge of the locality. The French left the place on the 9th. General de Montauban merely acted up to the arrangement agreed upon before marching to the Summer Palace. There was no secrecy in the march, nor was any flank movement executed.—I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

"ST. GEORGE FOLEY, Major-General,
Commissioner at the French Head Quarters during "March 13." the Anglo-French War with China.

The Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall says:—"The attempt made by the Comte de Palikao to exculpate himself and his troops from the accusation of having plundered the Summer Palace has not made many converts here, the facts being too recent and too well-known. Certain it is that for some reason or another the Chambers, on the demand of the Emperor Napoleon, refused to vote the Comte de Palikao a pension when he returned from China, and the Chambers were not in the habit of refusing to do what his Majesty desired. The story told here is that two officers stood at each gate of the palace and examined the plunder in possession of the men, taking from them all objects of great value. Had the Corps Legislatif been aware that the Count had reaped nothing but laurels at Peking, it would have doubtless voted him a pension."

A correspondent, signing himself "One who was There," writes to the Standard as follows:—"On the 5th of October, 1860, the English army left camp near Tong Chew, and advanced on Peking, with the rather comforting rumour through the ranks that Sankolinsin was in our front at the head of 32,000 Tartars; our number, all told, was under 3,000 fighting men, the French army not in sight. After halting a few hours same night we started the following morning, the 1st (King's) Dragoons thrown out well in front as mounted skirmishers. Towards evening Colonel Elkington, A.D.C. to General Michell, discovered the rear of 'Sankolinsin's' army on our extreme left. Taking letter A company 2nd battalion 60th Rifles, then commanded by Lieutenant A. S. Heathcote, V.C., from the advancing column, after a sharp run of about half a mile they came up with the enemy, and engaged them with a view of compelling them to make a stand and fight, notwithstanding their numbers, as the doubtful fate of Captain Brabazon and twenty of our comrades (whom they basely murdered under a flag of truce a few days before, as we afterwards learned) determined us to worry them if they gave us a chance; but by the time the supports came up and the little army put itself into position to fight the Tartars had bolted; they had no impedimenta, we were in complete marching order; thus ended the fighting at Peking. About the 8th or 9th a rumour was spread through the English army, then quartered in the suburbs facing the north side of the city, that General Montauban and his Culottes Rouges had been led on the palace of 'Yuen Ming Yuen' by one of the Russian embassy then located in Peking and looted it, which account proved true, as far as the looting is concerned, for when we marched on the 18th to view it, all that remained was some rolls of silk and a few enamelled vases."

Professor Douglas, the writer of the letter upon this subject, which appeared in The Times, signed "D.," sends a second communication to that journal, in which, in reply to some contradictions from General Foley, the Professor gives some quotations from Lord Elgin's letters and journals with regard to the French advance on the Summer Palace.

Monetary and Commercial.

At the general court of the proprietors of the Bank of England it was stated that the net profits for the half-year ended the 28th ult. were £733,298, making the rest £3,760,694. A dividend of 5 per cent. was recommended to be paid, which would leave the rest at £3,033,044.

A circular, issued by the Telegraph Companies, restricting the use of compound words, has caused much opposition. No doubt many of the words given in the list of objectionable compound words should be charged as three words, while others require the decision of a very learned authority; but surely the Company can decide the matter by charging the full price in cases where the words are decidedly illegitimate. Reuter's Company have sent in a protest to the Indian Telegraph department.

The Erie Railway Company's new issue of Seven per Cent. Bonds is announced. The amount is £3,000,000, in bonds of £200 each, the issue price being 78 per cent., or £156 per bond; and these are redeemable at par after five years, and not later than twenty years, at the company's option. Both principal and interest are payable in London in sterling, and they are secured by a mortgage of the franchises and property of the company.

Applications are invited for £200,000 Perpetual Seven per Cent. First Mortgage Debentures of the North-Western Railway of Monte Video Company. The price of issue is 80 per cent., and nterest is guaranteed by the Uruguayan Government.

We regret that a statement in the letter of our Hamburg correspondent, which appeared in our last issue, to the effect that amongst other banks in Hamburg the International had been driven into liquidation by speculations on the Stock Exchange, should have escaped our attention before going to press. We need hardly say that this statement is without any foundation whatever, the International Bank in Hamburg having just declared a satisfactory dividend for the past year, and we are sure that this denial must already have been fully looked forward to by all readers of the article in question, to whom the flourishing condition of the International Bank in Hamburg must be well known.

The suspension of Messrs. E. Lomnitz and Co., of Manchester, merchants, in the East India and China trade, with liabilities estimated at about £40,000, is reported.

Messrs. Roper and Cook, worsted spinners, of Keighley, have suspended payment, with liabilities supposed to be £20,000.

We learn that the Pacific Mail Steamship Company have reduced the fare from San Francisco to Yokohama to $150, and to Hong Kong to $200.

Mr. Sam Mendel announces that, owing to the ill health of his elder son, Mr. H. L. Mendel, that gentleman will retire from business. The firm will be continued therefore by Mr. Sam Mendel and his younger son.

The meeting of the Agra Bank will be held on the 21st inst.

The market for Bar Silver has gradually hardened; the demand for India has increased, owing to a rise in the Exchanges and the rate of interest just reported from thence, and the price has gradually advanced, until 58⅞d. per oz. standard was obtained for a limited quantity that happened to be ready for immediate shipment by the P. and O. steamer leaving yesterday. Mexican dollars have improved in value, and a few small parcels, arriving in time for despatch by the outgoing steamer, have realised 57d. per oz.

The bullion by the P. and O. steamer Nizam, from Southampton, Thursday, was in gold, to Galle, £2,610, in silver to Penang £10,000; to Singapore, £47,500; to Hong Kong, £63,506; to Shanghai, £28,900. Total in gold, £2,610; in silver £149,906.

ARTICLES OF IMPORT.

TEA.

The very quiet tone noticed in the market for some weeks past still continues, the amount of business being unusually limited for the time of year; prices, however, show no quotable alteration, importers generally being very firm. No revival of activity is expected until after the Budget has been produced, and the question of alteration of duty settled. In public sale 8,016 packages have been offered, of which 6,443 packages were sold without reserve; the remainder, with reserved prices, being withdrawn. The deliveries for the week amount to 2,838,000 lbs., against 3,158,000 lbs. last year.

Congous.—Red-leaf kinds: Siftings have been sold to a fair extent, old seasons from 5d. to 7d., new from 6d. to 8d. per lb. Broken-leaf kinds from 7½d. to 10½d. for old and new seasons. Fair to good common shows no change. In fair to good and fine Kaisows, business has been too small to show any change of prices. In finest nothing has been done. Pak Lin kinds remain as before. Black-leaf kinds: Fair common has sold at public sale at previous prices; privately the demand is limited; good common to fair medium have only been saleable in small parcels at about previous price. Good to fine and finest show no change, but the sales have been very small. New-make Canton kinds show no material change; some at public sale sold at full prices. Oolongs: Common to fair have sold rather lower, good to fine at former rates. Souchongs continue dull of sale. In flowery Pekoes and uncoloured Japans no sales have been reported. Scented Teas: Canton Capers: Common to medium kinds have sold rather lower; good to fine sell slowly at previous prices. Foochow kinds remain very firm. Orange Pekoes: Canton kinds sell with difficulty at previous prices. Foochow kinds show no alteration; the demand is chiefly for the finer descriptions. Green Teas: Privately, not much has been done, but the market remains steady. At public sales the prices for Ping Suey kinds were lower and somewhat irregular.

Messrs. Kilburn, Kershaw, and Co. report as follows:—

The market has considerably improved during the last few days, there having been much business doing in China Silk, at prices which now show a recovery of fully 1s. from the lowest points; the inquiry has chiefly been for Tsatlees and Ka Hing Taysaams, but both Japans and Bengals are now beginning to show signs of improvement, and business is doing. Canton Silk is very firm, on the basis of 13s. 6d. for good market Tsatlees. Deliveries have also improved, and the general tone of the market is stronger and better than for some months past. Deliveries from 1st to 12th instant:—

China	1,429	...	1,118
Canton	347	...	289
Japan	274	...	256
Bengal	169	...	307
Total	2,219	...	1,970	bales

COFFEE.—A larger supply of Ceylon offered by auction on the 11th than for some time past met less demand and went off slowly. Plantation sold irregularly and in some instances lower, viz., triage and ordinary at 108s. to 118s.; small at 122s. to 125s.; low middling at 126s. to 126s. 6d.; middling coloury at 127s. to 128s. 6d.; fine middling at 129s. 6d. to 130s.; good to fine bold at 131s. to 132s; pea-berry at 125s. to 127s. 6d. Native sold, good ordinary at 106s. 6d. to 107s. 6d.; bold at 109s. to 110s.; pea-berry at 105s. to 105s. 6d.

COCOA-NUT OIL continues quiet. Cochin is quoted £40; Ceylon, £35 to £35 10s.

PEPPER.—Black: The public sales have gone off flatly at a further decline. White: The market is dull, and of 295 bags Singapore at auction 105 bags fair sold at 9d., being easier.

RICE has been quiet; but little business has been done, and the few sales effected have established no change in prices.

SPICES.—Cassia Vera: 134 packages goods to fine Padang quill sold at 57s. to 60s. Cinnamon: 7 bales Ceylon bought in, first sort 2s. 11d., second at 2s. 6d., 1 box broken sold at 1s. 8d. Cloves: The market is dull; at auction 17 cases Penang bought in at 2s. 4d. Nutmegs: 64 cases Padang of fresh import but out of condition sold at the relative value, average 109 nuts to the lb. at 3s. 1d. to 3s. 2d., 83's at 3s. 3d. to 3s. 4d., 81's at 3s. 4d. Mace: 9 cases good middling pale Penang sold steadily at 3s. 6d. to 3s. 7d., and one case Ceylon at 2s. 4d.; of 42 cases Batavia 10 cases sold at 2s. 4d. to 2s. 7d.

SUGAR.—A very quiet tone has prevailed, and only a small business has been effected, without change in value.

SAGO.—At public sale 799 bags small pearl met few offers, and were bought in, fair to good fair at 17s. to 17s. 6d.

TAPIOCA.—At auction 611 bags Singapore went off slowly, and only 140 bags sold, bold grey at 2⅛d., fine small and medium white at 2⅛d. to 2⅛d., the remainder being withdrawn. Pearl: 152 bags medium sold at a further advance of fully 1s. per cwt., viz., at 24s.

TIN.—There is steady demand, but the fears of increasing supplies still press heavily on the market. Quotations are, Straits on the spot £94, afloat £94; Banca £103, Billiton £100 per ton, Straits and Banca thus showing a further decline.

ARTICLES OF EXPORT.

MANCHESTER GOODS.

The market has continued quiet, with a little more firmness apparent, consequent on increased sales in Liverpool. The market is steady at the close, though with only a moderate demand for both Yarns and Goods.
